Among the unfinished items left for the next session will be the document on the church in the modern world, dealing with problems ranging from birth control to nuclear arms.

Pope Paul has not announced when the next session will be held.

'This Hour Has Seven Days' Fails To Show Any of Pearson Movie

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC program This Hour has Seven Days was shown Sunday night without a controversial eight minute segment on a film about Prime Minister Pearson.

Although the film had been reported cut from the show Friday, when the CBC issued a statement to that effect, Producer Douglas Leiterman decided that a final decision had been made.

However, the hour-long show went on Sunday night with no mention or sign of the film, Mr Pearson, a candid look at a day in the life of the prime minis ter.

The CBC originally rejected the hour-long program shot in one day more than a year ago at a cost to the CBC of $35,000, because it was "intellectual and technical" faults.

The CBC, although refusing to show the film on its network or sell it to other television networks, released a copy to its producer, Richard Ballentine of InterVideo Films, and it has been shown at film society showings across Canada.

This Hour Has Seven Days, newsmagazine type of show, which reviews the week's news, took its cameras to a Toronto Film Society showing of the film last week. Cameramen took shots of the film as it was screened.

Stretch of Highway Between Station, Trenton Completed

After a summer of inconvenience to motorists driving the No. 2 stretch of highway between the Air Station and Trenton, road improvements in this area are now nearing completion.

Since last spring detour signs have been out as road widening east of Trenton there have been frequent rumors that the the highway department intended to widen all of No. 2 between Trenton and Belleville.

FRORABLY IN TEN YEARS

But W. E. "Sandy" Sandercock, M.L.A. for Hastings West, says that is not planned for the immediate future.

He said, however, that the entire 11 mills stretch of highway would be likely widened within the next decade.

The city has been assured by the highway department that there will be no highway widening along Dundas Street W. at least for five years.

Council has voted to construct a new sidewalk on the north side of Dundas St. from Parker Street to the city limits, and will set the walk far enough back to allow for the street widening, when this is done.

Cottage and Resort Owners Say Property Values Cut By Radioactivity Reports

BANCROFT, Ont. (CP)—Cottage owners and resort operators near Faudash and Bow lakes say property values have been lowered by reports of radioactive contamination in parts of the lakes and they may move way to protect their children's health.

About 300 cottages and several motels and lodges are located near the lakes, about 45 miles northeast of Peterborough.

G. M. Gallimbert, assistant general manager of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, said last week that radioactive mine waste have contaminated waters in Bow Lake and in Inlet Bay in Faudash Lake.

Peterborough businessman Paul Clark said his family has had a cottage on Faudash Lake for three years and has not built a bathroom there. His neighbor uses the water for drinking purposes.

"The value of our property will drop very low, and for the safety or our son we may have to sell out," he said. "As I want from the government is an okay the water is not harmful."

MAY HAVE TO CLOSE

Don Turner, operator of a large marina on Faudash Lake, said if cottage owners sell out he would have to close his business.

Fred Ayres, owner of a lodge on Faudash Lake, said lodge owners may lose a lot of business due to bad publicity.

The water supply for Bancroft, which has an official population of 2,615 which is increased by tourists in the summer, is piped from Clark Lake, three miles east of the village. Clark Lake has shown no radioactivity in tests taken each month.

Pastor's Appeal To Be Handled By C. Dubin

CHATHAM (CP) — Toronto lawyer Charles Dubin will handle the appeal of Russell D. Horsburgh, 45-year-old Chatham United Church minister convicted last week on five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Chatham lawyer C. E. Perkins, who defended Mr. Horsburgh during his 14-day trial, said Sunday that he expects a decision for appeal will be heard Thursday at Osgoode Hall in Toronto.

Mr. Horsburgh has been in custody since his conviction last Tuesday and will be sentenced in the Welland Court Judge W. H. Fox. Mr. Horsburgh was acquitted of three charges.

Mr. Perkins said a transcript of evidence during the trial has been ordered and he expects it might take a month to prepare the appeal.

The charges on which Mr. Horsburgh was convicted allege he instructed several teenage boys and girls to have sexual intercourse, explained to boys how to do it without hurting the girls, stated the teenagers afterward whether they enjoyed it and described to young couples acts which he had watched himself.

The acts described in the charges were alleged to have been committed between July 1963, and June of this year. Witnesses during the trial said the acts took place in a vacant janitor's apartment in the Park Street United Church building.

Ask Trenton Captain Be Suspended

QUEBEC (CP)—A formal inquiry under the Canada Shipping Act has been asked by the department of transport to suspend for one year the papers of Capt. Walter Melsop Bowen, 68, of Trenton, Ont., and two pilots involved in a collision on the St. Lawrence River, Sept. 9.

Capt. Bowen was master of the 18,000-ton Canadian bulk carrier Lecellife Hall when it and the Greek freighter Apollo met in fog 97 miles northeast of here.

The Lecellife Hall sank four hours later, and three crew members went down with her.

The department alleged, as the inquiry opened up hearings Saturday, that both ships were to blame in the collision.

Mr. Justice Arthur I Smith heading the inquiry, doesn't have to accept the department's conclusions and recommendations.

He will take them into account, along with the 10 days of testimony and the closing arguments of the lawyers, in drawing up his report, for which no date has been set.

Firemen Fight Two Hours to Save House

TRENTON — Volunteer and permanent firemen last night fought for two hours to save a frame two-storey house at 16 South Charles St., owned by Gerald Diemerrt. The fire is thought to have started in a shed at the back of the house. While the shed was destroyed, the main body of the house was saved from permanent damage. Some furnishings were also destroyed also, while firemen and neighbors carried the bulk to safety.

While the two trucks were at the fire, a call came in from Carman Livingstone, McCaan St., and firemen were sent on one truck to cope with a fire set off by the family television set.

It is estimated the loss was $2,000 with no insurance on the contents — most of the furnishings were saved but some kitchen appliances were damaged by smoke and water.

CAR DITCHED

Dennis R. McCormack, 18, of R.R. 3, Trenton, skidded on gravel on the Stoekdale Road on Sunday as he attempted to make a turn onto a concession road, and ditched the 1958 model car. Property damage was set at $250 but Mr. McCormack escaped injury. The accident was investigated by provincial police from the Brighton detachment.

Assessment Commissioner, Town Treasurer Resign Posts

TRENTON — The town is now without an assessment commissioner and a treasurer.

Last Wednesday night, at a Court of Revision meeting, the commissioner, J. Allan Smith, verbally tendered his resignation to clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry. Council, meeting the next day, without the mayor, James MacDonald and Councillor C. V. Graham being present, is reported to have accepted the resignation, verbally, but as having left the door open for further discussion. Mr. Smith today was unavailable for comment.

A dispute is reported to have arisen during the revision court meeting between the commissioner and a large property holder (and a former councillor), Richard J. Whitley.

Mr. Smith worked for several years as assessor at Belleville before coming to Trenton. His Trenton term of office has been of six years' duration. During this period Mr. Smith re-assessed every property in town, and introduced a new system of assessment here.

Commenting on the assessment commissioner's resignation today, Mayor MacDonald expressed his regret and said he hoped Mr. Smith would have second thoughts about the situation. Mr. Larry also praised the commissioner's work for the town, commenting that he had devoted himself to the job and would be a hard man to replace.

Meanwhile, Douglas Jagger, appointed town treasurer last January, tendered his resignation at the end of last week. He will take up duties as city treasurer in Barrie at the first of the year.

Local-Produced Show May Be Seen in Toronto

TRENTON—The Eastern Ontario Theatre Company will present the original musical comedy, "Chuckles From Below", in Brighton this Saturday night. Nov. 21.

"Chuckles," with lyrics and dialogue written by Kaye Cunliffe of Colborne; music by Charles Costanza of the RCAF and Margaret Barnes of Colborne, will possibly be presented at the Poor Alex Theatre in Toronto next spring. Producer, Rhoda Bale of Trenton and her sister, Mrs Cunliffe, were in Toronto last week making tentative arrangements Ed Mirvish of "Honest Ed" and "Royal Alex" fame, has set up the smaller theatre to encourage original Canadian talent.

The versatile Mrs Cunliffe, besides contributing the writing for the show, takes the part of one of the main characters, Annabelle Cobbe, a challenging role, handled with aplomb by Mrs. Cunliffe.

It is hard to pick stars from the show, as it seems to be a vehicle especially designed to give several actors a "leading" part. However many of the theatre-goers loudly have expressed admiration for the way Marjorie Parker of Colborne sweeps the stage with her outstanding role of Lady Ponsepoute, Lady P. "upstages" anyone else on the stage while she holds sway.

Meanwhile, the hard-working company, with the show on their hands, a TV appearance in the offing, a children's fantasy, "The Land of the Sugar Plum Tree", scheduled for the Trenton high school in December, is also preparing a float for the Santa Claus parade in Trenton . . . and also on Saturday, Nov. 21.

Albury Forms Minor Team

The last time Albury grownups took such interest is about 15 years ago recently Royce Doxtator who is organizing and prepping a team of seven to 10-year-olds . Redmerville road residents Walter Murworthy and Summers Dawson are lending assistance.

On Saturday Albury's littlest representatives played in the first 20 game schedule losing 9-1 to a Wellington aggregation with lots of practice already behind them.

The midget game was 1-1 going into the third, each team having scored once in the first frame, when Trenton held the 2-1 edge to grab the decision.

Birch and Dobbin fired the Peterborough markers.

In the juvenile tilt, Legion led 2-1 and 8-2 by periods as two Peterborough goalies failed to stem the winners' scoring drive.

Andy Teeple and Al Ferguson, linemates, paced the Trenton attack. Each scored three goals and helped on three others. Jim Ross scored twice, Holmes and Reynolds once one each.

Peterborough goals went to Grady and Livingstone.

New Role for County Councils

Hollis E. Beckett, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for York East, wants to increase the power of county councils.

Even the severest critics of his proposals will be forced to admit they have the attraction of novelty.

County councils, as constituted at present, have been under fire for years. The suggestion most frequently heard is that they be abolished.

Mr. Beckett, however, wants to take the opposite tack. As chairman of the Legislature's select committee on municipal law, he has outlined a plan which, while specific enough to demand attention, does not leave him tied inextricably to all of his suggestions.

At present the municipalities within a county collect not only their own levy, but the county levy, also, and remit the latter to the county.

Mr. Beckett would have the county levy and collect its own taxes and would, also, empower the county to collect municipal taxes, if requested to do so.

• • •

He also suggests the county become the assessing authority for all municipalities within its borders. This would be a complete reversal of the situation which once existed. Once every municipal assessor worked entirely independently of the county and members of the county council themselves endeavored to reconcile the different standards of assessment by a periodical "equalization" by-law, used only for the purpose of determining the amount of the county levy to be paid by each municipality. That system has been drastically altered, with the appointment of county assessors and with the provincial government taking a hand in the business because of the payment of provincial subsidies dependent upon assessment. This proposal by Mr. Beckett, therefore, is not half as startling as it would have been a quarter of a century ago.

• • •

Mr. Beckett would, also, have members of county councils selected directly by the people, from divisions or wards within the county. At present reeves and deputy reeves are automatically members of county councils, and since they are elected directly by the people, and the number of deputy reeves a municipality has depends on its population, this proposal does not represent a radical departure. Mr. Beckett, however, would forbid a member of a municipal council from being a member of the county council. This provision was unanimously opposed by other members of the legislature's select committee, and Mr. Beckett said he was not tied to it, but it is evident he envisions a county council that would be, as much as possible, free from regional pressures.

Under Mr. Beckett's plan, the warden would be elected by the county as a whole. At present, wardens are chosen by the county council and almost always some gentlemen's agreement exists for a system of rotation, between Liberals and Conservatives, or between rural and urban members, or between different regions of the county. None of these systems enhances the chances that the best possible man will be selected for the job. Still, a county-wide election would be no guarantee that the calibre of wardens would be improved; many a reeve who was not well known outside his own community has won the confidence of his colleagues on council and proven his worth when elevated to the warden's chair, a position which would almost certainly have evaded his reach had he been forced to seek election from the county as a whole.

• • •

Mr. Beckett has been at pains to point out that his proposals are just suggestions, rather than a plan to which he is whole-heartedly committed. At the very least they offer a feasible alternative to the earlier view, that county councils have outlived their usefulness, that their days are numbered and that they should eventually be abolished.

Instead Mr. Beckett's plan could easily convert county councils into regional governments and municipal governments might disappear.

To Your Good Health
Diabetes Is Very Highly Dependent Upon Heredity

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had diabetes in advanced form. The doctor told me our daughter inherited a tendency to the disease. She is now nine years old and has a craving for sweets and butter. Does this mean anything?

Are there any precautions I should take? I have tried to get her to use artificial sweeteners and to keep candy away from her, but if I am not looking she puts two or three spoons of sugar in a cup of tea. If I make a batch of candy she eats it as fast as she can. Should she have regular medical checkups or am I being overly worried? — Mrs. R. L. A.

Diabetes is highly dependent upon heredity. Since the American Diabetes Association began its drives to detect the disease, its frequency has risen from two per cent to nearly five per cent. One hospital recently examined all patients for diabetes and found six percent with it.

Diabetes these days are receiving treatment, and hence growing up and having children, so the disease is more common now.

If both parents have diabetes all children are likely to develop it.

If one parent is diabetic, and the other isn't — but is a carrier of the trait, inherited from an earlier generation — there is about a 50-50 chance of a child being diabetic.

If one parent is diabetic and the other is not even a carrier, there is about a 25 per cent chance that among four children one will have diabetes, two will be carriers and one will be free of the trait.

Thus, in your daughter's case, you certainly must be watchful, and doubly so if there has been diabetes in your own family.

The craving for fats and sweets is not particularly significant. It is true of many children, just the same as they do not limit her consumption of them. Most particularly, don't let her become fat or overweight. Why make candy? It just puts temptation in her way. Teach her sensible eating habits.

Under the circumstances, do not let fear of diabetes become an obsession.

The little girl may never develop the disease.

I'd just be reasonably careful — an annual check for diabetes. There are simple urine and blood sugar tests.

Don't make these tests in the morning, when sugar levels will be low anyway. Rather, they are most useful when made about two hours after a meal. That is when the blood sugar will be most significantly elevated in early cases.

Diabetes, in childhood, can develop swiftly — much more so than with adults. Sudden excessive thirst, frequency of urination, unexplained loss of weight are common symptoms.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a retired citizen 65 years old and in good health, but I keep getting notices in the mail to send $20 for a urinary analysis, perhaps alerting me to trouble. What should I do? — Mrs. B. C.

Be wary of solicitations of this type. It is wise to have a urinalysis periodically at your age, but your doctor can do it and at the same time take notice of any other signs that indicate need for care. I have no doubt that your total cost will be substantially less.

Talks Tough And Straight

Ottawa Journal

The violent new men in charge in Britain — the new Prime Minister referred to a Tory MP as "a parliamentary leper" before the poor newcomer had even made his maiden speech — extend their angers beyond the House of Commons.

One of the angry youngish men in charge now is James Callaghan, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who went to speak to the bankers and merchants of the City of London last week. These powerful controllers of money-bags and money exchanges wanted to hear the Labor Chancellor on trade — and financiers.

In recent days the Labor leaders have been exposed to the pained complaints of other countries about the "surcharge" on imports imposed to bring Britain's reserves into better order.

Most pained of all were the nearest and dearest on the Continent, the other members of the European Free Trade Association who said Britain had defied the rules; she should have reduced imports, not imposed a surcharge.

Mr. Callaghan made plain to "the City" that the Government was not abashed. He said:

"We cannot be pilloried because we have chosen the instrument that will handicap the flow of trade least and is in the best interest of Britain."

He went on to say that the general world trade agreement known as GATT required revision, great trader nations should be glad the pound holds up well and outside proposals for solving Britain's economic problems "usually boil down to proposals for reducing output and activity in British factories and workshops."

As to financiers, the Labor Government recognized they had to earn a living, but "you will recognize that your interests must be harmonized with the needs of the nation as a whole."

This is tough, straight talk. It may or may not win votes, but it is in the good British tradition; the tradition of a Lloyd George or a Churchill, never mealy - mouthed when they came to defend their ways.

We could do with more of it in Canada.

Strictly Personal
Patients Often Lie To Doctors

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In his newly published book, "The Savage Cell," Pat McGrady, science editor of the American Cancer Society, confirms what thousands of doctors have known for a long time — that patients often lie when giving a history.

A study at Memorial Cancer Hospital in New York, he discloses, has shown that many patients tend to lie (or "exaggerate grossly," if you will) when they are questioned by medical staff about their habits.

"They say they eat what they know they should eat, rather than what they actually do eat," reports McGrady. "They deny having had a venereal disease, they understate the amount of alcohol and tobacco they consume; they hide the emotional stresses in their work and home life; and they list as their habits and hobbies wholesome pursuits about which they know little."

And these are persons, mind you, who have voluntarily gone for medical help, for diagnosis and treatment, under the apprehension that they might have cancer. Even with this powerful spur of fear, they still do not give a truthful history of themselves to the doctors.

Because of this widespread tendency, many clinicians make at least a 25 percent "correction" in the facts they are given by patients, to allow for such prevalent distortions.

An internist once told me that when a patient admitted smoking "about two packs of cigarets a day," the doctor estimated it was closer to three. Likewise, "a couple of drinks before dinner" frequently meant the only patient that we had ever dinner, too. And "usually get eight hours sleep" frequently meant that the patient got only 6 or 7 hours.

Most lies are told out of greed or vanity or fear. But lying in a medical history — when the treatment may largely depend upon what physician is told — falls into none of these conventional categories. Rather, it is a regression to infantile behavior, for a small child seems to believe that if it denies reality, the reality will go away.

Most of us, as patients, expect the doctor to perform some kind of magic or miracle for us, without any real participation on our part. Except for the confirmed hypochondriac, most of us minimize our symptoms and maximize our past health and good habits.

We seem to feel that if we give the doctor a "good report" it acts as credit in our medical bank; that if we tell him that we have been good boys and girls, he will be more willing to reward us with successful treatment. The "medical life" is a game. We really been a well behaved child all year, so let me have the splendid Christmas present of health." But failing the doctor is like blindfolding Sanata Claus.

Tradition Preserved

It is addressing to see the disappearance of many famous militia units, although the names of some will be kept on the army lists in case the regiments should ever need to be reactivated in a future emergency. But there can be little argument with the wisdom of the government's militia policy.

Louis Riel, leader of the Metis community of the Canadian Prairies, was hanged for treason at Regina 79 years ago today—in 1885—for his part in attempted establishment of a Metis government. Born in 1844 at St. Boniface Manitoba, Riel's continual attempts to usurp the political conventions of the day, his ending of Metis uprisings and his protests—through the use of force — against the established Canadian government led to his capture and trial for treason.

1837—The lower Canada authorities ordered the arrest of Louis Papineau, an action which caused the Rebellion of 1837.

1933—The U.S. recognized the Soviet government which had come into being following the revolution of 1917.

First World War

Fifty years ago today in 1914 — the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry left Silsbury England to join a British division embarking for France in wintry weather checked fighting on the Western Front and at sectors in Eastern Europe.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1939 — the British tanker, African Shell, was sunk by German raiders in the war's first Indian Ocean attack; Berlin declared Germany ready for war; new offensive war to "liberate Europe from British rule of night."

Women Best Smugglers

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A report from West German customs officials to the effect that women are better smugglers than men will come as no big surprise. We have known it always.

German customs officers said the main reason for women's superiority in the illegal activity is that they suffer no sign of a guilty conscience. Women consider it "their right" to buy certain items in neighboring countries cheaper than at home and would be conspicuous by their over-friendly and nervous behavior, thus attracting suspicion. We know how the German men feel. Every time we "go through customs" after a visit to the United States, we are reduced to a state of virtual idiocy. The last time through, we were so terrified when the officer asked us where we were born, we couldn't remember.

On another occasion, after an officer had politely asked us if he could peek in our trunk, we completely went to pieces. We got out of the car in such utter confusion we locked our keys inside. And trying desperately to open the locked trunk with our fingers did nothing to lessen the officer's suspicions. It was an ordeal that haunts us still.

Use of Time Real Problem

Canadian Doctor

One real benefit of state medicine for the doctor would be the removal, from his reckoning of the dollars and cents question. The setting of a fair fee can be a worrisome business; and the younger the doctor the more of a problem this is.

There is little doubt also that most doctors would be as well off financially, as under our present system. The worry is not the money, but the time.

We become obsessed with the question of time from an early stage in our careers. It begins in student days when our time is swamped with masses of new knowledge which must be assimilated.

It gets more pressing for the intern, and at this stage, life's future success or failure in managing time is determined.

The doctor in practice must either manage his time or be managed by it. If one or other of his chief time divisions, namely, work time, rest time, reading time and leisure time, are left unprotected, he is not likely to make a good doctor. Not only his efficiency but also his well-being will suffer.

Under the conditions of free private practice, there are periods when a man has not much to spare, but what time he has is his own.

There are other periods when he has more than he can use and the world and his friends seem to have forgotten him.

Under state medicine the work would be steady, and the idle hiatus would no longer be a worry. But these idle spells in practice are really a good thing. They give a man the opportunity to read, or to write, or, what is equally important, to think.

A continual frantic busyness may be good for a bee, but even a bee knocks off at sundown. It may be good in industry, with men working in shifts, but can hardly be good for the 24-hour-on-tap existence of most doctors.

Perhaps someone will think up a shift schedule for doctors, and we would like to see it tried, but we doubt that it would work.

Half of Money For Centre Fund Has Been Raised

CAMPBELLFORD — The Community Centre Fund is progressing slowly in its goal, The committee under chairmanship of Dante Face have worked tirelessly to accomplish the undertaking.

The estimated full cost is about $8,500. The committee began with a nucleus of $20,000 from the sale of the old rink. Since then this fund supplemented by assured government grant, and a personal canvass of the complete area which to date has realized $18,000 with about 40% of the area yet to be canvassed and this has given the committee considerable confidence the project can be completed. Campbellford Lions Club and Branch 108 Canadian Legion have purchased the artificial ice machine.

As the application time for a Centennial grant has been extended to August 1st, 1965 this will give time to obtain cash or enforceable security to insure financial stability and to secure acceptable tenders, which provisions are required for the approval of the Municipal Board.

400 LETTERS MAILED OUT

Four hundred letters have been mailed to former residents of Campbellford and donations coming in have been satisfactory showing a decided interest by people who no longer live in the town.

Already there are prospects of having a curling club organized when the Centre is complete. Tickets are being sold on a pony, the draw will be made December 18. A dance is sponsored every Friday throughout the winter at Edgewater Park.

It appears that Campbellford skaters will have to wait another winter for ideal skating facilities but it is anticipated the end results will be worth waiting for. The new Centre will be of a car driven by Mrs. R. G. Outingdyke of Campbellford.

Fire Confined To Old Barn By Department

CAMPBELLFORD — What might have developed into a serious conflagration in Campbellford on Saturday afternoon, had the town not had an efficient volunteer fire brigade and good equipment was brought under control quickly.

A large barn at the rear of the home of the late Dr. Longmore broke out in flames about three o'clock. Due to the fact that some of the houses close to the fire had shingle roofs which at the present are unusually dry, the full fire fighting equipment was used, the town truck, Seymour township truck and auxiliary pumper. Two lines of hose were run from one hydrant, and four lines of hose from the township truck fed by the auxiliary pumper from the river.

Another barn belonging to the same property and close beside the burning building was not burned.

The building, which burned, was one of the older barns in Campbellford and having been built many years ago was sturdily built. There are a considerable number of such buildings in the town not used now for their original purposes, and in a number of cases not used at all. Children playing in and around these buildings create a definite fire hazard.

The fire inspection on Saturday afternoon was under Chief Charles Cork and his volunteer brigade.

The damage is not yet assessed.

HAD LEG BROKEN

Sharon Ellis, 16, had her left leg broken on Friday afternoon when she stepped out in front of a parked truck into the path of a car driven by Mrs. R. G. Outingdyke of Campbellford.

Miss Ellis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ellis, Bridge Street West. Mrs. Outingdyke driving north was unable to see the girl in time to avoid the accident.

Taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital by Bennett's Ambulance, Miss Ellis was later reported in satisfactory condition. Investigation was made by Chief S. Baird and Constable William Campbell.

Cafe Entered And $30 in Cash Taken

CAMPBELLFORD—A breakin occurred in Lillian's Restaurant, Bridge Street West, on Thursday night. During the high wind of Thursday night a large tree fell on wires placing some of the town in darkness for an hour or more. It is presumed the robbery took place at that time. A rear door was forced open and about $30 taken. No arrests have been made. Investigation was made by Chief S. Baird and Constable William Campbell.

The city of Belleville during the month of August kept its place as the Ontario municipality with the biggest percent decrease in the amount of welfare assistance paid out this year.

Earlier in the year the Ontario Department of Welfare reported that Belleville had showed the greatest percentage decrease in welfare payments as compared with last year.

In August, however, this city dropped to second place in this respect, when its percentage decrease was listed at 42.3. Sandwich East in Western Ontario had a 54.1 percent decrease.

Total general welfare assistance paid out in Belleville to the end of August this year was $128,093, as compared with $217,577 last year.

During August there were 335 persons receiving welfare assistance in the city. At the end of September this figure had increased to 353 but was still just one-half of the number receiving assistance at the same time last year.

Nurses Told About Radioactive Isotopes' Use in Medicine

The fourth of five lectures in the fall series of Nursing Education was held at Belleville General Hospital Education Hall, Monday evening. The topic "Radio Active Isotopes In Clinical Medicine" was clearly and concisely presented by Dr. W. E. Totten, Internist and Director of the Radio Isotope Laboratory which has recently been established at Belleville General Hospital. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Ellen Burr.

The nurses listened with interest as Dr. Totten stated that radio active isotopes were used in limited amount prior to the atomic era. Lately is usefulness has greatly expanded in industry, science, research and medicine.

DEFINES ISOTOPES

In defining isotopes, he explained that an atom (smallest unit of all matter) is composed of a nucleus within which are protons and neutrons. Revolving around the nucleus are electrons and negatively charged particles. The number of neutrons and protons in the nucleus determine the atomic weight. With the use of the reactor, scientists can now change the weight of an atom producing different weight versions of the same element called isotopes.

Some isotopes are stable while others are unstable. Radioactive or unstable isotopes are continually decaying, exhausting its energy by giving off radiation. "½ life" is the term used when referring to its energy, denoting length of time the radioactive isotope requires to lose 50 per cent of its energy.

The doctor explained that the good features of isotopes in medicine is that its radiation is of short duration, as well as being harmless when used in "normal" doses. When a minute amount of radioactive isotopes is given a drug from its passage through the body can easily be traced by a probe attached to a sensitive detector. Meaningful interpretations are thus determined by how much radiation the atom is giving off within certain cells or tissues within the body.

LOCAL PROCEDURES

The internist stated that due to limited facilities, not all possible tests and treatments are done at R.G.H. He then explained in detail the procedures which are carried out locally. These include studies of overactive and underactive thyroid disorders, one of the most important uses of radio active isotopes in medicine. Detection of cancer off shoots from the thyroid gland, and the determination of blood volume are also done using radioactive iodine, whereas radioactive Vitamin B12 is used in the test for pernicious anemia.

Tests and treatments not given locally are detection of brain and liver tumors (½-life of 8 days); tumor detection and treatment of leukemia and cancer using phosphorus (½-life of 2 weeks) and treatment of cancer using gold (½-life of 3 days). Circulation impairment can be detected with radio active sodium.

The doctor stated, "In thyroid cancer which has metastasized throughout the body, radio isotopes are important in preventing or controlling continual growth, and in this way, are an important therapeutic agent."

SLIDES SHOWN

Slides were shown throughout the lecture, clarifying the subject. The discourse was followed by an interesting question period. A pamphlet on radioactive isotope therapy was also distributed.

Mrs. Esther Barclay thanked Dr. Totten for his enlightening address.

Refreshments were served by the student nurses.

These nursing educational lectures are sponsored by the Community Nursing Registry. Next Monday Mr. W. James (St. John Ambulance) will speak about and demonstrate "Practical First Aid and Resuscitation."

Any graduate nurse interested is urged to attend.

WEDDING

BREWSTER — BURTCH

Highland Park Standard Church in Ottawa, was the setting for a lovely wedding, when Sylvia June Burtch, daughter of Rev. W. G. Burtch and Mrs. Burtch, was united in marriage to Glen Alexander Brewster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brewster, all of Ottawa.

The guest pews were marked with fern and lily-of-the-valley.

Rev. M. L. Atkinson, pastor of the church, was assisted by Rev. W. G. Burtch in performing the ceremony. Wedding music was played by Mrs. M. L. Atkinson, and the guest soloist was Miss Joan Samoogan of Toronto.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white brocade satin dress fashioned on princess lines with boat neckline, long sleeves coming to a point over the hand and slightly flared skirt. A rose headdress held the four-tiered scalloped veil. She carried a white Bible topped with red roses.

Mrs. George Chattaway, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Mr. Eddy Brewster, brother of the groom, and Mr Wayne Burtch, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the basement of the church, which was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells. The three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, was made and decorated by the bride's mother for this occasion.

The happy couple left amid showers of rice and confetti for a trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and points west.

Previous to their marriage they were honored at a miscellaneous shower at Ottawa, by the young people of Standard Church, where they received an electric fry pan, and by the young people of Brockville Standard church, an electric clock. The fellow employees of the bride gave her an electric mixer and a pair of sheets.

Mr. and Mrs. Brewster are residing at 317 Oakdale Ave., Ottawa.

Greek Orthodox Church Holds Colorful First Bazaar, Tea

Christmas in Greece was the theme for the first bazaar given by the ladies of the Greek Orthodox Church on Saturday at the Knights of Columbus hall on Front Street.

The tea table had an unusual design of the Partheon with the columns done in white and gold. It was lighted with red and white poinsettias and red and white candles. Large sprays of evergreens with four merry elves centered the buffet table.

A large urn held the hot tea, and in addition to the sandwiches, Greek pastries were offered, halva, diples, kourabieves, melomacarons, bite-size meat balls, called keftethas, and another Turkish meat called sujukitis.

Mrs. John Vasil greeted the guests at entrance, which was marked by red and green netting. Exotic music of Greece was played during the after noon.

Many interesting articles were for sale at the white elephant table; delectable Greek pastries, colorful aprons, embroidered and beruffled, gift items, and toys where the tattoo of a bright, red drum invited inspection. The convenors of these tables were: Mrs. Costos Christopher, Mrs. John Georgiou, Mrs. M. Georgiou, Mrs. G. Paulos, and Mrs. C. Gouroukas. Assisting in the tearoom were Mrs. J. Thiakmatas and Mrs. J. Nanos.

GREEK ARTIFACTS

The young dancers, clad in richly embroidered costumes stitched by Bessie Zamanis, appeared on stage and danced the cherto and chamiko. The girls were dressed in brilliantly colored costumes of red, gold and blue satin skirts with embroidered jackets of blue and black velvet. A little red fez perched on their heads and long gold tassels completed the head dresses. One girl wore an embroidered white headdress which flowed gracefully to the waist.

The two boys were dressed in evzones, Greek royal palace guards, with white pleated skirts made with some 50 yards of material, long white stockings, black tasselled at the calf; red leather shoes with bright blue pompons, and a bright red fez. They delighted the company as they whirled through their dances.

The dancers were Miss Johanne Poulos, Miss Judy Maniates, Miss Tina Vasilopoulous, Mr. George Vasilopoulos, and two tiny tots, Tommy and Gina Christopher.

Young Canada Book Week Observed at Public Library

This week the Belleville Public Library, along with other Public Libraries across Canada, is celebrating Young Canada's Book Week. This is held each year to give a boost to the good books available to children and to increase interest in the children's library.

Bright eyes and eager faces of young borrowers at the library indicate their awareness of the pleasure to be found in the world of books, both imaginative and factual. The work of the children's library is a real supplement to school work. Digging out information from books, encyclopedia or reference works provides a good early training for later intensive work.

An important and exciting part of the children's library is the Story Hour given by Mr. Alec Gordon every Saturday morning from 10 to 11 o'clock in the auditorium. It is good to see boys and girls, some with their books already chosen, waiting in the library for ten o'clock to come.

It is hoped that by honoring Young Canada's Book Week, new members may be attracted to the library and that present readers may be stimulated in their reading. Parents who have not visited the children's library are invited to come in and see for themselves why it is a popular place. A display of tried and "True titles, and of good new ones may be seen inside the main door of the library this week.

Neatness Obsession Can Be Carried Too Far

DEAR ANN LANDERS — It always pleased me that Clyde was so neat. Now I'm beginning to think he is carrying things too far.

Clyde won't let me place his freshly ironed handkerchiefs in the bureau drawer because I can't line them up in a perfect stack. Before he goes to bed he polishes his shoes and ties his laces, bow and all. When Clyde brushes his teeth he counts 300 strokes. I once asked him a question while he was brushing and he lost count. He was terribly annoyed.

ANN LANDERS

Clyde is forever adjusting window shades and pictures. Last night he insisted the pictures were out of line. I said they looked straight to me. He took a yardstick and measured the distance of the pictures from the ceiling. When they measured exactly the same he mumbled, "The house is crooked."

Clyde's obsession with neatness is making him awfully difficult to live with. Any advice? — PERPLEXED.

DEAR PERPLEXED — If Clyde's obsession remains confined to handkerchiefs, shoes and pictures, fine. But his compulsions may spill over into other areas. If they do, I hope he will see a doctor.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Now I know why you wear your hair like that — to cover up the holes in your head. Your words of praise to that high school kid who gave up his bus seat to a tired woman was lousy.

I'm an able-bodied, middle-aged male, and I don't give my bus seat to anyone. Women demand equal pay and the privilege of voting and holding office.

They want to drink in bars, smoke cigarettes on the street, wear pants, ride motorcycles and be treated like men. I say let's treat 'em like men straight across the boards.

If some of these dames would make their beauty shop appointments for noon instead of 2:00 p.m. or skip the last rouge of bridge they could catch an earlier bus and not try to shame tired, hard-working men out of their well-deserved seats. — OUT SPOKEN.

DEAR SPOKEN — One out of every three employed persons in this country is a woman, so it's safe to assume that not all females who ride the bus are coming from the beauty shop or the card table.

If you want to stay riveted to your seat while women stand, that's jake with me, but I hope someone gives your mother a seat.

• • •

DEAR READERS — I am immensely flattered to have in my reading audience numerous authorities on the Bible. Presently, I am fighting my way through a blizzard of letters informing me that the young man who kept turning out the lights (over the protests of his girl) invented his own biblical quotation when he said, "Man's mettle is tested by toil in the darkness." Please read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have studied the Bible for over 45 years and the chap who tried to snow his girl with the "Bible quotation," put one over on her, and on you, too.

I have searched my Crudence Concordance and my Thompson's Reference and find nothing under "toil," "mettle" or "darkness" that sounds even vaguely similar.

I get awfully tired of people who attribute quotations to the Bible in an attempt to elevate themselves.

If the girl had known her scriptures, the young man would not have been able to fool her. She should be embarrassed. — BRT.

DEAR BRT. — I'm sure she is — now. And that makes two of us.

Jap Women Grateful for Polio Vaccine

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian donations of oral polio vaccine to Japan have substantially reduced the number of polio victims there, three Japanese women said during a brief visit to Ottawa.

"We would like to thank the Canadian people for their help," said Mrs. Yuri Hamada of Toyama. "The women of Japan are particularly grateful for the vaccine, which has saved so many of their children."

Mrs. Hamada, and her two travelling companions, Mrs. Yoshiko Kaihara of Yokuoka and Mrs. Tamae Ueda of Okayama, were here to study Canadian facilities for adult education.

Through an interpreter, they said that before the Second World War Japanese women were kept at home and "in the shadow of their husbands."

When the war ended and the women received equal rights with men, it was found that special adult education programs for women were a necessity to bring their educational level up to that of their husbands.

"Japanese women are interested in making a contribution to the society in which they live and to do this they must continue their education," said Mrs. Ueda.

The three women said they were surprised that Canadian adult education programs were so similar to their own Japanese programs.

"We have community centres and make use of the schools at night just as you do here."

The biggest problem facing the Japanese adult education program for women right now, they said, is the difficulty of getting shy, self-conscious women to participate. "They need much more urging than Canadian women do."

MOONLIGHT MUNCHERS

MELROSE — The sixth meeting of the Melrose Moonlight Munchers club was held recently at the community hall with 16 girls in attendance.

At the opening of the meeting Susan Lester read the minutes of the previous meeting. At this time each girl handed in her idea for the club book cover.

Home economist Miss Munroe was guest speaker at the meeting and discussed menu building for the various seasons. This will be one of the home assignments to be presented at Achievement Day. Mrs. McFarlane distributed pamphlets which will be most useful in club work.

A number of games were taken dealing in particular with bread and cereals; cereals supply; whole grain cereals; refined cereals; a variety of breads and the use of cereals for supper.

The girls were divided into groups and each group made a salad from the ingredients brought to the meeting. Mrs. Lester demonstrated the making of the biscuits and Mrs. McFarlane gave some variations for same. Mrs. Cook brought salad sticks which were also made from tea biscuits. To conclude the demonstrations Miss Munroe showed two different ways in which radishes can be used in the making of garnishes.

Thanks were expressed to Miss Munroe for a most enlightening talk and demonstration.

U.C.W Meeting

EASTMINSTER U.C.W.

A large number of members attended the meeting at Eastminster United Church of the U.C.W. on Monday afternoon in the church basement.

Mrs. R. Ellis read an introduction to the theme of the program, "Gossip," stating gossip was good when not malicious, and always good in connection with the Bible. Mrs. K. Holder, Mrs. L. Uens, Mrs. T. Riley and Mrs. J. Barnett put on a skit depicting nasty gossip and good gossip. This proved true to daily living and provoked some hilarity too. A question and answer period followed which proved most interesting and educational.

Mrs. A. McDowell and Mrs. O. Clarke took the devotional part of the program, carrying out the theme of gossip and what Christ's thoughts of this were in the Bible.

President Mrs. J. Ham conducted the business part of the meeting. A potluck supper will be held for the December meeting with all unit meetings dispensed with for December.

Speaker Urges Anglican W.A. To Be Concerned With Aged

Dr. F. W. Snedden, Superintendent of the Ontario Hospital, Brockville, was the guest speaker at St. John's Church, Lansdowne, when he addressed the Ontario Diocesan Women's Auxiliary at their November meeting.

Dr. Snedden pointed out that he has been deeply concerned for sometime with the mental illness of that group of people described as the aging population or Senior Citizens. It is a group in which many of us may find all too soon that we have attained membership with a little bit of luck, but is it going to be good or bad luck? Will we be "senile" creatures that we have contributed to a situation in a worthwhile way and that will earn for us the respect and concern of that society? We cannot be optimistic. Many older citizens are in poor financial circumstances, some in our communities are poorly nourished, a considerable number are in poor health, many live in unsuitable conditions, some requiring nursing and medical care which they find it difficult to obtain. One does not have to go to a larger city to know that these conditions do exist.

The facts which influence the problem should be considered not only from the viewpoint of the aging person but also from the viewpoint of those who have the responsibility for the welfare of the aging person within the society.

LIMITED SPACE

In the homes of today only limited living space is available and it is not always possible for the son or daughter to accommodate an aging parent even though they may be truly concerned with their welfare. Older people require a high degree of care and supervision but when the hospital says it can no longer provide a bed the situation in a home may have changed and it would not be possible to take the person there. Nursing home are limited in number and a marked variety of care is provided.

The person who must live on his old age pension cannot always obtain accommodation of a suitable type which will leave adequate money for food and clothing as well as other incidentals. The family may have a feeling of guilt that their relative is so inadequately provided for but it is not always possible for them to do anything to assist.

SUGGESTS RESEARCH

Dr. Snedden chose this subject in the light of the number of aging people since he felt adequate planning should be undertaken which must depend on research. He suggested that perhaps a group could get together as a pressure group and bring about some facilities to alleviate the situation. Sufficient research should be undertaken to provide an adequate guide to ensure that following generations will not have the same problems we have today.

Current practices in employment and retirement and the effect that these may have on the problems of the aging should be considered. One person may be forced to retire whether he wishes to or not and another person is prevented from retiring because of financial necessity and no provision for income maintenance. The necessity for providing for the aging population is widely recognized throughout the world and is currently receiving attention here.

The speaker stated he had posed many questions and given no answers, suggesting we become interested in a study of this type so that the answers may be found.

Dr. Snedden was introduced by Mrs. Jackson, the presiding president, and Mrs. J. E. Utley, the Social Service Secretary, thanked the speaker for his talk on a problem which should be given our attention.

PLANNING HOLIDAY PARTIES

Most everyone gives at least one party during the holiday season, which soon will be tooling along in high gear.

It's a hectic period and many hostesses aren't ever themselves to a frazzle trying to entertain as many friends and relatives as possible in a comparatively short space of time.

When a hostess is worn out, she gets edgy about giving a party, and the atmosphere may reflect her tension. She dwells on details and tries so hard to make guests have a good time that they end up doing just the opposite. When a hostess can't enjoy her own party, chances are the guests won't either.

On the other hand, a relaxed hostess is the secret ingredient that goes into the most successful parties. She does her planning well in advance, so that by the time guests arrive there is nothing more to do than sit back and bask in their company.

Organizing a successful party takes a blend of showmanship and generalship. The guest list should be carefully considered. It is not necessary to invite everyone in the same age group or with the same interests, but a lot of worry is eliminated if the guest list is made up of people who will get on together. If someone is notoriously ill-tempered, for instance and wants everyone to kow-tow, it would be wiser to save him for a later party when you'll have more time to keep his feathers smoothed.

SEATING ARRANGEMENTS

The seating arrangements should be worked out just as carefully if you want to be able to relax during dinner. Some hostesses feel they should put extroverts together and group the introverts in a quiet little corner. Actually, mixing both together is a better idea, since those who like to expound have a ready-made audience in those who would rather listen. By carefully blending personalities, the hostess doesn't have to worry that conversation will bog down while she attends to the service.

Food is another major consideration. If dinner is to be served, it's necessary to have only one or two spreads or dips to start with drinks in the living room. Often, a too-zealous hostess prepares an overly-elaborate list of hors d'oeuvres which require a lot of extra work, and then guests are pressed to overindulge, even if they don't care to. A couple of spreads, which guests can handle themselves, simplifies preparations and is ample anyway.

When serving a crowd, a hearty yet simple menu is less wearing on the hostess. Foods that won't lose their texture and flavor if they have to wait in the oven awhile are the best bet. They also should be able to be left on a warmer on the sideboard during dinner without loss of appearance or taste appeal.

It doesn't take a lot of fuss and feathers to give a successful party during the holidays. The hostess who simplifies her task by planning carefully is relaxed enough to enjoy the end results. Her guests will be, too.

Low Cost Oven Dinner

By MARY MOORE

The sight of a can of cherry pie filling on my shelf kept nagging at me. My sister-in-law Wyn had used 3 cans of it under a "crumble" topping for dessert for 8 one night. I thought it was such a good idea that I wanted to pursue it. So I decided to make a Cherry Puff Pudding. Eleanor seized on the idea. "My boys would love that. Let me make it for dinner tonight". Then it dawned on her that she could make a whole oven dinner because she had one pound of frozen sausage meat she was "hankering to use."

So an oven dinner it was and here is the works. Eleanor says these will serve from 4 to 6 people, but it depends on their age!

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Deep Meat and Vegetable Pie with Biscuit Crust; Tossed Green Salad with French Dressing; Baked Raisin-Stuffed Spy Apples with 10 percent Cream; Coffee.

SAUSAGE MEAT DINNER CASSEROLE (highly recommended for flavor, speed and color)

2 cups cooked macaroni (use half of 7-oz. package),
1 tablespoon bacon fat or butter,
1 lb. sausage meat,
1 medium onion, chopped,
one 14-oz. can kernel corn, drained,
one 20-oz. can tomatoes,
½ large green pepper, chopped,
1 teaspoon salt,
¼ teaspoon pepper,
3 slices white bread, cut into ½" cubes,
2 tablespoons butter,
¼ cup grated cheese, preferably Parmesan (optional).

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender and drain. Melt bacon fat or butter, add sausage meat and break up with fork and stir until golden. Add onion and saute a few moments longer. Turn into large casserole, add all remaining ingredients except bread cubes, butter and cheese and mix well. Smooth top, sprinkle bread cubes over, dot with butter, sprinkle with cheese, if used. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours. A good one-dish dinner. Note: If you are not baking the following pudding at the same time, you may bake this sausage casserole at 400 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes.

½ cup sifted all-purpose flour,
6 tablespoons sugar,
2 eggs, yolks and whites separated,
¼ teaspoon salt,
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar.

Pour cherry pie filling into medium-small buttered baking dish. Warm this in preheated oven, so that when batter touches filling, baking is not delayed. Beat egg yolks until light, gradually adding sugar until both are light. Beat egg whites and salt until light and foamy, add cream of tartar and beat until stiff enough to hold up in strong peaks. Fold egg yolk mixture into egg whites then fold in flour, a small amount at a time, until incorporated. Turn batter over warmed cherry filling. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour, or until batter is baked at centre.

HITS AT DIEFENBAKER

OAKVILLE (CP) — A Liberal member of Parliament from Vancouver described Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker Saturday as a small child who, in a fit of resentment, resorts to the only tactics he knows — attack and pull things apart. Ronald Basford, member for Vancouver - Barrard, told a Halton County Liberal Association convention that Mr. Diefenbaker, because he cannot accept seeing Prime Minister Pearson doing things, he couldn't do, is trying to wreck the good things

Susanna's Family Fare

HOME-BAKED IDEA

Dear Susanna: Christmas presents can become a serious matter at times but I solve the problem by starting early and the problem quite well.

For my friends, especially those who are incapacitated or in the businessworld, I simply arrange festive cardboard plates of home-baked goodies — or for someone very special I pack a colorful cookie tin with the products of my favorite recipes.

This can all be done quietly at home, without getting among crowds of shoppers. Not too hard on the budget, and always appreciated. — Mother Marcus Mammy, I sho' does love yo' shortain' bread!

S-M-I-L-E!

Dear Susanna: My engagement pictures turned out so poorly that I went back weeping to the photographer. He was very fatherly about it and said he would do them over on one condition? I wa. not to go out the evening before the sitting. Instead, I was to have a relaxing dinner and go to bed early, early, early!

That did it! The second set of pictures were gorgeous.

His general advice for having a portrait taken is to get some extra sleep the night before and to wear something in a plain material. If photographs far better than plaids, stripes or prints.

He prefers a dark suit and dark tie for a man, and advises him not to have his hair cut immediately before an appointment. — Grace B.

. . especially if his name is Sampson. — SUSANNA

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

On Tuesday afternoon the members of Christ Church Parish Guild held a most interesting and profitable meeting, combining food for thought and fun. The rector, Canon R. B. dB. Wright, spoke on the awakening of the Anglican Church today, saying that it is being tested to show its sincerity. Members were urged to put God first. Christ Church, now approaching its centennial should enter a new century of service. Mr. Wright said, "Work, certainly! but prayer, as the spiritual is most necessary."

The induction of Canon Wright as rector of Christ Church will be held on Thursday evening, November 26th.

CHRISTMAS BASKETS

The business portion of the meeting was under the chairmanship of President, Mrs. A. W. Jordan. Most important item of business was the decision of the Guild to allot their funds for this year towards the payment of the Parish Hall, to the Church Restoration Fund and to the wardens for general work of the church. Shut-in members of the parish will be remembered at Christmas time by the Guild. The December meeting will take the form of a pot-luck luncheon when members will bring donations for the Christmas baskets. After luncheon those who enjoy a game of cards will play euchre.

Following the business meeting a most successful auction sale was held when pies, tarts, pickles, jewellery and bric-a-brac quickly vanished as auctioneer president Jordan directed the proceedings. Hostesses for the afternoon were Mesdames R. M. and F. A. Beale.

On Wednesday morning a large number of Guild members attended Corporate Communion together.

Successful Living

Moral Support Important For Divorcee-to-Be

DEAR DORIS — My sister in A..... is getting a divorce. She has no family, only me, and our 80-year-old mother.

My sister doesn't want me or Mother to be in court. She says it would worry us too much, and she will "go it alone." But knowing my sister, so I do, I know she will need a comforting arm around her when it is over. She will not disclose when her case comes up, because it will worry us, but I'm worrying every day wondering if it is today? Tomorrow? Next week? Next month?

Is there any way I could find out? I could sit in the back row and be there when I was needed, and I know I will be needed. — SIS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SIS. — She'll need you, all right. But to pin down the date of a divorce hearing is practically impossible. Even the lawyer usually only knows for sure that the name is on the list. Divorce hearings are fitted in between other cases when there is time.

Keep in touch by telephone. Pay her a personal visit when you can. Have her promise to telephone, collect, the minute it's over. Frequent letters and calls from you can give her much of the moral support she needs. And air or train travel can bring you together quickly, afterwards.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am writing to you because a social worker in the town where I live suggested it. He said he was sure you would know the answer to my question, which was not exactly in his line.

We recently moved to a new neighborhood. I want to return some hospitality to the folks around here, who have been so good to us. But it should be casual. Would a morning coffee party be all right? —

If so, what do I serve? — INQUIRER.

* * *

DEAR INQUIRER — Perfect idea. At 10:45 a.m. most homemakers can break away once in a while for a cup of coffee and love it.

What to serve? Coffee — plenty, and hot, with real cream for those who want it. With it a coffee cake or sweet buns. Maybe homemade jam. And be willing to share the recipe when the ladies admire your preserves!

* * *

Confidential to SLOW AND BROKEN — Now you know your slowness is related to your tensions, not your intelligence. So you can relax about that. Don't shut out those counsellors who will help you to express yourself. This is your safety valve.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — A boy gave me his ring in July but very seldom called me so last night I gave it back, using the excuse that we were too young to be tied down to just one person. The problem is a boy I met while going steady. He really thrilled me and I believe he was my true reason for breaking up.

While I was going steady, my supposed-to-be girl friend lured the No. 2 boy into liking her. Now I would like to go after No. 2, but knowing that girl from past experience she likely told him the worst about me and he likely won't even look at me.

What should I do: forget him and go back to the secluded world I came from or try hard to get him? — M.L.F.

* * *

DEAR M.L.F. — Are those the alternatives? Secession or a cap-setting campaign? Try being your own sweet friendly self and he'll look at you, or I'm a monkey's uncle. But don't go steady with him.

* * *

Confidential to FRIENDLESS — There are several causes of bad breath, including tooth decay, an infection of tissue in the mouth, tonsils or nose, or chronic intestinal disturbances. Diagnosis and treatment from your doctor or dentist are indicated.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I would appreciate it very much if you could tell me why they say: "Sweet Sixteen." — FIFTEEN.

* * *

DEAR FIFTEEN — The saying is: "Sweet Sixteen and never been kissed!" Comes from the dim ages, like when I was a girl. 'Nuff said?

* * *

Confidential to MARY — Unless the young woman brings herself to confide her fear to someone, what she is bottling up can work toward her own mental ill health. If she is as nervous as you say, she is obviously reaching her limit. In her present state she is magnifying her own guilt.

This could all be siphoned off and put in proper perspective through a confidential talk with a counsellor; if possible, a person tried to discuss human problems. (A stamped, self-addressed envelope would have provided you with a reply weeks ahead of the appearance of this column.)

Ontario C.E.F. Meeting Held In St. Andrew's

Approximately 150 persons attended the East Central Ontario Child Evangelism Conference at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church recently.

Mr. Floyd Cummings, Belleville, was chairman of the afternoon sessions with Mr. Cam Shillington, Kingston, as song leader. The opening address was given by the Rev. Wesley Klassen of Peterborough. He challenged those present to consider the "multitudes" who were still ignorant of the Christian gospel and unreached by those who knew Jesus Christ as Saviour.

TWO WORKSHOPS

Two interesting and helpful workshops were conducted. One was led by Dr. John Howitt, a Toronto psychiatrist and a member of the Provincial CEF Board. He dealt with the topic, "Psychological Problems." The other was led by Miss Ella Woodside, Prov. Field Representative of CEF. Her topic was, "Discipline Within the Good News Club, and How to Point a Child to Christ." Each of the workshops were conducted twice in order it permit all to attend both.

NEW VISUAL AIDS

Many new visual aids were shown and demonstrated by Miss Irene Giesbrecht, West Central Director and Miss Betty Thesker, Provincial Director. Opportunity was given for everyone to look at the literature display and purchase material.

A tasty supper was served by the ladies of St. Andrew's with 130 persons in attendance. The chairman for the evening program was Mr. Harold Robinson, Belleville.

A report of the summer and fall work was presented by Miss Thesker with a reminder that there is always room for more workers in CEF.

FINAL MESSAGE

A final message was given by the Rev. W. Klassen. This time he stressed the need of seeing the "individual" in the midst of the multitude. He emphasized how vital it was to reach the one's and two's for Christ who would then, in turn, reach others.

At both the afternoon and evening sessions a number of sacred vocal selections were beautifully rendered by the soloist, Mr. Edward Bestard of Peterborough.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Jos Thompson, Mrs. Jim Spry, Mrs. Elias Spry and Mrs. Arthur Reid, using as their theme "The King is Advent." A film strip on "The Covenant, the Church, in New Testament Times," was shown with commentary by Mrs. Jos Thompson. This film is especially helpful in the study on the New Testament church and the church today. It helps to make clear many things which helped to bring the church into being, and to acquaint the members with the early followers and the church administrators.

This was followed by a question and answer period.

The secretary, Mrs. Lorne Bailey read the minutes and correspondence. The Springbrook U.C.W. ladies were invited to an afternoon tea and bazaar at White Lake and to a Christmas carnival at St. Paul's United, Stirling, on Nov. 19.

Mrs. Gerald McFall gave an interesting report of the Bible study at Lakeland lodge.

The treasurer, Mrs. Gerald Broadworth, reported on the financial success of the opportunity sale, anniversary supper and banquet.

A letter of appreciation was read from the Fred Victor Mission for clothing. A motion was passed to buy supplies for the Messenger, Explorer, Tyro and CGIT groups.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Ralph Wellman

Lunch was served by the hostesses.

Canada Leads In Horse Show At Winter Fair

By GORDON GRANT

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian team-captain Jim Elder, riding Johnny Canuck, won the international One Chance Stakes at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair Saturday night.

It was the second win in seven hours for Jim, who took first place in the Take Your Own Line event Saturday afternoon. The One Chance Stakes winner is the rider who clears the most jumps in 60 seconds.

Jim guided Johnny Canuck, a seven - year - old bay gelding, over 12 jumps before knocking down "unlucky" thirteen. For his performance he scored 25 points, seven more than second-place finisher Oscar Sotero da Silva of Brazil on Ibanez.

The win gave Jim five points, putting him in first spot in the individual championship with 10 points.

FINISHES THIRD

Bill Steinkraus, captain of the United States team, finished third. Steinkraus, riding Sinjon, cleared over 12 jumps, but was credited with clearing only nine fences because he missed the course.

Joaquin Perez de las Heras of Mexico, riding Nanrel, finished fourth scoring 15 points for clearing seven fences and knocking down the eighth.

Gianni Franco Samaja, of Brazil, riding Mr. Jim, was fifth with thirteen points. He sailed over six fences, but knocked down the seventh.

In the over-all competition, Canada has 13 points, the U.S. 11, Argentina five, Brazil three and Mexico one.

Canada's third rider, Gail Ross of Edmonton, riding Safari, also cleared only two jumps.

In the individual championship, Elder leads with 10 points. Kathy Kusner of the U.S. has five points, Gayford, Chapot, Marcelli of Argentina, Steinkraus and da Silva three each, Salem of Argentina two and De las Heras one.

TORONTO (CP) — Quebec Premier Jean Lesage today called on English-speaking Canadians to assist the cause of Canadian unity by helping his province attain its objective.

"Otherwise," he said, "if we are forced to act alone, we shall be inclined to assume attitudes and it would be quite human to do so—which will be less and less understood and which would only succeed in pushing us into an isolation that truly we do not want."

Mr. Lesage told a joint meeting of the Empire Club and the Canadian Club exactly what modern Quebec wants—to develop fully, not to be independent of the rest of Canada.

"Quebec of today is seeking, for the present and the future, the economic, social and political conditions of an interdependence which will be conducive to its full development and which will be more worthwhile than an 'independence which would risk being no more than an illusion," he said.

The federal government was recognized as the go-ernment of all Canadians, but French speaking Quebecer felt much more closely attached to their provincial government.

Mr. Lesage rejected two extreme possibilities—that Quebec would be swallowed up in a common melting pot, or that it would separate completely from the rest of Canada.

The first possibility was "completely unrealistic and inadmissable."

"As to the other, I would say that it would set Quebec upon a course that is opposite to the courses I have just noticed in Europe and according to which different countries, at the price of how many trials and errors, attempt to unite what history has made separate."

It was reasonable, however, for Quebec to aspire to a special status within confederation which would not endanger the essentials of the federal system.

"One ought not to assume," the premier said, "that this would mean a preferred or privileged status under which we might obtain by negotiation powers, responsibilities or advantages that we do not now enjoy and that would be denied to the other provinces.

Quebec Visitors Welcomed in British Columbia

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia capital turned on its warmest welcome during the weekend for a 286-member delegation of Quebec mayors, aldermen and their wives who came here on a "mission of mutual understanding."

Well-wishers included city officials, the local press and hundreds of private citizens who met the visiting Quebecers at the airport and later welcomed them into their homes.

"Your gesture could not have come at a more appropriate time, or had more far-reaching consequences, at any other moment in Canada's history," Victoria's Mayor R. M. Wilson told the visitors at an official reception a few hours after their arrival.

He termed the visit "an historic occasion" which would be "memorable not only for you and for us, but for the whole of Canada."

Mayor Robert Cauchon of Valleyfield, former president of the Quebec Union of Municipalities, said he would like to see more of such interprovincial visits.

He was answered immediately by Peter Jenewein president of the B.C. Union of Municipalities, who announced that his group would meet in Quebec province next year.

"By visiting each other, we will discover that we have all we need to live together," he said.

The rebels hoped to pressure the United States, Belgium and other western nations into dropping support of Premier Tshombe. But the rebel tactic failed.

Rebel Defence Minister Gaston Soumaliot assured "neutral countries Sunday that their citizens would not be harmed. But he indicated that the protection would not extend to citizens of the United States, Belgium, Britain and Italy, whom he accused of backing Tshombe.

MAN STABBED

OCEAN FALLS, B.C. (CP)— An autopsy revealed Saturday that an apparently harmless pocketknife wound nicked a kidney and led to the death of Ian Phillips Starr, 28. The wound was suffered after Starr broke up a fight among youngsters at a basketball game at Klemtu, a coastal town 250 miles northwest of Vancouver. A juvenile was held without charge.

Collecting Coins Means Big Money

By MAGGIE SAVOY
Associated Press Staff Writer

In Monroe, Wis., bank officials doled out 20,000 wooden nickles. Before U.S. treasury authorities could tell them they couldn't do this 19,550 had disappeared from circulation. Some have turned up in coin shops. Price: One dime

In New York the other day a dealer wrote out a cheque for $17 in exchange for 91 cents worth of this year's coins.

What mad, mad world is this where some banks will give you a dollar bill for 90 cents in change? Where a single shiny penny (1932d) will sell for $18, a dime (1916d new) as much as $700.

(The letter on a U.S. coin indicates where it was minted: D means Denver; S, San Francisco; O, New Orleans, and P or no letter, Philadelphia).

There's a boom in coin collecting in the United States and Canada, a boom some dealers say has reached the dizzy heights of mania.

It's increased the ranks of North American coin collectors to an estimated 13,000,000, sparked the formation of new coin clubs, zoomed circulation of one weekly trade paper from 12,000 copies to 172,000 in four years, and has kids and tycoons alike squirrelling away small change in the extent that in the United States, a shortage has developed.

Despite the fact that both the Philadelphia and Denver mints now the only two in the U.S., are turning out 172,000 coins a day-and-night schedule at the rate of 8,000,000,000 pieces this year, small change is becoming scarcer and scarcer.

EVERY PENNY HELPS

The great Chase Manhattan Bank in New York is reduced to pleading with employees to change from their piggy banks. Placards at grocery checkout counters exhort: Please have exact change."

Clergymen are urged to bank their Sunday collection plates on Monday mornings. Signs at tellers' windows read: "Wanted: Your extra coins to help us stem the current coin shortage."

Meantime, buying and selling coins has become big business.

Coin dealers, collectors, coin magazine publishers, bankers and treasury officials disagree on why this is so.

COLLECTING IS HUMAN

Some lay the recent boom to human nature. "It's a human trait to collect," says wholesaler Jack Friedberg.

"Kids collect bottle caps, adults collect modern art. When people learn they can have the fun of collecting and make money, too, they jump into the game," he said.

"Kids begin with penny boards, trying to collect series of consecutively dated pennies. When they can't find a 1909 anywhere (there were only 2,200,000 minted and they disappeared from circulation a long time ago), they go to a coin shop to fill in their boards.

"With more people, and more money in people's pockets, there are more collectors. This means more people wanting the same coins.

"A dedicated collector, enmeshed in his hobby, will go berserk at the sight of an empty hole in an otherwise full album.

"When a coin is gone, it's gone. You can't call a manufacturer and order more. The only place a collector can get that coin is from grandma's trunk or another collector or a dealer. And the price he'll pay is what it's worth to him to complete his collection. It's that simple. With more hobbyists bidding, the greater the demand, the higher the price."

Thomas J. Wass, president of the U.S. Association of Coin Dealers, blames much of the coin shortage on the massive quantities locked up in the millions of machines — parking meters, candy dispensers, cigarette machines, laundries, telephone boxes, change-makers — that have erupted on sidewalks, offices and stores.

"It takes more coins to bounce money between customers and merchants in a rising economy. Yet the government has been minting fewer coins in the 60s than it did in the 40s."

There's speculation in the coinpile," says the publisher of one coin magazine. "When fatbuck boys get in the act, it becomes speculation of the most blatant nature, like the Florida land boom."

CORNERING MARKET

"It's speculators who buy coins by the truckful who are cornering the market and creating artificial and outrageous prices."

It sounds ridiculous to speak of "cornering the market," when coins are struck by the billions, then hear this: A Chicago syndicate did it. They bought 500,000,000 pennies of a certain date, stored them until the prices went up, then dumped them on the market.

Something like that happened with the famous 1913(d) nickel. It was siphoned off by dealers until the price zoomed to $960 a roll.

The high prices worry many coin dealers. "It's pricing kids right out of the hobby," said Friedberg. "What will happen when no new hobbyists come to market?"

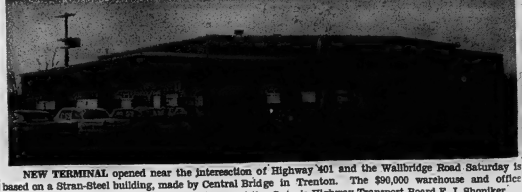
40 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 40 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend with 21 deaths resulting from traffic accidents.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday also includes three fire deaths, two in hunting accidents and four in miscellaneous mishaps.



Quebec had 10 highway deaths, one death by fire and one hunting fatality. One person died after falling down stairs.

Ontario registered nine traffic fatalities and one fire death. A 18-month-old child also died after he is believed to have drunk cleaning solution.

Saskatchewan had three traffic deaths and one death by fire. Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick had two traffic fatalities each.

Alberta and British Columbia had one traffic and one shooting accident each.

One person died on Prince Edward Island highways, and one died after being hit by a train in Manitoba.

NEW TERMINAL opened near the intersection of Highway 401 and the Wallbridge Road Saturday is based on a Stran-Steel building, made by Central Bridge in Trenton. The $90,000 warehouse and office building was opened by Trenton-born chairman of the Ontario Highway Transport Board E. J. Shoniker.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Mohammed B Ben 'Ali had hoped to retire this year after 40 years of selling hot chestnuts, peanuts and popcorn from his pushcart.

But Saturday night burglars stole what he called his life savings of $24,000. The money included $10,000 in coins stuffed into peanut bags and hidden in shopping bags.

"I saved and saved and saved—all for a burglar," said the 68-year-old vendor. "I'm just a man without a life. . . . I feel like the blood has run out of me. I was going to retire this year."

About 350 people danced till midnight Saturday, at the opening of the new Lafferty-Smith truck terminal near the intersection of Highway 401 and Wallbridge Road. The dance on the terminal floor wound up an evening that started with a cocktail party at 5.30 p.m., the official opening by Ontario Highway Board chairman E. J. Shoniker, a smorgasboard dinner and entertainment by a professional comedian.

Mr. Shoniker, who was born and raised in Trenton, predicted a great advance in truck transportation throughout the country, as he opened the building. He said the new $90,000 terminal is a tribute to the Haggarty brothers, Harold and Max and their mother, Mrs. N. M. Haggarty who control Haggarty Transport and Lafferty Smith Express Lines, and to the whole area.

Comedian Doug Romaine of Toronto was imported for the event and music for the dancing was Doug McPherson's band. Guests for the opening, all there by invitation, included Lafferty-Smith customers and suppliers from the whole area between Toronto and Montreal.

260 Married Couples Repeat Their Vows

TORONTO (CP) — In two separate mass ceremonies, 260 couples were "married" again Sunday night.

The ceremonies were part of the 50th anniversary celebrations of Dundas United Church here and were reported, in part, by requests from individual couples for an opportunity to reaffirm their vows. All participating in the event Sunday had been married within the last 40 years.

As the first group of 133 couples ended their vows with 133 kisses, Rev. Irvin G. Perkins, who had performed the original marriages, said: "That was the biggest kiss in the history of Canada."

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Watson, married at 5 p.m. Saturday, postponed their honeymoon to take part in the ceremonies, appearing in their wedding finery.

Mr. Perkins, who has married 3,400 couples since 1943, said there has been a great deal of publicity about disturbed or shattered marriages. He suggested that most marriages conducted in a religious setting are successful.

Deny Political Meetings Are On Way Out

TORONTO (CP)—Voters of the future are likely to be wooed between sips of tea, a flourish of gowns and by politicians beaming at them from television sets, according to two experts on political organization.

Keith Davey, national organizer for the Liberal party, and Richard Crawford, organizer for the Democrats in Chicago, said Saturday that long-drawn-out rallies on hustings is dying out.

The trend is to hold tea parties, fashion shows and other social functions and to inject a political message into the proceedings, Mr. Crawford told the annual meeting of the Toronto and District Liberal Party.

Mr. Davey said television is one of the biggest reasons why political meetings are becoming outdated.

Their remarks brought Trade Minister Sharp and Charles Templeton, runner-up to Andrew Thompson in a recent vote of leadership in the Ontario Liberal Party, to their feet from among the audience.

Both addressed party meetings are on the way out. While a politician might talk to only a small gathering, his message reaches thousands through the newspapers, they said.

Mr. Sharp said a candidate cannot convey the right impressions to his constituents unless he talks to them directly. A voter might not attend a meeting, but it is important that he should know that he could go and question his candidate if he wanted to, he said.

Last Rally Of Season A Success

Seven mobile radios and one control station helped keep score the Quinte Auto Sports Club's "Last Froster Rally" Sunday. The seven mobile units, operated by members of the Tri County General Radio Service Club, were the rally check points at Oak Lake, Moira, Stoco, Lime Lake, Albert, on the Shannonville Road and Foxboro at Cannifton. The one control station was at the rally's finish, a gas station on Highway 14 north of Highway 401.

Nine cars entered the 100-mile test, one carrying a Toronto couple, dropped out before the finish. Winning car was driven by Gerry Storms and navigated by Derek Payne, second Bruce Wallbridge and Mike McCarey and third place went to Wayne Johnston and John Hall. The rally was organized by Gordon Smith of the Q.A.S.C., radio communications were arranged by Bob Boyce of the radio club.

ECM Compromise Helps Simmer Down Issues on Broil in Europe Week Ago

BRUSSELS (AP)—The Common Market's compromise agreement on how to meet the late President Kennedy's challenge in a world-wide attack on trade barriers has helped simmer down issues on the boil in Europe a week ago.

These issues — including a Common Market list of tariffs not to be cut and the Multilateral Nuclear Force (MLF) —looked as if they were going to tear the Atlantic Alliance apart.

But now, buoyed by the Common Market agreement on what tariffs they were unwilling to cut, the Allies are having second thoughts.

The tariff exemption compromise by the European six made it possible for the Kennedy Round tariff negotiations to start this June in Geneva today.

The compromise represents an end result of months of work. The alliance split goes deepest, between France and West Germany backed by the United States.

The French, long in favor of high tariffs, already have preferred a much longer list of exceptions to the general slash which would cut all duty tariffs up to 50 per cent. The west Germans would have liked a much shorter list.

This major difficulty was overcome after marathon meeting at a Brussels meeting of cabinet ministers of the Common Market countries, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. After more than a year of haggling and an all night session, the tariffs they agreed were there unwilling to cut covered 20 per cent of the Common Market's trade with the rest of the world.

In the other $8,000,000,000 worth of their world trade the market six have no objections to trying to meet the U.S. goal of a 50 per cent slash, provided other countries do the same.

The Common Market list, along with lists from the United States and other countries, will be presented in Geneva.

After Sunday's decision, France can no longer use the threat of holding up this phase of the Kennedy Round in order to get its way on the net issue—lowering West Germany's grain price.

This one comes up on Monday too, when ministers of agriculture meet at the Common Market countries meet in Brussels. The French minister, Edgar Faure, is expected to remind everyone how eager French President de Gaulle is to see the German grain price cut—so eager that he has threatened to pull out of the Common Market.

Chancellor Erhard is beset by a powerful farm lobby and a lot of very angry farm voters in a 1965 general election. So he doesn't want to promise a price cut.

A deadline had been set for Dec. 15, but now some West German are talking about compromise by the end of this month, while the French murmur that something really has to be done in January or February when talk around the farm problems in the Kennedy Round itself.

This attack of calm may have sprung from a deal between de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Erhard, providing for delays on both the grain price and the Multilateral Nuclear Force.

Gerhard Schroeder, West Germany's foreign minister, says there was no deal, but a lot of people still think both sides may have decided independently that their interests lay in the same direction.

Only a few weeks ago West German officials were saying that a multi-national MLF surface ships, armed with American Polaris missiles, had to be created within the Atlantic Alliance by the end of the year.

Then the new British Labor government surprisingly came up with some new interest in the project—and some new ideas. Patrick Gordon Walker, the British foreign minister, arrived in Bonn Saturday on his first visit to explain them.

These proposals would reduce West Germany's importance in the MLF project. Some concerned agreed that the British ideas would require several months more planning and discussion.

So it wasn't hard for Erhard's Christian Democratic Party to issue a statement saying there was no great hurry about MLF. And so much the better if this delay save any pleasure to de Gaulle, who opposes the idea of the whole project sunk so he could try to get some help from West Germany for his own atomic force.

Another good reason for delay: President Johnson isn't coming to Europe until after the first of the year, so as long as nothing has been finally settled about nuclear weapons in Europe, he will find it easier to make a new attempt to bring back de Gaulle fully into the Atlantic Alliance.

SCHOOL FOR DELINQUENTS

VICTORIA (CP) — A new school for delinquent boys is to be opened at New Denver, near Nelson, B.C., by the provincial government. The school, which will be converted for its new use at a cost of $200,000 was used during the Second World War as an internment camp for Japanese and later as a dormitory for Freedomite Doukhobor children.

Candidate Not Imposed On Riding

TORONTO (CP) — Keith Davey, national organizer of the Liberal party, Saturday denied that the federal organization imposed Frederick Stewart on Waterloo South riding Liberals.

Mr. Stewart, who joined the Liberals after defecting from the New Democratic Party, ran in last week's federal by-election in that riding, won by NDP candidate Max Saltsman of Kitchener.

There were charges, especially in the riding organization that Mr. Stewart had won the nomination as Liberal standard bearer only because of inter ference by federal Liberals, including Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Davey said at a Toronto and District Liberal Association meeting that although the riding organization was very weak, Mr. Stewart was chosen by riding Liberals at a nomination meeting.

Mr. Stewart ran last in the three-man race, polling 6,000 votes to comply out-campaigned the Liberals, Mr. Davey said.

Sudan General Resigns Post

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Gen. Ibrahim Abboud bowed to pressure from the civilian cabinet Sunday and resigned as president and commander-in-chief of the Sudan armed forces.

Abboud's resignation came as he declared a state of emergency which started last month when he retained only figurehead leadership after bloody rioting forced him to turn over government power to a civilian cabinet. With Abboud's resignation, all power now rests with the cabinet, headed by former sch ol teacher Sir el Khatim el Khalifa, a moderate surrounded by a strongly divergent coalition.

He now is conducting talks to name an executive presidency council which would hold the powers of state pending election scheduled for March.

Acadians Hear Suggestions On Safeguarding Rights

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—French - speaking Acadians of New Brunswick, concerned about maintaining their identity and safeguarding their rights as a minority group, heard suggestions from several quarters during the weekend.

One of the speakers who addressed a Saturday meeting of La Societe Nationale les Acadiens felt it was mainly a matter of getting together and forgetting petty differences.

Alexandre Boudreau, director of extension at the University of Moncton, said Acadians can never get together as a unified "nation" while they waste their energies squabbling among themselves.

Another University of Moncton professor indicated he would favor the union of the Maritime provinces if the rights of the French - speaking minority could be safeguarded adequately.

Jean Cadieux, dean of the commerce faculty, told the Acadian Teachers' Association (L'Association des Instituteurs Acadiens) he would support Maritime union "if we can realize a saving, if we can create a stronger economic unit. If we can guarantee the rights of the French-language minority."

WOULD CURB COSTS

He said Maritime union would result in a two-percent saving in administrative costs and the larger economic unit of some 1,500,000 people, representing more purchasing power, would be more attractive to new industry than three separate provinces.

But the problem of minority rights remained. Mr. Cadieux said Acadians now account for 38 per cent of New Brunswick's population, and would represent only 17 per cent of the whole if the Maritime provinces joined together.

Solutions to problems besetting Moncton L'Evangeline. New Brunswick's only French-language daily newspaper, were suggested in a brief drafted by La Societe Nationale des Acadiens.

The brief, made public Saturday, was presented in August to a private inquiry commission seeking solutions to the newspaper's problem.

HAS SUGGESTIONS

The society had three suggestions:

1. L'Evangeline should improve its money-making position by reducing its content. It should use more news provided by The Canadian Press because coverage would be proportionately cheaper than by hiring more reporters.

2. Since there were already two English-language dailies in Moncton, L'Evangeline should move to Bathurst or Campbellton, N.B., neither of which had a daily newspaper.

3. The Roman Catholic diocese of New Brunswick should agree to absorb the newspaper's deficits.

Last year, a committee representing French - language daily and weekly newspapers raised $95,000 by subscription campaign to permit L'Evangeline to renew plant equipment and expand circulation.

Marks 400 Holes, Cracks In Streets

Elio Madonia and a crew of 10 armed with brushes and paint pails did the job in the early morning, marking an estimated 400 potholes, cracks and breaks.

They say they have another 500 to do.

Mr. Madonia said the venture was in draw attention of the civic public works department to the condition of pavements in his Ward 6.

West Germany's Post-War Boom, Slowed Down in Last Few Years, Again Rising

FRANKFURT (AP)—West Germany's post-war boom, which slowed down a little during the last few years, picked up new speed again during 1964.

The highs were reached everywhere. Living costs crept upward, but more slowly than mass income. In spite of pleas from Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, labor is expected to seek new pay increases net year as business profits continue to soar.

As 1965 is an election year, the government is not likely to oppose wage increases strongly. Other, already certain election benefits include: An income tax cut from an average 24.2 to 23.6 per cent, which will chiefly affect lower brackets and an increase in pension payments for oldsters and disabled war veterans. Together, they will amount to more than $1,500,000,000.

In mid-1964 wages and salaries were 9.6 per cent higher than at the same time in 1963 while living costs were up about three per cent.

During the first nine months exports totalled $11,800,000,000, almost 12 per cent more than during the January-September period of 1963. These rolled up a trade surplus of $1,200,000,000.

A blow to exports is Britain's new 15 - per - cent surcharge which will particularly hit exporters of chemicals and cars to Britain.

West Germany's big financial buildup in 1964 was the inflow of foreign capital threatening to upset the domestic money market. A tightening up was achieved by a variety of measures and the federal bank's foreign asset total dropped from $7,100,000,000 in February to $6,800,000,000 in November.

The country's labor shortage continues to pose a problem. German industries now employ slightly more than 1,000,000 foreign workers from more than 70 nations, but there are still 600,000 unfilled jobs. The gross national product is expected to exceed the $100,000,000,000 mark this year for the first time. Next year, economists predicted a similar increase.

Bomb Wrecks Party Office

ROME (AP)—Two explosions wrecked the national headquarters of Premier Aldo Moro's Christian Democratic Party early today, injuring two men slightly.

The bombing may have political repercussions in next Sunday's nationwide municipal elections. The vote is considered a popularity test for Moro's centre-left coalition government.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Only one thing is certain now about the rematch heavyweight title battle between Sonny Liston and Cassius Clay, Cassius X or Muhammad Ali—take your choice—and that is the Louisville chameleon will retain his title for the next six months.

The once bombastic Mr. Clay who scrimmes a new personality with every new name, underwent a hernia operation last Friday, and the sullen but determined Mr. Liston must bide his time, the medical experts say for at least a half dozen moons.

Top boxing writers and ring experts, stunned when Liston sat on his stool, dejected and allegedly hurt and watched his crown change hands in the first battle, haven't changed their first opinion. Nearly all of them, including Joe Louis, called Liston to regain his title in the fight that was scheduled for Boston tonight.

Despite medical reports there are some pro-Listonites who scoff at the story of the Clay hernia. He was all right at the physical, they claim. I do not buy this alibi.

I know of a case here in Belleville of a grade 13 graduate who took a physical prior to entering Queen's University. He got a clean bill of health. Three days later he had another check-up and there was a hernia as large as fits. Like had occurred. Results are liable to pop up at any time, my doctor tells me.

From stories I have read by reporters covering the two training camps, both fighters have undergone drastic changes.

The ageless Liston, determined to wipe out the stigma of the first bauble, has been training hard. He is touch, silent and punching as hard if not harder than before, if prostrate sparring partners mean anything.

The once loud-mouthed Cassius has confined his spouting to one outburst—that he will take Liston in nine—and would even name the second.

Clay since confessing his ties to Islam and the Black Muslims, has retired behind a cloak of religion. He is convinced he is a beacon of righteousness in a wicked world. He claims he has supernatural power. He will fight Liston again, he says, because he is a prophet who likes the feel of cold cash.

Since his "ninth-round" prediction, Clay has changed his tune. He claims he talks with God twenty minutes before a fight, and adds "Let the best man win."

One story has it he trained in the slumtown of Miami, a building that was in the centre of that city's shacks. "These are the small people," he is quoted as saying, "and my place is with them."

A Saturepost writer said that when Clay entered training he was 26 pounds overweight. "Although only 22 his face was puffed and fat quivered on his back and belly.

He runs his own training camp show. Laughing at authority he insisted on sparring the first time out and Chip Johnson, his first spar-boy, promptly slashed open a cut on a lip, and floored the champion with a solid right.

Light heavyweight Willie Pastrano who watched Clay in training action said, "He seems to be in a daze. The real Clay is hidden. I hope he'll be up for the fight like the last one. I don't know what's holding him back but whatever it is, it's a problem to him."

But don't forget Clay fooled the sportswriters with his first fight training program. They challenged his methods, called Liston to win easily—and you know what happened.

What this unpredictable youngster will come up with when he starts training again is—well—unpredictable. He has laid aside his bombast of "I'm the greatest," pink Cadillacs and verbal attacks on his opponent.

But you cannot take away the fact that in 20 fights he has developed into one of the finest fighting machines in his division.

As one experts puts it: "If he is anything like good condition and if the sight of Liston's left hook provokes him from his theological meditations he should knock Liston out. But the 'if' loom large. When last seen Clay was toiling through another day, his attention distracted by the vision he holds of himself as a commentator of the times."

That statement was made before the news of the postponement was made public. We've got six months to wait to find out what the new Clay approach will be.

Lindsay Gets Pair; Howe Cracks Record ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Hull's Hat Trick Whips Leafs 4-2

BOBBY HULL

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The scorers wrested the spotlight from the goaltenders during the five weeks of the National Hockey League action.

The backstops have been bogging the headlines since the start of the season but surrendered 23 goals in five games as the shooters were heard from. And loudly they spoke:

—Bobby Hull scored three goals in one game, the 12th time he has performed this feat.

—Gordie Howe scored his 627th goal, the most tallied by a player in regular season and playoff games.

Hull ran his goal total for the season to 11 in 13 games as he produced the tying, winning and insurance markers as Chicago Black Hawks stumped Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2. Hull also got an assist when he set up Stan Mikita's goal that gave the Hawks a 1-0 lead.

Elsewhere, Detroit Red Wings gained a measure of relief in the standings by walloping Jacques Plante and New York Rangers 6-2 while Montreal slipped to second place because of a 2-2 deadlock with the Bruins in Boston.

The Canadiens had gained a temporary lead over Detroit with a 4-3 triumph over Detroit Saturday night while Boston upset Toronto 5-1 in the only other NHL game played.

Toronto, playing without Frank Mahovlich and Dave Keon, kept third place despite the two losses but fell four points back of Detroit, Chicago and New York are tied for fourth with 13 and the Bruins have nine.

The Leafs overcame Mikita's goal with second-period markers by Lindsay and Andy shot past Johnny Bower to tie the score and added two goals in the third.

He whacked Red Hay's rebound into the Toronto net at 1:54 of the -finale and then boomed a shot that Bower seemed to even see, let alone stop, at 12:28.

The Wings erupted for four goals in the third period to beat the Rangers. Rod Gilbert had scored twice to give New York a 2-0 lead before Bruce MacGregor engineered a Detroit comeback with two goals including the winner. Ron Murphy, Doug Barkley, Lowell MacDonald and Lindsay added singles.

A New York crowd of 15,682 saw Montreal double over under the fire of 37 shots. New York had won two games since Plante replaced Marcel Paille in nets.

The Canadiens twice gave up two-goal leads before settling down for the 3-2 draw before 13,909 Boston fans.

Gilles Tremblay scored twice for Montreal while Forbes Kennedy and Jean Prenlice tour turns tying the game for the Bruins. All the scoring took place in the second period with three goals coming in a span of 2:20.

Prenlice passed Maurice (Rocket) Richard's career total of 626 goals before 14,800 Montreal fans with an assist in their seats. He picked up a loose puck and beat Hocky with a high shot at 2:20 of the period.

It was Montreal's game from that point. Dave Balon, Claude Larose and Bobby Rousseau added insurance goals in the second and teams through a scoreless finale.

Ron Stewart got Toronto's only goal and Johnston turned away 31 shots in a strong display of goaltending and his teammates checked the Leafs tenaciously.

Oshawa CI Wins Title

By ELMER BONTER

TRENTON — The O'Neill Collegiate and Vocational Institute's Junior "A" football squad from Oshawa romped to a 29-6 win over Trenton High School here Saturday.

Trenton's loss was due to the visitors' fullback Doug Warren whose ball-carrying ability accounted for three touchdowns while his educated toe kicked three single points.

Oshawa caught the hard and swift and when the first quarter ended Trenton was trailing 13-0. And while the Motor City's quarterback Eric Farncombe continue to feed Warren on important plays Trenton was held 19-5 at halftime.

It was in the bruising second quarter that the Trenton quarterback, Danny Creighton, injured and taken to hospital later that night. His absence was evidence with a pass to backfielder Al Kimmick at the Trenton 23 Kimmick made the spectacular catch and sprinted all the way behind fine blocking to go over for the touchdown first and only major. The convert attempt missed.

Oshawa dominated the play again in the third quarter, adding 10 to their total. However, after Kimmick filled in for Creighton, Trenton battling with their backs to the wall in the fourth quarter managed to thwart several deep Oshawa penetrations without giving up any more points.

The teams:

Oshawa — Eric Farncombe, Lenny Lamberstty, Dave Alexander, Mike St. Thomas, Gene McDonald, Bob Stephenson, John Armstrong, Bruce MacGregor engineered a Detroit comeback with two goals including the winner. Ron Murphy, Doug Barkley, Lowell MacDonald and Lindsay added singles.

Rough Riders Cut Tiger-Cats Claws

17-Point Lead

By BOB MacKENZIE

INTERCEPTION — Hamilton Tiger Cat defensive half Dick Cohee (24) intercepts a pass intended for Ottawa and Ted Watkins (75) in the Hamilton end zone to stop a Rough Rider march. Other Ticats looking on are Garney Henley (26) and Don Sutherin (22). The first game in the two-game total point final was played in Ottawa Saturday before a crowd of about 20,000. The second game will be played in Hamilton next Saturday. (CP Wirephoto)

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders started the 1964 Eastern Football Conference season with strong Grey Cup ambitions, and they took a big step towards the Nov. 28 classic at Toronto with a convincing 30-13 triumph over Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday.

The two teams still have to play again this Saturday in Hamilton, but the Riders will carry a 17-point lead into the final game of the total-point EFC final and Hamilton will have to find a way to stop a powerful Ottawa running attack that rolled up 249 yards along the ground Saturday.

Although the total offence of the two teams was almost the same, a rugged Rider defence recovered three Hamilton fumbles, intercepted two passes and left three members of the Hamilton offensive backfield with minor injuries.

Each of the Ottawa running backs, Rick Black, Dave Thelen and Ronnie Stewart, scored touchdowns, and defensive halfback Gene Gaines set a Canadian football record with a 129-yard kickoff return for the other Ottawa touchdown. Moe Racine rounded out the Ottawa scoring with three converts and a 28-yard field goal.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney and Bobby Kuntz scored the Hamilton touchdowns, both on one-yard runs, and Don Sutherin kicked one convert.

RUN FOR BIG GAINS

Ottawa completed only one pass for six yards in four attempts, but was able to come up with the big running gains.

Hamilton managed 156 yards along the ground, and 127 by passing. But their pass attack was never a serious threat, with only eight completions in 19 attempts, and Ottawa defenders picked off two interceptions.

Faloney and reserve quarterback Frank Cosentino had to contend with a strong Ottawa rush, and when they had adequate protection they usually found their receivers were well covered.

Black and Thelen were the big men in the Ottawa attack. Black picked up 80 yards in 12 carries, while Thelen made 80 yards in 14 attempts.

The Ottawa defence stopped Hamilton cold on several occasions, while Tiger defenders seemed unable to cope with the crisp Ottawa blocking and missed several tackles.

BLAMES DEFENCE

"Our defence let us down," Hamilton coach Ralph Sazio said after the game.

"We had a complete letdown."

Ottawa coach Frank Clair was in a different frame of mind, but said he hoped his team could come up with a similar effort this Saturday.

Both coaches will have injuries to worry about. Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson missed about 10 minutes in the first half when he was knocked on the head in the second quarter, and guard Sam Scoccia missed the last half when his shoulder "popped out."

Sazio also has a quarterback problem. Faloney picked up a

Brown Sparks Cleveland Win Over Lions

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The law of averages caught up with Buffalo Bills, the bench took over for Baltimore Colts and it was business as usual for Cleveland Browns and San Diego Chargers as all four divisional leaders remained firmly in command in the National and American football leagues.

The Bills, troubled by injuries, lost the only perfect record in major professional football Sunday as Boston Patriots downed them 36-28 for their first loss after nine straight victories. But the Pats' 7-2-1 record still leaves them with plenty of ground to make up in the AFL's eastern division.

The Chargers, who match Boston's won-lost figures, just about sewed up the western title by handing a 28-14 setback to Kansas City Chiefs, their closest pursuers, who now have lost five of their nine starts.

Denver Broncos topped New York Jets 10-6 and Oakland Raiders crushed Houston Oilers 20-10 in the remaining AFL games.

Alex Hawkins, captain of Baltimore's punt-return unit but a rare performer in the Colts' offensive lineup, made a diving catch of a 26-yard touchdown pass from Johnny Unitas to give his club its ninth victory in 10 NFL games, a 17-14 decision over Minnesota Vikings, and a virtual stranglehold on the western conference title as their closest pursuers bit the dust.

One more victory in their four remaining games will put the Colts beyond the reach of Los Angeles Rams and Detroit Lions, who both lost Sunday.

Cleveland Browns also gained ground in the East, extending their lead over St. Louis Cardinals to 3½ games as Jimmy Brown scored two touchdowns in their 37-21 victory over Detroit while the Cards were held to a 10-10 tie by New York Giants.

In other games, Chicago Bears stopped Los Angeles 34-24, San Francisco 49ers upset Green Bay Packers 24-14, Philadelphia Eagles edged Dallas Cowboys 17-14 and Washington Redskins walloped Pittsburgh Steelers 30-0.

The Colts broke a scoreless tie with Lou Michaels' 35-yard field goal and Unitas' 74-yard touchdown pass to Lenny Moore in the third quarter. Moore's score marked the 13th consecutive game in which he has gone across with a touchdown.

Minnesota, however, came back with two touchdowns, Fran Tarkenton's 16-yard aerial to Hal Bedsole and Tommy Mason's 21-yard run.

Brown's scoring smashes of six and two yards placed him only two behind Don Hutson's record for total touchdowns. Lou Groza added field goals of 36, 47, and 26 yards to the Browns' victory.

Mill Plum tossed three touchdown passes for Detroit as the Lions lost their first regular season encounter with Cleveland.

The Gas House Hockey League

In a pair of Gas House Hockey League games played yesterday, Joyce Realty downed the Komets 6-3—while Mulroney's Sunoco whitewashed Marysville 9-0.

While Ken Brennan was chalking up the Sunoco shutout, he got scoring help from Ben Hurley who scored four goals. Empey added two goals while Hill added a goal and two assists. Carr and Mulroney also scored.

T. Woodley paced the Joyce squad to victory, scoring two goals and assisting on another. Grant also scored twice, Jim Sheridan and Turner once apiece.

Lee McBrien fired two Komet goals and assisted on the other, scored by Frank Rose.

Win It In Second Half

COLEMAN RAMBLES — Calgary Stampeder full back Lovell Coleman takes off on a run through British Columbia Lions' players in Saturday's first game of the Western Football Conference championship series in Calgary. (CP Wirephoto)

Lions Grab First From Stamps

By JOHN SHORT

CALGARY (CP) — British Columbia Lions spent 30 minutes Saturday searching for the system they had used to win five games in six tries against Calgary, then located the key in the last half for a 24-10 triumph over the Stampeders in the first game of the 1964 Western Football Conference final.

Lions disappointed 21,236 fans at McMahon Stadium with a clubbers effort that held Calgary to one first down in the final 30 minutes.

The victory gave British Columbia a big advantage in the best-of-three final because the remainder of the series — Wednesday night and, if necessary, Sunday, Nov. 22—will be staged in Vancouver. Wednesday's game, starting at 8 p.m. (11 p.m. EST) will be televised nationally by the CBC and CTV networks, with Vancouver and Victoria blacked out.

Despite Calgary's 10-3 half-time advantage, the Stampeders never succeeded in moving the ball consistently on the ground.

Bob Swift scored two touchdowns for British Columbia, Willie Fleming added one on a 21 - yard dash, Peter Kempf kicked a field goal and two converts and Neil Beaumont hoisted a decisive fourth-quarter single.

Calgary led 13-0 after the first quarter and British Columbia held a 17-10 third-quarter edge.

Two penalties, one for no yards and one for pass interference, led to the Calgary touch down. From the Calgary 38, Jim Dillard caught four passes, the last of which carried play to the one. Coleman dived over centre for the major and Robinson converted.

Day hit Dillard on a 14-yarder and struck for 16 yards to Herman Harrison to lead to Robinson's field goal with 42 seconds left in the quarter. Robinson, leading scorer in Canada this year, connected from the 30.

Lions scored a second-quarter field goal after Mack Burton eluded two tacklers on a 32-yard jaunt along the sideline with a pass from quarterback Joe Kapp.

Kempf drilled the field goal from the 30 on the last play of the half.

STOPPED ON GAMBLE

In the third quarter, Lions moved from their 31 to the Calgary three in 11 plays before Fleming was stopped on a third-down gamble.

Ted Woods of Calgary fumbled on the seven as he attempted to sweep around the left side. A first-down holding penalty moved British Columbia to the 17 and Kapp attempted to toss to Pat Claridge.

Back judge Taylor Patterson called Art Johnson for interference and British Columbia had first down on the four On the second play, Swift smashed across from the three.

Kapp charged for 30 yards to the Calgary two before Swift barged across to score.

British Columbia compiled 236 yards rushing and 92 passing for 19 first downs Calgary had 11 first downs on 83 yards rushing and 142 passing.

Rough Riders

bruised thigh in the second quarter and it hampered his running for the rest of the game. Baker missed the last half with a severe ankle bruise, and halfback Willie Bethea sprained an ankle.

However, all are expected to be ready for the second game.

MADE BREAKS

The Riders made their own breaks, and took advantage of them. Faloney was rushed during a first-quarter punt, and managed only a 25-yard boot to the sidelines.

On the next play Black cut in around end and raced 41 yards for the first touchdown of the game.

Thelen capped an 80-yard drive with a one-yard touchdown plunge early in the second quarter, and after Faloney's touchdown. Gaines ran the kickoff back to give Ottawa a 20-7 halftime lead.

Hamilton was kicking off from the Ottawa 50 yard line after a roughing penalty was called on Faloney's touchdown play. Gaines took the ball 18 yards inside his end zone, and for a few seconds it looked as if the Hamilton tacklers would trap him in the end zone for a single point.

But Gaines managed to squirm loose to the 10 - yard line, where he picked up about six blockers, and raced down the sidelines without anyone laying a hand on him

This took most of the spirit out of Hamilton, and they managed only one more scoring drive.

The touchdown by Kunts and Racine's field goal were the only third-quarter scoring plays, and a 33-yard touchdown jaunt by Stewart in the fourth quarter wrapped up the decision.

Marlies Tie Falls
Rangers Trim Generals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboro's offensive unit is the best in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop so far this season with 74 goals but their porous defence must give coach Jim Gregory nightmares at times.

Pilot pick was Toronto allowed 63 goals, third worst in the series, but in Sunday's 5-3 tie with Niagara Falls Tigers Terry Desjardins had to kick out 4 Flyer shots. At the other end of the rink Doug Favell handled only 27 by Toronto.

The tie gave Marlboros 21 points, one ahead of second place Oshawa Generals, who bowed 5-3 to Kitchener Rangers. In other action, Montreal Junior Canadiens downed last-place Hamilton Red Wings 8-1 and fourth-place Peterborough Petes dumped St. Catharines Black Hawks 6-1.

Don Marcotte and Bill Goldsworth each tortured in two-goal performances for the Tigers. Brian Bradley got the other Niagara Falls marker in the contest, which sprinkled 29 halftight and a total of 66 minutes in penalties.

PACIFIC KITCHENER

Led by Don Leismer's two goals, Peterborough in the game scoring streak. Other Montreal scorers were Rene Trudel, Ron Ingram, Bruce Ferguson and Jacques Lemaire. Five of Canadiens goals were scored with Hamilton shots handed.

Captain Jimmy Peters scored twice for the Petes with Ron Lemieux adding the other Red Wing goals.

Peters' third fired two goals for Peterborough as they posted their first win on St. Catharines ice in two years when Gary Monahan and Bill Plager got one apiece.

Niagara Falls meet Oshawa Tuesday night in a game which could decide second place. A victory would put the Tigers ahead of the Flyers with 19.

Cassius 'Was So Pretty!'

BOSTON (AP) — You Cassius like less and sickly behind the Muslim eyelid, looking not the least like the heavyweight champion who was to defend his crown against Sonny Liston tonight.

Cassius Clay, in case you've been out of touch, underwent surgery for an incarcerated hernia Friday night.

Dr. Alton Ochsner, Clay's assist ant trainer, phrases the disappointment over the fight postponement this way:

"Just two days to go and he was so pretty. He was gettin' well too, good and evil like he had to be for this. All this work —it's like a mule' s cow and having him lick it over."

The latest medical report issued on Clay reads, "improving and feeling kind of happy" despite the big letdown.

Liston left town with the lament: "I feel very bad I was ready to go. Clay probably got that hernia when he opens his mouth so wide, with so much talk, a lot of wind gets in. His hernia gave me some financial surgery."

Delected promoter Jack Hurley began the job of redeeming $278,000 worth of tickets sold on the bout. Hurley estimated the losses from their standpoint at around $70,000. Frederick Brooks, head of the Boston Garden Arena, figures losses in that field of between $100,000 and $400,000.

Notre Dame Smothers Mich. State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Notre Dame, Alabama and Arkansas Razorbacks, U.S. college football's reigning triumvirate, crushed opponents Saturday and the Razorbacks joined fifth-ranked Texas as the first major teams to nail post-season bowl bids.

The top-ranked Irish smothered arch - nemesis Michigan State 34-7 with a razzle-dazzle offense spearheaded by half-back Nick Eddy and quarterback John Huarte.

Alabama, No. 8, struck for two touchdown in the first half and went on to trim 10th ranked Georgia Tech 34-7.

It was Arkansas' eighth straight victory and Alabama's ninth in a row.

CLINCHER SPOT

Arkansas, No. 3, clinched the host spot in the Cotton Bowl and at least a share of the southwest conference title by walloping Southern Methodist 44-0 for victory No. 8. Texas, bested only by Arkansas' nine starts, accepted an Orange Bowl bid, also assuming over Texas Christian 28-13.

Fourth - ranked Nebraska, spurred by Frank Solich's 89 - yard kickoff return, kept pace with the leaders and coasted to victory No. 9 over Big Eight crown by whipping Oklahoma State 27-14.

Meanwhile, No. 8, Suitscored Iowa 24-20 and stayed on the heels of Big Ten leader Ohio State, No. 6, which downed Northwestern 10-0. The Cornhuskers are 9-0. the Wolverines and Buckeyes each 7-1.

Eighth-ranked Oregon State, upended by Stanford 18-7, and Georgia Tech were the only members of the Top Ten to stumble.

Fourth-ranked Louisiana State fought for a 14-10 victory over Mississippi State.

Seattle Takes Over West Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems combined some good hockey with a slug of good luck to vault into first place in the Western Hockey League by an eyelash.

They edged Vancouver Canucks 4-3 in overtime Saturday night and staved off a last-minute San Francisco rush Sunday for a 4-4 win over the Seals.

Portland Buckaroos, one point behind Seattle, remained in contention with a 7-4 victory over Los Angeles Blades Saturday night.

Reds Whip Aces 4-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Aces, winless in five previous games at home, picked the right night to get straightened away.

Their victims were Quebec Aces, runaway leaders of the American Hockey League's Eastern Division, who came to town Sunday night with a 14-5 road record, 14 victories in 16 starts and an unbeaten state against the other four teams in their division. The Reds outplayed them decisively to win 4-2.

The setback didn't put a dent in the Aces' nine-point margin over Hershey Bears, who were idle after both leaders had won their fourth game apiece. Springfield Indians edged Pittsburgh Hornets 3-2 and Buffalo Bisons topped Baltimore Clippers by the same score in the only other AHL activity Sunday night.

In Saturday's games Quebec whipped the Bisons 3-1, Hershey downed Springfield 4-1, Pittsburgh shaded Cleveland Barons 2-1 and Baltimore whalloped Rochester Americans 5-2.

Score Was 63-6

Queen's has won the title and the cup for the last two years.

Both teams went into the match with perfect season records. McMaster with a 7-0 won lost record and Queen's undefeated in 14 starts.

Queen's quarterback Cal Coffer threw four touchdown passes for the winners and Hetlio Dilani, who piled up one major, had a total of 350 yards on the ground.

YOUNG TOP SCORER

Jim Young was leading scorer of the game with four touchdowns, one on a pass from Conner and one on a pass from substitute quarterback Don Hayes.

Pete Thompson carried two Conner passes for six-points each and Jim Vars scored another. Bayne Norrie scored the other Kingston major.

The opening scoring play of game was a field goal by Eric Hafeman at 2:30. He also kicked four converts for his club. Tom Boynton converted two more Kingston touchdowns in the last quarter.

Argonauts Crush St. Lambert

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Gord McTaggart parlayed a crushing running game with a porous St. Lambert defensive unit into a 42-8 win Sunday to earn New York Argonauts a berth in the Canadian intermediate football final against Hamilton Rams at Wrigley stadium next weekend.

With McTaggart directing the arsenal, the Argos ran for 462 yards and added another 288 in the air as they took quarter leads of 14-0, 28-4 and 42-4 against the previously unbeaten Saints.

Ian Monteith and Pete Warren scored two touchdowns each with Charlie Hatfield, McTaggart, Ray Williams, Gerry Burrows and Ed Hilmer picking up one each. Jim Walker rounded out the Argos picked up another two points on a safety touch.

The Saints' lone touchdown came in the second quarter when Bob Willis took a short pass from quarterback Pete Rhylander and sped 70 yards to paydirt.

The Saints, winners of 11 straight before reaching the eastern finals, were no match for the skilled Argo club that had won 13 successive league and playoff fixtures prior to Sunday's game, including a 56-7 triumph over North Bay Trappers in the All-Ontario final the previous weekend.

'The Shots That Still Ring in the Heart'

Personal Epilogues To JFK's Assassination

The shots that killed John Fitzgerald Kennedy changed a world for many others, too. Two widows grieve, another has found a new life; a mother rages at fate, a killer plays dominoes and hears voices, a policeman in Texas is a woman wonders . . . one year has passed, but that terrible day is not yet over.

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

DALLAS (AP)—The sorrow ful year has passed since Lee Harvey Oswald has turned the corner and vanished, into the shades of history.

The shots ring only in th heart. The yellow lights and the clock sign atop the brick building are winking another time now.

But for some the hour it signals is still 12:30 p.m. Nov. 22, 1963—the moment three separate lives collided at that fated crossroads.

Their lives have gone on, but they aren't the same. Lee Harvey Oswald saw to that.

Not the same for the camera hobbyist who must steel himself to look through the eye of a movie lens where once he saw sudden blood.

Not for the gray woman fiery and angry in her struggle to clear the name that marks her.

Not for the tall, thoughtful man of power who admits his power is the protection against the tremor he feels at a sudden noise, be it only the pop of a burst balloon.

Not for the young mother who drives herself with self-doubt as to why she did not see more than she did in the stranger welcomed into her house.

These are the people of the assassination and a year has not healed all their wounds.

AFFECTED DIFFERENTLY

Some still mourn. Some hide their sorrow and shock in work. Some the tragedy has touched lightly. Some it has made wealthy—and one of them would gladly trade the wealth for her loss. Others look for riches. One crouches on the floor and listens for voices none else can hear. Another fears a mysterious assassin none can explain.

They are as varied as they ever were — governor and schoolboy, housewife and stenant beauty of the world. But now, peculiarly, they can trace a kinship through the blood of a fallen president. They tell their stories:

. . . Abraham Zapruder, bald, emotional clothing merchant working in a loft next to the Texas School Book Depository. He walked out into the noonday sun to see the president and, at his secretary's urging, had brought his camera. When the presidential limousine came into the viewfinder of his zoom lens he began taking pictures reflexively, pictures that would never die.

"I heard the shot and saw the president grab his heart and lean over towards Jacqueline. I thought he was making believe saying Oh, he got me' but then I thought 'No, a president wouldn't be joking.' Then another shot broke his head open. I started yelling 'They killed him, they killed him'. But I kept on taking pictures until the limousine disappeared, still aiming through the viewfinder."

COULDN'T TALK

Months later when he saw the pictures he had sold to Life magazine he was too stricken to talk.

Only now has he agreed to talk to a reporter. When he was through, his eyes were moist.

He has a new camera now. The manufacturer took the old one for its archives. He was glad to see it go.

"I don't shoot as many pictures as I did. When I pick up the camera and put it next to my eye it's tough. It's taken a little starch out of me."

. . . Caroline Kennedy and Marina Oswald are from different worlds, the regal patrician who had everything, the humble Russian girl who had nothing. Their only bond is the bloody manhood that made them both widows.

For Jacqueline Kennedy it has been a year of mourning. She lived in a Manhattan apartment, takes walks in Central Park with her children, is rarely mentioned in the headlines she once dominated, and then only indirectly. She refuses interviews. Her thoughts are her own. The brilliance of her life as first lady has been put away, like a treasured memento.

For Marina, however, life is a Cinderella dream compared with the cheap apartments and beatings she knew a year ago. She lives in a modern three-bedroom brick house in a Dallas suburb. It is air-conditioned, has modern appliances including the washing machine Lee Harvey Oswald had promised her the night before he shot John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

ENJOYS LIFE

She is enjoying a life her saturnine husband denied her. She wears lipstick, frets over her children like any 23-year-old buys stylish clothes from the famous Neiman-Marcus Store, likes her new car, practices her husband once slapped her for smoking. She has periodic dates at the hotel. She is dimly lit private club near downtown Dallas where she and friends drinks and dance music and the girls sit fun-seeking young people.

She has learned fluent passable English, about how she likes life in Texas and about her two children. Her husband, whom she dotes. She will not discuss Lee or the assassination, although she has said she loved him, a man who somehow changed from the one she married.

She lives comfortably but not lavishly on the $100,000 she received from donations and magazines. She stands to make another $100,000 or so on a book being written by one of two American newspaper women who interviewed Lee Harvey Oswald in Russia. She is not unaware of her monetary potential. She became furious at a Dallas reporter for releasing her husband's Russian diary. She could have made $100,000 from it if she had sold it instead of the fraction of what she did receive.

"I have two children to look out for," she told one man. "I must make a little money."

She is suspicious of being had and at times she has been, said a man who had once advised her.

CAUTIOUS LIFE

. . . Amos Lee Ewins, 16, schoolboy who went with friends to the end of the motorcade route because he thought they could get a better view than in the crowds downtown. He saw the president flee. And also saw a rifle being withdrawn from the sixth floor of the Depository. . . .

Ever since the phone has been ringing at the Ewins home. Often it is a man with a heavy voice saying "Amos better be careful with what he says. We have a complete copy of what he told police."

"I got a phone call rust last week," said Amos's mother, Eva, 40. "Twenty minutes later he called back. It sounded like the same heavy voice I don't think it's a prank cuz no grown man is going to play that much. It makes me uneasy. I really don't."

The Ewins told police but didn't ask for protection and none was offered. There have been a lot of crank calls to figures in the assassination. Mean while at the Ewins home a light burns on the front and back porches all night. Amos doesn't usually take the bus to school. Members of the family take him by car. He isn't allowed to roam too far alone. Amos does not appear concerned over the calls.

"Sometimes if I happen to pass a certain spot I remember Oswald . . . I look out the window to the underpass I get a little grim. But I go on about my business because that's what I have to do."

VISITED BY CURIOUS

Threatening phone calls warning him "not to talk" got so bad he lost his housekeeper who was afraid someone might bomb the house. He got an unlisted number and nothing has happened since.

People from all over the country drop by occasionally to see Oswald's room, vacant since the assassination. It's really only a tiny alcove off the dining room, barely big enough for the bed, neatly made, a few cheap wall decorations above the head. Just a bed.

. . . Warren Reynolds young used car salesman in a shop chain to Oswald after the shooting of Officer J. D. Tippit. . . .

He doesn't know if the man will come back. Or even why he came in the first place. Nothing was stolen.

His house is ringed by floodlights he can turn on in an instant. He has a dog. He doesn't take walks at night There is always someone at the house. He sleeps fitfully. He worries. About himself. About his family.

NO EVIDENCE

The Warren commission said in its report it could find no evidence Reynolds' shooting had any connection with the assassination or Tippit's murder. . . .

. . . Mrs. Tippit, mother of three, widowed by Lee Oswald in his dash to somewhere. . . .

She is home now. She would rather have her husband.

Just last month the money she had received from people the world over was distributed by the court. Prior to that she had been living on her police widow's pension of $223 a month. The court gave Mrs. Tippit a choice of $312,918. Another $330,946 was placed in trust for her two boys, 14 and 11, when they turn 21.

In the dining room of her three-bedroom bungalow is a picture of the Kennedy family with an inscription from Mrs. Kennedy:

"There is another bond we share. We must remind our children at the time what brave men their fathers were."

"It's hard to go on when the one you loved and lived for is gone," says Mrs. Tippit. "There's often no point to any thing. But I have three of his children whom I love very much and that's a big responsibility. When so many people write that they are thinking and praying for you—well, you know you've got to do your best."

She still has not bought the rug her husband planned to buy last Christmas. "We didn't have one when J. D. was with us. So what's the hurry now? Maybe the house will be painted, and she will buy a new car.

"Everytime I see the old one in the driveway I think J. D. ought to be inside."

. . . And in another city, Fort Worth, another mother grieves And seethes. . . .

FIGHTS FOR SON

In the sitting room of her small two-family house Mrs. Marguerite Oswald spoke of her battle to redeem her son, adjudged an assassin.

Mrs. Oswald sat, then stalked the room, then doodled vigorously on a scrap of paper while she talked on about how her son was a "patsy," how the Warren commission has failed history, how she would never give up until she vindicated her son. She plans a book—"with beautiful pictures"—on his boyhood, then a later full-scale book on the whole case.

"I'm doing this to honor my son. Even if he was guilty he should not be forgotten I know the television and the press will be full of President Kennedy on Nov. 22 and not Lee Harvey Oswald. But I'm not going to let him just be buried. He's history just as President Kennedy is.

"Why shouldn't there be as much sympathy for me as the president's family? After all, my son was murdered.

"So he hit his wife? She came over here and started smoking, wearing lipstick getting Amer ican ideas, fast, running around. So he slaps her down. I admire that. It show character, upbringing. What man wouldn't do that? . . .

If Ruby cares he doesn't seem to show it. He sits in his cell, his mind possibly gone He keeps but two things in his cell: A Bible and a picture of John F. Kennedy.

. . . There were other players in those November days: The professionals, men to whom death is no stranger. A doctor. A priest.

The doctors at Parkland Hospital are still there. Dr. Malcolm Perry, who worked over both the president and Lee Oswald, is an assistant professor of surgery and still answers calls to the emergency room. Dr. Charles Carrico now is in his second year as a resident in surgery. They have made their reports, given their testimony. They don't want to talk any more of the assassination.

But one on them said: "It is something you're not likely to forget. When you lose someone, whoever it is, it gives you a jolt. When it is the president, it jolts you particularly."

GAVE LAST RITES

Rev. Oscar Huber, 51, vividly recalls giving last rites to the president—"I noticed the whiteness of his feet and thought 'there is no blood in this man'—and he remembers just as vividly a woman lying in the street after an accident in front of his church.

"The assassination doesn't haunt me. Maybe it is because I am a priest. I have seen a lot of people die. Administering to the president was my duty and I did it."

. . . There was another man shot Nov. 22.

Although Governor John B Connally still has trouble extending his right arm, his clasp is firm when he greets you. He appears tanned, relaxed, comfortable.

Crowds make him uneasy. They recall the crowd on another day.

"I am extremely sensitive to loud noises. A car backfiring pos sed.

Or a balloon popping. I have a very marked reaction."

He has driven in seven motorcades since Nov. 22 and does not like the feeling. He has driven down Elm Street from the Depository a number of times.

"I never go by without reliving the tragedy. But it is nothing you can run from. You develop a mental condition that permits you to think about it without being overwhelmed."

NEVER TALK

Nonetheless, he and his wife never talk about that day.

. . . Those are some of the people.

There are also the places.

The little colonnade on Dealey Plaza, a small triangle of grass, has been draped with bunting for the Texas State Fair. On the other side of the columns are the plastic floral decorations, some dusty and weathered, some new. Someone has planted a blank cross from the Brownfield Bank and Trust Company to a wreath and written on the back: "To a very great man who was very brave and a good leader." "A great man we should not forget. God bless his wife and children"—

Turning to the right and looking over a small pool you can see the sixth-floor window of the Book Depository, stacked high with cartons. Cars rush by in a steady blur and there are always a few people, pointing, snapping pictures or just standing, looking at a spot in the road.

Chest of Silver Presented to Retiring Officer

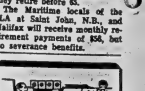
PICTON (Staff) — Senior NCO's of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment met in the Picton armouries Sunday afternoon to participate in their testimonial dinner in honor of their retiring commanding officer, Col. J. B. Black.

Members present were from all units of the regiment, Picton Port Hope, Trenton, Millbrook Norwood, Madoc and Belleville.

Lieut-Col. Willcocks in his address to the senior NCO's, stated that it was most important to keep the regiment together, now that the decision to disband had come. The feeling toward the regiment in Picton was wonderful, he said. It was remarkable thing to have the support of the units at such a time.

"The senior NCO's must hold together and know what is going on," he said. "It is important that we hold the regiment together. Go back to your men, tell them they are wanted and needed. The regiment was formed from rural areas and we must do all in our power to keep their interest in the regiment. These are important times" he added, and "we must be ready to make a sacrifice. Give up the regiment because of these recent developments."

Following the address of the commanding officer thanks for his address were expressed by H. Kokesh.



WOZ W. H. Bennett presented a chest of silver to Lt.-Col. Black. The chest, in the form of a table, contained silverware, each piece engraved with the crest of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Missionary's Fate Unknown, U.S. Tells Congolese Rebels Execution Would Be Outrage

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The fate of American missionary Paul Carlson, threatened with execution by Congolese rebels remained a mystery today. The United States warned insurgent leaders they would be held to account if they harmed Carlson.

The rebel radio announced Monday that the 36-year-old medical missionary from Rolling Hills, Calif. had been condemned to death as a military spy and would be executed in Stanleyville at noon. The broadcast nothing further on his fate.

In Washington, State Secretary Dean Rusk said if Carlson were executed, it would be "an outrageous violation of international law and of accepted standards of humanitarian conduct."

Rusk appealed to Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya to use his influence as chairman of an African committee seeking to end The Congo civil war to try to save Carlson's life.

Rusk said rebel charges that Carlson was a U.S. Army major on a spy mission were "patently false."

He said the United States holds rebel leaders "directly responsible for the safety of Dr. Carlson and of all other American persons under rebel control."

America.n.s in Leopoldville saw a brief ray of hope Monday when told a broadcast from Stanleyville said the rebels had "agreed in principle to an offer of the United States consul to negotiate Carlson's fate. It was learned later that the broadcast was made Sunday, before the broadcast announcing Carlson would be executed.

Carlson was captured two months ago close to Yakoma, on The Congo's northern frontier, after he had refused to leave his Congolese patients. The missionary had taken his wife and two children to safety in the neighboring Central African Republic.

Sept. 20 he radioed American Baptist missionary Dean Chastean in the Central Africa Republic that he was inveting rebel wounded. He said the rebels all love of him to treat freely.

Five or two later, Carlson was moved to Stanleyville, the rebel capital. Last month rebel leader Gen. Christophe Gbenye said the missionary was in pri son and would be tried by a military tribunal.

A rebel broadcast Monday said:

"The justice ministry announces that United States Maj Paul Carlson who was captured at Nkonda during fighting between the Popular Liberation Army and the Americans, on the Nov. 23 sentenced to the capital penalty by a war council tribunal. Carlson was defended by Congolese lawyers of his own choosing."

The U.S. note is very denied again Monday that Carlson was a member of the U.S. armed forces.

Pension Plan Contributors Likely To Run Into Rate Increases In 25 Years

House Opens 3-Day Debate On Second Reading of Bill

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada Pension Plan contributors likely will face rate increases within 25 years if government forecasts prove accurate, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Monday.

Miss LaMarsh, opening an expected three-day debate on second reading of the mammoth contributory pension bill, said that within 20 years after its inception the plan will cost Canadians more in benefits than it collects in contributions.

She said the most favorable actuarial forecasts indicate that contributions combined with investment returns cannot keep the pension fund growing beyond 1985.

"The most that can now be said is that, if the current range of projections is sustained, and if it is desired to preserve the funding of the plan, some increase in the contribution rate probably will be required some time in the later 1980s or the 1990s."

She said, however, that the estimates by the insurance department's chief actuary, E. B. Clarke, of future earnings, population growth, mortality rate and other factors were "pessimistic" to "guard against the danger of underestimating the possible cost of the plan."

The plan is compulsory for an estimated 4,500,000 to 5,000,000Canadians earning or earning more than $600 a year. Initially, employers and employees are to share equally contributions of 3.6 per cent starting in 1966. Self-employed persons would pay the whole 2.6 per cent.

Maximum benefits at age 65 beginning in 1976 would be $104 monthly under the present plan. An increase in earnings levels would increase the maximum. Reduced benefits are to be paid for the first 10 years.

In addition to the 5 per cent lifetime payment — presently $75 a month — could be claimed by the estate of a person at amounts at age 65. Its benefits are to be pegged to the cost of living fluctuations following second reading — approval in principle.

Miss LaMarsh said some projections indicate the interest on pension fund investments will exceed by 1985 the gap between revenues and expenditures for at least part of the plan's third decade.

"The highest of the chief actuary's projections would have the fund in 1990 is, at $8,000,000,000, slightly higher than for 1985," she said. "The least favorable estimate, on the other hand, the fund would decline to $5,000,000,000 by 1990."

She said if interest rates were higher than the four per cent projected, the fund's size could be greater but would not prevent the fund dwindling during the third decade.

"All the actuary's estimates indicate, however, that some time after the plan is 20 years old, there will be a need to reassess the rate."

She said "the range of population and economic projections that we have to take into account to anticipate now what should be decided more than a generation hence."

Possible variations in the rate of population increases were the greatest uncertainties in making forecasts, one projection placed the country's population by the year 2000 at 30,000,000, while the other put it at 37,300,000. In 2025 the two projections were 40,000,000 and 158,000,000.

The plan is to be administered by several departments—with the revenue department using existing tax-collecting facilities to collect contributions, and the payment of benefits integrated with old age security, family allowances and youth allowances administration.

Miss LaMarsh said co-ordination with the Quebec provincial plan has already been worked out, providing for the transfer of a worker's earnings record if he moves into or out of Quebec.

Earnings records would be merged and only one combined pension paid, with the Pension Act determining which of the two jurisdictions is to pay the pension and receive a financial reimbursement from the other.

The plan also provides for disability pensions, death benefits for widows and orphans allowances. It is estimated these payments will total $209,000,000 in 1975.

Conservative Health Critic J. Waldo Monteith said time was needed before the plan could be opened to permit the public and interested organizations to prepare briefs.

He and H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) asked how many provinces had indicated they would join the federal plan.

Mr. Olson said he doubted whether the Ontario government would be implemented if the Ontario government planned to follow the low level of pay out in Ontario today.

Mr. Lambert said the company had completely ignored some of the union's major demands, including wage parity with GM workers in the United States.

General Motors said the proposals, if accepted, would mean industrial peace and enable planned development, but officials of the United Automobile Workers of America (CLC) said there would be a strike unless the company made some alterations.

"It does not look as if GM wants to make ears in Canada, for a while anyway," said Geordon Lambert, chairman of the UAW committee negotiating a master contract for GM's Canadian employees.

Affected by the three-year contract are about 14,000 workers at GM's Oshawa assembly plant, 6,000 at McKinnon Industries Limited in St. Catharines, 1,000 at Frigidaire Products of Canada Limited in Scarborough, 1,000 at GM's transmission division in Windsor and 500 at General Motors Diesel Limited, London, Ont.

Union officials said UAW locals at these plants have given negotiators permission to call a strike if necessary. Contract talks opened Monday 9 and go to conciliation board hearings today.

One of the union's chief demands was wage parity with GM's United States employees but Mr. Lambert said the proposals will leave Canadian employees even further behind if the difference now ranges from 40 cents to $1.50 an hour.

Workers Reject Contract

OSHAWA (CP)—A strike by about 23,500 General Motors Company of Canada workers became a possibility Monday when union negotiators rejected company contract proposals as totally inadequate.

Gordon Lambert, chairman of the United Auto Workers (CLC) negotiating committee, said he was disgusted in the company's proposals.

"Unless they change there will be a strike."

Contract negotiations for a master three - year agreement covering General Motor's Canadian employees have been going on since Sept. 9. A conciliation board hearing begins in Oshawa today.

Mr. Lambert said the company had completely ignored some of the union's major demands, including wage parity with GM workers in the United States.

General Motors said the proposals, if accepted, would mean industrial peace and enable planned development, but officials of the United Automobile Workers of America (CLC) said there would be a strike unless the company made some alterations.

"It does not look as if GM wants to make cars in Canada, for a while anyway," said Geordon Lambert, chairman of the UAW committee negotiating a master contract for GM's Canadian employees.

Elliott Lake Health Inspector Told Pollution Not His Affair

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Wright, former health inspector for Elliot Lake area, said Monday the Ontario health department was once - narrow in its interpretation of its duties in making comments on nuclear chemical industrial pollution, a report which supplied the town's water.

"We told them we'd take our own samples and we'd report what we knew wasn't good. Only then did we get anywhere," said Mr. Wright who left Elliot Lake June 1 to become chief inspector of the Port Arthur district health unit.

He said there was an agreement at Queen's Park about where responsibility lay for the safety of the water, and the Ontario Water Resources Commission began to co - operate increasingly.

Mr. Wright blamed political and business pressure for mistakes made in Elliot Lake at the outset of the boom in 1955 when, he said, dumping of tailings was not properly supervised.

"It was a political job at the start. Canada was getting $12 a pound for uranium—it's getting $4 now—and it was willing to do anything to put these companies in business."

He said his main concern with the pollution was the long-term effect.

"For the adults, it could possibly be called an industrial hazard, but hundreds of kids on the mine sites drank contaminated water all their existence," he said.

Premier Robarts of Ontario has asked the water commission to make a full report on the pollution situation at Elliot Lake and at the lakes near Bancroft.

Redraw All Ridings Under Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's redistribution bill, which will pave the way for wholesale changes in Canada's electoral boundaries, has a very third and final reading in the Commons Monday.

The bill had been before the House since April, snagged on two contentious points that were settled with unexpected speed last week when the measure breezed through to its final stage.

Under the bill, 10 representation commissions will be set up —one in each province. They would redraw the riding boundaries in such a way that the number of electors would be within 25 per cent of an average obtained by considering the number of voters and the number of seats in the province. This 25-per-cent tolerance figure was one of the contentious points. The bill originally said 20 per cent, some members suggested 30 per cent, and the Commons compromised at 25 per cent.

The other contentious point concerned the appointments to the 10 commissions. The ori-

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — With a deadline two weeks away, the United States has made its first major move to force the Soviet Union to pay up or lose its vote in the United Nations General Assembly.

The U.S. announced Monday a step it had promised in advance: Richard "at this time" to make a pledge for next year's UN technical assistance programs.

The action was seen as a warning to members that the U.S. cannot be expected to continue huge voluntary contributions if the Soviets are permitted to keep their vote without paying overdue assessments towards peace-keeping forces.

Unless a settlement is reached, the showdown will take place two weeks from today when this year's two-per-cent-poned session of the General Assembly is to open.

At the root of the issue is the question of control over peace forces — whether they will be run exclusively by the Security Council, where the Russians have a veto, or whether the General Assembly will have some voice.

The U.S. action Monday came at a "pledging conference" for the UN special fund and the Expanded Program of Technical Assistance, two related agencies that provide help for underdeveloped countries.

The U.S. had been expected to pledge about 40 per cent of the total goal of $100,000,000 (U.S.). But American delegate Frank-lin H. Williams said he could not make a pledge "in view of circumstances with which members here, that is, the Soviet economy. Clash and compromise seem to have played a part.

Communist Party Changes Suggest Power Struggle

The new changes at the top of the Kremlin hierarchy suggest a power struggle between liberals and conservatives over control of the Soviet economy. Clash and compromise seem to have played a part.

Shelepin's rise was predictable. As former chairman of the state security committee and a member of the party and state control committee, Shelepin probably played a significant role in ousting Nikita Khrushchev as premier and first secretary of the party.

Shelepin, a deputy premier, now may be moving close to the Soviet party leadership, possibly eventually as deputy to First Party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Shelepin's rise and the advancement of Demichev to alternate membership suggest he can encourage new generation leaders anxious to build the consumer economy despite resistance from hard-line conservatives and the military.

Demichev is the youngest member of the secretariat, rose through the Young Communist League. He was its first secretary—its chief—from 1953 to 1956, then secretary and chairman of the state security apparatus and the party control committee.

Demichev is closely associated with the chemical indus-

'Confederation With a New Look' Is Forecast by Quebec Premier

TORONTO (CP)—Efforts by English- and French - speaking Canada to understand each other can bring about "confederation with a new look," Premier Lesage of Quebec said Monday.

Mr. Lesage said it is essential that confederation continuing be reached as soon as possible but it was of necessity a slow process and would not set a time limit for it.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A temporary warming is expected today as an active disturbance moves eastward across the northern fringe of the province. This will be followed by a colder outbreak of Arctic air which now covers most of the Prairie provinces. The coldest temperatures of the season may be expected with this final thrust of cold air which should move into southern Ontario early Wednesday.

Today's Chuckle

A debtor is a man who owes money. A creditor is one who thinks he's going to get it.

He expressed the hope, speaking to reporters after a speech here, that by the Confederation centenary year of 1967 "good progress" will have been made.

In his speech to a overflow crowd of 1,200 at a joint luncheon of the Empire and Canadian clubs, he spoke of what the future Confederation as a Canada where all the provinces have more powers and not one less than at present, "each discharging fully its constitutional responsibilities."

Discussing separatists with the reporters later, Mr. Lesage said that if news media gave more importance to the positive actions taken by responsible people and less to the actions of a few extremists, "we could end would come more rapidly to the solutions that will keep Canada together and strong."

However, he conceded immediately that news about the separatist element had done nothing to impair Quebec's financial credit outside the province. It was a subject, he said, that he had discussed at Monday's luncheon with representatives of some of the top firms underwriting Quebec securities.

Parliament At a Glance

MONDAY, Nov. 16, 1964

The Commons gave third reading to the redistribution bill to change riding boundaries in line with latest census figures.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh introduced second reading of the Canada Pension Plan legislation.

She said actuarial studies show the plan will be paying out more than it takes in sometime in its third decade of operation.

Conservative health critic J. Waldo Monteith said inadequate time was allowed for study of the complex bill.

Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) said his party welcomed the bill although some sections could stand improvement.

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) asked whether steps would be taken to reconcile the federal plan with private pension plans.

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe) objected to the bill going to a Senate-Commons committee because senators were always on holidays.

Wilson Rejects French Idea Of European Nuclear Force

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson has placed Britain beside the United States and against French President Charles de Gaulle in the current struggle over the future of the North Atlantic Alliance.

In his first major foreign policy address since the new Labor government took office, Wilson did not mention France but this was plainly his meaning when he categorically rejected the idea of a separate European nuclear deterrent.

Addressing a traditional Guildhall Banquet given by Britain's financial and business leaders at dinner night, Wilson declared: "In a nuclear world safety lies in collective security, in alliances based on interdependence.

"No member of NATO has the right, whether through nostalgic delusions or for any other reason, to endanger the strength and security of the alliance as a whole.

"We see our purpose in the alliance as being to try to reverse the tendency to separatism. It is not more divisions we want, but to bring them together."

"It would weaken and divide NATO, for there is nothing so debilating as an alliance within an alliance. It would, I think, destroy American allies with a serious reappraisal of their attitude toward Europe.

"It would be seen as —and would be—a grave step in pro liferation of nuclear weapons and it would be in our view a fatal blow to the hope of further easement of tensions, further constructive agreements between East and West."

Monty Spends His Birthday In Hospital

Lord Montgomery is expected to be in hospital about two weeks.

He is said to be particularly anxious to be home again to celebrate his 25th birthday of Sir Winston Churchill Nov. 30

Laser Light Beam Will Have Myriad of Future Uses

The recently developed Laser light beam will have a myriad of future uses in communication, and in the political and military fields, members of the Belleville Quinte Kiwanis Club were told last night.

Speaker for the occasion was Paul H. LaVallee, lecturer for Bell Telephone, who said that development of Laser light for communications would provide the voice channels necessary when present radio and microwave frequencies are all used up.

As an illustration he said that one Laser light beam would allow for as many as 900 million individual telephone calls. This many calls, by any one destination was said, however to be impractical.

Mr. LaVallee said that a Laser light beam was so concentrated that it could be thrown on the moon 240,000 miles away with its rays covering a spot only one mile in diameter.

Mr. LaVallee said a Laser beam was so powerful that it would easily penetrate a dozen ordinary razor blades.

Club president George Brown presided. The speaker was introduced by Harry Mason and thanked by Les Minion.

Draft New Standard For Masonry Units

A new standard has been published covering hollow loadbearing concrete masonry units, to which members of the National Concrete Products Association and other organizations, including government agencies, have contributed time and effort.

The association has for some years had a standards committee, and has spearheaded the effort to obtain Canadian standards which would replace U.S. standards developed by the American Society for Testing Materials. John F. Kennedy Memorial Movie Is Excellent Film

WASHINGTON (AP)

Sometimes in glowing color, sometimes in somber black and white, the years of John F. Kennedy moved across the screen, reached out and revived the pain of a year ago.

"Have you ever seen anything that tore your heart out so completely?" Senator George S. McGovern, South Dakota Democrat, asked a friend after the premiere showing of the U.S. information agency's memorial movie, John F. Kennedy: Years of Lightning, Day of Drums.

The late president's "food for peace" director may well have been speaking for all the New Frontiersmen who made up Monday night's blacktie audience — and for those who were so moved they left the state department auditorium unable to speak.

"I still can't get used to seeing those pictures," State Secretary Dean Rusk said in a choked voice to Jacqueline Kennedy's mother, Mrs Hugh Auchincloss. The Kennedy cabinet member took Mrs. Auchincloss' hand in his and stood silently at his head.

The only other member of the Kennedy family at the 90-minute showing was Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy, a sister in-law of the slain president. She hurried away in a limousine.

VISIBLY MOVED

Visibly moved was Angier Biddle Duke, chief of protocol now as he was in the Kennedy years. He tried to leave a message for the Usia producer, George Stevens Jr. Tears welled in his eyes as he said: "Tell him—tell him —tell him — I'm glad we were in Ireland together."

The film, which covers Kennedy's administration from the day of his inauguration until the day of drums—the day on which he was buried, was prepared by USIA for showing around the world.

Color sequences of the final day — when the president's body was moved from the Capitol to St. Matthews Cathedral and to final burial in Arlington National Cemetery —are threaded through it, making the day of drums a recurring theme.

"I think," said W. Averill Harriman, a friend of Kennedy and his family, "it will make a lasting impression all over the world."

Labor Party MPs Complain Of Tight Rein

LONDON (AP) — The Labor party is putting a tight rein on its members in the House of Commons, and some complain they are being treated like schoolboys.

Stringent attendance rules laid down by Chief Whip Edward Short, a former teacher and high school principal, may increase pressure from the rank and file for the leadership to gamble on a new election that might produce a larger majority and easier working hours.

One sweetener for MPs forced to spend much of their time in parliament is the prospect of higher pay. Prime Minister Wilson was expected to announce government plans for a raise today.

Under Short's rules to protect Labor's slim vote margin against Conservative calls for a snap vote, every Labor MP must be in the House by 10 p.m. and remain until the House adjourns, usually about 11 p.m. This is hard on MPs who must earn another salary, as many do.

CAUSES COMPLAINTS

The rules do not apply as strictly to members who also are ministers in the government, thereby giving rise to some complaints from the rank and file.

Short has installed a quota system that allows members about one day of a week which they obtain by pairing with a Tory member who also wants to stay away.

Even if the government were defeated accidentally on a surprise vote, it probably would not resign. The word from Wilson's office is that only a defeat on a major issue, in a vote announced in advance, would force him out.

Before the October elections, the two major parties agreed to a study of legislative pay by an independent commission. Its results are expected to give MPs a raise to $8,000 (U.S.) a year, about what a doctor in general practice makes in England.

IN MEMORIAM

BELCH — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, William Belch, who passed away November 17, 1960.
Hallo Dad, in the same old way,
To hear your voice, see your smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile,
To know you have a father,
Cherish him with care,
For you'll never know the heartache,
We share.
Till you see his truest chair.
Ever remembered by son Jim, daughter-in-law Ruth, grandchildren, Sharon, Cheryl, and Jeffrey.

BELCH — In memory of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away November 17, 1960.
Thoughts wander as daylight fades,
To the land of memory,
Where we meet old friends,
In the gold of the setting sun,
And dear ones who have gone before,
Into the light.
A face we loved the best,
We think of him when daytime,
Fades in the cool of evening,
Lovingly remembered by son Bill and wife Betty and grandchildren.

STEPHENS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Stephens who passed away Nov. 17th, 1951.
This month comes back with deep regret,
It brings a day we won't forget,
You fell asleep without saying
But memories of you mother, will never die.
Lovingly remembered by Ethel and family.

BELCH — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, William Belch, who passed away November 17, 1960.
Memories live on over the years,
The love a heart holds dear,
Remembrance keeps him near,
Remembrance keeps him near.
Sadly missed by daughter Ruth and grandson "Jim".

STEPHENS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Kathleen Stephens, who passed away 3 years ago, November 17th, 1951.
More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
Lies within a mother's heart concealed.

Grand Jury Finds No Bills In Two of Three Cases

A Grand Jury for the General Session for the County of Hastings this morning returned a finding of "no bill" against John Wesley Cummings of Point Anne on three counts of discharging a fire arm with intent.

The jury also found a "no bill" against two other men, Frederick Alvin Scott and Walter Zygmunt Sadlak.

Both men had been charged with theft.

In only one of the three criminal cases on the docket to be heard before Judge J. C. Anderson did the jury return a "true bill." This was in the case against Raymond Donald Wood. Robert Richard Mondeville and Bernard James Michael.

After having heard the charge, Wood and Michael pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Crown Attorney John Price informed Judge Anderson that Mondeville has been committed to the Trenton Memorial Hospital with a broken leg. Evidence against Wood and Michael was heard this morning in testimony given by Constable S. Morgan and Detective Dale Ashbury, both of the city's police department, and Constable Harold Howring of the OPP in vestigation bureau.

Neither of the two men was represented by counsel. At the conclusion of the crown's evidence, Judge Anderson addressed the jury and pointed out that Constable Morgan in his evidence declared that a hack saw (Michael) had not been found with any of the exhibited tools in his possession.

The instruments exhibited to the court included a spike hammer, a heavy bar, a screwdriver and two flashlights.

Judge Anderson will address the members of the jury this afternoon before they retire to consider their verdict.

Defusing Bomb Routine Job For Briton

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

NICOSIA (AP) — United Nations soldiers eyed the ticking package warily, cleared the crowd from the street, and took cover. Cyprus is accustomed to bombs, but this was a big one.

A relaxed British major in shorts, a bag like a doctor's satchel in one hand, stepped from the car and a UN officer told him: "It's a time bomb, sir; you can hear it ticking."

With a small grin the major signalled his two assistants to come along, strode across the deserted square and knelt beside the parcel. Sixty seconds later, he ripped the fuse like a ballpoint pen, from its socket, opened the brown paper wrappings, and pulled out four tins of TNT.

For resident of the Turkish quarter of Nicosia, where the bomb was found, the parcel would have meant deaths and destruction. Per Maj. Phil Easterby, the island's chief bomb disposal expert, it was a routine job in an ordinary working day.

Easterby has been defusing live bombs for 22 years, and says: "It's not as dangerous as driving a car, as long as you know your business."

KEEPS BUSY

A soft-voiced 46-year-old with greying hair and a wry smile, Easterby has made more than 300 emergency calls in two years in Cyprus, defusing explosives from dynamite-packed tin cans, reeling in bad grenades and fishing live and digging up unexploded shells in gardens.

Easterby has a wife and two children. He doesn't say what his wife thinks of his career. "If I was both my sons to be soldiers."

Easterby and his assistants are on call around the clock in Cyprus police, British force and the United Nations.

In the night's other game, Police Department chalked up victory number one by defeating The Ontario Intelligencer 5-3. The Intell is winless.

Rotary Hears Uses of Laser Light

"Laser light" — a light beam than can transmit voices, business data and television programs — promises to make today's science fiction obsolete within a few decades, Paul H. Lavallee, Bell Telephone lecturer of Montreal, told Rotary Monday. He was addressing the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary Club of Belleville.

Since the idea of the Laser light was first described, about three years ago, this discovery has influenced every major area of science," Mr. Lavallee said.

He pointed out that the telephone industry is interested in Laser light because the tremendous growth of communications needs indicates we will soon be running out of radio and microwave frequencies. Scientists are looking for ways to use light waves for communications instead of radio waves.

Mr. Lavallee used a demonstration set-up to show how Laser light could carry a human voice between various points.

Discussing the uses of Laser light, Mr. Lavallee said, "at the moment it is only a laboratory tool, because it's all so new scientists and engineers have to catch up with their own achievements."

In the field of medicine, Laser light has already found some uses. Mr. Lavallee said that eye surgeons have used it to weld detached retinas in the human eye.

In conclusion the speaker said, "Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone — and, let me assure you, he said, "we believe in its possibilities."

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department has designated the 1st Battalion, the Black Watch, at Camp Gagetown, N.B., as part of NATO's special airborne force, it was learned today.

The battalion and its support — about 1,000 men in all — will remain in Canada but will be capable of fast transfer to Europe by RCAF airlift.

This additional contribution by Canada to North Atlantic Treaty forces in Europe comes at a time when France and some other NATO members are indicating a partial withdrawal of their forces from NATO command.

The NATO special airborne force is designed to protect the flanks of the alliance—that is, Norway, Turkey and Greece.

The Canadian battalion, commanded by Lt.-Col. H. H. Sellars of Calgary, will take special winter and mountain training.

TRAIN IN WINTER

Instructors will begin their training before the end of this year in winter warfare, including skiing.

Mountain training by the entire unit will begin next September.

Like Canada's standby unit for United Nations service—the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, at Victoria — the 1st Black Watch will be specially trained in airlift techniques with RCAF Transport Command.

The Black Watch Battalion will be supported by an engineer troop from the 2nd Field Squadron, by elements of the Royal Signals Squadron and by a detachment from the experimental service battalion, all at Camp Gagetown.

It will also be supported by an artillery unit which has not yet been selected.

STRENGTHENS GROUP

Canada has also been strengthening its infantry brigade group of 6,200 men in West Germany in the last year. A special anti-tank company from the Royal 22nd Regiment has been added to the brigade.

The Honest John artillery rocket has been armed with nuclear warheads and plans have been announced for acquisition of new armored troop carriers and 155-millimetre howitzers.

ginal bill said the prime minister and leader of the Opposition would each appoint a member to the four-member boards.

NDP OBJECTS

The New Democratic Party objected to this and the House later approved a compromise that the speaker name the two members. The third member, the chairman, will be appointed by the chief justice in each province and Nelson Castonguay, Quebec representation commissioner, will sit on each commission as the fourth member.

Before the measure was given third reading Monday, several opposition members rose with some final words of criticism and recommendations.

William H. A. Thomas (PC—Middlesex West) said that if the Ontario commission will adopt a "practical and non - disruptive" approach, the province's ridings could escape with "very minor adjustments." It is important, he said, that ridings corresponding roughly to county boundaries be maintained as much as possible.

Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) objected to statements by Transport Minister Pickersgill last Friday that the dual ridings of Halifax and Queens are not likely to be maintained even though an amendment was passed clearing the way for the maintenance of such ridings.

Mr. Fisher said there is a better case for having a dual riding for twin cities such as Fort William and Port Arthur than for single-city constituencies.

Larry Denies He Is Trying To Build Town Hall 'Empire'

TRENTON — Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry, told Trenton council last night that "in spite of rumors to the contrary," he was not interested in "empire building," at the town hall.

The comment arose out of a council discussion on the number of employees now working at the municipal office. . . all answerable to Mr. Larry.

Councillor (and ex-mayor) Ross Burtt (who was in a remunicent mood) recalled that there had been only a handful of employees when he first entered the municipal picture 20 years ago.

"You had us buy a six or seven thousand dollar machine to replace a girl a few years ago . . . and a far as I know, the girl hasn't gone yet," he told Mr. Larry.

Mr. Larry denied he had told the council of the day the machine would replace a girl.

"They got rid of this way. . . if you hadn't got the machine, you would have had to hire another girl," Mr. Larry added, the veteran councillor.

Mr. Larry added that his only interest was in building the best government possible for the community and that he was trying to build up the continuity of government to make things easier for a successor who would follow him in case of his demise or retirement for any reason.

Council Decides To Advertise For Treasurer

TRENTON — Council, meeting last night, authorized clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry to advertise "immediately" for a town treasurer, to replace Douglas Rogers, who resigned last week and will leave Trenton at the end of the year to become city treasurer of Barrie.

"That's what comes of sending them off to conventions," commented Councillor C. V. Graham, dryly, when Mr. Jagger's resignation was read.

Mr. Larry replied that as far as he knew, Mr. Jargea had not attended any conventions since coming to work at the town hall.

He said, however, that Mr. Jagger, before he became a chartered accountant, had understandably looked around for a better paying job than the Trenton post. As an accountant, Mr. Jagger started at the town office at $50 per month. After achieving his chartered accountant's standing, council raised his salary to $650.00.

"I would not advise employing another chartered accountant," Mr. Larry said. "The town can't keep him. We don't pay enough."

Mr. Larry said the man hired for the treasurer's post should have had experience in municipal financing and a knowledge of handling municipal funds to take advantage of the grants available and the astuteness to bring their availability to the attention of council before cut-off dates.

Council ruled it would have no objection to the treasurer being a woman, if she had the necessary qualifications.

Shetland Pony Charges Car And Is Killed

Last night, a Shetland pony, pastured out in a field near Concession Road No. 5, leapt a fence and charged a Thompson Wholesale Ltd. car. The pony was killed and the car damaged to the extent of $50. Evidently the pet was attracted by the headlights of the car. The car was driven by Carl Elgin Wood.

WANT RELEASE

The Rayner Construction Company of Toronto, the company which undertook and carried out the reconstruction and widening of three of Trenton's main streets this summer, has written to the town saying the company assets are to be liquidated and asking to be released from a 12-month maintenance contract with the town. Rayner suggest bonded sub-contractors could take over the maintenance.

Appealed to for advice at last night's council meet, town solicitor Roderick Campbell said he was not prepared to recommend releasing Rayner from the contract at this time. He said the sub-contractors he might not cover one hundred per cent of the contract, but said he was willing to take the matter under consideration.

LOSES HEADLIGHTS

A propos of an announcement at Trenton council meeting last night the week of November 30 to December 7 is Safe Driving Week in Canada, Councillor Joseph Gould, the chairman of public works, confessed he had had the headlights of his car removed by an ore train at a crossing, yesterday. He parked beside the tracks to let the train go by, and afterwards observed two gaping holes in the place his headlights should have been.

Council Holds Lotteries Not Immoral

TRENTON — Council last night decided it was not opposed to lotteries being held in Ontario provided funds raised were allocated to such things as hospitals, schools, etc.

Councillors J. Gould, C. V. Graham, R. Burtt, D. McDonald and Mayor MacDonald all said they didn't consider lotteries "immoral" and added such comments as, "people buy the tickets anyhow," and "anything to help out the strain on the taxpayer."

The subject was raised by a letter from George Valade, MP for Montreal-Ste. Marie, who is conducting a survey of the opinions of municipal groups.

Council even said it would be opposed to holding lotteries to raise money for municipal purposes, if and when they became legal in the province.

In the same vein, council approved an application from James Utley to hold a festival at the Trenton Country Club on Dec. 11, "Jimmy" Utley Night, when the proceeds are turned over to the Trenton Salvation Army Corps to help out with Christmas baskets for the needy.

Trenton Sports

By ELMER BONTER

Reminiscent of the good old days of the McFarlands.

Providing the best laid plans of Globetrotters' manager Bill Fanjoy and the executive don't go astray Trenton and District fans will be treated to a whole series of senior brand action.

Here on Friday night for the first time the York Steel team from Toronto clashes with the Globetrotters. The Steelers, one of the five outfits known as the senior group of the Toronto Hockey League, have not been beaten this year. The locals will be going all out to deliver the bitter pill of defeat while the visitors fight back to keep an unblemished record.

Here is what's behind this move that could be the making of something big.

The schedule for the THL senior group calls for two games every Friday night throughout the season. Which means only four of the teams in the set-up are engaged that evening. When the Globetrotters' executive learned that one of the senior teams was available for booking elsewhere on Friday nights they jumped at the chance to interest them in performing here. . .

According to manager Fanjoy it's certain now that the Globetrotters will be treated to a whole series of senior brand action.

Assessor Asks Resignation Be Held Until Meet

TRENTON — Assessment commissioner J. Allan Smith has written to town council asking that his resignation, tendered verbally, at a Court of Revision meeting last week, be "held in abeyance" until he can meet with council as a whole or in committee, "face to face."

Council has appointed a committee, headed up by Mayor James MacDonald, to meet with Mr. Smith.

Ask Electors If They Favor Swimming Pool

TRENTON—Trenton council voted last night to add the "swimming pool question" to the list of items on which Trenton electors will be asked to pass judgment on Dec. 7.

Voters will be asked in effect, "are you in favor of the construction of a public swimming pool in the present high school, at an (overall) cost to the town of $250,000, with the money under the jurisdiction of the Trenton Board of Education, and the Trenton Recreation Committee, with the mayor acting as arbitrator in case of disputes?"

Still to be ironed out is whether or not the Board of Education can enter into joint jurisdiction of the pool with the recreation committee on an irrevocable basis. On the strength of a lawyer's advice, the board does not think it can, but is willing to meet with council and the recreation heads to discuss the matter.

Strictly Personal No Knowledge Of Our Own Basic Nature

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Not long ago, the program chairman of a group I had promised to lecture to, sent me the fee a month or so before the scheduled talk. Naturally, I cashed the cheque, spent it, and forgot it.

Then, the week of the lecture, when I suddenly remembered that I had to give it the following night, I actually resented the fact — because it seemed as if I were giving it for nothing! Psychologically, since the money had long since disappeared, I felt put upon to carry out my end of the agreement.

Now, if we could begin to think of some moral precepts as psychological laws, we might be more inclined to follow them. Because, actually, what is ethically proper is sky psychologically sound.

For example, the prompt repayment of debts is a moral imperative. But, more than this, it is a psychological necessity — for everyone knows that the sooner we defer paying a debt, the harder it becomes to pay it. After a long time, we feel as of we never owed it.

Again, we are enjoined in the Bible not to let the right hand know what the left hand is doing. This means, of course, that in giving charity, or in conferring a favor, we should not only not tell other people about it, but we shouldn't even remind ourselves about it.

This is a religious precept; at the same time, it is psychologically sound. The man who is pleased with himself because he gives to charity, has already spoiled the whole point of giving. He is doing it to flatter his own sense of self-esteem; and once flattered, he then feels free to commit uncharitable acts and engage in sharp practices elsewhere.

A good deal of charity consists in buying off an uneasy cohabitence. When the right hand shakes the left hand approvingly, it is committing a form of spiritual bribery. The men who wrote the Bible were keenly aware of this self-deception.

The Book also commands us to "hate the sin, but love the sinner." This has a profound psychological meaning — for it enables us to distinguish between the person and his acts. We find this easy to do with those we love ("My boy did a bad thing, but he's not really like that!"); but extremely hard to do with those we do not know or dislike.

Yet, if we hate the sinner as well as his sin, we become harsh and cruel and judgmental, and soon begin to apply a double standard — one for those we like, and one for those we don't. In this way, we ourselves become more unjust than the "sinners" we seek to punish.

I am convinced that all genuinely religious precepts can be translated into psychological laws, and if they are not convertible, it is because we don't yet know enough about our own basic nature.

Pearson's Flag Might Come To Grief in Senate

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Richardson's Citizen Bureau

OTTAWA — Even should the Official Opposition, with the Conservative Caucus split over the issue, make no furious last ditch stand against the new single red maple leaf design, has anybody thought what could happen when the Commons finally throws the torch in the "Flag War" to the Senate?

For early on, when what since has become a long war was a mere opening skirmish, Prime Minister Pearson gave the House the commitment that he would get Parliamentary approval for the new flag, not only in the Commons, but in the Senate, too.

This he was not obligated to do.

Once the Commons had approved the All-Party Parliamentary Flag Committee's recommendation, the Prime Minister, exercising executive authority — as it would have been his right to do — quickly, simply, easily could have run the new emblem up the pole by Order-In-Council, and that would have had no choice but to salute.

But instead, he undertook to clear it with both Houses.

This he did voluntarily.

Perhaps it was with the same impatient darting as he displayed when first taking office in talking so boldly of those well-remembered "Three Blazing Days of Daring Decision" that later were to haunt him.

NO PAYSIES

And it could have been in the same hurriedly hopeful spirit in which, almost recklessly, he had promised, as he now has shown, "the new flag by Christmas."

None of these commitments really were necessary, and, as it has turned out, in making them, he was only making trouble for himself.

But that perhaps is what makes him an interesting prime minister. . . this way he has of trying to do things the hard way.

But in giving his Senate commitment, it could have been he did not fully realize the potential for trouble that it held for him.

For if he thinks the Commons has been balky over the flag — and the Conservatives have been in no hurry to salute it — the Senate could show him just what delay really can mean.

In the Upper Chamber, he should have remembered, there is no time limit on debate, and a Senator is free to carry on as long as will and wind and sheer physical drive hold out.

He should have remembered, too, that the Senate harbors some really rare old curmudgeons, ancient warriors whose years have served only to hardboil them to the point that they will oppose anything and then Liberals or Conservatives.

Such iron-fibred men are the Liberal Senator Cregg at 84, and the Conservatives' Ralph Horner at 80, and these are only two of the old tribe that move than once over the years has shaken the Commons who the Parliamentary boss really is.

A LONG SIEGE

These were the supposedly "ultra-loyal" who stopped the Commons cold on the closing out of public life in distant Australia are trying at 84 and the Conservatives' Ralph Horner at 80, and these are only two of the old tribe that move than once over the years has shaken the Commons who the Parliamentary boss really is.

A LONG SIEGE

These were the "weary old hats-berets," as some Members of the Commons like to refer to them, who earlier this year engaged the supposedly all-powerful House in what seemed to many it had directed be provided at once for the unemployed and several thousand other people waiting in line for Government jobs and places.

These are the kind of crusty curmudgeons who would just as soon hold up the flag if for no other reason than to put those young Commons whipper-snappers in their proper places.

And it just so happens that, even before the Senate gets a crack at the flag the Prime Minister so unnecessarily promised it, one Senator already has given Mr. Diefenbaker the pledge of a non-stop oratorical marathon that will end only when he cases in from complete physical fatigue.

With no time limit of debate cutting him off, he has sworn to carry on until they carry him out on a stretcher.

"Five" he allows, "if I'm pushed."

Old Senate hands, wise in the ways of the rules, say that the only way his word-weary colleagues could gag him would be to talk out on him, silencing him finally with the lack of a quorum.

But in the Senate, that kind of thing simply is not done and, insist his officers, never will be.

White People Feel Shame

St. Petersburg, Fla. Times

Now Mississippi has joined the rest of America in the integration — even if only token — of its public school system. It was done with a minimum of fuss. Who, a year ago, could have believed it would be done so quietly?

Why? Certainly one tremendous factor has been the new Civil Rights Act that clearly puts the law on the side of the integrationists. It has been observed that while it may be true that "you can't legislate people's feelings" a law can nevertheless exert great suasion.

This changing mood owes something to the civil rights law but, perhaps, it owes more to experience. We have seen the fruits of Little Rock. We have seen the distorted faces of hate-filled, vicious white women in New Orleans. We have mourned the deaths of innocent little girls killed in Birmingham. We have peered into the bottomless pit of chaos and have drawn back.

And we have seen the brave children — little brown-skinned girls and boys with frightened eyes walking calmly past screaming bigots, feeling the hurt of thrown stones, knowing the terrible loneliness of being one against the multitude. Seeing these children doing something most adults would not dare to do, knowing the awful torment their parents must feel and yet sensing the great compulsion that would have them let their children face the mobs, decent white people in the South and the world over have felt shame.

Mosquitoes Moonstruck

St. Thomas Times-Journal

We always thought that blood-thirsty little demon, the mosquito, was working over time, and now we have some support for that theory. Scientists in Australia are trying to effect, that mosquitos are moonstruck, a fact that accounts for their overzealous attitude to work.

A study by the Queensland Institute of Medical Research clearly shows a relationship between moonlight and the activities of mosquitoes. The midget vampires are supposed to be busier collecting blood when the moon rises late than they are when it comes up earlier.

For our money there are still far too many working during the early evening hours. Moonlighting, that's what they are doing! And it's a bleeding shame.

Another reason for staying out of debt is that it's so hard to work for money you've already spent.

Need for More Cultural Interest Stressed at Annual Dinner Meeting of the Canadian Club

Dealing primarily with functions of the Dominion Drama Festival, Mr. Guy Beaulne, Directeur du Theatre de Quebec addressed the Canadian Club of Belleville and district, on the topic "Behind the Scenes in Canadian Theatre", when the annual dinner meeting of the club was held in the Pinnacle Room, Hotel Quitte, last evening.

Mrs. J. G. Demess, president welcomed everyone to this annual event and introduced past presidents of the club, members of this year's executive and those seated at the head table including Mr. and Mrs. George Mayberry, Mr. J. H. Lennon; Mrs. Charles Wilson; the guest speaker, Mr. G. Beaulne; Mr. J. G. Demess; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Fairman; Mrs. J. H. Forrester; Mrs. A. Lewis; Mrs. G. R. Lockhart, Miss H. A. Parker and Mrs. D. W. Maddocks who said Grace.

The guest speaker confessed his address by saying that "even though he had been asked to speak about the theatre, he felt called upon to speak on the Dominion Drama Festival, which is now in its 13th season since its inception 30 years ago. He dealt in particular with the glamour and allure of the stage compared it with the hard work and frustrations of backstage. He stated that Mr. Mc Gee had cultural values in the cultural pattern of nations and that long ago Pericles said that without culture, cultural values will remain.

FESTIVAL OPENING

Since the opening meeting of the Dominion Drama Festival in 1933 opened by the Earl of Bessborough, interest in it has grown and goodwill. "There should be more to just living in Canada," said Mr. Beaulne. "Love should be great for this country, for there is life in its people, love and build, to have faith and hope in our way of life—but unfortunately this is not so."

He continued by asking the questions, "What is Canada, what is its identity?" And went on to describe the reasons and philosophy behind the great influx of nations which go into the development of the theatre. Until 1933 there were 24 groups performing one-act plays on stage in Ottawa. Ad hoc committees were formed from abroad and the task of acting was not easy as these were quite often without stock and for the adjudicator. At this time no professionals were allowed and had been retained by Regan. Regan also had his driver's licence suspended for a period of three months.

The Canadian group after being taken over by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters in 1945 developed rapidly and became a member of the International Institute of UNESCO. Canadian artists have now acquired sufficient knowledge and prestige.

The writer also dealt further with the delicate tasks of a critic and quoted one particular critic who said, "Every player it so often they can play it in their sleep—which they did."

CENTENNIAL PROJECT

It is hoped that for the centennial year, 1967, an all Canadian play festival will be held at St. John, Newfoundland with all-Canadian players. He also felt that everyone must be aware of a greater response to train more actors and directors. "The Nation cannot shun the cultural demands any longer but must patronize the arts and cultural performances.

Newspaper Ad Received Big Response

RINGWOOD, England (AP)
The newspaper advertisement read:

"Love is my profession." After 300 calls, the telephone number. Nothing else.

"The phone never stopped ringing," said 30 - year - old Dorothy King.

The telephone number was that of a movie theatre taking money for the world's retarded children. The theatre Love in Your Stocking.

Percy King, the manager of the theatre, said "it might have been a cruel joke, but it was for a good cause. We raised £40 ($134) for those unfortunate children."

"I think I must have talked to 300 eager Englishmen," said Miss King. "I haven't got a boy friend and after this, I'm not keen on getting one."

These spokesmen seem to enhance the positions of younger generation leaders, like president-manager Dmitry Polyanky, 47, an able administrator with wide experience. Polyansky and Shelepin are said to watch.

The moves can strengthen the party leadership in its direction of the Soviet economy. Both Shelepin and Polyansky probably support Khrushchev's new premier, Alexei N. Kosygin. Their influence could be decisive.

But the appointments of Shelepin and Demichev are halfbrothers of members of Shelest, 56, to the presidium.

A metallurgist who has been first secretary of the party in the Ukraine, Shelest's background suggests sympathy for heavy industry and full-time priority for heavy industrial development.

Presby Shelest was supported for advancement from alternate member status in the presidium by Nikolai V. Podgorny, 59, as influential Ukrainian who is a member of the presidium and the secretariat. Podgorny seems to be a hero-heavy industrial conservative who, with Shelest, might oppose sharp shifts in the development of the economy.

Dismissal of Polyakov from the secretariat probably is attributable to Khrushchev's farm failures and the party's anxiety to make a fresh start in attacking agricultural problems. It is noteworthy that the central committee's unofficial Khrushchev's reorganization which divided the party apparatus into industrial and agricultural specialists. This divided authority and spread confusion.

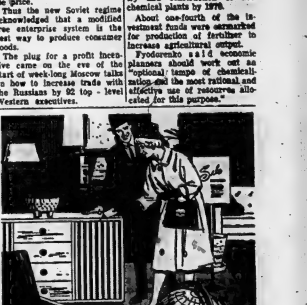
Now Red Chiefs Back K's Free Enterprise

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet economist Monday demanded drastic revision of former premier Khrushchev's crash program to build up Russia's chemical industry.



N. Fyodorenko criticized Khrushchev's ambitious project in an article published by Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper.

The critician came as a front page editorial in Pravda called for less central planning in light industry. It urged consumer industries to plan their own production. Such proposals had been made by Khrushchev.

Pravda said 20 per cent of the clothing produced in Russia this year was returned to the factory because of poor condition or sold only by slashing the price.

Thus the new Soviet regime acknowledged that a modified free enterprise system is the best way to produce consumer goods.

The plug for a profit incentive came on the eve of the start of week-long sessions on how to increase trade with the Russians by 92 top - level Western executives.

Money Management Important Speaker Tells Eureka Lodge At Ladies' Night Banquet

Money management makes all the difference between happiness and misery for the average family, Miss Nesta L. Dane of Toronto, told the annual ladies' dinner meeting of the Eureka Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No. 382 of Belleville on Saturday evening at the Masonic Temple.

Wor. Bro. F. K. Hodgen was chairman of the meeting, and grace before the banquet was said by V. Wor. Bro. R. L. Orr.

Plainfield Women's Institute catered for an excellent meal which was enjoyed by a large crowd of Masons, their wives, and guests. Introduction of head table guests was made by Wor. Bro. J. L. Diamond. Wor. Bro. F. E. Kerr proposed the toast to the ladies and Mrs. F. C. Belsey responded.

R. Wor. Bro. M. M. Hackett, District deputy, spoke briefly. Bro. E. J. Pope was chairman of the entertainment committee and the dancing which followed the dinner program was supervised by Mr. and Mrs. D. Dempster.

Miss Dane, who is director of the Women's and Educational Divisions of The Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, spoke on budget plans for families which have different "must-haves" and "would-likes".

For many years, life insurance companies have advocated personal money management as long into consideration that there is great dissimilarity in the needs and desires of different families.

SUIT FAMILY NEEDS

Budgeting is simply working out a financial plan to suit an individual or a family, and trying to make it work, Miss Dane noted. She said that to set up a plan you have to have a good idea of how you have been spending your money. Many people cannot seem to understand why there is such emphasis on the planning of family finances because there's a limit to how much the majority of families can spend. But there are close to 10 millions families in Canada, and each handles on an average about $5,000 a year, so the total amount of money involved is very large.

"Family counsellors now advise that the whole family sits together the budgeting of the family income", Miss Dane told her audience. "Budgets should be worked out on a trial basis and if one doesn't work another method can be tried. It might be a good idea to keep a close account of family spending for a couple of months in order to have a better idea of where the money is going".

FOUR BASIC STEPS

The process of establishing a budget, she said, has basically these four steps:

Estimate as closely as possible, your "take home" pay for the year, not forgetting any extra income you may receive from rents, etc. Divide this by the number of paydays expected during that period to get the average income.

Put down the family expenditures for such fixed items as expense for rent, heat, clothing, food, insurance premiums, etc. — for the year, and divide by the number of paydays to get the average amount required for each pay period.

Set up an emergency fund. This is in addition to the regular family savings fund for such things as a new fur coat for mother, or a family vacation. "Experts suggest an amount equal to two or three months' income," she said. "When you have reached the total, the amount you have been putting into it can then be diverted into the family savings fund."

Living expenses come in this area. These are household expenses, ordinary expenses for running a car, clothing, recreation, ordinary medical and drug store expenses, personal allowances and miscellaneous.

KEEP AT IT

"Don't be discouraged if your first attempt at financial planning doesn't work out perfectly. Keep at it until you find one that suits you and your family," Miss Dane said.

"Let's hope there is some thing left when the total of your estimated expenditures is subtracted from your total income," she said. Miss Dane cited the story about a rich man telling how he had acquired his wealth by dividing his income into tenths. "He stressed again and again that one-tenth of all income should be put aside to build or buy future income for the person, and/or the family."

MAJOR SOURCE

She pointed out that it is "almost impossible to save enough money from one's own income to give ourselves a retirement income." One method, which is given protection in case of death of the breadwinner, is through life insurance.

"Life insurance is for the living," she stressed. "It provides food, clothing, shelter and recreation. It is the major source of personal and family security for most Canadians. It is purchased by men and women to provide for dependents in case of early death or for their own retirement years."

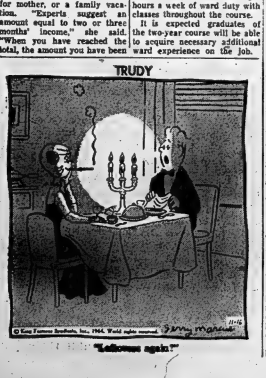
Introduction of the guest speaker was made by Mrs. E. P. Brown and Bro. L. G. Lesco expressed appreciation. Bro. R. L. Moore thanked the ladies who prepared and served the dinner.

Careers of 16 Nurses Will Be Watched

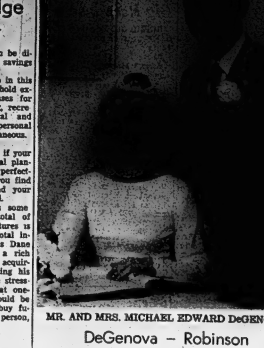
REGINA (CP)" — The careers of 16 girls who graduated from the provincial nursing course at Regina Grey Nuns Hospital will be watched closely.

They have obtained diplomas as registered nurses after a training period of two years—less than the regular time required nursing courses offered in most other Canadian hospitals.

Grey Nuns officials hope that if the shortened course proves successful it will become standard, thus helping to help alleviate nursing shortages.



Dr. V. L. Matthews, head of the department of social and preventive medicine at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon, said Sunday in address ing the graduating class:



"The graduates of this program can be compared to a new car on the market. They will be watched with critical eyes for their performances."

Sister Therese Castonguay, director of the Grey Nuns school of nursing, said the shortened course is designed to attract young girls into the profession.

In the normal three year course, student nurses spend 11 months in classes and 25 months on ward duty. In the two-year course they combine eight hours a week of ward duty with classes throughout the course.

It is expected graduates of the two-year course will be able to acquire necessary additional ward experience on the job.

Young Lutheran Women Fighting Anti-Semitism

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—As the Second World War moved to a close, Allied bombers rained destruction on the city of Darmstadt, Germany, reducing it to rubble and a sea of flame in 15 minutes.

Huddling in their homes, a small group of young Lutheran women saw the raid, and the fire that followed, as judgment on the German people for their actions and, particularly for their attitude toward the Jews.

Today these women and others that joined them form the Ecumenical Sisterhood of Mary.

The order's founder is 60-year old Sister Basilea Schlink, a gradu ate psychologist who has taken the name Mother Basilea. She is visiting North America for the first time, with Sister Rebekka, one of the order's 80 members, as companion and translator.

Through her, Mother Basilea explained the order sees atonement for the sins of Germany and its people as its central purpose.

"We had been indifferent to the suffering of others and lukewarm in our faith. We are doing what we can to make amends and to awaken the conscience of all people."

The order began in 1947 with 30 members and no money. Now it has eight buildings in Darmstadt and a residence for Jews in Israel. All debt - free. The sisters have helped cost reconstruction costs by becoming masons and bricklayers to build the chapels and guests houses themselves.

FAITH IN PRAYER

"We put our faith in prayer, Mother Basilea said. "Day and night, around the clock, some of us are always at prayer. We have no source of income, but our needs are met."

Mother Basilea has written books and plays on her philosophy and the need for atonement, which the order prints on its own presses. The plays have been performed by sisters in several European cities.

She said she feels the messages have helped, that there is a new attitude growing in Germany and they have made a contribution to it.

The sisters spend eight years preparing to enter the order and take vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. Mother Basilea said, "It really takes nearly eight years fully to realize the extent of our guilt toward the Jews. God's specially loved people. As penance and reparation is the basis of our life, could we do other than try to make good some little part of this dreadful guilt.

"Every Jew now is a most welcome guest in our midst and we have declared war on every type of anti-Semitism in German life."

The order has restored a Jewish cemetery in Darmstadt and helps Jews in sickness or trouble.

Mother Basilea and Sister Rebekka visited Kitchener and Toronto and will tour in the United States until Dec 15.

JOINT W.M.C.

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Women's Missionary Council journeyed on Tuesday evening to join the Stirling Good Tidings W.M.C. Group for a joint meeting.

Mrs. Melville Grills, president of Stirling W.M.C., welcomed everyone. Frankford W.M.C. president Mrs. Ed Strome spoke briefly. A Stirling girls' trio sang a selection, Miss Connaz, Brighton, showed colored pictures where she worked in Home Mission Work in Canada's northland in the "H.W. Memorial Hospital" at Hay River in the North West Territories. She told of God's provision and needs in the northland and wonderful answers to prayer. Refreshments were served.

GLEAM SCHEME

To all the readers who have written in about the problem of wax and dirt building up on furniture, I'm sure you'll find this excellent letter from Mary Thorne of tremendous help:

Dear Susanna: All of us who keep a home have daily and weekly to deal with the problem of cleaning and protecting the wood surfaces — particularly furniture. Here then, are a few tips that can be real time and energy savers and which will keep your furniture in the gleaming condition you love to see.

Once a year only, I sponge off all surfaces with water and yellow bar soap. Rinse to remove soap film. Then I apply a coat of a simonize-type paste wax and polish it. This polishing is not so much a matter of effort as of friction caused by a soft cloth passing repeatedly over the surface. Another coat of wax is then administered and this very hard protective film will last for months of normal use, at which time I repeat the waxing. One coat is sufficient between times. I merely dust with one of the popular spray waxes. This treatment applies to all woods, light and dark. Incidentally, you will find that your house stays clean longer if your dust (with a spray wax where practical) before vacuuming.

LACK CONCERNS SEE

MONTREAL (CP)—Rita Dubeau Phillips, an insurance underwriter here who has sold more than $250,000 worth of insurance a year, says she is appalled that women are so poorly informed about financial factors which so much concern them." She says she is particularly concerned about the lack of insurance on the lives of young mothers.

MENU Magic from the TEST KITCHEN

Bazaar Salesmanship

Nothing sells so quickly and so profitably at bazaars as a delicious baking. And of course that kind of baking comes from using proven recipes and fine ingredients, then "marrying them up" with loving care.

Add a Novel Touch

Folks love it too, if you present your goodies with a flair. For containers that will hold Christmas decorations later on, spray old wicker baskets with gold paint or decorate large jars with glitter. Cookies and squares packed in them will rate a generous welcome.

Doughnuts By the Dozen

Home-baked doughnuts will add lots of flavor to the coffee table, especially when they're trimmed with this Toasted Coconut Topping. To make it, blend together ¼ cup soft butter, ¼ cup sugar and a little cinnamon. Mix in 2 tablespoons of shredded coconut and spread on doughnuts—or muffins. Then pop them under the broiler, until bubbly and golden (about 2 minutes).

Choose Something Savory

A favorite of ours, and a good bake item too, are crisp Easy-Do Bread Sticks. To make sticks, cut 4 wiener rolls into 8 lengthwise sections. Broil and spread all sides generously with soft butter. Combine ¼ cup shredded Parmesan cheese, 2 tablespoons sesame seeds and ¼ teaspoon salt in a pie plate. Roll the buttered bread sticks in this mixture and arrange on a cookie sheet in a 425°F. oven until they're golden . . . about 10 minutes. Caution: watch closely to prevent burning, but we like them just "as is".

For The Tea Room

Are you serving open-face sandwiches at your Bazaar? Then here's a neat and pretty little trick with doilies. Use "smallish" ones and count on three for each plate. Fold each one to form a little "pocket" when placed on the tea plate . . . like those linen bun liners. Arrange them together, then tuck a couple of sandwiches and pickles into one section, a cookie or two in the next section, and use the third pocket for mints and buttery salted nuts.

ST. JOHN ANGLICAN W.A.

MADOC — The St. John the Baptist Anglican Women's Auxiliary Branch met Monday afternoon with eight members present. Opening prayer was said by President Lois Nickle with Scripture reading by Mrs. Sandra Gordon. The financial report was read by the treasurer, Mrs. Mary Banton, and statements given on the recent rummage sale and barn sale and bake-lunch supper. Letters were read concerning the support of the Anglican Church Women and for the need for prayer and aid for the Diocese of Uganda, Africa. A request to support a Canadian missionary was made and will be done through the Diocesan secretary. It was suggested that the rector be asked to give talks on social service work within the church at evening meetings next year.

It was reported that the sale of Anglican 1965 calendars had gone so well that a further 25 copies were needed to cover the requirement of the parish. Mrs. Anton Delande, a new resident in Madoc, was welcomed to the Branch.

STUDY DISARMAMENT

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is studying a private article on disarmament plan put forward by Russian and United States scientists, External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons Monday. He said in reply to New Democratic Leader Doug as that if the proposal outlined in an American scientific journal, commends itself to Canada this country will bring it to the attention of governments affected.

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was held Monday evening at the Belmont Club Rooms, with president, Mrs. Marie Huffman, presiding.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. David Leslie, manager of the Credit Bureau of Belleville who presented a colored slide and tape recording presentation entitled "A Credit to You." Mr. Leslie preceded the film with a few remarks briefly outlining the history of credit bureaus both in Canada and the United States.

USE OR CREDIT

He emphasized the need for education in the proper use of credit, both at the student level and in the field of adult education as well. "Like it or not," he said, "Credit is with us to stay. In these days it is almost impossible to live without using some form of credit, and for this reason we in the credit bureau industry feel that it is most important that people be properly educated in its use. Like so many things in life, it is not the use of credit that is wrong, but rather its misuse."

The film followed briefly the lives of a typical young Canadian couple, Carl and Mary Parker, and discussed how the proper use of credit made it possible for them to enjoy the good things of life, while not neglecting the necessity of careful budgeting and saving.

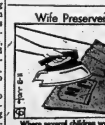
It also showed interesting pictures of the local credit bureau, as well as other larger operations including Canadian Credit Bureaus located in Calgary, Hamilton and Toronto, as well as an especially interesting shot of the Credit Bureau of London, England, which "with typical British reserve," to quote the narrator, "is discreetly entitled, The International Association for the Protection and Betterment of Credit."

The vast network of credit bureaus in Canada and in the United States was also described, together with the various types of services offered in these bureaus, and the modern electronic equipment which is used in the accumulation of credit bureau offices.

THREE C's

Modern credit granting today is based upon the "Three C's" of credit, namely Character, Capacity and Capital, and the film graphically demonstrated how these principles are being followed by firms who are credit bureau members.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Dorothy Grant, and appreciation for the talk was expressed by Mrs. Charlotte Strachan, after which refreshments followed the presentation.



A new member, Mrs. Adelia Smith, newly-appointed manager of Zeller's in Belleville, was installed by membership chairman Mrs. Audrey Hall and club president Mrs. Marie Huffman.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The club will be conducting a membership drive in the new year, and club members were asked to provide names of women they believed would be good club members. Membership in the club is open to any gainfully employed woman who is acceptable to the club, and any woman interested in joining may contact any club member at any time.

Letters of thanks from winners of club bursaries were read, and a letter requesting transfer of membership from Mrs. Jane McCabe, who has been appointed to a new position with N.E.S. in Toronto, was also read. This necessitated a new Ways and Means chairman being appointed and Mrs. Shirley Woodcox was named to this position.

A collection was taken up to help finance the Canadian Federation project of a training school for Arab girls in Ramallah, Jordan, and Mrs. Dorothy Ellis kindly consented to look after the Vi Burwash Memorial Basket, which is presented annually by the club to a needy family in the city. Donations for this project will be accepted at the next regular meeting which will take the form of a Christmas party to be held on December 14.

Mushrooms Need Tender Care

By MARY MOORE

May I presume to preach a little in defence of the tender mushroom?

Most mushroom cooks fry them — and they fry them far too long. Remember that mushrooms can be eaten raw and often are. I gave a recipe for Marinated Mushrooms and Green Peppers (both raw) on March 26/63 which turned out to be popular with our hostess-readers.

S.U.T.EED MUSHROOMS:

Under running water scrub mushrooms until they are clean. Drain well. In large frying pan melt ¼ cup butter or 2 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons cooking oil. If desired add 1 clove garlic to the pan. When hot and fragrant add drained mushrooms and cook, stirring, over medium high heat until mushrooms absorb fat and are very hot and tender-crisp — not more than 3 to 5 minutes. Discard garlic clove if used. They are now ready to serve. If desired, mushrooms may each be sliced into 4 pieces, when they require only 3 minutes sauteing.

The following recipe for Creamed Mushrooms was a great success the time I served them with Homestead Meat Pie (see Monday, Nov. 23rd). Gourmet combination indeed.

CREAMED MUSHROOMS:

Wash and scrub one pound mushrooms in running water. Drain and dry. In large frying pan melt ¼ cup butter or margarine. Add 1 or 2 chicken bouillon cubes and the mushrooms and cook gently for 2 or 3 minutes. Meanwhile mix ¼ cup flour and ½ teaspoon salt with ½ cup sour cream to a smooth paste, then slowly stir in 1 cup milk. Stir this flour paste into mushrooms in pan until thick. Reduce heat to simmer and cook, covered, for 3 to 8 minutes. Taste for salt. Delicious with a meat item that has no sauce in or over it.

MUSHROOM FRIED RICE:

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 4 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 cups quick-cooking rice (not long-cooking raw rice), 2-3 cup finely chopped inner celery 2-3 cup finely chopped mushrooms, (you could use cooked canned), 2-3 cup finely chopped green pepper, 2 cups hot water, 4 teaspoons soy sauce, 2 chicken bouillon cubes, 2 eggs, slightly beaten, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Over medium heat in large frying pan stir together the butter, rice and onion until rice is soaked with butter. Reduce heat to low and add hot water, soy sauce, bouillon cubes, salt and bring to boil, stirring. Remove from heat at once, cover and let stand 10 minutes. Just before serving time return to heat, add prepared celery, mushrooms and green pepper and heat until everything is well heated through. Then drizzle in beaten eggs, stirring madly so that egg cooks in stringy streaks and is just set. Taste. You may want to add more salt and soy sauce. Serve at once. The last 3 vegetables are tender-crisp as they would be for Chinese cookery addicts. I served this with lamb chops and liked it a lot.

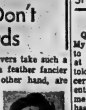
Ann Landers



Reader Says Cats Don't Catch Healthy Birds

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Why do bird lovers take such a holier-than-thou attitude? I've never yet met a feather fancier who didn't feel sanctified. Cat-lovers on the other hand, are always on the defensive.

It is a fact that cats seldom catch healthy, alert birds — only the sick or injured. Cats do catch healthy and alert mice, however, and it's fortunate for humanity that they do.

It is contrary to the nature of a cat to be confined or put in harness. I would make every effort to co-operate with my neighbors in regard to my cat if they in turn would promise to keep the birds off my lawns and prevent them from chirping at sunrise.

Even though I find bird lovers a bore I don't actually believe (as some Orientals do) that people who hate cats were actually rats in their previous life. — GREEN EYES.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR EYES — Right now I'm so busy answering letters from bird lovers and cat haters, I think in some previous life I must have been a centipede.

Here is another point of view which will close the subject, to the satisfaction of one and all. I hope.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS—I dearly love cats and birds—and people. In their own place they are wonderful. Only when they get out of place do they become a nuisance.

Most cats will not harm birds if they are well fed. Cat owners should realize that cats need variety in their diet.

My five cats run free, my two pet birds fly around the house and love it. The yard is filled with wild birds that use our bird baths, bird houses, feeders and shrubs.

We have a mass feeding every morning (on the lawn) for one and all. I have had as many as ten cats, two squirrels and 100 birds — eating together. Some of the bolder birds even go into the cat house and take their place at the dish with the cats.

If a cat must kill birds for food the person who calls the humane society does both the bird and the cat a favor. — MARIE.

DEAR MARIE — Me-ow, tweet-tweet and thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 24 years old and have two small children. The problem is my 41-year-old mother. She is attractive and lively, and I wish I had her figure.

Dad died two years ago. No one knows better than I how much put up with his drunkenness and abuse to keep our family together. He treated her like dirt but she never let her bitterness show.

Now that mom is a widow she is trying to make up for lost time. She has been involved in one sordid affair after another. At the moment a 28-year-old fellow is sharing her apartment.

My husband says I can't take our children over to her place and he is ready to tell her she is not welcome in our home. I love mom and she is crazy about the children. Is it fair of my husband to ask me to break off with her? I need your help. SWIMMING HEAD.

* * *

DEAR HEAD — It's awfully hard to raise a 41-year-old mother so give up.

Your husband is right —— about one thing. The set-up over there is nothing for children to see. I do not feel that your mother should be barred from your home, however. Keep the latch string out and your personal opinions to yourself. It's sad that your mother is throwing her life away but you cannot save her. She must save herself.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

Question: I'm in a quandry. My fiance's mother wants me to hold my wedding reception at a very expensive hotel. I've told her I can't afford it, and I certainly do not want my parents to go into debt just to please me a "proper" wedding. She has offered to share expenses for the reception, but my mother refuses to hear of it.

Personally I'd just as soon let her chip in and save further discussion. But mother said this would not be proper. So my friends told me they've heard of cases where the bridegroom's family paid for half of the reception and no one thought anything of it. Has there been a change of late, and is it now permissible to let the groom's family shoulder some of the wedding expense? — L. T. A., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Answer: No, there hasn't; and no, it isn't. The bride and/or her family pays for the entire reception, elects where it will be held and makes all final decisions about number of guests, decorations, refreshments, etc. The groom's family "honors" the guests and, while his parents may be kept posted on wedding plans, have little or nothing to say about formulating them.

Question: I'm not even married and already I have a mother-in-law problem. It's this. My fiance is paying for my bouquet, of course, and insists on paying for the flowers for my attendants and maid of honor. The only trouble is that his mother thinks she has the privilege of picking them out. I know exactly what I want, and have discussed the sprays with the florist, but she has something entirely different in mind. I am supposed to pick out my own arrangements even though the groom's family pays for them, isn't that so? It's a very touchy situation, so can you please tell me how to settle it pleasantly? — E. R., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Answer: Even though the groom pays for the flowers for the bridal party, the bride still makes the selection — so the no, it isn't. The bride and/or her family pays for the entire reception, elects where it will be held and makes all final decisions about number of guests, decorations, refreshments, etc. The groom's family "honors" the guests and, while his parents may be kept posted on wedding plans, have little or nothing to say about formulating them.

Your Car

Find Cause For Battery Weakening

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Your battery may no longer be dependable. . .may be on its last legs. . .if it needs to be recharged frequently. But don't buy a replacement until you check further — you could be wasting more money.

At this time of year, starting takes more out of the battery — particularly if everything in the foot or ignition system isn't up to par) — more than is usually put back in during the day. Greater use of heater, defroster, wipers, lights compound the problem.

As far as actual troublespots are concerned,-there aren't too many to check out. A defective regulator or generator is an obvious suspect. . .but more often than not, both are innocent. Conditions such as a slipping fan belt, short or ground, corroded battery terminals or leaking cables, are more frequently at fault.

From E. T.: "Just had a disturbing thought. Will snow tires have an adverse effect on steering?"

Possibly. Thick snow treads can change front - end caster and cause slight road wander. This may be somewhat difficult to pinpoint however, when snow or ice gives the front tires a tendency to oversteer.

D. F. writes: "On driving down a long hill, you recommend that brake linings be spared and safety increased by taking the downgrade in low gear, thus allowing the engine to do some of the braking. Does this apply, whether the car is an automatic shift or a conventional shift model?"

Yes. Dropping into lower gear with any car will increase engine drag.

From P. A.: "Even the experts can be wrong. None of the reasons you suggested were responsible for the battery failure which I said was plaguing my '63 sedan. It turned out to be a defective trunk light switch which kept the bulb burning constantly."

A. F. writes "During the past 3 weeks, I've had my car into the station three times to correct a front wheel shimmy. Tires were changed, wheels balanced, bearings repacked, front end aligned, steering checked and Lord only knows what else was done. . .but the shimmy is still there."

How about worn universal joints? This is a frequent cause of shimmy, but often overlooked.

Thousands Trek to Sam Slick's Birthplace

By CAL HOLLOWAY

WINDSOR, N.S. (CP)—Like the metaphoric soulstrings of his Sam Slick character, author Thomas Haliburton's house stands as a memorial to Canada's first recognized satirist.

Nearly 30,000 come annually to Clifton, the white mansion where more than a century ago Sam Slick, the clockmaker, was created and given his biting, humorous lines.

Judge Thomas Chandler Haliburton named the house after the English birthplace of his wife. Twenty-four years ago it became the Haliburton Memorial Museum. Almost everything about Clifton today is as it was in the mid-19th century when the judge saw fit to prick—Nova Scotia—into constructive reform with an ink-filled quill.

His desk, quills and inkwells are still in the library of the home. And the ticking of a clock in the hall is the same sound Haliburton heard as he worked on his manuscripts.

Ah yes, the clock!

About three feet long, the wood - cased timepiece — "a gaudy, highly varnished, trumpery affair" — hangs on the wall. The fictitious Slick, the gilt-lounged Yankee from Connecticut, peddled this model as he travelled around Nova Scotia criticising the Bluenoses for their lack of enterprise

BOUGHT BY PROVINCE

Clifton, built in 1836, is a beautiful, gabled house. It sits on a hill overlooking the muddy Avon River, whose waters are mirrored up by the world's highest tides.

Haliburton was born and educated in Windsor, 20 miles northwest of Halifax and for a short while practised law here. He sat briefly in the Nova Scotia legislature and later became Supreme Court judge. He retired in 1856 and moved to England.

The house changed hands many times until it was purchased by the Nova Scotia government and opened as a museum. It was restored and furnishings that had any connection with Clifton were collected.

Prominent in the spacious basement kitchen is the massive stone fireplace, hung with over-size iron pots and other utensils. Some are suspended on the kitchen tongs might have inspired the author to write this description of a character in The Clockmaker:

"He was thin as a whipping post. His skin looked like a blown bladder after some of the air had leaked out, kinder wrinkled and rumpled-like. . . He put me in mind of a pair of kitchen tongs—all legs, shaft and head and no belly—a real gander - gutted lookin critter . . ."

Many visitors to Clifton admit in whispered tones that they have never heard of Haliburton. But almost everybody has at one time or another used one of his expressions. He is North America's most quoted author.

Regarded in some literary circles as the father of American humor, Judge Haliburton spiced up his Sam Slick books (they ran into more than 30 editions) with such phrases as:

Raining cats and dogs; every dog has his day; going to the dogs; barking up the wrong tree; jack-of-all-trades and master of none; slick in the mud; all bunkum; put his foot in it; talk turkey; fate are stranger than fiction; and a miss is as good as a mile.

He also put such similies in Slick's mouth as quiet as a wink, flat as a flounder and flat as a pancake.

Noted as a propagandist, Haliburton used Slick to convey his own feelings of the apathy prevalent in pre-Confederation Nova Scotia:

"There's neither spirit, enterprise nor patriotism here; but the whole country is as inactive as a bear in winter that does nothin' but scrunch up in his den. . . ."

BECAME BRITISH MP

The Sam Slick series first appeared in Joseph Howe's Halifax newspaper, The Novascotian, in 1837. Besides the three series of the Clockmaker, his works include The Attache or Sam Slick in England, The Old Judge, Traits of American Humor, Sketches and Stories and Nature and Human Nature

He continued writing after he moved to England where he won a seat in the House of Commons. He died in 1865 at the age of 68.

Haliburton's works found a new generation of readers a few years ago when The Clockmaker was published in paperback. The edition was sold out and another hit the bookstands this year.

The museum and two small period unions — Haliburton and Clifton — are the only visible signs that the humorist lived here.

But signs at the entrance of the town of 4,000 announce to the tourist:

"Windsor settled 1703 Home of Sam Slick. World's Highest Tides."

Centre Hastings Secondary School Graduation

MADOC—The annual Centre Hastings Secondary School Graduation Exercises were held on Friday evening in the high school auditorium. The hall was beautifully decorated with the ceiling covered with the school colors of yellow, black and white streamers, black monitors with graduates' names and university flags and colors displayed around the walls.

The staff and guests paraded to the platform, wearing their gowns and hoods. Rev. James H. Thompson gave the invocation. Principal Lamoine West welcomed everyone and introduced the teaching staff and guests. Greetings were conveyed by Mr. Kelvin Kincaid, chairman of the Centre Hastings District High School Board.

He reported that this was the last time for him to be chairman after serving for some twelve years.

Brennan Stewart, president of the Students' Council, reported the activities of the school, especially with the results of the recent magazine campaign, showing a profit of some $900. Two songs were sung by Miss Katherine Burnside with Miss Brenda Sedore as pianist.

Presentation of Secondary School Graduation Diplomas was given to 31 students by Miss Ada Adams and Mr. George Super. Presentation of Secondary School Graduation Diplomas (Special Commercial) were presented to 18 students by Mrs. J. O'Riordan and Mr. N. W. Kinach, vice-principal. Presentation of Honor Graduation Diplomas by Mr. and Mrs. J. Cox was made to 11 students.

GUEST SPEAKER

Introduction of the guest speaker was made by Mr. J. O'Riordan who was Mr. A. Snetsinger, B.A. Commercial Inspector, Eastern Ontario Division of Schools. In his remarks he said that it was hoped that the percentage of graduating pupils would now go up because of the new commercial wing in the high school opened last December.

The speaker suggested that we all become not part of the world problems but persons helping to solve them. Education must never end now but go on to a higher level of achievements. "We must know where we are going, have a desire to do, and the ability to do when the opportunity comes one's way. All should do well no matter what the job may be, to do honorable work, to seek truth and to create goodwill among all men. One must always have a true conception of what is right and wrong and never be neutral.

"We should take an active interest in the Government, in public office and on a local level. In spite of one's achievements now, all must continue to appreciate the value of education and what it can offer."

Mr. Snetsinger ended his speech with the famous words of Sir Winston Churchill, "This is not the end but the end of the beginning."

Words of appreciation were expressed by Mr. John Hicks, an honored student. A corset solo was played by Ronald Legimbuhl.

PRESENTATION OF PRIZES

Presentation of the girls' basketball trophies was made to the team captains, Scholarships and prizes went to Nancy Empey, Jean Wagar, Herman Willemen, David Rooke, Allan Cooke, Margaret Sinclair, Harold Bailey, Linda Lavender, John Hicks, Margaret Dale, Lois Johnson, Gwendolyn MacMillan, Mildred Rivers, Barbara Brooks, James Revolin, Jack Martin, Margaret Boyle, Lucky Lees, Gloria Kleinsteuber, by Miss L. West.

School letters were awarded to 15 students and presented by Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner and Mr. Lindsay.

Academic bars were received by 50 students and presented by Mrs. E. Downey and Mr. David Rooke. Misses Julia, Joana and Esther Hicks sang two selections.

VALEDICTORY

The valedictory was delivered by Miss Jean Wagar, now a student at the Peterborough Teachers' College. She remarked on behalf of the graduation class, how grateful they were to their parents and teachers for making this a memorable evening, following their achievements in academic studies. The road before has many goals, yet with the guidance of God and trusting in His promises, we can fulfill His love to all mankind.

Successful Living

Daughter's Late Hours Disturb Worried Father

DEAR DORIS — Our youngest daughter (of 18) is giving us quite a bit of trouble by coming home after midnight. She loves parties and drive-in theatres. Her boy friend never brings her home before 1:00 a.m., and it has been 2:00 and even 4:00 a.m.

DORIS CLARK

My wife supports her by telling me that I'm old-fashioned, I forget times have changed, etc. I do not agree with her; a decent girl should be home before midnight, only occasionally later. (My married daughters always were.) My wife has asked the opinion of her friends on this. They think I'm dentally ill and should see a doctor. We argue often lately, always on this same subject.

Our love is breaking of bit by bit, and, if it goes on like this something is going to happen.

What do you think is the proper time a decent girl should be home at night? I'll show your answer to my family and, if I'm wrong, I'll see a doctor. — WORRIED FATHER.

* * *

DEAR WORRIED FATHER — Homecoming time should be the result of a discussion between the girl, the boy, and the girl's parents. And no friends. It is related to the event attended, the distance from home, and the company.

Some boys groan when a girl expects to stay out late. Some girls go along with the gag when the crowd wants to move from the show to the dance, to the bowling alley, to the hamburger joint. But would rather have gone home sooner. Even teen-agers can't keep up after-midnight hours indefinitely, without endangering their health.

You are not mentally ill. Since you have a real responsibility for your girl's safety, you are entitled to share in the decision as to a zero hour. At the same time, at age 18 there is room for a certain amount of leeway, if you have confidence in the company she is keeping. And that's a big if.

* * *

I am 20 years old and am in love with a 25-year-old man who is divorced and has two children. He drinks to cover up his problems but says he will change if I go with him. Please answer me soon because I am going out of my mind. — MADLY IN LOVE.

* * *

DEAR MADLY — Don't believe a word of it. Let him show he is madly in earnest by making all necessary changes first. Otherwise, you may be writing me later and signing your letter "Disillusioned," or "Madly Picking Up The Pieces."

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Ever since my last child was born — 11 years — I have suffered with a bad back. It is always worse when I get tired. My husband merely tells me not to get so tired.

Since the work has to get done, I'm looking for some better advice. — Have you any? — BAD BACK.

* * *

DEAR BAD — My very best idea is for you to get to your doctor. A backache is a symptom of so many troubles —besides hard work and bending over babies — that a complete physical examination must be your first move.

Don't put off another day. With this note I am sending a leaflet entitled "Ten Ways to Help Avoid Backache"—which has some good ideas about back care for anybody. (Available to readers for ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

DEAR DORIS — I am allergic to perfume odors. I avoid wearing perfumes completely and do not mind; however, I would like to use a hair spray. Could you please help locate the names and addresses of cosmetic companies that produce allergy-free cosmetics (especially hair spray)? — ALLERGY.

* * *

DEAR ALLERGY — I am sending you the name of a cosmetic company which produces a line of allergy-free (or "hypo-allergenic") products.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My mother is old-fashioned. She won't let me go out with boys and I'm 15. She told my sister and I that we could go out with boys when we turned 16 and, well, she's way past that and hasn't let me go out way before she was 14, but my mother says no boys till you're 17. (It goes up each year.)

Please give me some advice to persuade my mother there's nothing wrong with having a boy friend without being serious and it's not a crime. — LONESOME.

* * *

DEAR LONESOME — If mothers expect their daughters to keep their promises, this should go both ways. Are you carrying your share of the load at home?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I read about that poor woman, who was afraid to have her child wear glasses at such an early age. We had the same problem with our youngest daughter. Being her parents and not wanting to see a flaw in our baby caused us to overlook the difficulty.

Finally when she became a year old I began to notice her eyes turned in. At first the doctor had us try her with glasses. Glasses for babies have an elastic at the back to hold them on and they have unbreakable lenses. Well, they didn't help.

She went into the hospital on Wednesday and came home on Friday. The operation was to clip the muscles to straighten the eyes. They have been perfect ever since and she will never need glasses. Instead of a few weeks she learned to walk and play with things she never noticed before.

I'm so happy we had her eyes fixed and I hope this lady doesn't stand in the way of her child's progress. — SUCCESS STORY.

DEAR SUCCESS STORY — Good for you. This is a message that many fearful parents need to read.

* * *

Color Prejudice Problem Now Prevalent in Britain, Grows in Past 10 Years

Sixty thousand immigrations, many of them from former colonial possessions, crowd into Britain each year, accentuating color problems and prejudices which grow with each passing year. In this story, the first of two, a Canadian Press reporter tells of some of the prejudices the colored immigrant faces.

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Yes, Britain has a color prejudice problem. That is the only honest answer to a question many Englishmen are beginning to ask themselves seriously for the first time.

Platitudes, hypocrisy and apologies about the color problem are still commonplace. But the blunt fact is Britain now has some 800,000 Asians, Africans for breathing space in an already-crowded area about the size of southern Ontario.

Even with present controls more immigrants are arriving at the rate of 60,000 a year. By 1980 the colored population will likely be 3,000,000—about five per cent of the total.

First appearances are deceptive. There are no overt color bars; full civil rights for any British citizen have been guaranteed since 1772. A newcomer caught in the gay multi-racial ebb that flows along London's showcase streets might think the capital a latter-day and enlightened Rome — a haven of tolerance for all the 750,000,000 Commonwealth people who can say "civis Britannicus sum."

A CLOSER LOOK

The glittering facade conceals a backstreet rabbit warren of resentment and suspicion, of sullen hostility and angry silences. Any Birmingham policeman or London social worker would laugh at the "new Rome" concept.

So would the West Indian who tried to move his family into a council-owned apartment on a south London housing estate this fall. His action prompted 500 other estate residents to sign a petition of protest that the London County council is still considering amid some embarrassment.

Britain's color problem is with the first big wave of West Indian immigration in the mid-1950s. It has had neither the time nor the deeply rooted traditions needed to foment into the sort of conflict now convulsing the United States.

There are as yet no Harlems in London. But every sociologist studying the situation warns that the familiar ghetto pattern is developing in all the poorer urban districts of London and the Midlands

VICTIMS OF CLASSES

Immigrants inherit made-to-order divisions created by Britain's entrenched class structure. They naturally patronize the second - class railway coaches and congregate in the public bars or pubs. Attitudes harden and the danger is that divisions once physically established become normally acceptable.

Segregation, even racial segregation, is still a long way off. But the prejudice that creates the barriers is a coldly common reality.

The words people use to express their resentment of the immigrants are usually variations on old intolerant themes. They are dirty, noisy, immoral and ungrateful.

A stock response is: "They don't seem to like it here so why don't they go back where they came from?" One recent survey showed nearly 50 per cent of the immigrants would go home if they could raise the money.

Other complaints seem petty and irrational. One woman was angry because her Asian neighbor spent the weekends lying in bed with his feet out the window. Another said:

"The colored people are very nice but some will throw their rubbish into the garden. And they just don't seem to know how to hang curtains."

FORCEFULLY AWAKE

Sooner or later, probably on a doorstep or in a shop, most colored immigrants receive a formal slap in the face that forever alters their attitude to Britain.

"Of course English insolence and arrogance is understandable," said a West Indian university graduate. "They have had power for the last 500 years.

"But our people have learned all our culture from the English. Our feeling is that they have created our people and now should accept us on our merits."

Another West Indian, an unskilled laborer, sums up his grievance less delicately: "We get what the English man doesn't want — the room he won't live in, the job he won't take and the woman he throws out."

Will it always be like this? Breaking down the barriers will take a major effort on both sides—the immigrants to stir out of their apathy, the whites to correct their ignorance. There are some faint signs of hope.

Six years ago in London's Notting Hill district violence roamed the seedy streets and pessimists were predicting a race war raging from Kensington to Camden Town.

Today in Notting Hill all is quiet. Immigrants and whites remain cautiously discouraged. But at least they recognize the necessity of getting along with each other.

FRANKFORD

Veterans Hold Remembrance Day Service

FRANKFORD — Wednesday, November 11th marked the annual Remembrance Day service in Frankford village. War veterans, the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, Air Cadets, Brownies, Girl Guides, Boy Scouts and Cubs from Batawa, Glen Miller and Frankford participated. At 11 a.m. four veterans each placed a wreath on the cenotaph in memory of those who gave their lives for freedom. The "Last Post" was sounded and a march past followed with H. J. Madill taking the salute.

Due to inclement weather, the service was held in Frankford Community Hall. Reeve H. W. Rose gave the address of welcome and Milford Macaulay gave an address of welcome to the veterans. Mr. Art Duncan of Batawa led in the singing of the hymns. Rev. F. Spring, Rev. D. White, Rev. C. Judd participated in the service and Rev. H. Beach gave the address to the veterans.

ASKS BETTER DEAL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Civil Service Federation of Canada appealed to the federal government Monday to give disabled federal employees a better pension deal. MUSIC FROM A SPECIAL TOUCH — Young Stuart Russell of Seattle, Washington plays a pretty mean trumpet. What's really remarkable about the 12-year-old's accomplishment is that he is blind, and reads his notes by braille. The only 7th grader in his junior high school's advance band, Stuart learned to play because his 4th grade teacher had made her blind pupils' parents a deal: if they would buy the instruments, she would transpose the music to braille so that the children could learn to play musical instruments. Where's the label?

You take so much patience in showing them..."look for the label", you say. "Make sure it's on the inside, and at the back of your neck...and that way you're certain to get it on right". And, if they don't get it the first time, you start over again. "Look for the label."

Looking for the label helps set her world right—ours, too. One is never too old to look for the label when shopping... look for the words that say "Made in Canada". When you buy a Canadian made product you come out ahead all 'round: you help keep Ontario the Province of Opportunity...invest in job security...create job opportunity...build prosperous communities and a prosperous country. Canadian products are good—known for quality and design.

We know some things have to be imported. Most things don't. Shopping is always a matter of choice so, look for the label, and when the price and quality are right for you shop "Made in Canada". It helps keep things right for all of us.

Pastor Given Year in Jail On Each of Five Charges, Terms Will Be Concurrent

CHATHAM (CP)—Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh, 45-year-old United Church minister convicted on five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency, was sentenced Monday to a year in prison.

He was sentenced to one year on each count, the sentences to run concurrently. Maximum sentence was two years and $500 on each of the charges.

Defence lawyer C. E. Perkins said Sunday he expects a motion for appeal will be heard in Toronto Thursday. The appeal will be handled by Toronto lawyer Charles Dubin.

Mr. Horsburgh, former minister of Park Street United Church here, was convicted on five charges Nov. 10 by juvenile court Judge W. H. Fox, who reserved sentence until Monday. The clergyman had pleaded not guilty to eight charges which related to 24 occasions on which juveniles were encouraged to have sexual intercourse between July, 1963, and June, 1964.

He was acquitted on three of the charges.

TRIAL WAS FAIR

Judge Fox, in a five-minute explanation of the sentence, said:

"In my opinion, you have had a fair trial and certainly have been most ably defended."

He said he had given careful consideration to the circumstances surrounding the acts outlined in the charges, but added:

"I also had to consider the gravity of the offences and I was bound to consider the effect of punishment and to what extent it would serve as a deterrent and what the prospects were for reformation."

Mr. Perkins had asked that Mr. Horsburgh be given suspended sentences on each of the five charges, on the grounds that loss of his profession was punishment enough for the minister. Mr. Horsburgh resigned as minister of Park Street Church when he was convicted.

Crown Attorney Blake Ward has asked for the maximum sentence—two years in penitentiary and a $500 fine on each count.

Judge Fox said while passing sentence that he had had to take into consideration the credibility of Crown witnesses. Many of the children who testified for the crown were "truthful," he found.

He also found that in some cases, the minister's evidence had been "evasive" and "less than frank."

The five charges on which Mr. Horsburgh was found guilty were all concerned with teenage boys and girls to have sexual intercourse, asked a boy to have it and asked a 14-year-old teen - ager afterward whether she had enjoyed it and told a young boy there was nothing wrong with his having intercourse.

He was acquitted on the other charge that he had permitted a boy to sleep overnight in the apartment in the church with a boy, permitted a boy to stay overnight and permitted a girl to have sexual intercourse in the apartment.

Not Worried About Expulsion From NDP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some members of the New Democratic Party in British Columbia face possible expulsion for endorsing the Chinese Communist party line, a party executive said Monday.

Provincial Party Secretary Ernest Hall said that complaints against individuals in the party are being investigated by the provincial executive and if they are upheld, expulsion will follow.

After the release of the party statement, two members of the party, John A. Scott, a Vancouver janitor, and Gene Craven of nearby Burnaby, identified themselves as members of the Progressive Workers Movement.

Both said they wouldn't care if they were suspended from the party.

Said Mr. Scott: "There don't have to force me to leave. All they have to do is call me up and tell me they don't want me. I would pick up a fuss."

Mr. Graven said he had allowed his membership in the NDP to lapse last August.

Soviet Communist Party Elevates 3 to High Posts

MOSCOW (AP) — A month after ousting Nikita S. Khrushchev, the Soviet Communist party's central committee elevated three of its leaders to its highest council Monday and decreed important personnel and policy changes.

The actions, taken at a one-day secret meeting of the committee, appeared to threaten to be an effort by Leonid I. Brezhnev, Khrushchev's successor as first secretary of the party, to organize the party along the lines he wants.

Alexander N. Shelepin, 46, former head of the state security committee, the secret police organization, was promoted to the committee's ruling presidium, as Brezhnev was a member of the party's secretariat. Only three other men, including Brezhnev, are members of both bodies.

Pyotr Y. Shelest, 56, head of the party from the influential Ukraine Republic, was elevated to the presidium from candidate membership.

DROP KOZLOV

The central committee dropped Frol R. Kozlov, once regarded as a top aide to Khrushchev, from the presidium, explaining that the reason was Kozlov's physical incapacity. Kozlov was felled by a stroke last year.

The central committee gave no explanation for dropping Vasily I. Polyakov from his post as a secretary and from the secretariat. Polyakov specialized in agriculture, Khrushchev's favorite field and the field of Khrushchev's most noteworthy failures.

The party also dismissed Khrushchev's son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, from membership in the central committee. Adzhubei, former editor of the government newspaper Izvestia, was expelled from the committee "for errors committed in his work."

The committee also decided to abolish structural changes in the party instituted by Khrushchev. It reversed the Khrushchev reorganization which had divided party organizations into parallel organizations to specialize in agriculture and industry. This Khrushchev reform had been reported causing widespread confusion and dissatisfaction among the party rank and file.

Ringo Agrees To Removal Of Tonsils

LONDON (AP)—The Beatles' drummer, Ringo Starr, is going to have his tonsils out, and this should make things easier for children's doctors in Britain.

A spokesman for University College Hospital says Ringo will undergo surgery shortly, but the date is not fixed.

Ringo had been putting the operation off since last June. Last month the nurses at London's Whittington hospital appealed to him to face up to the surgeon.

"We can see the trouble ahead," a nurse said. "Ringo says he won't have his tonsils out—and the children might want to copy him."

The mop-topped drummer entered hospital last June with tonsilitis and pharyngitis. The doctor advised that he have the tonsils out during a break in the quartet's schedule.

During a visit to Baltimore in September, Ringo said the operation would take place as soon as he returned to Britain. A fan immediately told him she wanted the tonsils for a keepsake. But he made no commitment.

Another Attempt Started In Geneva to Cut Tariffs

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Another attempt was started in Geneva Monday by more than 60 countries to reduce tariffs and thus expand trade in a mutually-beneficial way.

The undiluted economic theory is simple: If everybody lowers tariff barriers, each country's farms and factories can sell more abroad and consumers can buy imports more cheaply.

That is a formidable objective, even without the variety of complications arising since the tariff - slicing talks first were launched. Add those complications, optimists must be limitable.

Yet it is an achievement of sorts that the talks have got this far, meeting a Monday deadline. Now a breathing space is assured until January when hard haggling starts in earnest. Hanging over everything is the fact that the United States and France seem to be working into inevitable hostility over futures of crunch,' in collision on trade, NATO and Western European unity as a whole.

The talks are being held under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and they originated from plans of the late President Kennedy. He persuaded the U.S. Congress in 1962 to expand his trade bargaining powers to a limited period and propose tariff cuts of 50 per cent across the board on U.S. trade.

OPPOSED FLAT CUT

Difficulties soon emerged. Canada for one quickly observed the principle of freer trade but declined to go along with the flat 50-per-cent cut in tariffs.

Canada argues as do many other countries that it should be treated that such a flat cut would expose secondary industry, vital to employment, to too severe a cost competition. At the same time, Canada's main exports of semi - processed primary goods would get little or no extra benefit from tariff cuts by buyers of finished goods.

There were other blows to the U.S. grand design such as France's rebuff of Britain's membership in the six-nation European Common Market. The Common Market itself had to scramble through a 22 - hour meeting to make the Monday deadline for Geneva. It still hasn't worked out a common front on farmproducing tariffs cuts and the U.S. insists manufactured and farm goods must be discussed at the same time.

This is what happened Monday at Geneva where it had been feared a row would perhaps fatal delay might be forced on the tariff talks.

Participating countries have each filed lists of items which they either will reduce or wholly from the negotiations or on which tariff cuts of less than 50 per cent will be considered.

There is a delay until January to let the countries—the Common Market block of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, acting as a single entity—size up the various lists.

WITHHELD SOME IMPORTS

The Common Market for example seeks to withhold about 20 per cent of its trade from the cut of the tariff-reducing discussion. This would apply to some vehicles, aircraft, some paper products and so on.

It would consider tariff cuts on the rest of its trade, covering about nine per cent of the total imports.

The rest would be negotiable.

The talks are important to the world trade as the Communist bloc is not participating—but success hinges mainly on the U.S., the Common Market and the European Free Trade Association comprising Britain, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Portugal, Austria and Switzerland.

The Common Market and EFTA today account for almost a third of the world's imports. They take a third of the U.S. farm made abroad.

A threat to the future of freer trade is seen in the Geneva talks falter again or fail outright. This would be the position that the U.S. faced in 1930 after regaining the tariff powers loaned to the president under which he would become more protectionist.

Canada Gets 20 Extra Jets For Same Price

By DAVE McINTOSH

But, like a provident housewife, the defence production department is squeezing 20 more CF-104 jets than originally estimated out of a $200,000,000 budget.

In 1961, the United States put up $150,000,000 (U.S.) and Canada $50,000,000 (also U.S.) for production of 120 CF-104Gs for the Canada-U.S. mutual aid program for European partners in NATO.

Officials now say that production, at Canadair Limited, Montreal, will total 140 planes within the original $200,000,000 budget.

Officials explain it this way:

The defence production department, Canadair and the sub-contractors already had the experience of producing 200 CF-104 low-level jet bombers for the RCAF air division in Europe. Deliveries of these planes were completed in January.

With 38 CF-104 trainers purchased from Lockheed of California, this program was originally estimated at $472,500,000. Expenditures now are calculated at $457,500,000 or $15,000,000 under the original estimate.

All major contracts in the initial CF-104 program contained incentive clauses under which contractors received bonuses for achieving savings in time and money.

This arrangement was carried over into the follow-on CF-104 program for NATO mutual aid.

Moreover, there were fewer engineering changes than expected so that funds allotted for this purpose could be diverted to increased production.

Eighty of the 140 planes have been delivered.

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal political campaigners, from Prime Minister Pearson down through the ranks of his cabinet and party followers, have recently mounted a withering barrage of biting criticism directed personally at Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

But a spokesman for Mr. Pearson said Monday this isn't to be interpreted as the start of stage for a general election Nov. the spokesman insisted, is by events which dictate that Liberals should direct the fire at Mr. Diefenbaker.

In fact, the spokesman added, the Liberals see some danger in making Mr. Diefenbaker and his leadership of the Conservative opposition a key issue.

"As we all know from past experience, when he is being fired upon it gives him a certain measure of boomerang."

Prime Minister Pearson set the new tone of Liberal attack when, speaking to a district Liberal rally in Hamilton on the eve of two recent federal by-elections, he called Mr. Diefenbaker "the great rejecter" of anything and everything the government proposed.

Liberals subsequently referred to Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal that senators would be appointed only for 15 years and they would retire at 75.

Solicitor-General Watson MacNaught disputed the suggestion that Liberal governments always appoint party funs collectors to the Senate.

Little Young To Be Senator Says Fisher

OTTAWA (CP) — Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) armed with the recent appointment to the Senate of Toronto lawyer John N. Aird, took aim at the government Monday night for naming party "bagmen" to the upper chamber.

Mr. Fisher raised the issue in an adjournment debate "to underline the moneyness of this so-called new politics the prime minister is talking about."

He said Mr. Aird, 41 is "not a bad fellow" and an average lawyer, but he was a little young to be appointed to the Senate. Mr. Fisher also referred to the recent appointment to the Senate of Dan Laing of Toronto in nouing how "inconsistent, how silly that the Liberals claim to be reformers.

He said the Liberal campaign literature of 1963 promised that senators would be appointed only for 15 years and they would retire at 75."

Mr. Aird is the Waterloo South Liberals had attended the Ham ilton rally.

But the Hamilton speech prompted Liberal cabinet ministers and MPs to launch an open season for criticism of Mr. Diefenbaker. Finance Minister Gordon, Trade Minister Sharp, Labor Minister MacEachen and Parliament Minister Hays have all joined in.

Mr. Gordon put it succinctly this weekend, saying: "As far as we are concerned the sooner we get rid of him the better."

The spokesman said he is certain the prime minister has no thought of a winner campaign. General speculation here is that an election is likely next June.

Mr. Pearson's Hamilton speech was one that the Liberal tender wanted to make — for some time, complaining that the stalling of government business in Parliament is a deliberate obstruction by Mr. Diefenbaker, the spokesman said.

JACKSON RE-ELECTED

TORONTO (CP)—C. S. Jackson was re-elected Canadian president of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (UAC) during the union's Canadian convention Monday. Mr. Jackson starts on 29th term—he has been president since the union's Canadian inception in 1937.

She Just Hates Dirt

PORTLAND, England (AP) City Councillor Jean Martindale couldn't understand why the municipal bus garage stayed clean. The city had budgeted no money to clean it, yet its glass panes were gleaming and its floor spotless.

He visited the garage one night last week and found Mrs. Emily Thomas, a 62-year-old widow, hard at work.

"I've been cleaning the garage for over a year," she said. "I just couldn't bear to see it dirty." Her regular job is cleaning woman for an architect's office.

The council is writing her an official letter of thanks, Martindale said. "We think she is a very wonderful little woman."

Railways Sign Labor Agreement With Non-ops

MONTREAL (CP) —Representatives of the major Canadian railways and the 90,000 non-operating employees signed a labor agreement Tuesday to provide payments for those laid off because of automation and technical progress.

The signing followed two years of negotiations, during which a $3,000,000 fund has accumulated from contributions by the railways on the basis of one cent an hour for each working non-operating employee.

Under the plan, agreed to in principle in November, 1963 but now settled in final form, employees with seven years or more of seniority are to receive payments of $12 a week if they are laid off.

Removal of Queen's Portrait From Citizenship Courts Protested by Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP) —Opposition Leader Diefenbaker protested Monday night against a citizenship department directive to citizenship courts ordering removal of the Queen's portrait from the courtrooms.

"I protest most strongly this attitude of mind of the present government," Mr. Diefenbaker told a hastily summoned press conference. He said he plans to raise the matter in the commons.

"It seems to be a government whose purpose is to remove any vestige of our traditions.

"Every week this is a government that seems to be moving ahead removing the things that are traditional to that hold this country together."

A spokesman for Citizenship Minister Nowlan said in the matter was not aware of the directive. He said it resulted from inquiries from the courts about the proper placing of the Queen's portrait, the Canadian coat of arms and the two Red Ensigns which are supplied to the court by the department.

USE DISCRETION

He said some of the judges used their own discretion and placed the Queen's portrait in the courtroom with the flags and coat of arms. Others used only the coat of arms and flags in the courtroom.

The spokesman said that about 10 days ago K. C. Foster, registrar of citizenship, instructed the 10 citizenship courts that the correct procedure was to have only the coat of arms and flags in the courtroom and the Queen's portrait in the judge's office.

He said it is in the judge's office "where all new Canadians are interviewed and the judge would point out who is our Queen."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was informed of the removal of the portrait in the Edmonton citizenship court and was told that it resulted from a decision by the undersecretary of state that the correct protocol was to have the portrait covered by the judge's chambers.

He said he wonders whether the government received its advice from Auguste Choquette, Liberal MP for Lotbiniere whom he called an advocate of abolishing the monarchy.

"I don't know where we're going," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "The old regiments are being disbanded and there are constitutional amendments that permit of the setting up of associate states."

Some 375 courts across Canada have been designed under the Canadian citizenship registration branch of the federal department to rule on applications for citizenship. A judge hears the application and gives a decision on it.

ASKS PROTEST

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India appealed Monday to Asian and African countries to unite in protesting against the spread of nuclear weapons. Shastri said "if all the peace-loving countries stand together against nuclear armament they will be strong enough to create the necessary conditions to end this nuclear race."

Jet Trainer Plane Collides With Truck

TORONTO (CP) — A Royal Canadian Air Force T-33 jet trainer plane was in collision with a cement truck Monday when the plane overshot a runway at Downsview airport and ran onto a nearby street while attempting a landing.

The spokesman said the jet, flown by Flt. Lt. R. K. Johnson and first pilot Flt. Lt. J. G. Keith, both of St. Hubert, Que., was on a communications flight from St. Hubert to Traux Air Force base in Marion Wis., and was stopping at Downsview for refuelling.

He said the plane overshot the runway, ran onto Wilson Heights Blvd., and struck a cement truck. The driver of the truck, 30-year-old Bruce Howland of Toronto, apparently saw what was about to happen, stopped the truck and ran to a nearby ditch.

The spokesman said none of the three men was injured. He said the plane's engine intake was dented but it could be repaired. No fire resulted from the crash but firemen sprayed the area with foam as a precautionary measure, he said.

A plaque also goes to the Calgary club, represented by president George McMinn, indicating its player was the most outstanding player of 1964—the first year a Stampeder has won the honor.

Runners-up for the awards, in order, were halfback Dick Shatto, an 11-year veteran with Toronto Argonauts, flanker and defensive halfback Larry Robinson of Calgary and defensive tackle John Barrow of Hamilton, who won the outstanding lineman award in 1962.

Coleman, 26-year-old native of Hamtramck, Mich., just made it as an American, having declared his intention of becoming a Canadian citizen next year.

Coleman joined the Stampeders as a fullback in 1960 after graduating from the University of Western Michigan but was converted to halfback until two years ago when fullback Earl Lunsford retired.

In 1963, he hammered out a 5.5-yard rushing average on his way to his first conference rushing title and this year raised his average to 6.2 yards as he went 1,539 yards on 260 carries for 10 touchdowns and a three-way tie for fifth place among western scorers with 60 points.

Grant, the fine pass-catching end for Hamilton, a native of Windsor, Ont., scored seven touchdowns in the regular season for the 1963 Grey Cup champions for a six-th-place tie in Western Conference scoring with 42 points. Shatto was third with 66 points on 11 touchdowns.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CANVER, Sports Editor

It is "treasure hunt" time again and hungry football fans are on the loose seeking the precious pasteboard "nuggets" that are the "Open Sesame" to the CNE Stadium on November 28th.

On the afternoon of that day either the Calgary Stampeders, the Ottawa Rough Riders, the B. C. Lions, or the Hamilton Tiger Cats will tangle some wind, rain, hail or fog for the honor of quaffing champagne from Lord Grey's battered old mug.

Hopeful "sinners" questing the pasteboard gold are warned to steer clear of this sports desk. Every year requests are received but as far as we are concerned "there just ain't none." In fact there is one—but it is dated "1948."

That was the year that launched the Grey Cup Spectacular in all its glory. The Calgary Stampeders tangled with the Ottawa Rough Riders and took home the coveted mug. Toronto's mayor "Hurricane Hurtubise" McCallum rode his trusty western mustang through Queen City canyons and the Stampeders cooked flapjacks on City Hall steps.

It was the year of the first big hangover when hotel keepers hadn't learned to hide everything that wasn't nailed and downtown Toronto rang to the chords of "fitters." Dancers square-danced in hotel rotundas and on the streets, and the Toronto "cowpokes" had a field day with department store ten-gallon hats.

Flaywire, as I recall it, the game was a thriller with the famous "sleeper play" and Ottawa's Pete Karpuk standing "paralyzed" looking at a loose ball that was still in play. Woody Strode, Calgary halfback, sensed the situation, grabbed the ball and ran it to the Ottawa 10-yard line. That was the beginning of the end.

Then there was the famous "fog" game of a few years ago, the first time the Grey Cup was split. And in 1950 was the Grey Cup "Mud Bowl" when Winnipeg tackle Bud Tinsley was described as "almost drowning" at midfield and the Argos quarterback Al Dekdebrun had to tape thumbtacks on his fingers.

The colorful annual football extravaganza has lost none of its appeal since the Calgary Stampeders proved that the "brain shall meet" in an aura of celebrative glory. Hostels, motels, restaurants and the boites and bistros do a land office business while the "in-and-out" emporiums cash registers jangle monotonously.

Adding to the fun and furore this year will be the Canadian Championship Rodeo which plays Toronto during Grey Cup week. Already the vanguard has arrived, including four freight cars of wild horses, steers, wild cows and four huge transports of similar livestock. There will be top cowboys and cowgals from all parts of the continent, not to mention "Grunter", a prize buffalo who has an act all his own.

Fifty-five years ago on December 4, 1909, twenty young athletes from the University of Toronto trotted on the field at Rosedale and defeated Toronto Parkdale 26-6 to gain the honor of being the first to capture the Grey Cup. Roughly, 4,000 people saw the game.

This year millions of sports fans across Canada, the United States and around the world will be able to see and hear Canada's football classic.

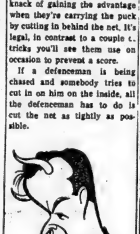
Three Fearless Foodick prognosticators, members of the Grey Cup crew come up with their predictions after watching the teams over the regular season CFL play.

Mo Simovick, an official spotter, picks Calgary in the west, Hamilton in the east, and the Tiger Cats to take it all."

Fred Sgambatti, who will call the play-by-play, calls it the same way.

Don Wittman who will assist in the play-by-play, has other ideas. He looks for the Stamps and Cats to fight it out but calls the western team to quaff the champagne.

They could be right, but at the moment the Ottawa Rough Riders have a 17-point edge over "Sazio's Assassins" from Hamilton and the British Columbia Lions are just a game away from the western championship.



As Brother Allen would say, "How About That?"

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Some defencemen have a knack of gaining the advantage when they're carrying the puck by cutting in behind the net. It's legal, in contrast to a couple of tricks you'll see them use on occasion to prevent a score.

If a defenceman is being chased and somebody tries to cut in on him on the inside, all the defenceman has to do is cut the net as tightly as possible.

Then his pursuer has to pull up or he's going to run right into the net. Doug Harvey had this down pat. You'd have to pull in behind him. As soon as you did, he'd take off. You had to gain two strides on him to get in checking position again.

Talking about frustrating men, Ocuevres, I tried one the other night in a game with Chicago, one that I have used on me many times.

When a defenceman finds himself alone in front of the net with two opposing players, he'll get a hand on one and put his stick on the other fellow. The stick is just touching the player, if he moves the defenceman knows he's moving and, with his hand on the other player, the defenceman knows what he's doing too.

He's doing a little grabbing and holding. Yet it is a good move on his part because he has to watch both of them. As soon as this happens, if the players are smart at all, they'll part company and move out a little.

Talking about grabbing, when you're in tight quarters around the net and the puck is bouncing, all they have to do is reach down and grab your stick. It's impossible to get a shot away. Of course it is illegal but it's hard to detect, too.

Pierre Pilote was in front of our net the other night, Bobby Hull passed the puck from behind the net, I just reached back and grabbed Pilote's stick. He missed the pass. He turned. I laughed. I got a kick out of it because of the many times he has done the same thing to me.

Suit Settled Out Of Court

Powers Gets Habs' Apology, Cash

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie Powers, former National Hockey League referee, received a public apology Monday along with a cash, out-of-court settlement of a libel and slander suit. The amount of the settlement was not disclosed.

Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, said however there is "absolutely no chance whatsoever" that Powers will return to the league's refereeing staff.

Powers, who resigned as an NHL referee Feb. 14, 1963, sued the Montreal Canadiens Hockey Club, the club's coach, Toe Blake, and employees of the French - language newspaper Montreal-Matin for remarks attributed to Blake about the officiating at a 1963 hockey game.

The settlement was reached as the suit was about to be tried before Mr. Justice Edson Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court.

INVOLVES RETRACTION

In a statement to the court Powers' lawyer, Allan Austin, said the settlement involved a retraction of the "defamatory" statement and an apology to Powers by Blake, the Canadiens, Matin newspaper man Jean-Paul Sarault, sports editor Jacques Beauchamp and the newspaper.

Powers, 46, resigned in the middle of his second season as an NHL referee, after Campbell fined Blake $200. Powers blamed insufficient support from Campbell for his resignation.

Powers said Monday NHL governors have agreed to meet with him within 30 days but he did not elaborate.

"Powers apparently wants a chance to say something to the governors and I said I would try to arrange a meeting," said Campbell. "There is certainly no guarantee that anyone will listen."

Powers now works as a safety inspector for the Construction Safety Association of Ontario.

AMERICAN WINS

LONDON (AP) — Roger Bisscher, heavyweight champion of California, dropped British heavyweight king Henry Cooper twice in the eighth round and won a 10 - round decision at Royal Albert Hall Monday night. It was a slap and push affair.

Bart Starr 'Seems All Right'

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr, Green Bay Packer quarterback who was knocked out in Sunday's National Football League game in San Francisco, seemed to be all right when he was examined by the team physician Monday, a club spokesman said.

The physician, Dr. James Nellen, said Starr, knocked cold when he was tackled after throwing an incomplete pass, suffered double vision for a while as the result of a hard knock on the head.

Starr was resting at his home Monday but was expected to report for practice today, the Packer spokesman said.

It's too early to tell whether Starr will be able to play in Sunday's game against Cleveland Browns. The same applies to half-back Paul Hornung and defensive back Jess Whittenton. Hornung suffered a recurrence of the pinched nerve difficulty which has plagued him for several seasons, the club said. A hard tackle along the side-lines late in the game put him out of action.

Whittenton has been out for two weeks with a pulled leg muscle.

NEAR NEW RECORD

NEW YORK (AP) — Gino Cappelletti, Boston Patriots pass-catching end and place kicker, needs only 2½ more points to break his own scoring record in the American Football League. With four games to go, Cappelletti has 123 points on five touchdowns, 21 field goals and 28 converts.

Snell Gallops Mile In 3:54.1

New World Record

AUCKLAND (CP-Reuters) — Peter Snell of New Zealand, double gold medallist at the Tokyo Olympic Games, today ran the fastest mile ever, a tremendous 3:54.1 effort breaking his own world record. All first three finishers cracked the 4:00.0 barrier.

The magnificent New Zealand flyer, who says he wants to run a 3:30.0 mile in the next year and then hang up his spikes, chipped 3-10ths of a second off the world mark of 3:54.4 he set in January, 1962, at Wanganui, N.Z.

The 25 - year - old Auckland salesman was running on a cinder track at Western Springs Stadium. When he set his previous mile record he did it on the grass.

He now holds world records in the mile, half mile, 800 metres, 1,000 metres, and the indoor half mile and 1,000 yards.

In the 1964 Olympics at Tokyo, Snell became the first man in 46 years to win both the 800-metre and 1,500-metre gold medals.

Only last Thursday, Snell set a world record for 1,000 metres, also at Auckland. He clipped 1-10th of a second off the world

Josef Odlozil of Czechoslovakia, who took the silver medal in the Olympic 1,500 metres, again finished second to Snell. His time was a personal best of 3:56.4, a Czechoslovak record.

New Zealander John Davies, 1,500-metre bronze medallist in Tokyo, was third in 3:56.8.

Over the loudspeaker, Snell told the 20,000 fans after the race: "You've no idea how hard it was over that last lap. I think it was probably one of the hardest last laps in all my 400 mile races."

Several local runners set the pace in the first two laps of the invitation event, with Snell lying third.

Just before the half - mile mark, Snell surged clear of the pack and opened up a big lead. His pace slightly slackened in the final lap but he beat Odlozil by about 15 yards. Odlozil passed Davies on the final bend and held off the New Zealander to finish nearly three yards ahead of him.

"I had gone through the half mile in about 1:54.0, which is far too fast, but I was carried away by the whole atmosphere and the tremendous crowd here, and I couldn't help myself," Snell said.

Since Britain's Roger Bannister achieved track immortality by running the mile in 3:59.4 in May, 1954, the four-minute-mile "barrier" has been broken on more than 100 occasions by more than 40 athletes.

Rookies Standout In NHL

By HAL BOCK

NEW YORK (AP)—If the National Hockey League's bumper rookie crop continues to play the way it has for the first month of the season, there could be quite a scramble for first-year honors.

But Emile Francis, the new general manager of New York Rangers, doesn't think it's a race at all.

"We've got the two best rookies in the league right here," Francis told the weekly hockey writers' luncheon Monday. "Rod Seiling and Arnie Brown have been all we ex pected—and more."

Seiling and Brown were acquired by the Rangers in the mammoth trade that sent Andy Bathgate and Don McKenney to Toronto Maple Leafs last February. Both have won regular jobs, on defense.

Two other Ranger rookies, Lou Angotti and Jim Mikol, have also won regular jobs.

RAVE ABOUT ELLIS

In Toronto, all the talk is about Ron Ellis, who played junior hockey last season with Seiling. Ellis has scored six goals in the Leafs' first 14 games.

Detroit goalie Roger Crozier is the NHL's leading netminder. Crozier played 15 games for the Wings last year but is still eligible for rookie honors this season.

Right wing Yvan Cournoyer and defenseman Larry Hurris both play regularly for Montreal Canadiens with Cournoyer touted as the successor to the retired Bernie Geoffrion. Ron Schock is Boston Bruins' only rookie and also takes a regular turn.

Chicago carries five first-year men on its roster with Phil Esposito and Doug Robinson getting the most work. Fred Stanfield, Jim Pappin and Dennis Hull are the other Black Hawk rookies.

HAMILTON (CP) — If head coach Ralph Sazio doesn't have enough problems trying to figure out the cause of Hamilton Tiger-Cats' 30-13 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders during the week end, he has at least two more limping around the dressing room.

Fullback Art Baker and halfback Willie Bethea missed Monday night's practice as he club worked to regain some of the skill and confidence sorely lacking in the first game of the two-game total-point series for the East ern Football Conference championship.

Sazio doesn't know yet whether Baker or Bethea will be ready for the return match here Saturday. Xrays showed there was no fracture of Baker's leg, but a bad sprain above the ankle may keep him out.

Bethea suffered a sprained ankle and no decision will be made until the morning of the game.

"We haven't stopped working," Sazio said. "Actually the injury picture isn't as grave as we thought it was. Bernie Faloney, Hal Patterson and Stan Crisson were limping but they worked out."

Discussing Saturday's loss, Sazio wasn't quite as content

"We were sloppy, suffered mental lapses and made far too many errors. When you fumble the ball four times, lose three of them, suffer two interceptions and let someone run a kickoff back for a touchdown, you don't even believe in the game."

In Ottawa, coach Frank Clair seemed satisfied with his club's performance. He ran the squad through a 40-minute workout and then retired to the film room to watch the films of Saturday's game.

Quarterback Russ Jackson, who suffered a minor concus sion in the first half of the game, said he felt no "ill effects."

Flanker Whit Tucker, who injured his back while lifting a trunk in his home a few weeks ago, turned out for practice but made no decision about the game.

Saturday's game in Hamilton will be broadcast on the CBC and CTV national networks starting at 3 p.m. EST with no blackout in the Hamilton area.

A long-range weather forecast predicts fine, bright weather for the game, with tempera tures in the 40 to 45 range.

No Extra Bonuses For Cuppers

WINNIPEG (CP) — G. Sydney Halter, Canadian Football League commissioner, has sent out a directive reminding teams involved in playoffs that CFL regulations prevent clubs from paying Grey Cup bonuses to players other than those provided for in contracts.

CFL regulations provide for a bonus of $1,250 for each member of the winning team in the Grey Cup and $750 for each member of the losing team. There also are set bonus rates for teams reaching the western and eastern conference playoffs.

Halter's directive also reminded clubs they are not permitted to pay the way of players' wives or relatives to the Grey Cup game.

A 'Must' For Calgary
Healthy Lions Await Stamps' Onslaught

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Calgary Stampeders open the show and British Columbia Lions get the curtain call.

That has been the pattern in almost every game between the clubs over the last two Western Football Conference seasons.

The Stampeders' must win this second game of the best-of-three series after losing the first 24-10 at home Saturday.

In that one, they trailed 10-0 after 14:18 of the first quarter. From that point to the end of the game, they picked up only two first downs.

Dave Skrien, head coach of the Lions, said Monday each B.C. has been able to nail quarterback Eagle Day behind the line as the games were set up but this is only part of the explanation.

"We seem to be able to find the pattern that they develop offensively," he said. "We just probe and find something that's going to go for us."

Skrien said the Lions are "vastly improved" with the return of defensive halfbacks Neal Beaumont and Steve Shafer to the lineup. This has allowed Ron Morris to return to offensive half and Tony Gabriel, Mack Burton to limit himself to a one-way job at the end position.

EXPLOIT WEAKNESSES

"Saturday we did quite a bit of trying to exploit their weaknesses. At times it worked very well.

"One thing we used was the balanced information with one back behind the other. It gave us a balanced defence against Calgary's unbalanced offence which has one linebacker playing either side, depending on which way we run our strength. We tried not to have any apparent strength and then we tried to run away from this linebacker.

"But it's not strategy that beats them, it is their carelessness and the execution of plays."

The Lions went through a stiff, secret workout Monday afternoon. Centre Gary Schwertfeger was treating a bad bruise, but he was the only Lion on the limp.

The Stampeders were to arrive here at noon today with several players in doubtful health. Jesse Branch was definitely out with a dislocated shoulder and Lu Bain will replace him at defensive halfback.

Both the CBC and CTV networks will televise the game nationally at 8 p.m. PST (11 p.m. EST) as well as the third game—if it is necessary—Saturday at 2 p.m. PST. (5 p.m. EST).

The Grey Cup hopefuls must play each game of the final to a decision, which means that a regulation-time tie would have to be broken in overtime. They would play 20-minute periods to 10-minute halves until there was a winner.

One Loss In Last Six
Bruins Move Closer To Pack

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens' relative surge last week tightened up the National Hockey League's team and goal - keeping leadership races, both at the expense of the Detroit Red Wings.

After four winless games, the Habs compiled two wins and a tie for the week's best team record and moved to within a point of the Wings in team standings with 17.

Official NHL statistics released today also show Montreal goalie Charlie Hodge, last year's Vezina Trophy winner, has pulled even with, Detroit's Roger Crozier. Both teams had 28 goals scored against them in 14 games. Crozier leads in shutouts with three.

Detroit's nine - game undefeated string was broken Wednesday by Toronto Maple Leafs who still dropped four points off the pace to third from second place because of back-to-back defeats Saturday and Sunday.

Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers remain tied for fourth place, both with 13 points on their one-and-one records. Boston Bruins, with only one loss in their last six games, moved closer to second place by picking up four points but remain last with nine.

MIKITA LEADS HULL

Chicago's Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull remain one-two in the individual scoring race. Mikita added his fifth goal to go with his league-leading 12 assists for 17 points.

Hull's three - goal performance Sunday gave him 11 goals —best in the league—while he added his fifth assist of the season for a total of 16 points.

Montreal's Claude Provost made the biggest advance in the scoring parade, moving to third from eighth place. His six points in the week's action gives him a total of 14 points.

Norm Ullman is fourth with 13 points while Toronto's Frank Mahovlich, who missed two games while undergoing hospital tests, dropped to fifth from third place with 12 points. Gordie Howe's two goals, including his record-setting 627th, as well as three assists, also moved him into the fifth-place tie. His goal in Montreal Saturday night means he has scored in every NHL season and playoff games than any other player.

THE FIFTH PLACE

Bobby Rousseau's goal and three assists also moved the Montreal player into the fifth-place tie.

Alex Delvecchio of Detroit, who missed both weekend games because of an injury, snapped his consecutive games-played streak at 548. He hadn't missed a game since Dec. 13, 1953.

TV Veteran Donna Reed Likely to Sign Renewal

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Well, at least this season brought some more girls to keep me company," said Donna Reed.

Indeed, the network channels seem to have a more feminine air, even if the new girls are slightly supernatural. Among the entries who appear in the "safe" category for remaining more than a season are the Bewitched Elizabeth Montgomery and the ghoul-friended Yvonne Craig.

And still she goes on.

EIGHT YEARS ON TV

"Good heavens, next season will make our eighth year in television," she said. "That's the equivalent of two full presidential terms—Presidents are barred from serving any more than that. Maybe there should be a constitutional amendment preventing television series from doing the same."

At the end of each season a guessing game has been conducted about whether Donna would agree to do another year. Next time the game is on, ABC not she and husband - producer Tony Owen, has the option on whether to continue the show. With the ratings comfortably high, a renewal seems certain.

Donna now appears willing to carry on but there have been times when she wanted to check the whole thing.

"During the first season, I thought it was all big excitement," she admitted. "Strictly on an energy basis, it seems to be too much."

Bright Negro Comedian Gets Starring Role in New Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Cosby, one of the brightest of the new comedians, has been signed to co-star in an action-mystery series, 1 Spy, aimed at NBC's schedule next fall.

The show will mark the first time a Negro has had a lead role in a dramatic series.

Cosby, a studious - looking, gentle-mannered fellow who reserves his comedy routines for professional appearances, believes the assignment is important.

"Not as a racial issue," he said. "It's a personal quest. Can I do the job? Can this comedian turn into an actor?"

Robert Culp will play an agent disguised as a tennis bum. Cosby will be his colleague, disguised as his trainer.

HE'S STUDENT

"At this point, Bobby is the actor and I'm the student," Cosby said. "When we made the pilot film I discovered that, although I had never watched myself performing as a comedian, I was watching myself as an actor. And he has helped me many times and kept me from doing grotesque things."

Cosby thinks the casting of a Negro in an important role is simply evolution — "It had to come, a time when the fact that the character was dark skinned had no importance to the story line."

Still in his 20s, Cosby was a star athlete at Temple University. He was "discovered" by the TV audience on NBC's Tonight Show, about 18 months ago and has since turned up on most of the television variety programs. He keeps away from what he calls "racial humor."

"I can only do what seems funny to me, and it isn't that," he said. "I think that perhaps the only real wheeler - dealer in bitter racial humor now is Dick Gregory, and that's because he is overwhelmingly concerned with it.

"But on the other hand, I think we've got away from the stereotype very well. You don't see the Negro maid and butler much any more. And there are even some prison shows made nowadays that don't have a Negro — singing — on death row. Yes, it's time we had a casting situation like 1 Spy.

Sport Snapshots

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — The medical profession has had a host of old wives' tales under the gun for several hundred years, but still they linger.

Talking about athletic injuries in a symposium sponsored by the British Columbia Medical Association and B.C. Lions football team, they made such points as these:

—The so - called 'athlete's heart" does not exist.

—A blow on the breast will not cause cancer in women or men.

—You cannot afford to relax in contact sports.

—There is no short course to fitness and stamina.

The widespread praise of "relaxation" for athletes was especially galling to Dr. Harry Kretzler of Seattle. He said it's a good way for a boy to get his block knocked off. A football player expecting a tackle can not be relaxed; if he is it's certain he doesn't expect the tackle.

Dr. Kretzler said tenseness, as it applies to the muscles means a bigger blood supply produced by newly formed beds of capillaries. "To say it takes a two-week period to develop endurance or stamina is ridiculous. You simply don't develop new capillary beds that quickly."

RETURNS TO NORMAL

Athlete's heart, another old misnomer, is said to be a dangerous enlarged-heart condition caused by over-exertion.

Dr. William Charlton of Vancouver said the heart does indeed grow bigger with exertion. But it does so to handle a heavier load and it returns to normal size with the absence of exertion.

"Anyone who drops dead of a heart attack on the playing field probably has a pre - existing heart condition," he said.

Dr. Mac Gillespie, who ministers to the battered ankles and knees of B.C. Lions' football players, said he would recommend pain - killing novocaine only for men who make a living from sport. Similarly, only professional athletes should consider taping injured limbs to play before they are entirely healed.

But the symposium's overriding concern about injuries was their prevention. Here a whole is undoubtedly professional man like Dave Skrien and a studiously amateur man like Robert Osborne could speak as one.

Both the head coach of the Western Football Conference team and the head of the UBC physical education department said physical fitness and strength are the best insurance against injury.

SUPPORT FITNESS

Dr. Osborne had biting criticism for some important people—including educationists and doctors—who say physical fitness programs aren't necessary.

He urged a program for every school for every student, male and female.

"Otherwise, we're doomed to mediocrity in all we do."

Canada's Olympic athletes had told him almost without exception that their European opponents dominated the second half of their competitions because of higher fitness—not necessarily because of higher skills.

Skrien brought up a problem common to all professional football teams: How to develop both conditioning and skills in one month and be ready to play a high-risk sport.

Football's solution is drills incorporating conditioning and technique — charging padded sleds; dancing, knee bent, through various patterns; tumbling and tackling in special positions that keep the muscles working.

In workouts players are called on to do strenuous routines while tired, an attempt to repeat game conditions under which a fatigued athlete is in danger of injury.

Automation and Technical Changes Bring New Problems High School Graduates Told

BANCROFT — "In the later grades of high school we came to realize that life does not float on a timeless ocean of existence. It moves forward. The implicit imperatives of our age are to travel faster, to do more in less time, and never alter speed unless to accelerate it, and so we were pushed to our limits," said Miss Shirley Best, valedictorian of the 1964 graduating class of North Hastings High School at the annual commencement exercises held in the gymnatorium on Friday Nov. 13th, before a large crowd.

Miss Best went on to compare the high school with a garage — the teachers being the master mechanics who prepared the students for the "number one highway of life".

Developing her theme on the art of living, Miss Best felt that without cynics with a group of teachers, who knew the art of living together happily the students would not have been able to master this important art.

Miss Best, now a student nurse at Peterborough Civic Hospital, told her audience: "A few hints that have been impressed upon me are to accept people as you find them, respect the rights of others, avoid gossip, self-pity and rationalization, and above all develop altruism. Be yourself, fulfil yourself, and follow your destiny."

The commencement exercises began with the processional march played by the High School band conducted by William Hennig, and led by the principal, F. S. Beckley, guests and faculty members, followed by the graduates and other students receiving awards. The board of education was represented by Reginald Wallis, chairman, vocational advisory committee, replacing Guy Bentley, board chairman, who was ill.

R. W. Frost, Kingston, Assistant Superintendent Department of Education, guest speaker at the exercises reminded his audience that the young people of today face challenges not even conceived a few decades ago. "The age of automation and technical change continues to bring with it new problems which will have to be solved by today's graduates. These young people will carry the burden of the world in the 70's and 80's."

"These are days of rapid evolution and revolution," he said, adding that there is a great need for vision and planning. "Each of us has some distinctive ability which it is our duty to use. Graduation is not the end but the stepping stone to further education and to service to society."

During the program selections were given by the High School Glee Club directed by Mrs. Helga Berubi.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved ... actual reduction or retraction (shrinkage) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured tissues and retards growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

Today, you find nothing but success.

On Sept. 28, we launched Phase Two of the Rambler Revolution. Sales are up 63% over this time last year!

From a once-quiet field outside Brampton, Ontario, the first phase of the Rambler Revolution was brought to Canadian car buyers.

It was our compact car—a complete success. In four years, we've doubled our plant capacity. We've boosted our production five times over.

On Sept. 28, we launched Phase Two of the Rambler Revolution. It's three completely different '65 Ramblers in three completely different sizes. Our youthfully-styled, compact American is still the lowest-priced, Canadian-built car. Our mid-size Classic features fast 6 and V8 performance. SCHEDULED FOR CHRISTMAS COMPLETION—This is an artist's sketch of the $1,000,000 library being built at St. Francis Xavier University at Antigonish, N.S. Universities Spending $350 Million In Massive Expansion Programs

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Memorial University is using its own electronic computer to work out design problems for a new campus building.

Fledgling Brock building classes in a converted refrigeration plant, is spending $5,000,000 on a 14-storey tower that eventually will be a 1,000,000-book library.

Governors of the University of Alberta are putting the pruning knife to students' united plans for a $4,000,000 structure.

Embryo Trent, with construction still to begin, has plans for $70,000,000 worth of campus.

St. Dunstan's, 109 years old, is settling for a new students' coffee shop.

Young and old, big and small, most of Canada's universities are surging upwards and outwards in the continuing race to keep abreast of the swelling demands of higher education.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that at least $350,000,000 is being currently sunk into bulls of learning, or their appurtenances. Many hundreds of millions more are under planning.

IVY SPROUTS STRONGLY

Some are ultra-modest, as in the case of old St. Dunstan's in Charlottetown, or even older King's in Halifax, which has no expansion at all in hand. But the newer members of the university brigade are mushrooming mightily and so, still, are many of the older ones.

New teaching and research facilities are being put in to keep step with the march of educational technology. Old ones are being modernized. And overall there is steady enlargement so the doors may be opened to more. For the new institutions it's a race to meet the oncoming generation.

Brock University at St. Catharines, for instance, has just opened with 144 students, will start building facilities for 2,000 in the spring and hopes to have between 10,000 and 12,000 eventually. Its single building towering 180 feet above the Niagara Escarpment will house all facilities for the time being but is being built for conversion to a library when other buildings rise. By 1970, it expects to have a $27,000,000 plant.

Trent at Peterborough—also just opened and with its classes scattered around town—expects to have its first building, $3,500,000 Champlain College for men, ready by 1966. Over the next 16 to 20 years, it plans a unique system of a full dozen colleges, each largely self-contained except for laboratories and the like. The first $70,000,000 is expected to be invested by 1975.

At even younger Simon Fraser University, which opens on a mountaintop at Burnaby, B.C., for an expected 2,500 students next fall, $17,600,000 will have been spent by that time. Apart from a series of academic innovations, Simon Fraser will have a covered mall linking its buildings plus underground parking in five years, almost $30,000,000 will have been spent.

SHARE $40,700,000

Simon Fraser along with B.C.'s other two public institutions—University of British Columbia and University of Victoria—are sharing in $40,700,000 promised by the provincial government to finance a five-year building program. This is to be combined with the proceeds of a $28,000,000 public fund drive.

UBC's $29,760,000 share will be part of a $48,000,000 program for that college stretching into 1969. This includes an $18,000,000 teaching hospital and a six - building medical science centre.

Victoria is in the midst of a series of five-year expansion stages that began in 1961, in which $6,500,000 has been spent and another $12,000,000 is projected by the end of 1969. Its scattered facilities are being consolidated into one campus.

The Ontario government, too, embarked this year on a new method of financial help for universities through easy-term loans for construction. During the current fiscal year, $33,600,000 is being made available.

The University of Toronto has $37,000,000 in construction under way with $12,000,000 worth due for completion in time for the 1965 - 66 year. A $7,300,000 zoology building is included in the first group while a $12,000,000 physics building and the $8,000,000 first stage of new Scarborough College are to be finished later.

McGill is in the same area as U of T on current projects with more than $32,000,000 worth in hand including a $10,500,000 medical centre—a 10-storey circular structure—and an $8,000,000 biological science building.

HAS TV HOOKUPS

Largest single unit in progress is a $23,900,000 all-purpose building for Sir George Williams University in downtown Montreal. With its completion by September, 1966, the university will abandon an apartment building it now is using for needed supplementary space. The new structure, which contains such features as closed-circuit TV between some rooms, will allow expansion of the academic program by extending the present three-year course for an engineering certificate for five years.

Among the other big institutions, Laval at Quebec City has slowed down after a $60,000,000 decade of selling up a new "university city" at suburban Ste. Foy. The campus showpiece, a humanities building of classical grace in white stone, was completed this year, as $3,000,000 residence to accommodate 1,000 students is under construction.

The other big French - language seat, University of Montreal, has added two new amphitheatres to its main building at a cost of $2,000,000 along with a $2,750,000 central heating plant. Some miscellaneous structures—including outdoor escalators to replace wooden stairways between levels of the hilly campus — add up to about $5,000,000.

In the Atlantic provinces, University of New Brunswick's $10,000,000 is the highest spending planned for the year. Besides a library and an engineering addition at $2,000,000 apiece for its Fredericton campus, it includes $1,350,000 for a branch at Saint John.

Dalhousie's major project at Halifax is a $6,000,000 medical science building to be named after Sir Charles Tupper, one of the Fathers of Confederation. The building is to be completed in the centennial year of 1967, and the federal and Nova Scotia governments are contributing $2,500,000 each as a centenary item.

St. Francis Xavier at Antigonish also will commemorate one of Nova Scotia's distinguished politicians — the late premier Angus L. Macdonald—in a $1,000,000 library expected to be completed by Christmas.

Memorial University of Newfoundland has no buildings under construction but is working —with the help of its computer —on plans for a new arts, education and science building and has made room on its St. John's campus for a new home for Queen's College being built at a cost of $1,650,000 by the Anglican diocese of Newfoundland. Ground is being cleared and construction is scheduled to start in 1965.

In Ontario, University of Western Ontario at London has a $30,000,000 expansion program in progress. Now building are a medical school ($5,500,000), a composite science centre ($1,600,000) and several others totalling $4,800,000. An astronomical observatory and a graduate college are among projects scheduled for 1968.

University of Windsor is working on a $23,000,00 program with a 1970 target date. A $2,660,000 administration and classroom building is nearing completion.

Young York University in Toronto has six buildings going up for the 1965 term at a cost of almost $16,000,000. They include the first of 13 colleges and a 1,000-student co-ed residence.

The University of Waterloo's expanding campus has construction worth $11,458,000 under way. It includes the fourth to seventh stories of a 14-storey library to be completed by stages by 1970 and to become the centrepiece of the campus.

GOES NUCLEAR

Ottawa University has $3,300,000 worth of building under way, including a physics building that will accommodate a 3,000,000 - volt nuclear particle accelerator, and more than a dozen other structures are planned.

At the University of Manitoba, a $20,000,000 five - year plan that started in 1962 is well advanced. The new University College is nearing completion and already in use, and buildings for schools of music and arts are under construction.

University of Saskatchewan is working on projects totalling $29,000,000 for its established Saskatoon campus and $18,000,000 for the new one at Regina. The first group of Regina buildings will be completed in 1965. It includes a one-storey lecture theatre building which has been designed to form the first floor of other buildings and become a sort of podium, providing passageways between the buildings, giving an elevated campus and forming courtyards in the heart of the university.

Feature of the University of Alberta's $18,000,000 program for its Edmonton and Calgary campuses will be a $5,000,000 15-storey social sciences building at Edmonton, one of the tallest university structures in the country and containing 40 laboratories. It is due for completion in 1970. The Edmonton campus also is to have a $250,000 underground laboratory to give the university its first radiation research facilities.

Planning is under way for a new students' union building at U of A but the board of governors contends the $4,000,000 structure is too much. Union officials were attempting to pare the costs before returning to the board.

Congo Rebel Leader Talks With U. S. Consul

Condemned Missionary Has Execution Stayed

By ARNOLD AMBER

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Rebel President Coristophe Gbenye held negotiation talks with the U.S. consul in Stanleyville, Michael Hoyt, on the American "prisoners of war," Radio Stanleyville said today.

The rebel radio said Hoyt and the two Congolese lawyers who defended condemned American missionary Dr. Paul Carlson met with Gbenye Monday.

The radio broadcast was monitored by reliable sources.

There were 63 Americans behind rebel lines including five U.S. consulate officials.

All were made "prisoners of war" by the rebels about two weeks ago because of American military aid to government forces.

Radio Stanleyville said the negotiation talks between Gbenye and Hoyt were held in a "spirit of perfect understanding."

TALKS 'INSPIRED'

It quoted Gbenye as saying the negotiations were "inspired" by the rebels' policy of "ensuring safety and respect for lives and were in accordance with the Organization of African Unity spirit."

Although it did not specifically state that the 36-year-old Carlson had been granted a stay of execution, the broadcast gave the impression Hoyt's negotiations were principally concerned at the moment with saving the missionary's life.

(In Nairobi, Kenya, Tuesday it was reported that Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta had sent a telegram to rebel authorities in their capital of Stanleyville asking them to spare Carlson's life "on humanitarian grounds."

(Kenyatta's telegram followed an appeal by State Secretary Dean Rusk asking Kenyatta to intervene on Carlson's behalf after an announcement by Radio Stanleyville that Carlson would be executed.

Shortly over the rebel radio said Carlson, the father of

Only Small Increases Predicted

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Any increases in the amount Canadian workers would have to pay into the Canada Pension Plan are a generation away and should prove small, Finance Minister Gordon predicts.

If conservative projections of the plan's financing are borne out and a rate increase is decided upon, "the rate might go up by a quarter or a third," Mr. Gordon told the Commons Tuesday during debate on the proposed pension plan.

The plan calls for contributions initially of 3.6 per cent of a worker's annual wages between a minimum of $600 annually and a maximum of $5,400. Employers and employees would split the contribution—1.8 per cent each — but salaried, payed personnel would pay their own full share.

Mr. Gordon's forecast of a one-third increase would mean that contributors would still per only about five per cent of affected wages into the plan.

Mr. Gordon said because the plan is not completely funded

18 Americans Wounded by Bomb In Saigon Airport Restaurant

SAIGON (AP)—A terrorist's bomb destroyed a restaurant at the Saigon Airport today, wounding 18 Americans and at least four South Vietnamese.

One U.S. Air Force officer was badly wounded. He was sitting outside the restaurant in a bus when concrete fragments smashed into it.

The other injured Americans were 11 U.S. airmen, three army men and three civilians.

First reports indicated they were in the area of the restaurant, not in the building, and were only slightly wounded.

A few minutes before the explosion a Royal Australian Air Force plane had arrived from Singapore with flood relief supplies for Central Viet Nam. It was being officially received 60 yards from the blast.

An armada of 115 U.S. helicopters was landing at the airport as the explosion took place. They had been engaged in the biggest airlift of the Vietnamese war, carrying troops into Communist territory north of Saigon.

Demolition experts said the bomb, of a plastic type and probably weighing about 45 pounds, had been placed inside a concrete beam inside the restaurant.

Police arrested four boys between the ages of 15 and 20 for questioning.

The explosion heightened American fears about the vulnerability of the Saigon Airport, a centre of American activity in South Viet Nam. The restaurant was well inside the airport's security area, and the bomb had been carefully placed in the building.

IN THE FRONT LINE — Crouching firemen pour water on three 20,000-gallon tanks of propane gas as flames behind them destroy the acre-sized plant of Aersol Packaging of Canada Limited in east-end Toronto Tuesday evening. The building was destroyed by fire after a series of explosions ripped through it. A square mile of the industrial area was closed off by police until the tanks were declared safe. (CP Photo)

10 Killed In Crash Of Plane

ARGENTIA, Nfld. (CP) — A United States Navy plane plummeted into a choppy sea three miles off the U.S. airbase runway here Tuesday night, carrying 10 unidentified men to their deaths.

It was not confirmed that all aboard the P-3A Orion aircraft were naval personnel. Search and rescue ships and aircrafts converged on the scene of the sighted from the shore but found no trace of the aircraft.

The aircraft was on a routine ground control approach plan coming into this base, 70 miles southwest of St. John's, when it disappeared from radar screens. An explosion and fire about four miles off Point Verde, near the base, were reported from the shore.

A U.S. Navy spokesman said two tugs, two crash boats, a rescue helicopter and a Coast Guard C-130 plane were dispatched to the area. Light winds and a low ceiling with heavy overcast were reported at the time.

INDICT MINISTER

CHIPLEY, Fla. (AP) — The Washington county grand jury Tuesday indicted a white minister from Slocomb, Ala., for the rape of a 16-year-old Negro girl hired as a baby sitter. Rev. Trim Finch, 46, listed as pastor of the Free Will Baptist Church in Slocomb, was named in the indictment.

Arson Squad Probes Blaze Which Threatened Big Area

TORONTO (CP) — Arson squad officials are investigating a three-alarm fire which destroyed a warehouse containing compressed-air paint cans in suburban Scarborough Tuesday night.

Police cordoned off and evacuated a square mile of industrial properties as firemen fought a two-hour battle to keep the blaze from reaching three 2,000-gallon propane tanks.

Officials of Aersol Packaging (Canada) Limited said it would take several days to determine the total loss.

An evening shift at the plant was out for lunch and the building was empty when the fire broke out, police said.

Compressed air cans exploded and littered streets up to a half a block from the warehouse, a witness said.

The area was declared an emergency area for about 30 minutes and scores of men and women were evacuated.

Canadians to Seek Greater Share of French Market

OTTAWA (CP)—France is the world's fourth largest trader, Canada ranks fifth. Why is the trade between them so small?

France now takes less than one per cent of all Canadian exports. France supplies an even smaller percentage of all Canadian imports.

Whatever the reason for this situation, described by the experts as puzzling, the trade department says it now is clear what Canadian businessmen must do to get a larger share of the growing French market.

But the best possibility seems to be in the field of investments. In fact, ultimately this may be the only avenue for a major development of trade between the two countries.

That means, among other things, Canadian partnerships with French firms on French soil and vice versa. The object is to exchange manufacturing techniques and equipment.

R. Campbell Smith, Canadian minister for economic and commercial affairs in Paris, writes in the department's trade journal that French economic prosperity, bringing renewed business confidence, together with rapid removal of tariff barriers within the Common Market, has led to a greater willingness in

Ban Arms To Africa -- Wilson

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the House of Commons Tuesday that Britain is imposing a ban on any further sales of arms to South Africa.

Wilson, speaking amid government cheers, said all outstanding licenses for the export of arms should be revoked except where these are known to relate to internal security in the South African government.

He added that the £25,000,000 contract to supply 16 Buccaneer low-level jet strike aircraft is still under review. The cabinet is believed to be split on this issue.

South African Premier Hendrik Verwoerd warned during the weekend that his government will end the agreement under which Britain uses the Simonstown naval base near Cape Town if British doesn't deliver the Buccaneers.

Wilson told the Commons Britain is deeply worried that the United States has done in conformity with last June's United Nations resolution to the sale of arms to South Africa, whose white-ruled government practises apartheid (race separation).

The prime minister said British licenses for the export of sporting weapons and ammunition will also be revoked for future contracts and shipment stopped forthwith.

Sir Alec Douglas - Home leader of the Opposition, said the statement would have "far-reaching and implications." He asked whether the embargo means, in effect, that Britain is prepared to risk losing the Simonstown base.

"Not to have made this statement would have far-reaching implications," Wilson replied.

It would reflect "on our loyalty and membership of the United Nations and on our relations with a very large number of Commonwealth countries in Africa and elsewhere."

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, Nov. 17, 1964

Finance Minister Gordon said payments from the plan would supplement, not replace, income in about 20-30 years.

Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) said the bill is too big for members to complete their study of it this session.

Colin Cameron (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan - The Islands) said the plan should draw more funds from those who can best afford it.

Gene Rheaume (PC—Northwest Territories) said social security needs could be met with an increase to $100 in old age pensions.

Erhart Regier (NDP—Comox-Alberni) said this should be done in addition to setting up the Canada Pension Plan.

Catches Egypt Trying To Ship Traitor To Cairo

Diplomats Discovered Loading Trunk on Plane

ROME (AP)—Italy acted today to expel two Egyptian diplomats caught trying to ship a drugged man in a trunk to their foreign ministry in Cairo. Rome police said the victim had been a spy for both the United Arab Republic and Israel.

Police said the "diplomatic trunk" had almost certainly been used before for human cargo.

The foreign ministry sent for the U.A.R. ambassador to protest and to order the expulsion of the two embassy flunkeys. Italians who tried to load the trunk aboard a U.A.R. airliner bound for Cairo.

The two diplomats were identified as Abdel Moneim el Neklawy and Selim Osman el Sayed.

Police said they had obtained information that the man in the trunk, Moroccan-born Josef Dahan, 30, had been an agent for the United Arab Republic some years ago and more recently for Israel.

Dahan, denied that he had served Egypt and said he was a middle-East rivals, police said. A linguist with bleached blonde hair, he told police he had worked for a time as an interpreter at the U.A.R. embassy.

RELEASED SECRETARIES

The locked trunk was halted at Rome's Fiumicino Airport Tuesday night while it was being shipped as diplomatic mail. Police arrested the two first secretaries who were with it but released them because they had diplomatic immunity.

The trunk was lined with leather and had a tiny seat, built-in shoes and ankle clips to hold the feet in place, and a neck clamp and a kind of crash helmet to hold the head steady.

A police spokesman said the condition of the trunk "shows almost definitely that it had been used in this way before." They said both the shoes nailed to the floor and the metal crash helmet were adjustable to size, and holes on the outside of the trunk indicated that straps or "shipping tags" had been attached previously.

Police said Dahan was an Israel citizen but the Israel Embassy in Rome said it had no record of Dahan.

Police questioned Dahan for hours after midnight, as he

Push Study Of Canal From North

OTTAWA (CP)—A Commons committee studying the problem of low water levels on the Great Lakes was told Tuesday that the federal government wants to "press forward" with a feasibility study of proposals to divert waters now flowing northward in Ontario and Quebec into the Great Lakes - St. Lawrence basin.

The plans were contained in a written statement by Resources Minister Laing and read to the committee on mines, forests and waters by John Turner, Mr. Laing's parliamentary assistant.

The studies require the consent of both Ontario and Quebec, the statement said. Both provinces have indicated approval and while awaiting final agreement, "we are giving thought to the organization of these studies."

Mr. Laing's statement said that preliminary information does not suggest any of the proposals to be studied would be economic. The cost of the diversions themselves would be expensive and require a great deal of time.

"I want to stress that the government has not come to any conclusion, however tentative, about the viability of diversion possibilities which it is now proposed to study," Mr. Laing's statement said.

"It is merely pursuing a policy of examining every possibility which might make a contribution to the Great Lakes water levels problem."

The statement said that when the continued below-normal precipitation made it apparent that levels in the Great Lakes would continue to deteriorate, the government had decided on two courses of action.

First, it decided to seek the co-operation of the United States in having the International Joint Commission study whether it would be feasible to extend the present system of regulation on the Great Lakes.

Secondly, it would undertake, with the assent of the provinces involved, a comprehensive study of diversion possibilities.

Winter's First Big Storm In Maritimes Claims 5 Lives

HALIFAX (CP) — A blizzard was expected to hit The Maritimes today with up to six inches of snow, 50-mile-an-hour winds and freezing temperatures over the region where winter's first big storm Tuesday claimed five lives.

Four of the five deaths which occurred on slippery roads Tuesday were in a car-truck collision in Middlewood, 14 miles from Bridgewater on Nova Scotia's south shore. The other, also in a car-truck collision, killed one man at Sackville, N.B.

Record November snowfalls were set at Halifax and Fredericton. The 8.8 inches at Halifax was the most for the month since records have been kept, topping the 7.6 inches recorded in 1883. Fredericton received 10.6 inches, the highest there in 15 years.

The New Brunswick capital recorded a chilly 10 degrees Tuesday night as the leading edge of the second disturbance moved into the southwestern sections of The Maritimes.

Tuesday's blast left up to 10 inches of snow on some localities, disrupting power slightly in a few areas and forcing cancellations of some airline flights.

Killed near Bridgewater were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Coleman Howard, both 46, Mrs. Everett Hill, 29, and Kathleen May Heisley, 42, all of Brooklyn.

Yvon Babineau, 32, of Notre Dame, N.B., died in hospital at Sackville following the other collision.

Mrs. Margaret Rideout, recently elected Liberal Member of Parliament for Westmorland, suffered cuts and bruises when her car turned over on a slippery spot, also near Sackville.

Prince Charles Gets Top Marks for His Democratic Views

LONDON (AP) —Prince Charles got top marks today for democratic views after publication of excerpts from his school essays. But one newspaper gave him a minus for business instinct.

Queen Elizabeth, Charles's mother, was not amused that the German magazine Der Stern had published extracts from the copybooks of the 16 year-old heir to the British throne.

"It is highly regrettable," said Buckingham Palace. "that the private essays of a schoolboy should have been published in this way."

"If the essays are genuine," said The Daily Mirror, Britain's largest daily, "Prince Charles's views on democracy are very democratic."

But the Daily Telegraph, reporting that Charles himself was the original vendor of the essays, indicated the prince had greatly underrated their worth.

Quoting Terence Smith, head of a press agency that handled one stage of the deal, it said the prince ran short of pocket money while at school. He recalled, the paper said, that collectors were paying good prices for manuscripts—and sold four of his school papers to a schoolmate for 30 shillings ($4.50).

"When the essays were offered in Fleet Street some weeks ago, the price started in the thousands of pounds.

Reliable sources in London made clear that the four essays in Der Stern were genuine. They said three were original compositions—essays on democracy, newspapers and television, and on what he would like to be when he would take to a desert island.

The Queen and Prince Philip broke precedent by sending their heir to the throne to a boarding school—Gordonstoun in Scotland —so he could have a normal life.

In extracts printed here Charles is quoted as writing:

"Only if every adult has the right to vote can one say that democracy has been fully realized."

The extract on newspapers came down heavily in favor of press freedom. After observing that published criticism can sometimes cause embarrassment, it said:

"The press, radio and television protect the people from the government in many ways by letting them know what is going on, maybe behind their backs in some cases."

Banking System in Japan Outlined to Sales, Ad Club

Japan's banking system and wage scales as compared to Canada were the theme of a speech delivered Tuesday evening by Mr. Ryoo Mimoto, Chief Representative of the Bank of Tokyo for Canada, to the Belleville Sales and Ad Club.

Mr. Ryoo explained that the Yokohama Specie Bank, originated in 1880, was renamed the Bank of Tokyo after the war and became an important factor in re-establishing the country's economy.

Through long term loans a number of new industries were enabled to originate and in 1954 the Bank of Tokyo, due to Japan's growing foreign market, became a specialist in external finance.

Today approximately one third of Japan's foreign trade is handled through the Bank of Tokyo's 81 branch offices — 56 are abroad, two affiliated branches, three associated banks and 16 representative offices.

The major difference between Japan's and Canada's banking economy is that Japanese payments exceed income whereas in Canadian banks income exceeds payments.

Japan's banking economy operates in the red due to the purchase of special industrial machinery from abroad and the necessity of loans to create new industry, but as Mr. Mimoto told his audience this is an accepted method of maintaining a flowing economy.

An unique feature of Japanese branch offices are libraries, nurseries, and cooking schools within the buildings to draw housewife depositors.

Japanese trade with foreign markets, unlike Canadian trade, must be carried on through one of the country's trading companies or organizations with offices in all of Canada's main cities.

A comparison of Japanese and Canadian industry, introduced a number of interesting aspects.

In Japan employees are expected to remain with the same company until retirement.

The advantages of this are there are guaranteed life-long employment, a loyalty to the company which results in orders carried out quickly, worker experience is accumulated and shared, and business secrets are kept.

On the other side of the scale, the security of guaranteed lifetime employment tends to make the employee somewhat easy-going.

Although the dollar and cents wage provided to the Japanese employee is less than in Canada, benefits provided by the company more than compensate the Japanese wage scale comparable to many of those higher paying European countries.

DOCTOR AVAILABLE

Railway, subway and bus fares are paid, free lunches provided, only a nominal rent charged, and the company Doctor made available to the entire family.

Vacation spots, located on company land, ask a minimum fee; and night schools within the company allow the workers to continue their education without cost.

To end the evening Mr. Mimoto provided films depicting the seasons of Japan and the beauties of the countryside, and the New Tokaido Railway line, the world's fastest, on which trains travel at a speed of 150 m.p.h.

Council Will Spend $50 on Parade Float

TRENTON — Trenton council, Monday night, admitting that it was, to all intents and purposes, "broke," (in reference to the 1964 budget) voted to spend $50 on a Santa Claus float for Saturday's parade—the first time from the public works department mean to make a float.

However, council will give a "double take" on a proposal of Councillor Gould's that $1,000 be found to remove old bridges from the yacht basin. The councillor thinks the water in the basin is so low at present it will be (two feet) and it would be easy to remove the bulks.

One Hegler's necessity is the spending of around $4,000 on repairs to the town garage which will be needed for snow removal, and council also had to look for $418 for federal sales tax on two recently purchased light trucks.

Turning from penny pinching to the grandoise, council voted to go along with a department of highways suggestion that mercury vapor lights be put on the second bridge—when we get it—to permit the Bell Company to string telephone cable lines across the bridge and thus eliminate them into the bridge construction—provided it doesn't cost the town anything.

Phone Service Cut by Broken Hydro Line

TRENTON — Telephone service to the Quinte Heights area was disrupted for several hours last night and again today when a high tension hydro wire snapped in the wind and fell across secondary power and telephone lines.

The hydro break occurred on Fourth Avenue and hydro service to the area was cut off for 50 minutes while workmen repaired the damage.

Power hours in two homes on Fourth Avenue were also knocked out.

Seven Men Ready to Seek Three Vacant Council Seats

TRENTON—With nomination day set for Thursday, Nov. 26 and the municipal election coming on the following day, the man in the street in Trenton is very much concerned with the question of who will be running for what?

For the three vacant seats on the council, council there are, so far, seven contenders — Councillor Edward Todd, whose term expires this year, Daniel Smith, Donald McPherson, Herbert Simrod, George Greer, Paul Tripp and L. G. Palmer.

Councillor Ross Burtt is not sure whether he will run or not and Councillor Gerald Weaver says he doesn't expect to run.

Mayor James MacDonald will start the second year of his second term this January, so there will be no mayoralty race this year.

For the four vacant seats on the Trenton Board of Education, councillors Ernest Hall, Parker Jr. and Jack Hadley say they definitely will be in the running. Mrs. Stevens and Donald Sutherland whose terms expire this year are not sure whether they will run or not.

So far, no other candidates have offered themselves for the board of education.

For one lone seat on the Public Utilities Commission, Ward Two Councillor Charles Hillier says he will run again and there is no news of other candidates for the position.

Trenton voters will also be asked on Dec. 7 if they favor the town spending money on a swimming pool in the high school if they will vote a tax for an annual grant to a municipal band and whether they think the public should pay the Ontario Government to set up a different system of providing high school accommodation other than the present one where the municipality pays the Hon's share of school costs.

Thieves Enter Wholesale Firm Through Roof

TRENTON — Inspector R. J. Rutherford and Constable Sydney Vickers of the Trenton police department are investigating a robbery which occurred at the Thompson Wholesale building, located on the Carrying Place road, between 3.00 and 4.00 a.m. this morning.

As high as $1,000 worth of goods may have been taken, Mr. Missing are radios, electrical appliances, luggage, etc.

Mr. Thompson is taking inventory today to determine the exact amount of the loss.

The thief or thieves gained entry to the building by cut ting a hole in the roof at the back of the building, evidently carrying their loot out through the hole and lowering it to the back of a truck which had been parked at the rear of the building.

The theft was reported around 7.00 a.m. this morning by a workman reporting for duty.

Mr. Thompson's home is located directly across the road from the wholesale establishment but he was unaware of what was taking place.

Mayor Buys First Box of UNICEF Cards

TRENTON — Last Thursday, Mayor MacDonald launched the 1964 UNICEF greeting card campaign by buying his first box of UNICEF Christmas cards from a volunteer saleswoman at the headquarters, 36 Dundas St. West.

Convener is Mrs. J. Macauley and she will be assisted by Mrs. H. W. Lupton, RCAF; Mrs. E. T. Reed, Mrs. Business and Professional Women's club representative; Mrs. F. Hollman, Rotary; P/L. M. H. Rose, treasurer, and Mrs. E. D. Magnus, publicity.

In addition to cards, the store displays desk calendars, wrapping paper, candle-making kits, and UN cooking booklets. Proceeds go to the National UNICEF committee in Canada.

The proceeds from the sale of one box of cards can buy enough BCG vaccine to protect 50 children against TB in what used to be termed "the underdeveloped countries" of the world. Today, because of their determination to achieve economic "take-off", these countries are known as developing Countries.

The proceeds from the sale of nine boxes of cards will buy enough sulphone tablets to treat six leprosy cases for three years each.

Stelco Workers Vote to Strike By Big Margin

HAMILTON (CP)—More than 75 per cent of the Steel Company of Canada's 10,000 employees in its Hamilton plant have voted to take strike action if a new work contract cannot be negotiated, the union announced Tuesday.

A total of 8,333 ballots were cast. Results showed that 6,218 or 7,615 in favor of a strike. Steleo and Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers Union (CLC) have been negotiating since May, when the old contract expired. No agreement has been reached despite the mediation of a provincial government conciliation board.

If no agreement is reached, the man will be authorized to leave their jobs one week after the conciliation board hands its report to the Ontario department of labor.

The union is seeking wage and fringe-benefit improvements to bring its scale closer to par with American steelmakers.

Only 63 of 104 Canadian Drug Firms Are Acceptable As Suppliers for Govt. Use

OTTAWA (CP)—A Commons committee was told Tuesday that only 63 out of 140 Canadian drug firms are rated as acceptable suppliers of drugs for Government use.

Two MPs, a Conservative and a Liberal, said they were shocked by the report.

Dr. H. A. Shewaller, a chemical expert in the department of industry, told the special committee on food and drugs how a Government advisory group checked the products of good quality drugs being received by federal buyers.

He said a standard was drawn up for an acceptable drug manufacturing operation and 140 firms were invited to make qualification under it. Of these, 36 invited inspection by the federal food and drug directorate. 12 said they weren't interested and 35 did not reply.

After initial inspection of the 36 firms none qualified. Most were faulted on minor points but 104 made improvements and met the standard. "These are some early shocking statistics," said S. J. Rose (PC-Portage-Neepawa).

SELL TO PUBLIC

Bryce Mackasey (L—Verdun) said he was concerned that 23 firms were not rated as good enough to supply the government but still are free to sell to the "gullible public."

Dr. William Howe (NDP—Hamilton South) said the names or all the firms involved should be made public.

Dr. Shewaller said his advisory group has no authority to release firm names and suggested the committee approach the drug-using departments involved—defence, health and veterans affairs.

Asked at one point if the public was sufficiently protected against poor-quality drugs, he said: "Speaking as a private citizen, I think it is a matter for concern."

The committee later decided to recall Dr. C. A. Morrell, chief of the food and drug directorate, for questioning on that point.

NOT ENOUGH STAFF

Several committee members said the directorate does not have the staff or facilities to enforce the federal standard for all drug production.

"We're operating on a wing and a prayer," in drug inspection, Mr. Mackasey said.

Dr. Shewaller said other firms are working energetically to comply with the standard and a gradual increase in the list of accepted suppliers was expected.

"They were really frightened by this," he added in reference to the standard. It now had become a matter of prestige to get on the qualifying list.

Jean Rochon (L—Norfolk, Que.) asked if poor quality drugs or former years might have been a cause of sudden trying to get away with the minimum quality in bidding for government orders but still getting at high quality products for the public.

"I think this is true," Dr. Shewaller replied. Because of competitive bidding government drug prices were lower than those paid by the public.

His group found the government had been obtaining supplies "from the least competent or possibly the least scrupulous suppliers."

Certain firms of questioned performance were obtaining a large share of business," Dr. Shewaller added.

Population Of Canada Now 19,361,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's population at Oct. 1 has been estimated at 19,361,000 by the bureau of statistics.

The bureau said Tuesday this is an increase of 350,000 or 1.8 per cent from Oct. 1 last year. Biggest gain was in Ontario, with a one-year rise in British Columbia. Its population rose by 50,000 over the year to an estimated 1,758,000.

May Install New Equipment For Paymaster

The machine age is catching up to more than 300 employees, the board's paymaster's job is getting to be a big one and a special committee will be set up to consider the possibility of installing bookkeeping equipment to handle the payroll job.

The board has 166 teachers and 40 others on the payroll.

Other business at last night's monthly meeting saw the board agree to underwrite part of the expense of sending Bloomfield Secondary School Band to take part in next spring's Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto.

The Coca Cola Company was authorized to install a coke machine at Bloomfield Secondary School immediately and also one later at Belleville Collegiate.

Possibe tying in of school agricultural classes with civil defence with individual farmers or with organizations such as the Moira River Conservation Authority will be considered. The recommendation was made by the board's advisory vocational committee.

A fire siren will be installed at Bloomfield and Belleville Collegiate and additional fire extinguishers will be provided in other high school up to standards required by the fire marshal.

Authorization was given for continuation of the re-wiring program at Belleville Collegiate and the installation of bells in the oratories. Consulting engineer Frank Quick will draw plans, call tenders and supervise the work.

Paving of the Victoria Ave. entrance to Moira Secondary School and installation of two street lights in front of Quinte Secondary will be investigated.

Cash Secondary Problem In Controversy in U. N. Over Peace-Keeping Force

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One of the most curious things about the United Nations crisis over control of peace forces is that the Soviet Union could invent it by paying less than $6,000,000.

This is just about enough money to keep the Soviet and United States military establishments going for a half-hour.

Yet the issue is still being called a "financial crisis" because it is being fought on a financia. plane.

The actual cash involved is about as important as the puck used in a hockey game — and just as replaceable.

KEEP IT SIMPLE

There is a tendency on the part of the Western team to try to keep the issue confined to financial terms and specific items. The Soviet refusal to pay peace-keeping assessments voted by the General Assembly.

This has the virtue of making it a clear-cut problem of Soviet stubbornness, and it also avoids opening a Pandora's box of conflicting views over the shape of the UN power structure.

This is the way old as the UN itself, is whether the international organization will accurately reflect the realities of the world balance of power or whether tiny countries such as Upper Volta and Chad will wield influence on the same level as world leaders.

Originally, these realities were recognized by giving the Big Five powers permanent seats and veto power on the 11-member Security Council, which was granted authority control over peace-keeping.

At the time of the Korean war, the General Assembly, at the urging of the United States, voted for itself the right to take over jurisdiction in certain deadlocking matters when the council was hamstrung by a veto.

CANADA HAMSTRUNG, TOO

It used that power only once in setting up a peace force—in the case of the 1956 Suez crisis. Canada played the key role in that effort and, not surprisingly is among the many countries who feel the Assembly must retain its limited power until some better system is sound.

The Soviet Union and France on the other hand, wants to bring control back to the Council, a weapon to enforce their views, they have refused to pay peace force assessments levied by the Assembly.

The U.S. has concentrated its retaliatory fire on the Soviet Union, almost seeming to pretend that France isn't there.

It has insisted on enforcement of the Charter Article 19 stipulating that a country "shall have no vote" in the Assembly if its arrears total the equivalent of two years' assessments. The Soviet Union, if its peace-keeping arrears are included, comes under that article on Dec. 1 when the Assembly session opens. France will be vulnerable at the beginning of next year.

FACES DOUBLE PROBLEM

The United States thus is faced with a double problem.

It is under pressure from many smaller countries not to risk driving the Soviets out of the UN. And it is reluctant to aggravate its already sticky relationship with France by putting that country in the dock in January.

As a way out, the U.S. has suggested that Russia make an indirect payment, ignoring for the moment its objections of principle. A payment of $2,000,000 of the $52,000,000 the Russians owe would bring them under the two-year limit and take off the heat.

An unofficial four-man negotiating committee headed by Carlos Sosa - Rodriguez president of last year's assembly, has suggested establishment of a "rescue fund" for payments of this kind.

The aim is to find an easy way out for both sides, and the feeling is that it will succeed. But time is quickly running out

Year Behind Bars Takes Heavy Toll on Ruby

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A year behind bars has taken a heavy toll on Jack Ruby.

The once well-groomed, well-exercised night club operator now is a sloppy, befuddled man who apparently suffers fool delusions of persecution.

He is confined to a blocked-off section of a hallway inside the Dallas County jail, a stone's throw from the office of President Henry Wade, assassinated last Nov. 22.

Ruby has been in jail since Nov. 24, when he gunned down Lee Harvey Oswald, who was charged with killing the president. Since March 14, he has been under the death sentence imposed by a jury which found him guilty of murder with malice.

Ruby's lawyers hope to win a reversal of this verdict when they argue before the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin sometime next spring. They will contend, among other things, that local conditions made it impossible for Ruby to get a fair trial in Dallas, and that Dallas police and county police officers, which tended to show malice on Ruby's part, should have been barred from testimony.

Meanwhile in his jail quarters, wearing white coveralls and sandals-type shoes, Ruby has often appeared before mass media brief security measures. Ruby's food each day is selected and ordered from menus to avoid the possibility of poisoning. His visitors are restricted to his family, his rabbi, and his lawyers.

Those allowed to see him say he often appears to be obsessed with reality, and raves about bowel woes are suffering because he killed Oswald. He has attempted suicide by banging his head against a steel wall, and by sticking his finger into a light socket.

SWASTIKAS FLY

NECKARSTEINACH (AP) — Five Nazi swastika flags fluttered from town halls and other buildings in this West German town near Heidelberg. When startled Hessian state officials made inquiries at Mayor Heinrich Feuer, he assured them the banners were only props for location filming of an Alec Guinness movie, "Situation Hopeless but Not Serious."

W. J. Musgrove Named Principal Of New School

Mr. W. J. Musgrove, present head at the Moira Secondary School in this city will be the principal of the fourth high school to be erected in Belleville next year.

The appointment was decided last night by the Bay of Quinte District High School. Mr. Musgrove's duties as head of the new school will commence at a date to be decided by the board.

LINTON D. READ

Succeeding Mr. Musgrove as principal at Moira will be Linton D. Read, who will step up from his present position as vice principal.

Mr. Musgrove took over the organization and principalship of Moira Secondary School when it was opened in East Belleville back in September 1958.

The effective date of the above two appointments was not stated by the board.

Two Sudbury Lawyers Freed In Hunt Case

GORE BAY, Ont. (CP)— Two Sudbury lawyers were charged with interfering with and delaying conservation officers in the course of their duty and department check point at Little Current, Ont., Nov. 2, have been dismissed in magistrate's court here.

Ronald B. Warren was charged with unlawfully delaying a conservation officer and Bill Rolston with interfering with a conservation officer.

"In my opinion the enforcement officers acted beyond their powers. If they had thought there had been fish and game in the car in contravention of the act the the allegation would be different."

Overcrowded High Schools Force Consideration of Staggered Class System

How to provide temporary classroom space for an estimated 500 students more than the three present secondary schools were planned to accommodate, is one of the current problems of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

Already enrolment in the three local high schools is more than 200 above the planned accommodation and another 300 students are expected to enrol next September.

But a badly needed fourth high school proposed for the city's west end will not be ready for occupancy until September 1966.

What to do with the additional students until the fourth high school is completed was one of the main items of discussion at last night's meeting of the district high school board.

MAY START STAGGERED SYSTEM

One of the possibilities is that a staggered system of classes might be put into effect. If this is done, the shift system in probability would be confined to some of the junior grades.

A private house at 224 John St. which is owned by the high school board has become vacant and it is possible that this building may be used to help solve the accommodation problem.

Tenders for construction of the fourth new high school are not expected to be called until next spring. In the meantime municipal approval for the new school has been received from the city of Belleville and the township of Ameliasburg. Other high school district member municipalities still to give approval are the townships of Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga and the village of Frankford.

As last night's meeting a principal's committee was named to formulate rules for a contest to select a name for the new secondary school.

Canadian Retailers Agree Grantors of Credit Should Quote Rates on Some Sales

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — A representative group of Canadian retailers has agreed Tuesday that grantors of credit could quote simple interest rates on some sales contracts, on a voluntary basis and others annually.

The retailers, representing the Retail Council of Canada, concurred in this proposition after being questioned closely by members of the Joint Commons-Senate committee on consumer credit.

In a brief to the committee the council, representing companies handling about a third of the total cent of goods sold by Canadian retailers, opposed any move to quote simple interest rates on all types of sales contracts.

The council supported argument advanced earlier by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and other representatives of retailers that such a step would result in a sharp drop in credit sales.

In its brief the council said the companies it represented grant credit mainly under revolving, or cyclical plans. This is the type of credit contract under which a customer may add to his account without paying off the outstanding balance.

'NOT PRACTICABLE'

"It is not practicable or possible to quote simple annual interest rates for sales made on cyclical or "add-on" types of accounts," the council said.

The council explained the concern because charges vary with the amount of the outstanding balance and it is impossible to forecast the customer's future buying and payment habits. The amount also affects the amount of the charges by the date and the amount of his purchases, the latter choosing to make his payments and the size of his payments.

Under questioning by Senator David Croll (L—Ontario), J. J. Green (PC—Renfrew South) and John J. Urie, committee counsel, council representatives said they agreed that simple annual interest could be disclosed on all types of sales contracts except those in the cyclical field. For cyclical contracts the council said interest could be quoted on a monthly basis.

Mr. Croll said this statement by council representatives is a "tremendous victory" for the committee. It was the first time that a representative group of retailers had agreed it was possible to quote simple annual interest on some contracts and to give a monthly rate on cyclical contracts.

Committee members said that if this were done consumers would have a better idea of the cost of credit, and could shop around for the cheapest available.

Wants to Bet 20,000 to One Daughter Will Be Net Champ

SYDNEY (AP)—Australian tennis player John Hillebrand is looking for a big bet—30,000 to 1—that his daughter Karen will win the women's singles championship at Wimbledon before she's 21.

Karen is six months old.

Hillebrand said he wants the bet in sterling at £20,000 pounds to £1,000. That's $60,000 to $3,000 in Canadian money.

He told friends last week he thought he had the bet placed in London, but today he said it fell through.

"You're hoping the London bookmaking firm of Ledbrokes will set one," he said. "They think the age limit of 26 is too old, but I'm sticking to that and they might take it anyway for the publicity value."

Hillebrand, 25 and no world beater himself, is the son of a professional tennis coach and his wife, the former Charleen Rigby of Johannesburg, also plays. In the Queensland championships last week Karen was eliminated in the first round of the mixed doubles.

But he believes he, Charleen and his father can make a champion of Karen.

"We'll put a tennis racket in her hand as soon as she can hold one," he said. "She'll be living with tennis for years to come.

Ownership and Control

"Industry," the organ of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, quotes statistics from a U.S. publication, to the effect that women are the recipients of 64 per cent of all death benefits paid by insurance companies, control the spending of two-thirds of all family income, represent 51 per cent of all adult stockholders, have over half of all savings accounts and own 53 per cent of all government bonds.

"All of which," says "Industry," "would seem to establish beyond any doubt that the hand that rocks (or once rocked) the cradle at least rules the economy of the United States."

It proves nothing of the sort. It proves that women could rule the U.S. economy if they would all stick together, but that is a very different statement.

This erroneous deduction would be of only passing interest were it not for the fact that it serves to illustrate a similar error which is of much greater importance. This error is failure to distinguish between ownership and control in industries. Control is very often held by a minority interest. By pyramiding the process, through the establishment of holding companies, it is possible for an energetic and knowledgeable group to exercise firm control over capital resources many times as large as the group's own resources. A third interest in company A will be enough to maintain effective control, because the ownership of the other two-thirds of the shares is spread amongst many people. Company A owns a third of company B and exercises control. Company B owns a third of company C and exercises control. In effect, the controlling group of company C has resources equal to only four per cent of company C's capital.

Until we understand and appreciate this process, we shall make many mistakes in any program aimed at repatriating control of Canadian companies. We shall invest large sums without acquiring control.

A Novel Complaint

Orchids—if we had any hanging around the office—would go to Elsi Lickers and Jim Turner.

They are two Indians living in Toronto.

Recently they assailed the National Film Board for a movie about an Indian youth who leaves the reservation and goes to Toronto.

Taking a look at the Film Board or the CBC is a popular pastime these days.

But Miss Lickers and Mr. Turner had a complaint which is unusual. The film, they said, is not true to life, because it shows the youth suffering from discrimination, and they had never experienced discrimination towards Indians as a race in Canada.

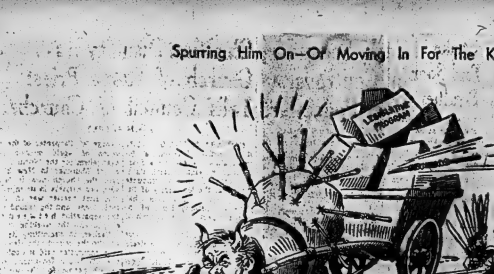
They are, of course, fortunate. That some discrimination exists seems beyond doubt. But it is not as widespread as some people like to make out. By minimizing it, rather than exaggerating it, Miss Lickers and Mr. Turner have earned our admiration.

In a day when it is becoming almost impossible to refer to a person's race or religion, even in passing, without being accused of intending the reference to be derogatory, their attitude is refreshing.

This May Be Dangerous

Dr. Fred Hoyle, a distinguished British astronomer, believes we may some day enjoy "celestial television" broadcasts by intelligent beings from planets on the other side of the Milky Way.

This is the best news since the invention of the coffee break.



Perhaps, celestial television will have no commercials.

We ought, however, to remember that almost any process is reversible. If planets which we could not reach in 10,000 years of space travel may offer us substitutes for Lawrence Welk and the Beverley Hillbillies, they may also get these programs in exchange.

We ought to think of the probable result. Even if it takes 10,000 years, the Milky Wayers will probably be bent on revenge.

Today's so-called angry young men have an inner itch, and nobody to scratch it.—Dr. Kurt Hahn, educationist, founder of Scotland's famed boys' school, Gordonstoun.

Of all imitators, dramatists are the most perverse, the most unconscionable, or the most unconscious, and have been so time out of mind.—Poe in Marginalia.

Strictly Personal
No Such Thing as a Poor Memory

By STONEY J. HARRIS

It makes sense for someone to say that he has poor vision or poor hearing, but it makes no sense to speak of "poor memory." A memory is not a thing like an eye or an ear or a muscle that can be developed by exercise.

What we call "memory," in fact, consists of three processes: learning, retaining, and remembering. We can do little, if anything, about the last two; but we can improve the learning process.

My complaint, like that of many persons, is that I have a "poor memory" for people's names. But I have an excellent memory for other matters, and can recall whole stanzas of poetry I haven't thought of for 20 years.

The reason is simple. When I learned the poetry, I was interested. It had meaning and appeal to me, and I was highly motivated to learn it. When I meet new people, however, I often don't even hear the name. How can I remember it when I haven't bothered to learn it in the first place?

To learn what we like, and we remember what has relevance to our concerns. A man with poor memory, in other dilections can recall all the batting averages of all the players on a ball team a dozen years ago. A child has a fantastic memory for such statistics.

One man can remember dozens of jokes he has heard, and another cannot recall a single one after a day or two. All this means is that the first man really listens and stores them away for future use; while the second laughs and forgets them. It is no accident that the men who tell the most jokes, and tell them best, are salesmen, politicians, and others who have a use for such jokes in their professional lives.

Learning how to learn is the only way to improve one's memory. And learning how to learn depends mostly upon the motivation behind it. It is not as much an intellectual faculty, as an emotional attitude. Most children fail to learn subjects in school because they find the teaching dull, not because the pupils themselves are dill.

Oswad Jacoby, the bridge expert, can take a fast look as his 13 cards, stick them in his pocket, and play them—one by one without ever looking at the hand again — and while playing a game of gin rummy on the side! And all bridge players of his class can perfectly reconstruct the 52 cards in hands they played years ago, while I can hardly remember a hand I played last night.

This does not mean their "memory" is better than mine, for I can still recite all 100 and more stanzas of "The Ballad of Reading Gaol" that I learned when I was 16. Wanting to learn something badly enough is the only spur to developing the memory.

To Your Good Health
Must Look for Situations Which Trigger Headaches

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have read your booklet, "How to Tame Headaches," but I still have one or two migraines a week. By keeping a record I notice that I have had one every weekend for several months.

The villains seem to be anger, menstrual periods, and a condition described by you as "a feeling of pressure because you have a great many things to do and it bothers you because you can't get all of them done as perfectly as you wish."

I've truly tried to get rid of my perfectionist attitude but can't seem to do so entirely. Can it really conquer this?

I hate to be gulping pills all the time. I take thyroid, iron and birth control pills and some my doctor gave me for "migraines. — Mrs. W. S.

You've obviously made a valiant effort to pinpoint the things that trigger your migraines, and this isn't always easy to do.

Neither is it easy to achieve a sudden change in your perfectionist personality — it's the way you are put together emotionally.

Here are my suggestions: Figure out how much you really must do during the day, and be careful not to cram too much into the schedule. Learn a margin of extra time to take care of the unexpected things that come up. But the goal is to leave some free time in the afternoon or evening, or both, to do what you feel like doing. Or doing nothing! If some things aren't done, or the silver still needs a more thorough cleaning it can be done tomorrow. Not today.

That weekend pattern of headaches may well be significant. If you continually get one by seafood on Fridays, it might pay to be suspicious of them. They have an allergic effect on some people, and could possibly be a factor in touching off these headaches.

Or, possibly, there may be some family situation, recognized or suppressed in your mind, causing a subtle rebellion at (for a guess) having the whole family around all the time on the weekend.

The pills your doctor gave you are probably an ergotamine preparation. They should not be taken continuously but only periodically as needed. They may not do much good after the headache has developed. They are effective mainly if taken at the first "aura" or signs that a migraine is about to start. Ask the booklet on that phase. Others may get a copy by sending 25 cents in coin and a long, unstamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 258, Dundee, Ill. Ask for "How To Tame Headaches."

Occasionally birth control pills trigger headaches in some women, thyroid tends to be helpful. But the weekend pattern you speak of would suggest a chance of either of these being strongly involved.

As to preventing migraines, some medications are beneficial. Specifically tranquillizers or mild sedatives, taken just before the weekend, or before menstrual periods, may help. Another is methysergide maleate, ("Sansert") which can be taken daily, and helps with certain types of headaches, especially migraine.

All of these, especially the latter, should be taken only under your doctor's direction.

But I'd also keep looking for the situations which trigger the attacks.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Can twins be conceived at different times? — Mrs. W. H.

Yes. Not identical twins; but fraternal twins. The fertilization of the two might be separated by hours, or even a very few days.

* * *

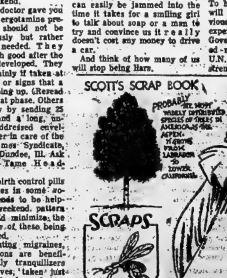
Note to Mrs. L. O.: For rectal polyps, yes, I consider it dangerous to just leave them." Unlike polyps in some other parts of the body, some of these have a tendency to become malignant.

Conversation Not Missed

Hamilton Spectator

A constant cry loose in the land is that television is killing off conversation. Critics of television maintain this is a bad thing. But we remember too many evenings devoted to conversation — before it had to be jammed into the time used by the commercial.

We mean, at if she's a day and nobody in the club can understand why she tries to act and look like it." That was a typical pre-television conversational gambit.



Or: "I'm just driving a small car because I find them so easy to park. I wouldn't take a big one if you gave it to me."

Back to the ladies: "Johnny is one of the brightest boys who ever went to our public school. The fact that his marks are below average hasn't anything to do with his intelligence: his teachers don't understand him."

This was the conversation as we remember it. Not the discussion of Bacon's essays or the binomial theorem that people think we're missing because of television.

Anything anybody has to say can easily be jammed into the time it takes for a smiling girl to talk about soap or a man to try and convince us it really doesn't cost any money to drive a car.

And think of how many of us will stop being Harry.

UN Must Be Realistic

Manchester Guardian Weekly

The United Nations has just celebrated — if that is the right wurd — its 19th birthday. It has been ridiculed, ignored, misunderstood, and misrepresented in its short life to an extent and degree known only to religious institutions. It has been seen to try to do too much or too little.

What Matthew Arnold said of the Christian Church could apply equally to the United Nations (man cannot do with it as it is and yet they cannot do without it). In the modern world the fact of the U.N.'s survival is in itself no small achievement. But neither it nor its future can be taken for granted.

In the nuclear age it is not easy for nations or groups of nations to be "wise as serpents" and "harmless as doves." Yet it is this blend of idealism and realism which best serves the interests of the U.N. It is exemplified more in Secretary-General U. Thant's proposal that Communist China should be included in a summit conference of the nuclear Powers than in his suggestion how, if desirable it would be, that Mr. Khrushchev should be permitted to make a public statement on the circumstances leading to his replacement.

The U.N. can only gain in stature and influence as it is seen to be as much aware of the harsh realities of power as of the limits which must be placed on the exercise or violation of that power. It is not enough for the U.N. simply to survive; it must be helped to grow. There is urgency in that growth.

Sir Hugh Foot is not to be dismissed as an alarmist when he says that "the end of man for the U.N." He speaks with commanding realism when he points to the ugly facts of racial conflict. He speaks as a realist when he shows how the conflict in South Africa could spread to the whole of Africa and beyond. But even warnings like those of eventual world government — are insufficient themselves. Britain is likely to be well served in having Sir Hugh as its permanent representative at the U.N. To his difficult tasks Sir Hugh will bring, along with his, obvious debating, distinction, experience and skill. The new Government, after all, is pledged — not only to support the U.N. but to seek means to strengthen its effectiveness.

Mild Winter Is Predicted

Milwaukee Journal

This is the season when a little band of dedicated (and often grizzled) men begin paying close attention to the number of fish, acorns, muskrats, opossums, beavers, skunks or even moles and the price of the American winter weather prophet is heard in the land. This annual assault on science causes vertebrate meteorologists to quake with poorly-concealed mirth or to lose themselves gloomily in hydrostatic equations and pressure gradients.

Honors for the first prophecy of 1964 go to a Waukegan (Ill.) commercial fisherman who predicts a mild winter along the southern Lake Michigan shore. Seasonal fluctuations of perch are not running deep. The deeper the perch, he says the harder the winter.

A Two Rivers man used to allice an onion around midnight at the time of the new year. He said he could forecast the weather month by month by the thryness or moistness of the different onion layers.

Folklore is crammed with such theories. You can expect a long, hard winter if beavers build their homes early, if opossum tails are thick, if squirrels underground instead of in hollow trees, if muskrats build high mound houses, if "woolly bear" caterpillars have narrow instead of wide brown bands, if acorns are plentiful in fall, if corn husks are hard to pull apart or if thunder retreats early from the woods and set up lodgings under your barn.

As one fact and well seasoned meteorologist put it, most if not all such theories "come from the purely fanciful to the utterly inane." Meteorologists may scoff but the folklore lingers on.

CLEARINGS FROM OUR FILES OF STORMY YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

The Famous Canadian naturalist and lecturer, Ernest Thompson Seton, departed this life at the age of 79 at his home at Kingsville, Ont. He had lived fifty-many years and his fame spread throughout North America and beyond the seas. He was best known on behalf of the wild life of this Continent. During his lifetime he saw deeply into the mysteries of life and was a champion of the cause of the bird and animal life of not only Canada but of the United States.

His sanctuary has been the quest of tens of thousands of persons year after year, as people came from far and near to see the restored remnant of the flight of Canadian geese, and how birds live in the colony at Kingsville.

Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P., addressed the members of the Thurlow Township Conservative Association at their meeting in Canniffon on the subject of the Farm Marketing Act. The address was highly informative and interesting. The thanks of the audience were extended to Mr. Tummon by Mrs. Boolbon. Mr. James F. Hill, M.P.P., was present and was introduced by Mr. Bruce Marth, pres. of the Thurlow Young People's Conservative Club. Mr. Hill made a brief address. Mr. Harry Datoe was song leader with Mrs. Chas. Thompson at the pianist. Refreshments were served by the ladies.

Miss Lucelle Brown, Victoria Ave., has received word that she has won first prize in the cooking competition which was sponsored by the Family Herald, Montreal. She won over 14,000 contestants. The prize is a cash award of $100.

Canadian distributors of the Alemite Products of Canada Ltd. assembled in convention for the first time at Hotel Quinte. Thirty-five distributors from Calgary on the west to St. John on the east are here for three days. The general manager of the company, Mr. R. W. Bowsome, is in charge of the meetings. The visitors were welcomed by Mayor Mikel and Mr. J. Owen Herity, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Dropping 25 degrees yesterday from 42 to 17 degrees below zero sent the people of Belleville into winter quarters. There was a fairly fall of snow while the wind storm made the decline in temperature to seem much greater than it was. Many motor cars had radiators frozen and garages were full of cars.

Prosperity Has Perils

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A West German medical bulletin reports an increasing number of patients coming to the Berlin Clinic with eye injuries. The cause: prosperity.

It seems that people in the Bundesrepublic are getting smacked right and left with fewer fists than heretofore, which are discharged with a force of 60 pounds per square inch, four times stronger than a phesic pressure.

The rise in eye injuries corresponds exactly with an increase in the consumption of whisky from two million bottles in 1953 to 70 million in 1960.

A new class of society has grown up, inexperienced in the technique of opening bottles, the bulletin explains.

Ford Strike May End Soon Says Reuther

DETROIT (AP) — A strike which has made idle 81,500 Ford Motor Company workers in the United States and more than 4,000 in Canada may end soon, says Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union.

The UAW chief had cut short a European visit to return to the United States and was to leave New York for Detroit today.

He was expected to attend a meeting Wednesday of the UAW national-level bargaining committees. A union official has said the meeting was called "to find out why "still no agreements had been wrapped up by that time.

Ford blames the continuing UAW strike for making new hourly workers and cutting its auto output to 1,000 cars a day. The firm normally employs 180,000; production workers in 90 U.S. plants and had been building 10,000 cars a day in recent weeks.

The parts shortage has affected Ford operations at Oakville, Ont., where 2,000 workers have been laid off and at Windsor, Ont., where 2,6 first 90 employees were laid off Tuesday and another 90 were due to be unemployed today.

Agreements on ending strikes at Ford's Ypsilanti, Mich., factory and its Buffalo, N.Y. plant were reached Tuesday night. The 3,300 hourly rated workers at the Ypsilanti plant were to meet today to ratify the agreement. No date was set for the Buffalo ratification meeting.

But the firm still has unsettled strikes in progress at three other plants. They are a parts plant in Sterling Township, Mich., and two assembly operations at Wayne, Mich.

Christian Disunity Has Hurt Church of Rome Priest Tells Council of Churches

By DON HARVEY

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Rev. Kenneth Dietrich a Roman Catholic priest of the Scarborough Foreign Mission Fathers engaged in post-graduate studies at The University of Ottawa, Tuesday night said that Christian disunity has had injurious effects on the Church of Rome.

In a brief address as the first Catholic priest ever to address the Canadian Council of Churches, Father Dietrich said he is looking forward with enthusiasm as the "spirit of unity comes upon us in a real and effective way."

His address was received favorably by the council which represents about 85 per cent of Canada's Protestant and orthodox church population. The Roman Catholic Church with more than 5,000,000 members in Canada is not a member.

Rev. E. J. Bailey, president of the 200,000 - member Baptist Federation of Canada, said later he had been "deeply touched" and "impressed by the confessional attitude" of Father Die rich's personal observations.

Father Dietrich said "ecumenicality" had arisen within the Catholic Church after the 11th century breakaway by the Greek segment and the 16th century Protestant and Anglican reformations.

ASKING QUESTIONS

"The very things now being asked in the Vatican are many of the same questions asked by those who say the Protestant reformers," said Father Dietrich. "We are beginning to admit that prophets exist outside canonical boundaries of the Roman Church."

The Catholic Church now is "genuine and sincere in its desire to speed the kingdom of God and to enter into relations and negotiations with others who are concerned about the same thing."

Rev. John Martucci of Toronto, Roman Catholic observer, said that in past centuries the Catholic Church was a "one man's church," but there were indications from the current Vatican council that "never again will the church be ruled by one man's will."

In a later address Rev. George W. Carpenter of the division of world mission and evangelism of the World Council of Churches in New York said the church now is faced with two barriers in its mission. The first barrier was an ideological one, and the second was the separation between the church and the working man.

Earlier, in submitting its report to the council, the stewardship committee said it deplores the lack of concern among most church people for the world's starving, naked, diseased and impoverished millions.

Renew Control Of Migrants To Britain

By JAMES FLANNERY

LONDON (Reuters) — The House of Commons agreed today to a one-year renewal of the 1962 Commonwealth immigration Control Act after a late night debate marked by angry exchanges on the racial issue.

Agreement on the act was reached without a vote since both the new Labor government and its Conservative predecessor agree on the need for control while differing over methods to implement it.

Opposition Leader Sir Alec Douglas - Home nevertheless came in for sharp criticism and was attacked as "a political coward" when the political bombshell of Smethwick was interjected into the debate.

The Midlands industrial town, which has a large non-white immigrant population, was the scene of the general election defeat last month of Labor Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker, who lost to his Conservative opponent. Peter Griffiths, after a campaign in which the racial question was believed to have played a major role.

REFERS TO RUMORS

After tracing the history of recent events in Smethwick, Labor member Michael Foot told the Commons: "We are still waiting to discover whether the leader of the Conservative party condemns what happened in Smethwick."

Foot quoted from a newspaper report of Oct. 13 saying that three rumors about Gordon Walker had circulated in the town during the election campaign.

One said his daughter had married a Negro; another that he had sold his house to Smethwick to Negroes and a third that two secret super hospitals were being built in the town.

Continuing to quote from the report, Foot said stickers were posted in the town with the words. "If you want a nigger neighbor vote Liberal or Labor."

Turning from the newspaper report, Foot said: "The leader of the Opposition, who prides himself on such straight talk, in such a political crisis that he dare not say what he thinks about what happened."

TORY CHIEF REPLIES

Douglas Home intervened saying: "I find your references to me so completely obscene suggesting that I am in any way concerned in racial discrimination that I am going to trouble to treat them with the contempt they deserve."

Later in the debate, the Tory leader said:

"I can do no more except say there should be no racial discrimination in any circumstances tolerated in my party and, I hope, tolerated in no other party."

"the time will come when the contribution rate may have to be raised."

The pension plan calls for reduced benefits to be paid during a 10-year transition period starting in 1967 to allow a build-up of funds. After that, the maximum benefit to be paid would be $104 a month for retirement at age 65.

TO PEG PENSIONS

The legislation includes a provision to peg the old age security payments, now $75 a month, to the cost of living index, with increases effective starting in 1968.

Rejecting arguments that the country cannot afford the plan, Mr. Gordon said "for our part we believe that Canadians can afford the plan if they want to —and we believe the great majority of them want to."

The plan would not "seriously impair" businesses from generating new funds for expansion, distort the structure of costs and prices or damage the country's competitive ability in international markets.

Employer contributions would increase business costs by no more than one per cent of payrolls since the 1.8-per-cent rate would not apply to incomes below $600 or above $5,000, he said.

The finance minister said the apparent deflationary effect of a transfer in 1968 of $320,000,000 to $400,000,000 from individuals and businesses to the pension fund would be offset by three factors:

—An estimated $100,000,000 reduction in federal and provincial revenues as a result of pension contributions being deducted from taxable income.

—The fact part of the fund represents a transfer of private savings to public savings.

The possibility of provincial and municipal governments increasing capital spending as a result of the loan capital available to them from the fund.

AIR TRAVELLERS INCREASE

LONDON (CP)—The number of passengers using London Airport soared in October to 83,000—114,000 more than in the same month last year. The 10-month total for 1964 has already passed the year's total for 1963.

Major Diagnostic Tool Is Radiology, Doctor Tells Women's Hospital Auxiliary

The regular meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held on Tuesday afternoon in Education Hall with president Mrs. F. H. Beeby in the chair. Committee reports were read and Mrs. Herbert Brown announced that the Opportunity Shop had a bumper month in October, and asked that 10" square cotton rags be collected for a new project of the Opp Shop, that of supplying wiper rags to industry.

The meeting voted the sum of $4,000 to pay the last instalment on the combi-folder for the hospital laundry which was purchased last year, and $1,000 will be given to provide material for drapes and rugs for the Nurses' Home which is being refurnished this year by the Hospital Board. The sum of $15 was allocated to purchase washable toys for the little patients in pediatric ward.

SUCCESSFUL SHOW

Mrs. J. H. Forrester reported on the recent fashion show and a cheque for over $700 was handed to the treasurer, Mrs J. E. Nelles. Mrs. Forrester expressed her thanks to all exhibitors and auxiliary members whose help made the fashion show a success. Mrs. W. T. Simpson reported that the Ontario Hospital at Cobourg had asked for donations of Christmas gifts for patients, exclusive articles made of glass. These should be unwrapped and may be given to Mrs. Louise Hurst or Mrs. Simpson or placed in bins in various stores in the city for this purpose.

Mrs. J. B. Casey reported on the recent Hospital Auxiliary convention which she and Mrs. Beeby attended in Toronto.

MORE THAN DOUBLED

The speaker of the afternoon, ably introduced by Mrs. H. J. Fuke, was Dr. P. Loder whose topic was "Radiology Today and Tomorrow". Dr. Loder traced the development of radiology from the discovery of X-rays in 1895 to the present time when it has become the major diagnostic tool of the medical profession, especially in such cases as fractures, infections and tumors of bones, chest X-rays for diagnosis of tuberculosis, pneumonia, tumors of the lung, examination of gastro intestinal tract, pre-natal examinations and dental examinations, to mention but a few. In Belleville General Hospital the number of cases has more than doubled in the past ten years and is now in the neighborhood of 18,000 examinations per year, which increase in volume places considerable stress on existing facilities, but a new and larger department is in the planning stage for the new hospital.

Belleville General Hospital has operated a school for X-ray technicians since 1954, but again is limited by facilities and at present can only accommodate two students per year. It is hoped that this valuable opportunity for Belleville young people can be expanded in the future, as there is a wide need for technicians. The course covers a two year period and the basic requirement is Grade 12. The students are paid an allowance of $100 per month while training.

AMAZING DEVELOPMENTS

Dr. Loder felt that he should make a few remarks as unmedical as possible and as a result the members got an eye-opening glimpse of the wonders that are already possible and the even more amazing developments to come in this field of medical knowledge. He stressed that with the precautions taken today there is a minimal danger of radiation hazards. Safety film badges are carried by all staff members which are checked every two weeks in order to discover any radiation damage immediately. Mrs. J. M. Parrott thanked the speaker on behalf of the auxiliary members.

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE W. I.

STH SIDNEY — The November meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute (Hastings West) was held at the home of Mrs. Alton Sine, 6th concession of Sidney. A "thank you" letter from C.N.I. Blind for the canvassed funds was read.

A training school was held at Stirling with Mrs. Morris Dafoe, Mrs. Mary Sine being the leaders for the continuation of "Focus on Finishes," (two meetings to be held before Christmas). The family night for Uniondale will be Nov. 27 with Scotch Night. The birthday gift of $5.00 will be sent to the Institute's adopted child in Scotland.

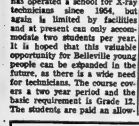
The convener of this meeting, Mrs. J. Morris had as her topic, "Report of Resolutions Sent to Provincial Board".

DISTRICT PRESIDENT

This meeting also had a highlight, the visit of the district president, Mrs. G. Harrington, one of our own members. She had as her topic, "Highways of Our Homeland". She will be held in Ireland. She prepared her audience for the ways of their homeland, the climate, economical and social abilities.

Agriculture is the principal industry and they have farms of from 30 to 40 acres on which are horses, cows, sheep, pigs and poultry are looked after by the women. Hay making is one of their interests. The people are plain in dress but very courteous and generous.

Electricity is being brought to the farms which will lessen their work. For fuel they use peat. Ireland is a small country with a large population.



Mrs. Harrington was thanked by Mrs. G. Burkitt for her address and presented with a F.W.I.C. badge from the branch.

NEW MATERIAL

Mrs. Gordon Sine gave a report on Canadian Consumers pamphlet. Her special version was on the new material for drapes which is "Saron".

Mrs. Mary Silis reviewed the "Home and Country" with Mrs. M. Malloy, Mrs. R. Fleming and Mrs. H. Bleecker reading items of interest.

The December meeting will be at the home of Mrs. R. Sine, with each member bringing a gift for a resident at the Hastings County Home.

Susanna's Family Fare

DON'T DO IT!

Dear Susanna: The next rainy blowy day, when it's too wet to go out and you decide to stay indoors and clean windows, DON'T!

It will take twice as long to get half as good results as you would get if you waited for a sunny dry day.

I'm a window man from away back, and anyone who tries to dry a window on the inside, (after it is washed) when it is soaking wet on the outside, has himself a really big chore.

Even trying to clean storms that are stored in a garage on a wet, cold day is almost a useless task. They just won't shine up and by the time the weather clears and you go to hang them nine times out of ten they need to all be wiped off again. — Mr. Clements

SPICY SMELLS

Dear Susanna: This isn't a sparkling new idea, but it is one I used to enjoy making and using. In fact, I still get a pleasant sensation when I think of the delightful spicy smell that comes from a closet where a "pomander ball" is hanging.

If you start a couple now, they will be all ready for Christmas.

Take a lemon, an orange or an apple; several dozen cloves; a large pinch of orris root and one of cinnamon.

Insert cloves into the fruit covering the entire surface with the clove buds touching one another. Dust well with orris root and cinnamon by shaking gently in a paper bag. Wrap pomander in foil and store in a cool dry place until the fruit is hard, dry and fragrant.

Next, decorate with ribbon or a covering of colored net and hang in amongst your clothes. — Doris.

Spice is nice in other seasons too, so use these any time as an extra little gift or as a decoration on top of a package. — SUSANNA

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The first regular meeting of the month was held in the Moose Hall with Senior Regent Nellie Shandraw presiding. The minutes were read and approved.

The Draping of the Charter ceremony was held for a form er, active co-worker, Jessie Young, who passed away on October 28, 1964.

There will be a euchre at the home of Nell Scrymsageour on Thursday.

Next meeting all members are asked to bring a small donation for the Ontario Hospital in Cobourg.

Mrs. Selina Isles of Trenton is reported ill at home and Mary Morris is still a patient in Belleville General Hospital

Following the meeting there was a penny canned goods sale and a tasty lunch was served by co-worker Lillian Campbell and her committee.

Many enjoyed playing penny bingo after the meeting.

Arts, Crafts Club Exhibits Examples of Handiwork

Some beautiful examples of handicrafts were displayed at the Belleville Shopping Plaza on Tuesday afternoon when the Arts and Crafts Club held their first sale. Under the auspices of the Belleville Recreation Committee of City Council and the Department of Education, the classes are held at the Recreation Centre, at Moira Secondary School and Belleville Collegiate Institute. Pupils graduating from the Craft classes have formed Guilds, and hold work nights for more advanced instruction. The basic class is about ten weeks, and then the members go on to the Guilds.

Ceramics in strong blues and greens made an attractive collection, and showed sample pieces from the red clay to the finished article. This work is taught by Mrs. Davies. The kiln for the firing is located at the Recreation Centre and is used frequently by the classes.

The shell work was interesting and colorful. Enamelling made finishes for tiles and jewellery, also. This work is taught by Mrs. Diamond.

LEATHER TOOLING

Leather tooling was beautifully done in belts, trays, key cases and handbags. Leather was also used for brooches and carring sets, and in one framed picture. This class is instructed by Mrs. P. Gelsthorpe.

Metal craft is taught by Mrs. Summers, and exhibited some fine copper work. The weavers are in a guild with Mrs Helen Sulman instructing, and showed a display of place mats.

Adult art, taught by Mrs. Muriel Andrews, Mrs. Phillipa Faulkner, Miss Mary Moult and Peter Kolinsky was represented by pictures in oils, in water colors and prints. One collage of an abstract painting was shown, and some fine studies in portraiture. Children's art is taught by Dolly Cain.

Mrs. Harwood instructs in leathercraft in the Guild.

PROVIDES GRANT

Providing there are 15 reg istered in a class, the Department of Education gives a grant towards teaching expenses. Materials are provided by the pupils themselves.

Arts and Crafts is one of the many recreation and education outlets provided by the Recreation Committee under the chairmanship of Mr. Joss and the director of Mr. L. Doran with the co-operation of the Bay of Quinte High School Principal, Mr. E. A. Orr, superintendent of Secondary Schools.

Art class members join the East Central Ontario Art Association and compete for acceptance in the annual show which is displayed in the large cities of Eastern Ontario.

Arts and Craft Club president Mrs. Gardner, co-chairman of the display Mrs. Pedersen, and Mrs. O. Summers were present on opening day to assist.

Proceeds of the sale will be used by the pupils for lessons and materials to further their knowledge and skill. The sale continues all week until Saturday.

French Hospital Patients Get Beauty Treatments

By PEGGY MARVIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Women to more French hospitals may get beauty treatments to lift their morale if experiments conducted by staff doctors in several Paris hospitals prove as successful as they appear.

Arguing that a woman tends to feel as well as she looks and the ensuing boost to her morale helped as master of ceremonies, commented on the fine dinner and thanked the ladies of the W.I.

So far, they have proved to be especially effective in the case of psychiatric patients and women suffering from nervous depression. Two of the hospitals which have authorized the new service specialize in mental and emotional disorders.

MANICURE ENDS BITING

A 20-year-old girl suffering from a nervous breakdown immediately stopped biting her finger nails after the doctor had prescribed a manicure.

A woman paralyzed from the waist down showed a physical improvement after a visit from the beauty expert. New methods in the maternity wards are also enthusiastic clients.

The Home Beauty Service was the idea of Mrs. Francine Rouff, a strikingly beautiful 39-year-old Frenchwoman who in charge of the Elizabeth Arden salon in Paris for 12 years before starting a business of her own.

She got the idea from a patient who asked Mrs. Rouff to send to add a beauty expert out to the hospital to give her a facial massage.

PLENTY OF BUSINESS

Since she started the service requests for appointments have been coming in at the rate of more than 125 a week

The complete beauty treatment includes a facial and rejuvenating mask, a dry shampoo, finger wave, hair styling and a manicure. The entire treatment lasts one hour.

PEARLY GROWTH

It takes two to three years to produce a medium-sized pearl by the culture process; large ones need up to six years.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

If baby is going through a particularly fussy teething period, it's best to delay starting new foods until he's his own cheerful self again. Don't take a dislike to a food that may be hard to overcome.

Help in the soothing department comes in the shape of Gerber Teething Biscuits. Extra-hard, they provide baby with satisfaction baby needs. Scalloped edges and waffled surface make for easy grasping.

Egg-yolk foods are your best bets when baby has teething troubles. You can encourage baby to eat more by serving good-tasting Gerber Strained Foods. Whether they're fruits, vegetables, meats, dinners, meat dinners, cereal-fruit combinations they're prepared to baby's palates. Know why? Because each and every one is flavour-cooked according to its own requirements to bring out the best in flavour; preserve the utmost in precious nutritive values.

Feeding strategy. I think you'll find most doctors will agree that for baby to enjoy his food is more important than how much he eats. Forcing never made a baby a better eater; pleasant mealtimes often have.

Co-ordination tends to come to active babies sooner than to placid ones. But remember, physical development does not follow a rigid timetable. If active babies acquire skills faster, it's because of the energy they make a greater effort.

A active or placid babies need plenty of protein to aid growth and muscle development. For these babies Gerber Meats for babies, Gerber Egg Yolks offer a good source of protein. Gerber Egg Yolks also an excellent source of iron and vitamin A. A delicate flesh-egg flavour and a creamy texture make them downright delectable. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Recipe for Fish Is Tasty Dish

By MARY MOORE

For a country where fishing is a major industry, all too few fish recipes appear in this column.

Today I am giving fish some of the attention it deserves. One recipe is for economical haddock fillets, sauced up to please the fussy fish eaters. Another calls for a more expensive shrimp dish to please prodigal spenders.

BAKED FILLETS WITH CHEESE SAUCE (serves 4 adequately—double recipe to serve 7 or 8.)

1 lb. fish fillets (could be fresh or frozen), ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon chopped green onion (or green onion flakes), 1 tablespoon lemon juice, one 10½-oz. can cheese soup, ¼ cup milk, ½ teaspoon curry powder, 2 cups cooked rice (see below), ½ teaspoon paprika.

If fillets are frozen thaw them. Sprinkle them with the salt. In frying pan melt butter or margarine and add onion and gently saute until limp, not brown. (If onion flakes are used watch closely for they burn very readily.) Add lemon juice, soup, milk and curry powder. Barely heat through. Butter a shallow, baking dish and spread rice evenly over bottom. (Cook 2/3 cup raw long-grain rice in 1½ cups boiling water with ½ teaspoon salt for ½ hour, covered, to get required 2 cups). Arrange fish fillets uniformly on top. Pour hot cheese sauce evenly over fillets. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve with buttered cut green beans mixed with fresh frozen cooked green limas.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Lamb Chops; Mushroom Fried Rice (see Tuesday); Creamed Brussels Sprouts; Fresh Fruit Cup; Sugar Cookies; Coffee.

COMPANY SHRIMP (serves 4)

One 4-oz. can sliced mushrooms, water (see below), 1 cup uncooked raw long-grain rice, 1 teaspoon salt, one 10½-oz. can frozen cream of shrimp soup, thawed, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 cups cooked shrimp (a 14-oz. package fresh frozen shrimp is ample).

Drain mushrooms. To the mushroom liquid add enough water to measure 2 cups. Turn into a saucepan and add raw rice, mushrooms and salt and cook gently, covered, until rice is tender—about 30 minutes. Meanwhile heat the shrimp soup and Worcestershire sauce. Fold in shrimp and continue heating until shrimp is hot. Spread prepared rice on pre-heated small platter, turn the shrimp mixture over centre and garnish with parsley.

For a small guest dinner this is sufficient if an abundant tossed salad of cucumbers, celery, tomatoes and bibb lettuce is provided.

Fish fillets baked and sauced with a chef's flair and nestling in a bed of rice are one of Mary Moore's offerings today. Budget-minded cooks will like it and their families will too.

Story of Pioneer Woman Doctor Heard at Guild

Albert College Guild met for the November meeting in the Old Manor, in the absence of the president, Mrs. Hugh McKay, the vice-president was in the chair.

Miss Helen Sulman who arranged the program, led a short worship service, in keeping with the mood of Armistice Day stressing that love is a unifying force.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. McKay introduced the speaker, Mrs.A. L. Sutherland, who had the unbroken attention of the audiencce, from beginning to end of a fascinating story. She told the life story of Dr. Ida Scudder, who pioneered the field of the woman doctor in India.

When Ida Scudder was a student in America, her mother was taken ill, and she was called home to India, where her father was a doctor under the Board of the Dutch Reformed Church.

While there, the need of a woman doctor was impressively demonstrated. To her own surprise, she found herself saying "I'm going to study medicine in America and return to practise in India". That is what she did. Through the interest of friends she had a small fund to start the building of a woman's hospital. In 1900, four years after her arrival, this dream came true.

MEDICAL COLLEGE

But she had another dream — a Medical Training College for Women. With great patience, contending with prejudice and superstition, this dream too was realized. Her untiring efforts had their reward, when the first class of fourten all passed the final examinations most creditably and came up for graduation.

Today these institutions, supported jointly by a number of denominations, are considered among the best in Asia. There ed the thanks of the appreciative Vellore, in Dr. Ida Scudder's memorial.

Mrs. Taylor Franklin expressed story teller.

Ann Landers

Girls' Morbid Preoccupation With Dead Star Unhealthy

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter is 13 years old. I am concerned about her continuing devotion to Marilyn Monroe. My husband says I'm making too much of it but I feel the child's preoccupation with a movie star who committed suicide is unhealthy.

ANN LANDERS

August 5th was the second anniversary of Marilyn Monroe's death. Our daughter remembered the date and searched several newspapers for clippings and put them in her Marilyn scrap book. We live near the star's final resting place and our daughter wants to go there every day.

I've decided not to say or do anything until I get some horse sense advice from you. — WAITING TO HEAR.

* * *

DEAR WAITING — You'll short your daughter's interest. If she has modest talents — voice, dancing, painting or piano, give her lessons. Tell her she may not visit the crypt again until next August 5th.

After six months, if her morbid preoccupation with Miss Monroe persists, take her to a psychiatrist.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My mother and father were happily married for 52 years. Mother passed away last June. Dad took it awfully hard — for about three weeks.

Now he is so busy making dates with all the widows in the neighborhood we don't know where he is half the time.

Dad used to complain that his teeth didn't fit, and that his lumbago was bothering him but since he has become a ladies' man he says he feels better than he has in years. To look at him you'd guess he is forty years old.

All this may sound fine, but I'm worried that the lively pace may shorten his life. He could drop dead doing the hully gully any minute. Also, is it possible that he is in his second childhood? How do we get him to slow down without hurting his feelings? — C.C.

* * *

DEAR C.C. — Leave him alone. His second childhood may be a lot more fun than his first.

Better that Gramps should be whooping it up than sitting at home glued to his rocking chair. If he drops dead doing the hully gully at 75 that's not a bad way to go.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm no youngster, Ann, and I've been around enough to know the score in anybody's ball game. At 42 I've had three unsuccessful marriages and I don't need a fourth.

The man I've been seeing is 40 and he has had two divorces. We get along fine. I don't ask any questions when he goes on a bender once every three weeks) and I'm not trying to make him over to suit me. He likes my two young children and is a better father to them than their real dad ever was.

This man has had some money trouble lately and wants to move in with me until things ease up. He claims that since everyone knows we are going together I should be grown up about his moving in. Last night he said, "I'd marry you, honey, but I'd be a lousy husband."

I need an outsider's opinion and you're elected. — ADELINE.

* * *

DEAR ADELINE — So he'd be a lousy husband — but he'd make a great roomer?

Tell him thanks. If you can't think of any better reason to keep this guy's clothes out of your closet consider your children, please.

* * *

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Butter Judge Tastes Make, Cheese Judge Smells It

TORONTO (CP) — Butter melts in the mouth of judges at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair. That's how they test for flavor. But they don't swallow any. If they did they'd soon be ill.

A cheese judge tests flavor without even tasting the cheese. He smells it.

Some 160 butter entries and 60 cheese, varieties of cheddar, came under scrutiny at this year's fair.

R. J. Quinn of London, Ont., W. A. Briscoe of North Bay, Ont., and D. R. Craig of Toronto were the butter judges.

They rate butter on the basis of 45 points for flavor, 15 for texture and the rest of the 100 for color, salt, moisture content and packing.

A cheese also gets 45 points for flavor, 15 for texture and the remainder for cleanness, color and finish.

"The butter judges have tiers which bore into the butter to take out a sample," says Albert Baker, superintendent of dairy products at the fair. "When they taste it they let it melt right down to oil in their mouths. They don't have to swallow it. If they did they'd be sick at the end of the day.

"The flavor should be nutty and clean. It should not have any flavor of leeks or garlic or weeds the cows might have eaten."

Mr. Baker says taste also tells whether the salt content is right. It shouldn't be more than three per cent.

"In judging cheeses they don't taste it at all. It's done by smell. They bore into cheese with the trier and test it with their fingers for texture. They keep rubbing it down in their fingers. It's very delicate. Rubbing warms it and when it is warm any flavor defect would show."

Mr. and Mrs. S. Moore Mark 60th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. S. Moore, Bellville R. 2, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary recently. As Mrs. Moore just returned home from the hospital, the occasion was celebrated quietly at their home, with their daughter (Ellen) Mrs. Cecil Tripp, Frankford, and their son (Bill) W. P. Moore and Mrs. Moore, Campbellcroft, their two grandchildren and seven great grandchildren present.

The room was decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers, flowers and a 60th anniversary cake graced the table.

They received many lovely gifts, flowers and cards of congratulations which included a message from the Queen, a letter from Prime Minister Pearson and Mr. Robert Temple M.P. for Hastings South and the mayor of Belleville, Mr. Jack Ellis.

The evening concluded with wishes for many more happy years of married life.

During the lodge meeting Sister Ruth Eggleton sang with sister Muriel Hulin as musician. The D.D.P. brought greetings from the past Grands took part in an obligation ceremony.

PROGRAM IN HALL

The last half of the program was in lighter vein when Sister Ruby Tompkins conducted a birthday singing contest with most of the members participating.

The group repaired to the dining hall where a birthday ake with the yearly initiation ceremony. Sister Dorothy McCaughan proposed a toast to the Past Noble Grands and Sister Isobel Good replied. The candles on the birthday cake were lit by Sisters Carrol Clements and Madeline Charlesworth, and extinguished by Sisters Mae Clarke and Cassie Boyd. College Hill U.C. Women Hold Successful Bazaar, Tea

The theme of College Hill United Church Women's bazaar and tea which was held in the social halls of the church was "Festival of Christmas."

The guests were received at the door by President Mrs. Douglas Watson and Mrs. Roy Vessey. The treasurer at the door was Mrs. B. Kingston.

In a background setting of cedar trees set in birch logs the tea table presented a Christmas picture with its silver tea services. The centre glowed with tall white candles set in a Yule log centrepiece with pine and poinsettia, brilliant Christmas baubles and holly. This centre was the joint efforts of Mrs. P. Malkawa and Mrs. D. Watson.

TEA ROOM

The tea room itself was a delightful reminder of Christmas with its smaller tables centred by Florida pine cones in silver with the addition of bright tree balls, poinsettia and candle decor, made by Mrs. R. Waite and Mrs. Neal. Mrs Betty Whiting invited the guests to the tea room at the blue and white entrance curtained door which was flanked with gaily decorated trees.

Pouring tea were: Mrs. Ads Treverton, Mrs. J. Twiddy, Mrs B. Sleetabo and Mrs. J. Boulton.

The kitchen was in charge of Mrs N. Neal and Mrs. B. Clarke.

The bazaar was a temptation to the sweet tooth and the Christmas weather with its large supply of bon-bons, proved to be a successful booth under the care of Mrs. R. Waite and Mrs. E. Moore.

COUNTRY STORE

Ye Olde Country Store sponsored by the 5th Cubs and Scouts was largely patronized. Their supply of almost anything available in a country store in a wide variety sold well. Mrs. Vera Reynolds was the custodian with her assistants.

In the ladies' parlor the apron booth was busy with its dazzling array of colors and materials in aprons for mother and also for daughters and big and little sisters. Mrs. Clifford Bailey was the convener who, with her committee worked many weeks throughout the year to make this booth a success.

A variety booth in charge of Mrs. T. Dafoe was well patronized. This table comprised the work of the women of the U.C.W. at special work evenings held during the fall. There were smocks, pillows, table centres, crosstitch articles, glittering candles for all occasions, decorations, soft toys, baby wear woollen dogs and many more gift items. Mrs. R. Byrd was the convener of this booth

Mrs. A. West and Mrs. A. Watson were capable sales ladies of the dolly supplies and they had many dresses and coats and infants' wear for the doll sizes, especially the teen type doll clothing which was most expertly detailed.

A white elephant table in charge of Mrs. D. Sine and Mrs. J. Smith was a complete sell-out and there were many beautiful articles which were not all white elephants on display here, and sold rapidly.

C.G.I.T. BOOTH

The C.G.I.T. girls had a booth of gift articles on display with plush bears, aprons, calendars, corsages, and miscellaneous articles. The busy girls in charge of this were Linda Dafoe and Marlene Hutchinson.

Mrs. G. Ray was the convener of the booth to which the children gathered. This was a toy and child gift table. Everything on display was for the child alone and there were many items made by the Explorer and Messenger groups of the Church and was a huge success.

The Nursery in the Albert Hall section of the church was under the capable supervision of Mrs. F. Malkawa and her assistants. This was a busy and noisy section and also a good spot for the small fry to sleep a while as mothers enjoyed a leisurely cup of tea and a shopping tour of the booths.

The bazaar was an overwhelming success and the U.C.W. of College Hill would like to thank everyone who helped in any way to secure this success.

Family Honors Couple on 40th Anniversary

Anniversary celebrations to honor Mr. and Mrs. Murray Morgan of West Huntingdon, were held Thursday evening at their home on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary, sponsored by the family.

The couple's ten grandchildren presented their grandmother with a corsage of ruby roses and their grandfather with a ruby rose boutonniere.

The guests totalling 150, were present from Toronto, Whitby, Trenton, Madoc, Brighton, Campbellford, Belleville and surrounding localities. Both the mistress of honor, Mrs. Reg. Coombes, sister of the bridegroom, of Frankford, and the best man, Mr. Clarence Rushnell of Belleville, were present.

The table, focal point of the festivity, was centred with an attractively decorated three-tier wedding cake, beautifully accented with white tulle and tiny red rosebuds, white and red candles in silver candelabra and the guests of red and white flowers completed the setting.

Mrs. Reg. Coombes poured tea, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Clare, sister-in-law of the bride. A dainty lunch was also served to the guests.

The couple had six children and were fortunate to have their five living children, three sons and two daughters, and their families present.

They were the recipients of many useful gifts including box springs and mattress, platform rocker, chenille bedspreads, blanket, lamp, china and cut glass as well.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

CHILDREN AT HOLIDAY PARTIES

Ordinarily, when parents entertain their friends, the children are allowed to put in an appearance too, as my five-year-old daughter puts it, "say their manners." After that, though, they are trundled off to bed and the rest of the evening is for adults only.

But during the Christmas period, relatives and close — but friends show up by the score, and the children in the house-hold are very much a part of the festivities. It's a warm, friendly time of year and also a period during which mother necessarily pays more attention to pinning up her offspring's manners.

Youngsters are apt to remember the courtesies and niceties such easier if reminded of their obligations in advance, before guests arrive. Minor breaches of etiquette are usually a matter of forgetfulness, to a meeting of minds before company comes often prevents small disasters, or rather, what mothers consider as sores.

There's a lot of excitement when guests are on the scene, so it's wise to let children know what they can and can't do. An older child might be permitted to pass snacks, and a younger one the napkins. A briefing beforehand helps them understand what they are to do, and how. Of course, they should be coached to remember to give up chair to adults, not to interrupt conversations, how to respond correctly when introduced, to walk — not run — so they won't bowl over guests, and not to try to monopolize all the attention.

USE BEST MANNERS

If permitted to eat with the company, children should be made to realize they should use their best manners and that they shouldn't perch on the chairs, play with food on their plates, put too much in their mouths or try to talk with their mouths full. If a child does forget, and there is a mishap, it's wiser to try to overlook it than to give him a bawling out in front of everyone. It's embarrassing enough to the child that he should make a blunder, without having a tongue - lashing thrown in.

Generally, children who have had training and who know the ins and whys of good manners are not apt to become pests when guests are around. They like to show off how well-behaved they can be, and thrive on the approval it brings.

To all Press Secretaries:

Dear Secretaries,

These suggestions are published as a guide to present and future press secretaries in an effort to assist in the preparation of reports for the newspaper, and to save your time in writing unnecessary details and ours in editing it.

So here are the Do's and Don'ts of reporting.

Space is important. Leave wide margins at the top and bottom of the pages. This is because information must be written in by the editor for the linotype operators. The editor must have room to write catch lines at the top of each page, and instructions at the bottom of each page, so the operators know whether to expect more of a story or if it is finished on each page. Use one side of a page only.

Finish each sentence and if possible a paragraph on each page. If this is not done, it means a story has to be cut apart and spliced by the editor, so each "take" will end with a sentence. This is because newspaper accounts are sent out to the machines in "takes", and a different operator may set a different take, so when the takes are assembled in the forms the men in the composing room must know where to put them together.

If possible type and double space a story, but if it is written in pen and ink and the writing is legible it is quite acceptable. Again the spacing is important because subheads have to be written in, and if the typing is single spaced there is no room to write between the lines.

When reporting a meeting tell the important things that happened — that is, the things of interest to others outside your own group. Remember you are writing for a NEWSpaper and the reading of the minutes, roll calls, creeds, conventional openings and closings, serving lunch etc. is not news.

News is the subject of the meeting. If there is a guest speaker, he must have said something interesting. If a discussion took place it must have yielded some results. An account does not have to be long to be interesting. In fact a short report with all pertinent facts condensed is much more likely to be read.

Try to get into the opening paragraph the who, where, when and what of the meeting. Names make news, so be sure to include who presided, etc. Check names to be sure they are spelled correctly and have the right initials.

Include the election of officers, and other items of general interest; the activities of your group and any projects the group has undertaken.

The Canadian Press usage is followed of spelling out numbers under ten and writing numbers over ten, e.g. eight and 80.

* * *

Now the don'ts:

Do not include song titles, recitation of creeds, collects or prayers. These things belong in the minutes of a meeting but not in a newspaper story.

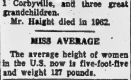
Don't express personal opinions in a story. Try to keep it objective, as though you were an observer, not a participant.

Don't abbreviate such words as Monday (not Mon.); and (not &); William (not Wm.); Christmas (not Xmas). These all have to be changed and spelled out before they are printed.

We are interested in getting reports of all women's organizations in Belleville and district, and hope this information will be helpful in preparing them.

90th Birthday Celebrated by Lonsdale Resident

Life resident of the Lonsdale district, Mrs. William Haight was the guest of honor at a 90th birthday party held last week at the home of Mrs. Pearl McRae. Many relatives and neighbors called to offer congratulations.



Formerly Miss Penny McRae, Mrs. Haight has a daughter Mary in Ottawa and two sons, Merrin of Picton, and Kenneth, at home on the farm. One son Joseph is deceased. There is one grandchild, Angus Haight, R.R. 1 Corbyville, and three great grandchildren.

Mr. Haight died in 1962.

MISS AVERAGE

The average height of women in the U.S. now is five-foot-five and weight 127 pounds.

Wife Preserves

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

SIDNEY SOUTH W.I.

Mrs. Delbert McComb was hostess to Sidney South Women's Institute on Wednesday evening with Mrs. F. M. Nobes presiding.

The Department of Agriculture has many bulletins available to members, names were taken for the booklet "Let's Cook It Right." It was decided to give gifts to a hospital for mentally ill female patients. Mrs. Ken Bush and Mrs. Dawson Douglas attended a School for Leaders in Stirling; Mrs. Bush will hold the first meeting on "More about Finishes" at her home on Tuesday evening.

CHANGES IN IRELAND

Mrs. Nobes introduced Mrs. G. A. Harrington, president of West Hastings District. Mrs. Harrington commented on the Institutes in the far North where good work is being done among the Eskimo women in way of nutrition, sewing and housing. The A.C.W.W. Conference is to be held in Ireland in 1965.

Mrs. Harrington in her address on Ireland told of a college opened there by the women of Ireland in 1954. The Institutes are called Guilds. In an outline of the geography and people of Ireland the speaker said the land has been made poor by absentee landlords who took the produce of the land and put nothing back. This has been changed, the people are becoming farmers and with government help are restoring it to the fertile country it should be. A travel folder on Ireland was displayed and it became a country that one would like to visit. Mrs. W. T. Shortt thanked Mrs. Harrington for her interesting address.

Mrs. McComb and her assistant hostesses served tasty refreshments and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Sketches Musicians

HALIFAX (CP) — Margot Mackay often does more than merely listen to the music when she attends a symphony concert.

An artist, she likes to sketch musicians in action and may sometimes be found working away with her sketchbook at a concert.

Miss Mackay, who approaches music from another angle—she studies classical guitar—won first prize in drawing and took honors in paintings graphics and sculpture at year following study at the Montreal Museum School of Fine Art and Design.

Successful Living

Fourteen Too Young to Cope With Older Troublemaker

DEAR DORIS — I like a boy very much. But because he's been in trouble my family's all against him. You see, he got into a fight. When he left, a gang war started and he was blamed.

DORIS CLARK

I just know if they'd give him a chance they'd learn like I did that everyone makes a mistake sometime or another. He's 17 and has not got a job but he's got his application in everywhere. Please help me. I feel so bad I could kill myself! I am 14 years old. — CRIED FOR HOURS.

* * *

DEAR CRIED—They already know about people and mistakes. I admire your loyalty, but a boy 17, and in trouble, is just not your cup of tea. Dry those tears and mix with your own age group.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Is there a way to stop a vicious gossiper? I'm not the only target but a frequent one.

To be honest, I do not believe a thing she says any more. Her tongue is very glib and she crochets one or two facts in with all the garbage. Until one is wise to her, it sounds plausible. It's real stuff, attacks on character, her mentality, etc.

I never knew a person like this one who knows so many people who are mental (in her estimation.) — TORN APART.

* * *

DEAR TORN — Mental? Is the pot calling the kettle black? Perhaps if she can paint the rest of the world as off beat, she can rationalize herself into being a wizard — in spite of unavoidable misgivings.

People will get her number. If the gossip is too vicious, you could silence her with a lawyer's letter.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My problem is that I never get excited when I'm being kissed. No matter how much I like a certain boy I never get those so-called chills, shivers or goose bumps which other girls seem to enjoy.

Do you suppose that there may be something wrong with me? — SEXLESS.

* * *

DEAR SEXLESS — No, I don't. Our responses are conditioned. Perhaps your learned self-discipline is operating against an easy response. You may have grown up in a family where demonstrations of affection were rare.

When you find the partner with whom you are congenial and whose interests match yours, so that your friendship deepens into a warm, lasting regard, you'll come to. You may take just a little longer.

* * *

TO INDIVIDUAL — Perhaps the best place for you to go is the business office of your general hospital. Request an interview with the business manager.

(Doris reserves the right to ignore anonymous letters. To make sure of your reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your question.)

Mother's Helper

IT'S MOST distracting to have youngsters playing in your yard when your own children are having dinner, doing homework or are otherwise occupied in the house. By the same token, make sure that your son or daughter does not play in a friend's yard unless that friend is there, too, ready to share in games.

PICTON (Staff) — A total of 163 boars were approved for premium under the Boar Premium Policy during the month of October. This number included 140 Yorkshire, 12 Lacombe and two Landrace boars. Five of the Yorkshire boars approved for premium are owned by Robert Williams, of R.R 1, Picton. WILL HOLD MEETING

The Directors of the Prince Edward Soil and Crop Improvement Association will hold an important meeting in the Department of Agriculture Board Room, Picton on Thursday, Nov. 19th, at 8.15 p.m.

The directors are as follows: Clarence Vanclief, Elmer Young, Mac Wallbridge, and Benford Peck representing Ameliasburg township. From Hillier: Richard Foster, James Alexander, James Denard and Norman Allison are the directors. Henry Lents, Gordon Parks and Holmes Matthie are the directors from Hallowell. Representing Sophiasburg township are Donald Thompson, Harry Gorsline and Fred Hope. From Athol township, George Young and Alex Mann are the directors. Keith Walker is the director for South Marysburg. T. H. Kerr and Royden Hicks are the directors from North Marysburg. Rose Tacott is the director from Bloomfield and Ross Pierson is the director from Wellington.

It is hoped that all these men will be able to attend this meeting.

SOIL SAMPLES

Now that a machine is used to tabulate information on soil samples sent to the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, for analysis, it is possible to get some useful data without too much trouble. For example during the period of July 1st to October 27th, 1964, 5,000 soil samples have been analyzed by the Soils Department at Guelph. This number is about 2,000 more samples than for the same period a year ago—which may account for the delay in getting reports back from soil samples.

Also of the 5,000 samples received during the last period mentioned above, 2,000 were sent in by fertilizer dealers across Ontario. This of course, is a high percentage of the samples received and indicates the interest that the fertilizer dealers have in selling a customer the proper analysis of fertilizer for his crop. Does it also indicate a general feeling of unconcern by the farmers who do not take their own samples?

It could be further pointed out that of the 2,000 samples sent in by fertilizer dealers, that 2,500 were sent in by Fieldmen working for the United Co-Op's of Ontario.

Two Carriers Loading Ore For Buffalo

PICTON (Staff) — Two large Canada Steamship bulk carriers are in Picton harbor loading ore for Bethlehem Steel Corp. at Lackswanna, N.Y., The ore carrier Bale St. Paul was the first to load with a tonnage of approximately 28,500 the other ship the Lemoyne will load approximately 14,000 tons also destined for the Lackswanna smelters near Buffalo. This will make a measurable reduction in the ore piles at the docks. Between the two ships they will remove approximately 42,000 t o n s. Effort is being made to remove as much of the ore as possible before the navigation season ends.

slowly came out of shock and drug infection.

Then they let him sleep on a couch in the office of the chief of police. They said they were keeping him in protective custody "for obvious reasons."

Police said Dahan told them this story:

He was approached by two men from the U.A.R. Embassy on the Via Veneto Monday night. They invited him to a cafe for drinks.

After several drinks, they eased him out of the cafe, slugged him, injected him with some kind of drug and dragged him into a car before he had consciousness.

The trunk arrived at the airport aboard a United Arab Airlines flight shortly before departure of the airline's night flight for Cairo.

The trunk was accompanied by two embassy men and was cleared for loading as diplomatic baggage bound for the U.A.R. foreign ministry in Cairo.

As the trunk was being lifted for transfer to the plane, the customs men heard faint cries. The two embassy men said the trunk also contained musical instruments.

The customs men listened again and heard a muffled voice crying in Italian "Aiuto. Assassini!" (help, assassins).

The two embassy men pushed the trunk back into the bus and sped away, but a pursuing police car stopped them on the road to Rome.

At the Ostia police headquarters, the trunk was opened.

Police said the two embassy officials refused to answer questions and demanded to get in contact with the embassy.

Intelligence sources in Cairo speculated that the affair was part of the continuing espionage war between the U.A.R. and Israel. Israeli agents drawn from Arabic - speaking Jewish communities in North Africa and the Middle East have been planted in branches of the U.A.R. government before.

Only one Cairo newspaper carried a brief story on the incident, but said nothing about U.A.R. Embassy personnel being involved. No government official in Cairo would comment.

two, was to be executed at noon Monday.

A reliable source in Leopoldville said Radio Stanleyville Tuesday broadcast that the execution was indefinitely postponed and that Hoyt would be allowed to see Carlson.

But the American Embassy in Leopoldville said it had no firm confirmation of Tuesday's broadcast.

Embassy officials said they had only heard "rumors" at the complex around noon day celebration Tuesday that the execution was postponed.

Hoyt, 33 has been held by the rebels since they over-ran Stanleyville in early August and later made the northern city the capital of their "Congo People's Republic."

The United States Tuesday appealed directly to rebel leaders to protect Carlson and other Americans and to permit their safe evacuation.

The U.S. said it holds the rebel authorities "directly and personally responsible for the safety of Dr. Carlson and of all American citizens in areas under your control."

Reports reaching Leopoldville Tuesday said that government troops launched an attack from the town of Opala, about 140 miles southwest of Stanleyville, in the hope of sweeping on toward the rebel capital.

RIDING A BIKE AROUND THE WORLD Ricardo Nunez of Buenos Aires, Argentina, stopped in Belleville yesterday. Belleville police chief J. B. McLauchlan gave him a letter certifying his passage through the city. In the picture the chief inspects Nunes' bike.

Expects to Cover 48,000 Miles in Round-World Trip

With two wheels and high hopes, Ricardo Nunez passed through Belleville yesterday on a round-the-world trip. He came here, on a bicycle, from Buenos Aires in Argentina. He's in Kingston today, planning to go on to Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec, where he will take ship for Europe.

In Europe, he will ride along the north coast through France, Germany and Poland, to Russia. He hopes to end across in Moscow, then down to the Mediterranean. Cutting back along the south coast of Europe to Gibraltar he plans to ship his bike across to North Africa, ride the north coast of Africa and through the Middle East to India, across India, and down through the old Burma Road route to Singapore. Ship then to Java, ride through length of the island, then ship to Australia, ride around Australia, ship across the Pacific to North America and ride back to Buenos Aires. The 36-year-old factory worker expects the whole trip will take about three-and-a-half years to cover 63 countries, or about 48,000 miles. He's spent a year and a half so far, covering about 14,000 miles and 16 countries.

FIRM SUPPLIES BIKE

The trip is sponsored partly by Nunez' former employers, the Duenos Bicycle factory in Buenos Aires, and by Pepsi-Cola. The bicycle firm supplied the bike and some equipment, and local Pepsi-Cola bottlers provide some expense money and other help.

On his trip Nunez is collecting letters from police chiefs of all the cities he stops in, certifying the fact that he actually did pass through the town, and autographs of the chiefs of state of all the countries he passes through. He has autographs from the presidents of 14 countries now, (including U.S. President Johnson's), and is worried if, when he reaches England, he will be able to get the Queen's autograph.

Speaking Spanish, a bit of Italian and a few words of English, Nunez has bumped into little language difficulty on his travels. He finds Italian-speaking people in most centres, he says, and his obvious good-will and energetic sign language carry him through, in many cases, without words.

CLIMB TO RESCUE

BONN (Reuters)—A mountain rescue team fought its way through a blizzard and rescued injured climbers on the Watzmann Mountain Range Tuesday. The team had been forced to turn back Monday night because of the danger of avalanches as large sections of Germany were pounded by hail, rain, wind and snow. A trail of destruction was left by a hurricane in Bavaria Monday, with winds gusting to 120 miles an hour recorded in the Bavarian Alps.

Thinks NATO Nuclear Force Will Get Okay

WASHINGTON (AP)—George W. Ball, U.S. undersecretary of state, has returned from Europe optimistic about prospects for agreement early next year for formation of a nuclear weapons force within NATO.

Ball returned Tuesday from the first of two scheduled European missions concerned primarily with divisions among the Atlantic allies over a variety of military, political and economic problems.

His primary concern, however, has been to do everything possible to move forward work on the nuclear weapons problem.

He told reporters here that he brought back "a good deal of optimism as regard to the spirit" with which interested European allies are now working on the U.S. proposal for organization of a seaborne Multilateral Nuclear Force (MLF).

At the same time, he said it would take some weeks beyond the previous year-end deadline for an agreement in order to give the new British Labor government time to work out its position on the nuclear weapons issue.

Other officials said, in fact that it is the new British government's active interest in finding solutions for the various heretofore divisive issues in the nuclear weapons project which is the real cause of the new surge of optimism about getting an agreement.

Constitution Board Told Que. Should Either Secede Or Seek Associate Status

QUEBEC (CP)—Should Quebec seek status as an associate state of Canada or should it secede?

There is as yet no answer to the question, but the two proposals have been the main ones which so far have been placed before a legislative committee, formed in the spring of 1963 to recommend what Quebec should seek in the way of changes to the constitution.

In effect, the committee's task is to answer the question "what does Quebec want?" The question is repeatedly asked in English Canada's as Quebec presses for a constitution which it feels would be more in keeping with its aims and its progress.

So far the 15-man committee, made up of Liberal and Union Nationals members of the legislature, has heard 10 briefs. Another 15 briefs are expected to be heard between now and Christmas. But even then the work will be far from complete. It must await the results of work by specialists, assigned to study aspects of the constitutional problem. The experts have been asked, for instance, to determine the political, economic, social and cultural effects Quebec's separation would have on the province.

With one exception, briefs heard so far have suggested wider powers and more autonomy for Quebec. All rejected the status quo.

COOL TO 1ST

The lone exception was the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, which suggested increased powers for the federal government. The idea was received coolly by the committee.

The associate state idea appears to have gained wider support among those presenting briefs than the Separatist theory. With associate status, the federal government's powers would be reduced and Quebec and Ottawa would have equal voices in its policies.

The Montreal St. Jean Baptiste Society last week supported the associate states idea and the Professional Association of Lay Classical College Teachers suggested essentially the same thing.

One question that could be hotly debated is the economic effects of separation. Some economists have said secession would be a catastrophe for Quebec.

But Francois-Albert Angers, Montreal economist and well-known Nationalist, says he does not agree. He told the committee that Quebec's balance of trade with the rest of Canada would have to be determined before any conclusion could be reached. If the other provinces are not Quebec's greatest market, then separation would change nothing for Quebec, he argued.

None of the groups thus far has mentioned "co-operative federalism," the phrase used by Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Lesage to define current relations between Ottawa and Quebec. Mr. Lesage is not a member of the assembly committee.

Claude Wagner, deputy minister of federal-provincial affairs and joint-secretary of the committee, said it will be several months before the committee completes its work. It was not possible to say whether a preliminary report would be submitted to the session of the legislature expected to open in January.

In addition to the constitutional study, the committee plans to take a close look at the problem of the French-speaking minorities outside Quebec.

The Professional Association of Lay Classical College Teachers said in its brief that Quebec's priorities could not be tied to the fate of these minorities. The brief said that only a declaration on the rights of man, accepted by everyone, could offer guarantees to minorities.

The St. Jean Baptiste Society took the view that the question of minorities could be settled by negotiations between associate states.

Opposition Forced to Make Decision on Flag Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—The government, in scheduling the flag debate for Thursday, has faced the opposition parties squarely with deciding whether to fish or cut bait.

Decisions are expected to be made in the caucus meetings of MPs of the opposition parties today.

The Creditistes appeared, from the words of their leader Real Caouette, to be the first behind a desire to debate the report of the flag committee and reach a decision.

But New Democrats and Social Credit members have been arguing in the corridors over a new national labor code and the 1964-65 spending estimates before discussing finality of the flag design recommended by the Commons flag committee.

The Conservatives also have argued along this line. Their members have expressed differences in public about how long they should debate the flag. It was largely Conservative dissenting strength which kept the previous flag debate running 23 days.

The committee's recommendation is for a Canadian flag of a single red maple leaf on a white ground, with a vertical red panel at each side.

MAJORITY VOTE LIKELY

It is generally conceded that if the recommendation comes to a vote it will command a majority in the Commons.

So the questioning has centred on whether any MPs will take action either to block a decision or postpone one.

A number of Conservatives say they are prepared to act on their conviction that a decision should be prevented, at least until the government uses the debate-limiting device of closure. That means mustering a large number of speakers and using every conceivable procedural weapon in the book.

Those who figure closer matters are more important and should be given precedence over the flag debate have a variety of procedural weapons at their disposal.

The New Democrats tested one of them in the previous flag debate—moving adjournment of the debate. Such a step is not debatable and requires an immediate roll-call vote.

The New Democrats failed in their attempt, but it was the threat by the Creditistes to make another attempt the next day that led to the agreement by government agreeing to setting up a flag committee to pick a flag design.

Whether New Democrats, Social Credit or others are prepared to do that performance was uncertain.

One of the measures to which the opposition appears to be having a priority over the flag is the Canada Pension Plan. But there are suspects that will pass its current stage and be sent to a committee by the end of today's sitting. An arrangement to this effect was announced in the Commons last Friday.

Two important factors in whether decision the opposition parties make are the statements of Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

Mr. Pearson has said there will be a decision on the flag committee's recommendation by Christmas. Mr. Diefenbaker has said the design is unacceptable. And Mr. Diefenbaker has publicly rejected Mr. Pearson's proposal of a time-limit — somewhere between a week and two weeks—on the flag debate.

The major decision on tactics appears headed for today and perhaps bitter thrashing out behind the closed doors of the party caucuses.

ESCAPEE SHOT

TORONTO (CP) — A 1,000-pound steer was shot Tuesday near Toronto's Lawrence Avenue Stockyards by police Sergeant Alvin Morrison after two hours of freedom. The animal had leaped out of a truck on the way to the stockyards. He charged and damaged a police cruiser that had cornered him in the yard.

SPEAKING OF HEARTS at the Ontario Heart Foundation Belleville Chapter meeting yesterday, chapter president Ralph Laughlen discusses a Heart Foundation brochure with Dr. Ford Connell, Professor of Medicine at Queen's University. Dr. Connell spoke at the meeting.

Newly-Formed Chapter Of Heart Foundation To Canvass for Funds

The Ontario Heart Foundation plans a door-to-door canvass for funds in Belleville this year, Dr. Ford Connell told members of the Foundation's local chapter last night. Professor of medicine at Queen's University Medical School, Dr. Connell was guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the chapter in the Prince Edward Suite of the Hotel Quinte. The meal was arranged as a gift to the newly-formed chapter by Toronto philanthropist, A. E. Barron.

The canvass in Belleville will probably be held during the month of February, when the Canadian Heart Fund will conduct a national drive for funds. Twenty-two and one half percent of the funds raised here for the provincial group will be turned over to the national fund. Research grants by the fund in Ontario this year total about $693,000 and clinic and other grants total about $75,000, the doctor said. He mentioned that the first door-to-door canvass for the Canadian Heart Fund was held in Kingston, seven years ago.

HISTORIC POINT

Medical research, including the programs sponsored in Canada by the Heart Fund, is finding new ways to prevent and to cure heart disease, Dr. Connell said. He outlined the case of an area man, a patient treated by himself and Dr. Bruce Cronk of Belleville, to illustrate his point. The man had high blood pressure, a condition that 10 years ago led to progressive heart failure and almost inevitable death. In 1948 the man had been an invalid for months and was expected to die within a few more months when he was offered a gift to the newly-formed chapter by Toronto philanthropist, A. E. Barron.

In 1948 the man had been an invalid for months and was expected to die within a few more months when he was offered a gift to the newly-formed chapter by Toronto philanthropist, A. E. Barron.

In 1959 the man's condition worsened, and he appeared ready for a major, and probably fatal, stroke. Another treatment, new at the time, prevented the stroke. Since 1959 the man has gone through two more major crises, both of which have been prevented by new developments. The man, he said, is still alive 17 years after the first experimental operation carried him. Four times his life has been saved by techniques developed just when he needed them.

People still die of heart disease, Dr. Connell warned the chapter, but cures are being found for more and more diseases of the heart. Some of the most common heart troubles can be cured by surgery now considered simple and safe, he said. He stressed, however, the cost of the research, equipment and training required to support a heart clinic, and the need for public support of the work.

Canadian 'Death Wish' Is Alleged

QUEBEC (CP) — The fourth annual Conference on Canadian Affairs had hardly started Tuesday night when Laval University law professor suggested some Canadians secretly want the country to become the 51st state and may get their wish before long.

Canada customarily takes a beating at the no-punches-pulled sessions of the forum started in 1961 by Laval students to air the country's problems. This year's theme is Canadian duality and the influence of the United States.

Only about 60 students were present Tuesday night to hear constitutional law professor Andre Patry say politicians and businessmen will about U.S. influence on Canada, then run to Washington or New York for help with economic problems.

Professor Patry said Canada never strikes the U.S. imagination and Americans tend as a result to think of the continent as a unit.

"... They continue to come by the millions to Canada with out discerning any true feelings of hostility," he said.

Meanwhile, the professor told the students here, Canadian students of English language or European origin, wish to see English Canada annexed to the U.S. if Quebec secedes.

Thirteen More Cranes Reach Texas Refugee

WASHINGTON (AP — Arrival of 13 more whooping cranes at the Aransas national wildlife refuge in Texas was reported Tuesday by the U.S. interior department, bringing the total there to 30.

With the arrival of the 13 birds, including four young, the department said that it expects this year to see a considerable increase in the population of the rare bird. It now has been established that at least nine whooper chicks have survived so far.

Of the nine baby whoopers eight are at Aransas and one is in the enclosure at the Santa Vista national wildlife refuge in Colorado. It was taken there a few weeks ago after being injured in Canada.

The interior department said total number of cranes which flew to Canadian nesting grounds last spring was 36.

Since careful record-keeping began in the winter of 1938-39, the high point for wild whoopers was the winter of 1961-62, when 38 were counted. The 1938 39 count was only 14.

In addition to the 30 wild whoopers at Aransas and the one which is Colorado, seven whoopers are in captivity at the Audubon Park Zoo in New Orleans.

Flight 831 -- Its Fate Indelible for Many

By TED BLACKMAN

STE. THERESE de BLAIN VILLE, Que. (CP)—A steady rain drenched Montreal as the green bus snaked its way through sluggish traffic toward the airport at suburban Dorval.

"You know, I don't feel very good," one of the 13 passengers said to the man in the next seat. "I don't feel like taking the flight, but I've got to get home by tomorrow."

His companion shrugged. "What could happen?"

That innocent question received a tragic answer less than an hour later when Air Canada's flight 831 disappeared from the radar screen at the Dorval control tower at 8:33 p.m. Friday, Nov. 29, 1963.

The aircraft was a DC-8F jetliner bound for Toronto with 111 passengers and a crew of seven. Four minutes after take-off it crashed and exploded near this Laurentian foothills community, killing all 118 aboard.

A year later a public inquiry ordered by the federal government, is still seeking the cause of the crash. A private inquiry conducted by the department of transport has, however, ruled out the possibility of sabotage.

Horror Still Lives For Eyewitnesses

The horror of that November night is indelibly imprinted on the minds of many, including Noel Aubertin, the first person to reach the crash scene.

A constable on the police force of this town 20 miles north of Montreal, he recalls:

"I had stopped my car and I was talking to a little girl and boy when I heard this immense explosion. It sounded like an atomic bomb and I thought it was the end of the world.

"My car radio went out of commission and my first reaction was to jump on the two children and shield them. I don't remember seeing the plane at all, I just heard the loud crash."

Const. Aubertin then dashed to the crash site, mid-way between Highway 11 and an old preserve that leads to the Laurentian resort district. He lost both boots in the ankle-deep mud.

"I was the first one there and I saw the wreckage and the fire, the tremendous fire, and it made me feel worse, because police are supposed to help people and I knew there was no one I could help there."

Tears trickled down his face as he spoke.

MOST FROM TORONTO

News of Canada's worst air disaster stunned Canadians on the eve of what is ordinarily an occasion for merry-making, the Grey Cup game, being played the next afternoon in Vancouver.

Toronto, home of 70 of the victims, was rocked.

More than 50 relatives had gathered at the airport at Malton, northwest of Toronto, to greet Flight 831. An hour after the crash they were called to a small room and told the jet was missing and believed down.

At 9:30 they were informed it had definitely crashed. Within an hour word came that there were no survivors.

Besides the 70 from Toronto Ontario cities, 17 from greater Montreal, five from Western Canada, two from the United States, one from New Brunswick and one from India.

They included the 13 passengers aboard the green bus that made it to the airport in time despite Montreal's rush - hour traffic.

"I feel as though I drove them to their death," driver Peter Kowalenk said later, still haunted by the memory of that prophetic conversation between two passengers.

BUS WAS LATE

A few were lucky. Gail McEachern, 27, of Montreal, recounts how she and 14 others missed a date with death because their bus arrived late at Dorval due to the traffic.

"I'll never complain about the shambles of Montreal traffic again. That shambles is just wonderful."

The jet, apparently on course, was making its turn toward Toronto when it fell from the sky. It sliced a path through the wooded swamp and exploded, churning up a huge crater and scattering pieces of metal and human bodies over a quarter-mile area.

The rain continued to fall and water from the marshy area soon filled the crater. Rescue workers quickly realized nothing could be done, police dogs were not needed and ambulances were turned back.

Crowds streamed to the crash site and soon the highways were jammed. Spectators carried away pieces of the shattered plane and other ghoulish souvenirs.

"I saw one person pick up a wallet and put it in his pocket," Const. Aubertin said. "I tried to catch him but he ran into the woods and got away.

"The chief and I even had to fire our guns to keep the people away from the crash."

There was mass confusion as thousands roamed the area. Some 150 soldiers were called in from a nearby army post to help Quebec Provincial Police rope off the area, attempting to prevent displacement of the scattered debris.

Floodlights revealed a macabre sight. The crater held a mangled mass of metal, and shredded clothes and pieces of human bodies hung in the trees.

The full horror of the tragedy could be seen at dawn. Two priests stood in the mud near the still smouldering wreckage and offered prayers. The excitement had died, replaced by sorrow. Frantic shouts had turned to hushed whispers.

Bulldozers began carving out gravel roads from the highway 800 feet away and pumps started sucking water from the crater. The mud was so deep that heavy vehicles sank up to their axles.

A morgue was set up at the army depot and headquarters established in a nearby school. Richard Bolduc, chief inspector for the air accident division of the federal transport department, assumed command.

The recovery operation had been curtailed during the night. All that was salvaged was a life jacket bearing the Air Canada identification and the plane's log book, hauled out of the crater by a policeman.

MUD FROZE

Conditions could hardly have been worse. Parts of the plane were buried deep in the crater, snow began to fall and a biting Laurentian wind froze the mud. The operation wasn't completed until May, 1964.

Within two weeks a prefabricated village had sprung up to accommodate 200 investigators, 200 provincial police and 800 soldiers called in from Valcartier, Que. They worked around the clock sifting delicately through the crater in search of human remains, wreckage and clues to the crash.

Not a single complete body was found and identification could only be made by personal effects.

"This, to say the least, has not been a pleasant task" said QPP Insp. Gerard Howe, who stayed on the site continuously until a heart attack forced him to take a long period of rest.

Most of the victims' relatives agreed to a mass burial. A few held private funerals. Most were buried in a mass interdenominational ceremony under a common tombstone near the little Ste. Therese cemetery four miles from the site.

Parts of the plane were catalogued as they were retrieved. The pieces were taken to an empty hangar at Dorval to be steam-cleaned and laid out on a full-sized pattern of the 125,000-pound plane.

RUMOR DENIED

Mr. Bolduc wouldn't speculate as to the cause although Air Canada said the plane was in perfect mechanical condition. Later, however, the transport department said there was no evidence of sabotage.

Rumors that the pilot, John D. Snyder, 47, had communicated with the control tower before crashing were ruled out by Mr. Bolduc.

"We have found no evidence of a May Day signal," he said. "It would have been unusual if the pilot had called the tower. When you're fighting to keep a plane under control you don't have time. A split second could mean the difference."

Work at the crash site ran into numerous difficulties. A major problem was mud slides that occurred as officials dug deeper to find the plane's engines. A construction firm was called in to provide walls.

Within two weeks after the crash, 55 per-cent of the plane had been retrieved. Many of the souvenir - hunters returned pieces removed from the scene after police promised there would be no charges pressed.

"We have had eight experts up here from the United States," Mr. Bolduc said, explaining the salvage problem. "The Americans, who have more experience, never have seen one as badly broken up as this."

TOMBSTONE FOR CRASH VICTIMS — This is the tombstone erected to mark the spot where most of the victims of Canada's worst air disaster were buried. A total of 118 persons died when an Air Canada DC-8F jetliner crashed at Ste. Therese de Blainville, Que., within minutes of leaving Montreal International airport, November 29, 1963. A public inquiry still is attempting to establish the cause of the crash. (CP Photo)

MADOC — The local group Scout Council held their monthly meeting in the chamber rooms with Mr. Ron Smith as chairman. Following the reading of the minutes, financial statements, the report on the progress of the pack and scouts, the father and son banquet, several items were discussed: the Christmas card drive, the need for more leaders and assistants and the Bay of Quinte leaders, District Council personnel and Council members. A course is being held on November 14th at Port Hope. An ideal gift book was autographed by all members to be sent to Dr. George Mullin, secretary of the group, and a patient in Kingston Hospital.

Rev. James H. Thompson, president of the Moira Valley Scout Association was chairman at the monthly district council meeting at the home of Mr. Claire West, Stirling. Representatives at this meeting came from Marmora, Frankford, Madoc, Deloro, Tweed and Stirling. RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Over the past few years, coaches, managers, players and fans of the city's minor hockey teams have boosted house glowing accounts of the warm, host-ranel hospitality accorded them by officials of opposition clubs, win, loss or draw.

This has been especially noticeable in tournament play where several teams assemble for competition.

In these tournament centres—are groups usually women's auxiliaries of the local Minor Hockey Associa, tion, who look after the off-the-ice well-being of the visiting youngsters.

Nor are the home teams forgotten... The youngsters meet in an aura of friendship, and boyish camaraderie which augurs well for the future of the game, the boys and the spirit of competition.

The teams are given lunches and in some tournament centres, where an overnight stay is necessary they are billeted in private homes.

Parents of the youthful players and other adults interested in the hockey youth of their community have put their shoulders to the wheel of effort, usually headed, as was mentioned, by the women's auxiliary of the local minor association.

In Belleville reciprocative action has taken place but up to the moment, not on an organized basis. Well-meaning parents and officials have seen to it that visiting teams and officials are entertained at post-game get-togethers with lunches and other refreshments.

With minor hockey on the upsurge here and schedules calling for additional action with out-of-town clubs, tournaments, etc., it is felt that organization of a Women's Auxiliary to the Belleville Minor Hockey Association is a necessity.

The move is a good one. There are a number of "hockey mothers" in the city who show more interest in Junior than merely getting up breakfast on "play-days." They are in favor of the proposed auxiliary. Grandmas, aunts and sisters, too, are eligible to lend a helping hand.

With organization at the proposed auxiliary in mind, a meeting will be held in the Belleville Shriae Club on Friday, November 20th, at eight o'clock, where a full executive will be appointed besides a number of directors for each playing classification.

The "old man" is invited because post-meeting plans call for dancing and a buffet lunch. A nominal charge of $2.50 per couple will take care of rental and entertainment expenses. In any event all ladies interested are invited to attend the meeting.

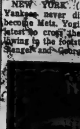
The general aim of the auxiliary is to help in the general welfare of the boys which is not covered by the registration fee and, as was noted, to provide lunches for home and visiting teams, especially where tournaments are involved.

It is planned to hold one meeting a month to carry on the planning of funds-raising projects. All boys will benefit from the novice to juvenile class.

Members of the BMHA and the mothers interested look for a good attendance so that organization can be completed "on the spot," and the functions of the auxiliary started immediately. Tickets may be obtained from any BMHA member or from Mrs. Grant Sickle at WO 8-7464 after five p.m.

Inter-community hospitality, I believe, is a good thing for minor hockey—or for any minor sport as far as that goes. It is especially good when long trips are involved despite the fact the youngsters are under the good care of their coaches and other officials.

"Getting to know" the other fellows off the ice never hurt anyone. Post-game fraternization especially where the boys have been "fed" allows takes away the sting of defeat and creates a desire to win the next time.



Belleville "hockey mothers" and others are taking a step in the right direction—and young Joe and Jack will be the first to appreciate their desire to help.

They Become Mets
Old Yankees Never Die

By JACK RAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Old Yankees never die, they just become Mets. Yogi Berra is the latest to cross the bridge, following in the footsteps of Casey Stengel and George Weiss.

YOGI BERRA

Berra will be a coach under Stengel, his old boss, if he can get into shape in spring training. Yogi will be placed on the active list as a player-coach.

This badly kept secret became a fact Tuesday when New York Mets made the announcement it is offered.

Berra will be a coach under Stengel, his old boss, if he can get into shape in spring training. Yogi will be placed on the active list as a player-coach.

This badly kept secret became a fact Tuesday when New York Mets made the announcement.

Weiss, club president, and Berra were on hand.

Berra will be the highest paid coach in baseball, probably getting $40,000 from the Mets and $25,000 from the Yanks in what Weiss described as "severance pay."

Yogi said "made a fortunate deal and a special field consultant after the Yanks fired him as manager the day after the World Series.

Under the terms of the Yankee contract, Yogi could take a job elsewhere and still get the $25,000. Under those circumstances it almost pays to be fired.

Yogi listed his reasons for the shift:

"I felt I should be in uniform. I'd missed being out for a year. It will help me in the pension—two more years for me. I had offers from other clubs but I'd rather be in New York. This is my home town now."

Berra said there was no understanding that he might succeed Stengel. There is a clause in the two-year contract with the Mets, freeing Yogi to take a manager's job elsewhere if one

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two weeks ago, when Jacques Plante was in the New York doghouse, Rangers' coach Red Sullivan happily replied "certainly" when asked whether he would trade his outspoken goalie.

But ask him the same question today.

Plante's career was at a low ebb then because of a report that quoted him as saying the Rangers were unmanaged and torn with dissension. Despite his denials, Plante appeared to have lost his job to Marcel Paille.

But an injury to Paille changed all that and Plante was summoned from the minors. Now indications are that Paille is bound for Baltimore in the American Hockey League.

The Rangers, with Plante in the nets, have won three of their last four games. Their latest win, a 3-1 decision over Detroit in the only National Hockey League game played Tuesday night, launched them into third place.

BOUNCES BACK

Plante, bombed 6-2 by the Red Wings Sunday night in his only loss, bounced back with 26 saves to check Detroit's league leaders. Camille Henry and Rod Gilbert scored for New York, while Plante's only mistake was a third-period goal by Alex Delvecchio.

Henry sent the Rangers ahead with his seventh of the season in the first period while Dewolf's Doug Barkley was in the penalty box. Delvecchio, playing with a special mask to protect a fractured jaw, tied it at 6:31 of the third period.

Gilbert, however, had no trouble scoring the winner at 12:42, as three Rangers swept in on Detroit goalie Roger Crozier. Taking a pass from Henry, Gilbert made a couple of fakes and slammed the puck into the net.

The win gave New York 15 points, three fewer than Detroit and two behind Montreal. Toronto dropped to fourth with 14 points, leaving Chicago behind at 12 and Boston in the cellar with nine.

LEAD IN DANGER

Two games are scheduled tonight with Detroit's grasp on first place in jeopardy when the Wings visit Chicago and Montreal plays at Toronto.

The Leafs confirmed Tuesday night that forward Frank Mahovlich, the team's leading point-getter, will be lost to the club for at least six couple of weeks.

His ailment has been shrouded in secrecy. The Leafs and club doctor Hugh Smythe said that Mahovlich's condition has been diagnosed, but it won't be made public Mahovlich entered hospital last week after complaining of fatigue for several weeks.

Buffalo Coach Jars 'Cookie'

BUFFALO (CP) — The way things are shaping up, Cookie Gilchrist figures to get fired and voted onto an all-star team this season for the fifth time in his 11 years in professional football.

He got halfway there Tuesday when Buffalo Bills put him on irrevocable waivers despite being the American Football League's leading rusher of 1964. And, provided some other AFL quarterback hands him the football often enough, he's just about a cinch for his all-star ballot.

Chances are that the 250-pound fullback won't be out of uniform long. Boston Patriots and New York Jets promptly filed claims to pick up his $30,000-a-year salary for the $100 waiver price with several lower-ranked AFL clubs still to be heard from.

Gilchrist has gained 751 yards in 196 carries this season but coach Lou Saban cited "certain incidents" over the last six of the 29-year-old blockbuster.

ARGOS WRY?

The news presumably brought wry satisfaction to the front office of Toronto Argonauts, the last-place Eastern Football Conference team that peddled Coolie to the Bills in 1962, after suspending him for a curfew violation and has been caustically reminded by its critics of his subsequent prowess in the AFL.

Cookie reached Canada from Tarentum, Pa., in 1954 and won all-star honors and pick slips from Sarnia Imperials and Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Rugby Football Union before reaching the EFC with Hamilton Tiger-Cats two years later.

The Ticats got 85 points, 1,790 yards rushing and a flock of unspecified headaches from him over the next two seasons before dispatching him to Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Conference. One year and one all-star team later Saskatchewan let him go to the Argonauts.

With the Argos he piled up another 1,867 yards rushing, two EFC scoring championships and two more All-Star nominations during his three-year stay, missing out in 1961 largely because of injuries. But he was gone before the 1962 training season ended.

With Buffalo, he promptly won the Associated Press Player-of-the-Year award after gaining 1,096 yards rushing in an AFL record, and scoring 725 points. Last year he set a single-game professional record by gaining 243 yards against New York.

Woodstock Defeats Guelph 8-6

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—Woodstock Athletics scored twice in overtime to defeat league-leading Guelph Regals 8-6 in a free-scoring Ontario Hockey Association Senior game here Tuesday night. The victory moved Woodstock to within four points of the idle second place Galt Hornets.

Tommy Wilson sent the game into overtime with a goal at the 18:27 mark of the third period. The Athletics had goalie Ron Salter off in favor of a sixth attacker at the time.

Wilson parked Woodstock with two goals. John Hartig, Gerry Striegle, Art Sullivan, Rio Caron, Emile Ball and Bobby Robinson scored once each for the winners.

N.H.L. Stars

New York's Rod Gilbert, who scored with fewer than eight minutes remaining in the game to give the Rangers a 2-1 win over Detroit Red Wings in the only National Hockey League contest played.

Cats Plug Defence Gap

Riders Out To Win

Record Was Punt Runback

OTTAWA (CP) — The way Clair Bacon of Montreal remembers it, Ottawa Rough Riders ran back a kickoff for 136 yards in a big Four football game back in 1932. But that's not quite the way it's remembered in Ottawa.

Foran, with the Montreal team in 1932, dipped into his memory after Gene Gaines ran back a kickoff 128 yards for the Rough Riders against Hamilton Saturday and was credited with a Canadian record.

Sports columnists Jack Kinsella of the Ottawa Citizen and Bill Westwick of the Ottawa Journal disagreed Tuesday that the 1932 run was off a kickoff. They say that was on a run-back of a Montreal punt.

Wally Masters, one of the early football imports from the U.S., caught the ball deep in Ottawa's end zone. He after led to another import, Swede Carlsen, who ran to about the Montreal 40 - yard line where he passed to Dave Harding who completed the run.

Masters and Carlsen both came to Ottawa from Pennsylvania University. Harding, a native of Petrolia, Ont., was one of the stars of the great Queen's University teams in the 1920s and later played with Camp Borden in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Kinsella, who saw the game, agrees with Foran's recollection on distance—134 yards without benefit of interference, not permitted in Canadian football in those days. Westwick, who was on another football assignment that day in 1932, puts the distance at 125 yards on the writ ten evidence of the late Walter Gilhooly, then the Journal's sports editor.

SHARE TOURNEY

KITCHENER (CP) — Guelph and Kitchener will share the Eastern Canada and Canadian five-pin bowling championships next spring, the Ontario Bowling Council announced Tuesday. Both were to be held in Kitchener but the necessary lanes were not available. The eastern finals will be held April 15-17 in Kitchener and the Canadian final Apr. 19-21 in Guelph.

HAMILTON (CP) — Year in and year out, depth has been Hamilton Tiger - Cats' strong suit.

In 1963 they had to pick up two offensive backs in midseason and won the Grey Cup. The year before, they got as far as the final without quarterback Bernie Faloney, in 1961 they won the Eastern Football Conference title despite getting only three games out of pass-catching Ace Tommy Grant.

But they'll have to prove it all over again Saturday when they take the field against Ottawa Rough Riders at Civic Stadium for the second game of the two-game, total-points EFC final.

They'll have a 17 - point deficit to cope with, piled up by the Riders in their 30-13 victory at Ottawa last Saturday. And once again coach Ralph Sazio is having trouble rounding up enough men to fill his offensive back field.

The inspired Rider defence put fullback Art Baker and halfback Willie Bethea out of action with sprained ankles during the Ottawa game, both remain doubtful starters

FALONEY'S BACK BAD

In addition, Faloney has a bad back and offensive ends Ila Patterson and Stan Crisson are both on the limp, although all three are showing up in practices.

Sazio can plug the holes by moving Bobby Kuntz from the defensive squad to replace Baker, reactivating Bob Gaitens to fill in for Bethea and bringing back Joe Zuger to help Frank Cosentino take up the slack at quarterback.

But Zuger, still recovering from shoulder injury, and Kuntz are badly needed to bolster a defensive squad that showed signs of wear and tear without them in the series opener.

"We have to have a real strong defence," Sazio said after watching the team work out Tuesday. "We can't afford to let them score."

OTTAWA BETTER OFF

Flanker Whit Tucker and defensive guard Sam Scoccia are the only problems in the Ottawa camp. Tucker, who missed last Saturday's game with a back injury, was reported improving steadily but there was no indication whether he would be ready. Scoccia is expected back despite a shoulder injury.

Rider coach Frank Clair, who plans to dress lineman John Kennerson to back up Scoccia and bench defensive lineman Tommy Neck, has no intention of trying to nurse his lead next Saturday.

"The main thing is to win the series," he said, "but we want to win this game too."

Saturday's game, starting at 1 p.m. EST, will be televised by the CBC and CTV national networks. There will be no regional blackout.

Dick Clapp Scores Three Touchdowns

Dick Clapp, son of Mr. G. C. Clapp, 90 Albion Street, is making quite a name for himself, football-wise, down in the Maritimes.

Dick, a member of the Royal Canadian Navy, is one of the stars of the Stadacona Sailors who are cutting a big swath in the Atlantic Football Conference.

Clapp led his Sailors to a devastating 66-1 victory over Mount Allison University Mounties the other day rambling for a trio of touchdowns.

He ripped the Mount Allison defence to shreds as he bulled for 170 yards in 20 carries.

Clapp scored his first touchdown on a 10-yard sweep and the other two on eigh and seven yards off-tackle dashes.

HABS CALL UP PETERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Gary Peters, a 20-year-old native of Regina, has been called up to Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League from the Omaha Knights of the Central Professional Hockey League, it was announced Tuesday. Last season Peters scored 29 goals and was co - winner of the CPHL's rookie of the year award.

Larks On The Block ?

MONTREAL (CP) — M. F. (Tod) Workman is considering offers to buy his Montreal Alouettes football club of the Canadian Football League.

A source close to the Alouettes, who asked not to be identified, confirmed Tuesday night that Workman may sell the team soon.

Although Workman is believed to have received two firm offers to buy, his indecision apparently is caused by still locomotele plans to build a new 40,000-seat stadium in the city's east end.

The Alouettes announced last month they needed a further $500,000 to erect the stadium and an additional $500,000 should they decide to pave the parking lot.

The 1965 Grey Cup game has been granted to Montreal but the CFL will shift the site to another city if Workman cannot convince the league at its meeting later this month that his stadium will be ready.

The Alouettes' present Delorimier Stadium has expired and the unit versatile athletic department has advised the team that 4,000 seats along the sideline will be removed in the off-season to clear the cinder track.

This would reduce the seating capacity to some 20,000 and cut the team's revenue by some $100,000.

Observers feel that because of these factors Workman will have no choice but to sell if he at dium plan collapse.

Mentioned as possible purchasers is Joseph Lapointe, owner of Montreal's Bleu Blanc nets and Rebel Corp. of Quebec and a Toronto-based syndicate that includes Alouettes coach Jim Trimble.

Lightfoots Win Hoop Opener

Belleville Lightfoots opened the 1964-65 Bay of Quinte basketball league with a 69-66 victory over the RCAF Flyers at the air force gym last night.

The game was a nip and tuck affair with the lead changing hands time and time again. Neither club ever led by more than six points. It was 36-36 at half time.

Lightfoots got a solid team effort with all eight players in the game sharing in the team's scoring points.

Don Smith paced the club with 19 points and Bob Smith was next in line with 13. Ron Marriott and Garry Duggan each hit for nine, Ian Houchin and John McKibbon for eight apiece.

Dave Nelson and Will Borden were the big scorers for the RCAF. Nelson collected 19 points and Borden had 18. Chris Blades contributed 12.

A Belleville team spokesman said the club appeared to be much better balanced than in past years. He also said that scoring over Doug Rose expected to join the club in a matter of weeks, as soon as he is fully recovered from a minor hand injury.

Lightfoots make their next league start in Cobourg tonight.

Belleville Lightfoots (69) — R. Marriott 9, D. Smith 19, G. Duggan 9, T. Ewing 2, I. Houchin 8, B. Smith 13, L. Soule 2, J. McKibbon 8.

RCAF Flyers (66) — C. Blades 12, W. Borden 18, I. Wilson 2, L. Theriault 8, D. Dodd 2, D. Nelson 19, F. Walker 2, P. Keizer 4, Johnson.

Brown Eyes Records

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Brown's seventh carry next Sunday against Green Bay Packers will mark another National Football League plateau for Cleveland Brown's great running back.

It will be Brown's 2,000th attempt to burst through an enemy line, and never before has an NFL player made that many tries. Brown, who broke the 1,000 - yard mark for the sixth time last Sunday, has gained more than 10,000 yards since coming into the league eight years ago.

Blanton Collier, the Browns' coach, calls the former Syracuse all-America "the best running back in the history of football."; And the figures seem to back up that statement.

Brown needs just two more touchdowns to top the mark held by Don Hutson who scored 105 in 11 seasons. He has had six 1,000 - yard seasons in 45 seasons, the 1,000 - yard mark has been achieved only 21 times by NFL runners.

Brown tops the NFL rushers with 1,081 yards is figures released today by the league.

Lead Up For Grabs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The top spot in the Western Hockey League will be up for grabs tonight.

Portland Buckaroos could lose it to the visiting Seattle Totems in the only WHL game scheduled.

Seattle was idle Tuesday night when Portland took the league lead with a 5-2 decision over the Maple Leafs in a lack-lustre game before 2,112 fans in Victoria.

Vancouver Canucks, playing on their home ice before 2,125 fans, moved into third place with a 3-2 win over last place San Francisco Seals.

Portland now has 22 points, Seattle 21, Vancouver 18, Los Angeles Blades 17, Victoria 10 and San Francisco eight.

Dave Duke led the Canucks' attack with two goals. Teammate Bob McCusker scored the other goal while Del Topoll and Ray Cyr replied for the Seals.

More than 1,600,000 U.S. travellers went to West Germany in 1963, the same number as Dutch visitors.

Les Barton Named Umpire Of The Year

Twenty some officials, their wives and guests, attended the second annual Belleville and District Umpires' Association dinner at Club Canara last night.

Special guest, Cleo Colling spoke briefly to the gathering, reviewing some of the history of baseball in this area and recalling several amusing stories concerning the Colling family in the sports world.

Mr. Colling presented his annual Ken Colling Memorial Umpires' Award to Les Barton, voted the association's "best umpire of the year." It was the second consecutive win for Barton.

Al Kelleher was introduced as the association's new president. He paid tribute to Barton, leaving the position after two years.

A delicious turkey dinner and a social evening were enjoyed.

Mahovlich Out For 'Two Weeks'

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League will be without the services of left-winger Frank Mahovlich for at least "a couple of weeks," club doctor Hugh Smythe said Tuesday night.

Dr. Smythe said he was diagnosed the condition that has kept Mahovlich in hospital for a week, but the diagnosis will not be released.

"He's coming along very well," said Dr. Smythe. "If everything goes all right, he may be out in a couple of weeks."

Mahovlich entered hospital last Thursday after complaining for several weeks of fatigue. He has undergone a series of tests to diagnose the trouble.

Clash With Lions Tonight

Injuries Jinx Hits Red Wings

DETROIT (CP) — Injuries are again starting to jolt Detroit Red Wings and manager coach Sid Abel must be wondering if they'll ever stop.

The Red Wings left four players in Detroit Tuesday night after boarding to New York Rangers 2-1 in the only National Hockey League game played.

Seventeen Red Wings missed a total of 105 games last season. But enough of them got healthy near the end of the regular season to help the team come within an eyelash of winning the Stanley Cup.

The other injured player is Larry Jeffrey who has been nursing a knee injury or most of the season.

Claude LaForge was brought up from the Pittsburgh farm club in the American League for Tuesday's game, and Ted Hampson will join the Red Wings in Chicago today.

Stamps' Dobbs Changes Tactics

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bobby Dobbs, denying that he is being outcoached or outmaneuvered by anyone, takes his Calgary Stampeders tonight into a football game they must win.

A Stampeder loss in the second game of the Western conference final will finish them for the year and send British Columbia Lions into the Grey Cup final in Toronto Saturday, Nov. 28.

On the eve of the game Dobbs muttered "hogwash" to a suggestion making the rounds here that Lions' coaches usually adjust more adequately than Dobbs and his assistants to developments during each game.

"They haven't changed a thing in three years," he said.

"They have beat us because they have usually been physically rested. They always catch us on our third game in eight days."

WON'T HIT MIDDLE

Stampeders, who lost 24-10 at home Saturday in the first game of the best - of - three series, will not attempt to beat the Lions "up the middle" tonight.

"Their defensive line probably outweighs our offensive line 20 to 30 pounds a man," he said. "We will have to run outside."

The weatherman Tuesday said the 5 p.m. (1 p.m. EST) kickoff would be "reasonably safe" from the elements, probably taking place under cloud several hundred feet above Empire Stadium.

To be telecast nationally by both CBC and CTV, the game will go into as many 20-minute overtime periods as necessary if it is tied after regulation time. A Stampeder victory means a third game Sunday at 2 p.m., (3 p.m. EST) also telecast by both networks.

Stampeders lost defensive halfback Jesse Branch Saturday, but have an able replacement in Lu Bain. Lions will decide shortly before game time whether to play centre Gary Schwerfeger, who bruised a knee in the first game.

3:50 Mile Doubtful Says Snell

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP)—Peter Snell, the world's fastest miler, is doubtful if he will ever run 3:50 or better in the mile.

He said today he still believes his potential to be possibly as fast as 3:48 but such a time depends on an ideal combination of factors unlikely ever to be gained.

"I realize now that a 3:48 mile would require everything in your favor — everything," he said. You would have to devote the whole training program of a half-year to one particular race. And in that race you would need perfect conditions of track, crowd and pace.

"The pace would have to be dead right and someone would have to drag you through the last lap and be still challenging. It's potentially possible but I cannot see myself achieving it."

Snell, who mentioned the 3:50 goal last month after he scored an unprecedented double victory in the last 800 and 1,500 metres in the Olympic Games at Rome, came a little closer to it Tuesday when he lowered his own world record for the mile from 3:54.4 to 3:54.1.

The 27-year-old salesman was easing up at the finish in the race against an international field. His nearest challenger, Josef Odlozil of Czechoslovakia, was 15 yards behind at the finish and was timed in 3:56.4.

SWIM FOR LIFE

HONOLULU (AP)—Four Hawaiian men swam 19 miles through treacherous currents to safety Tuesday after their power boat hit a submerged log and sank in Molokai Channel, between the islands of Oahu and Molokai. The first two survivors reached Honolulu's Bamboo Ridge seven hours after the sinking. The other two came ashore on the same beach four hours later.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Mistle Dares, three - year - old bay gelding owned by John Hayes and his wife Jessie of Columbus, Ont., is still undefeated at Garden City Raceway.

Setting a fast early pace, Mistle Dares withstood a strong challenge from Mighty Stela at the top of the stretch Tuesday night to win the feature $1,200 sixth race, a pace for three - year olds and up wards.

The victory was the fourth in as many starts for Mistle Dares at Garden City Raceway and his $600 share of the $1,200 purse brought his season's earnings to $7,061.

Aces Upset By Bisons

QUEBEC (CP)—Buffalo Bisons rallied for three goals in the third period Tuesday night to upset first-place Quebec Aces 4-2 in an American Hockey League game before 9,225 fans.

The loss was the fourth for the Aces this season with Buffalo stopping the Aces for two of the four losses.

Trailing 2-1 at the end of the second period, the Bisons struck for three unanswered goals in the final period then hung on in the dying minutes of the period for their victory.

Cleland Mortson and Bill Sutherland tallied for Quebec.

A total of twelve penalties were handed out. Brian Watson and Pat Hannigan were each assessed five minute majors for fighting in the second period.

Confirmation was given that the OHA Trent Valley Junior "D" league will operate with four teams following a group meeting held here last night.

The meeting killed a rumor that Stirling would not operate in the league. Entries are Wellington, Bancroft and Trenton.

The league schedule will open with a double-header at Wellington on Wednesday, December 2. Trenton and Wellington play at 7.15 with Bancroft and Stirling clashing at 8.45 p.m.

Elsewhere, this area's two intermediate clubs, Picton and Trenton RCAF Globetrotters, may yet have a league in which to play.

It was stated this morning that the Lakeshore League's western teams have extended an invitation for the two remaining eastern clubs to join in their schedule.

When the eastern division lost expected entries from Belleville and Napanee, Picton also was expected to fold and the RCAF intended to play exhibition" games until playoff time.

The teams will meet Thursday night to discuss the possibility of Picton and RCAF Joining the western teams.

NBC Show About the Louvre Is Delight to Eye and Ear

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—From an exciting opening shot of the soaring winged victory at the top of wide marble stairs to the final picture of the Venus de Milo, Tuesday night's NBC special program about France's Louvre was a delight to eye and ear.

This was no dreary tour through endless corridors and rooms with quick looks at world famous art treasures. It was the story of the great building itself, the heart of Paris for almost 800 years, of the palace where 50 kings and queens of France walked.

The Louvre was built in 1190 as a small fortress. Then it was torn down, rebuilt, enlarged, changed—and its treasures increased until now there are more than 300,000 of them.

Charles Boyer, in his narration, told the story of the building and its builders as the cameras moved around, illustrating his words with pictures of great art, crown jewels, fine sculpture and small but significant detail in architecture.

Like The Kremlin, an earlier NBC achievement in the same category, the program had to be seen in all its rich and rewarding color to be fully savored. It was a marvellous hour.

CBS, which will present an hour-long memoir of John F. Kennedy tonight, will have another Kennedy program Sunday —Four Dark Days. This will be the network announcement said, "an hour of highlights" taken from a 90-hour program broadcast last Nov. 25.

Recommended tonight: The Burden and The Glory of John F. Kennedy, CBS, 7:30 - 8:30 EST; The Ranged Man, NBC, 9-11; Dinah Shore Special, ABC, 9.30-10:30.

Searches Treasure Believed Buried by Pirates Years Ago

By CAL HOLLOWAY

DEER LAKE, Nfld. (CP)—When George Burridge goes on the treasure hunt, not even ghosts deter him.

In search of pirate gold, he has been digging up western and northern Newfoundland for more than 40 of his 65 years. So far it has been a love for it are rusty pans, nails and other assorted junk. But he says the excursions have given him an insatiable appetite to continue.

His main concern at the moment is booty he believes was buried by pirate 141 years ago at Portland Creek on the west side of the province's Northern Peninsula.

His hand - me - down information about the location of treasure usually lacks some thing yet important, point North ing as serious as a missing half of a map, because the maps are kept in his mind.

At Portland Creek he big job is to find a submerged rock, just off shore, which bears a half circle and other markings pointing inland to the gold-laden chest.

According to fishermen along the coast, the treasure was buried in 1823 by a pirate skipper known as Capt Red, who ran his ship ashore in an attempt to escape a British man-o'-war.

DIED WITH SECRET

The captain and his 23 men were looked after by a Billy Gregg at a nearby community. Nobody seems to know what eventually happened to the pirate. Gregge learned from Capt. Red the secret of the treasure but died before finding the spot.

George Burridge har looked for the rock on several occasions, once using the services of a skin diver. But conditions on the wild west coast, to the winds of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, have always prevented a thorough search. Tangled seaweed that covers the shore area will not permit a random search with a metal detector.

He claims he twice missed treasure on two islands.

Armed with his 13-pound detector, which will register metal objects two feet below the surface, he scoured uninhabited St. John Island, about 50 miles north of Portland Creek. A chest, said to contain three tons of gold coins, was dug up by an unidentified party before he got there, he says.

He also combed Bowl Bird Island, a scenic postcard subject in the Humber river about 25 miles west of here, but his detector registered nothing. Mr Burridge says he later learned the treasure had been dug up by a wealthy Corner Brook family.

HUNTED FOR CHEST

George Burridge is superstitious.

A recent trip took him to the west coast community of Port au Port to hunt for a chest—"full to within three inches of the cover"—purported to be guarded by a serpent buried with it.

According to his information, one of the coffin nails is through the woman's temple and has to be removed before she will allow the treasure to be removed.

When he reached the general area at the designated hour of midnight, Mr. Burridge carried with him a hammer and wrecking bar to free the lady of her torture and so relieve her of her gold.

But he was unable to find the exact location and got no cooperation from alarmed residents who did not wish the grave disturbed.

George Burridge's native Bome Bay, Nfld., is a section of the northeast coast believed frequented by pirates and tales of buried treasure are many among the residents.

His first treasure hunts were with his father, Rubin Burridge, a fisherman and trapper who knew the coast well. George has memorized all the old sagas inherited from his father and can recite at the drop of a pick and shovel the directions to more than a dozen treasure troves.

DREAMS OF GOLD

His hunts aren't confined to pirate treasure. His dream bonanza is an underground mine at the mouth of the St. Augustin River, 100 miles west of Blanc Sablon, Que., at the southern end of the Quebec-Labrador border.

His sources say one Henry Dowsett of Bristol, England, fell into a pit while trapping in 1856 and found himself surrounded by glittering gold. He loaded up a vessel with nuggets and sailed for England where he died a wealthy man.

Many men, including two of Dawson's nephews, have since searched in vain for the hole "aglow with gold." Mr Burridge has made two trips to the remote site.

A laborer who hunts between jobs, he said he will continue his quests for the elusive troves despite his run of ill luck.

He has heard that the provincial government can claim up to 90 per cent of any treasure found. The collectors will never get that much, he says, because he would get into a boat, "row out and dump it into 50 fathoms of water."

STUDY LAWS

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto committee is studying methods of dealing with cases of child beating to see if legislation would help, a director of the Toronto Children's Aid Society said Tuesday. Lena Cooke, central branch director of the society, said a subcommittee of the Toronto Social Planning Council has started examining measures in use here and elsewhere in reporting so - called battered child cases to authorities and in dealing with adults involved.

OPENS THURSDAY

Henry Silva Plays Toughest Role In "The Secret Invasion"

Henry Silva, famous for his killer roles in films and TV, plays the toughest killer of his career in the Norman Company presentation "The Secret Invasion," in DeLuxe Color and Panavision, opening Thursday at the Park Theatre as a United Artists release.

As "Durrell" under sentence of death and awaiting execution in Alcatraz prison, Silva plays a convict who, with four others, are offered freedom in return for a secret invasion of Nazi-held Yugoslavia. All five accept and there follows one of the most thrilling and unexpected exploits in picture history, according to the producers.

Among other things, Silva is escorted through the deserted but dangerous mountain passes of Yugoslavia by a beautiful partisan girl played by the new Italian import Mia Massini, whose first American picture this is.

The other criminals in the plot are played by Raf Vallone, Mickey Rooney, Edd Byrnes and William Campbell. Stewart Granger plays the army officer who conceives the daring plot and puts it in motion.

A product of New York's tough west side, Silva worked as long-shoreman, prize fighter, factory hand and finally as a soda jerk in a place frequented by Broadway actors. He decided he liked these people and, as something of a lark, joined up at a dramatics school. This led to a tryout with the Group Theatre, which in turn led to summer stock, and Silva was an actor!

Famed Director Delbert Mann saw him and gave him some TV bit parts. From there he went on to stage appearances and finally, in 1957, to Hollywood. He has played "cool" characters almost exclusively since, gaining considerable notice for his gangster roles in "Ocean's Eleven," "Sergeants 3," "The Manchurian Candidate" and as the title star of "Johnny Cool"

Silva was directed in "The Secret Invasion" by Roger Corman, one of the screen's best-known masters of suspense. The story is an original by R. Wright Campbell and its music is by the noted Hollywood Bowl figure Hugo Friedhofer.

On the same program, adventure and action in "Fury at Smugglers Bay" starring Peter Cushing and Liz Fraser. Both features are first showings. Complete shows at 7.00 and 8.55 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — It's Cold, Let's Get On With The Business — Richard Burton as Thomas Becket and Peter O'Toole as King Henry II of England discuss battle procedure in this scene from Hal Wallis' highly acclaimed "Becket", which opens Today at the Belle Theatre. Directed by Peter Glenville, this Paramount release is based on Jean Anouilh's international stage hit. Filmed in Panavision and Technicolor, "Becket" has a cast of stature and eminence headed by John Gielgud, Donald Wolfit, Martita Hunt and Pamela Brown.

MOUNTAIN VIEW — On Sat-tender a miscellaneous shower to recent newlyweds, Mr. and

An address was read by Mr.

After unwrapping and admiring the many and varied gifts, Del-

Racial Resentment, Distrust Prevalent in Many Areas

Many of Britain's new colored populations, unable to compete with their white neighbors for better jobs and better housing, crowd into London's North Kensington district. In this story, the last of two, a Canadian Press reporter describes the day-to-day problems they meet.

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Portobello Road, the famous street mar-ket that snakes through Lon-don's North Kensington, is as colorful as its name suggests.

Its aroma is tropically cosmo-politan—a touch of Trinidad in the fog, Bombay on the subway.

Curb - side barrows are piled high with yams, coconuts and pomegranates.

The pungent odor of Madras curries mingles with the famil-liar fragrance of fish and chips.

North Kensington is a dank backwater that a guidebook de-scribes as "unrelieved by any feature of distinction." Bounded by canals, gas works and Lon-don's largest cemetery, its clus-ters of late Victorian houses are fused in blocks of decay.

In some of these houses as many as 13 colored immigrant families live, eat, sleep, fight and sometimes sing. Families of five are packed into a single room, sleeping in shifts, shar-ing communal kitchen facilities and lining up for the house's only toilet.

When the immigrants move in, the white neighbors move out one by one and the repress-ing pattern of discrimination begins.

"This area has passed the first stage of assimilation," said a social worker. "White and colored people don't fight each other in the street any-more. They just avoid each other.

"Right now its anyone's guess whether North Kensington be-comes a Harlem-type ghetto or evolves into a workable multi-racial society. It largely de-pends on the second generation of immigrants, the ones just beginning to graduate from the high schools."

Housing is the heart of the problem with Britain's colored immigrants. Education and, at least in these days of high em-ployment, getting a job are comparatively simple matters.

School boards keep no re-cords based on race but a spokesman for the education ministry says most immigrant children mix freely and develop naturally with white children.

In some schools with a high enrolment of Asian students, special programs have been mounted to teach children Eng-lish and help them catch up in elementary subjects.

"The children are fine," says a young primary, school-mistress who presides over a play-ground group that would make a die-hard segregationist blanch, his worst fears about "coffee-colored societies" visibly con-firmed.

"It's when their mothers come to collect them that the fighting starts. I've seen an Irish mother tearing into a West Indian waife their own children went on playing with each other."

JOBS ARE KEY

The time of real tension, so-cial workers believe, will come soon when the second greater tion immigrants begin to ma-triculate and find that despite their qualifications, they cannot get the good jobs that go auto-matically to their white school friends.

Outside of medicine, only a sprinkling of the colored popu-lation find managerial or pro-fessional posts.

Part of the reason is differ-ing standards. A qualified phy-trician in Jamaica probably lacks the knowledge to satisfy a London employer. But there is evidence that many British firms are reluctant, on grounds that can only be put down to color, to employ immigrants in responsible positions.

Meanwhile the vast majority of the nation's 800,000 - odd colored population are content to earn comparatively high wages as unskilled or semi skilled laborers, working in res-taurants, on building sites or manning public utility and transportation systems.

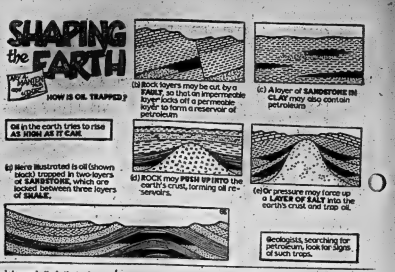
The trouble comes when the two races quit work and head home.

The average Englishman seems prepared to work cheer fully beside a Pakistani, travel home in a subway train driven by a West Indian but gets an noyed if the immigrant drinks in the same bar and moves in next door.

Unless he has friends, finding a room can be a nightmare for the newly arrived immigrant and landlords boards in poorer districts of London are crammed with advertisements for rooms to let to "Europeans only." Some say bluntly: "No colored's please."

NOTHING PERSONAL

"I don't let to Greeks, Ne-groes, Indians or Irish," volun teered a Canadian-born land-lady in Notting Hill. "It's the other tenants, you see. Person-ally I don't mind the blacks but then again, I'd hate to use the same bathrub as they do."



Organized "white supply" re-sidential associations in better class areas force immigrants to congregate in poorer dis-tricts like North Kensington, where there is already a five-year waiting list for council-built apartments and houses.

When he does get a room, the immigrant often finds himself being exploited by one of his own kind, a colored landlord who has scrimped and saved to buy his property and is deter-mined to squeeze as much out of the seller's market as he can.

Because there aren't enough new houses to go around, whole streets scheduled for demolition become slums. Local councils that would like to dispossess owners of crowded, unsanitary houses are in the awkward po-sition of finding new accommo-dation for the residents.

If they put immigrants into new council apartments, white-who have waited for years be-come understandably furious.

Along the Portobello Road the signs are clear. A ban on further immigration may ease the tension. The new Labor gov-ernment's proposed anti - dis-crimination law may help a bit But Britain won't begin to solve its colored immigration prob-lem until it first solves its hous-ing problem.

Hutterite Leaders Win Instant Agreement to Form 16th Colony in Province

REGINA (CP) — Hutterite leaders won instant agreement from government officials and residents of the Bethune, Sask., area this year when they suggested that the 16th Hutterite colony in the province be set up there.

It struck a contrast with 1953 when the first Hutterite colony moved into Saskatchewan in the southwest near Maple Creek and encountered strong opposition from residents.

It also reflected the change since the situation only eight years ago when opposition to Hutterites prompted the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities to ask for legislation restricting their purchases of land.

Authorities say the new attitude toward the isolationist, pacifist Protestant sect has been the result of a government program introduced in 1956.

"There isn't a Hutterite problem in Saskatchewan," says David Sanders, a Vancouver lawyer who in May published a report of the Institute entitled "A Case Study in Minority Rights."

"The Saskatchewan approach is certainly the most enlightened and progressive of any jurisdiction."

NO HATE CAMPAIGN

Ray Woollam of Calgary, director of Group Resources Consultant Services and liaison agent between the Saskatchewan government and the Hutterites, said in an interview here:

"The Alberta anti-Hutterite hate campaign has been avoided in Saskatchewan.

"In Saskatchewan there has been a careful program of mutual co-operation between colonies and the government and a program of providing effectual information about Hutterian life in communities where they propose to locate."

Both men were talking about conditions brought about under the former CCF government of Saskatchewan, defeated in the April 23 election, but the present Liberal administration has made no move to change the policy.

The Hutterite sect, founded during the 16th century Protestant Reformation in southern Germany by Jacob Hutter, arrived in Manitoba and Alberta about the time of the First World War after fleeing persecution in Germany, Russia and the mid-western United States.

AGAINST MATERIALISM

Today there are about 6,500 Hutterites in Alberta, 1,900 in Manitoba and 1,600 in Saskatchewan. Seventy thousand remain in five U.S. states.

These industrious, frugal and deeply religious people came to Canada only after receiving assurance that they would be exempt from military service.

The Hutterites, distinguished by their black clothes do not take part in civic or political affairs. Their isolationism stems from a belief that modern society is too materialistic.

The colonies are run on a communal basis. Education is generally goes only to about Grade 8.

During the Second World War the young men remained at home and helped build up an efficient network of farms in Alberta. They were able to expand their land holdings with money made through rising wartime prices.

Land values were pushed up and this annoyed Alberta veterans returning home after the war with hopes of buying their own farms. They were joined by merchants in towns who complained that Hutterites because of their emphasis on spartan living, contributed little to community economy.

PASSED LAW

This has been disputed by a survey of Hutterite trading in one Alberta community which shows that except for food, in which the people are almost self-sufficient, they buy just as much in town as the ordinary farmer.

Faced with growing resentment, the Alberta government passed a law preventing the Hutterites from further expanding their land holdings or setting up new colonies without approval of a community property control board. The law specified that new colonies could not be established within 40 miles of an existing colony without government permission.

In recent years the board has generally ignored applications for permission to buy land anywhere in southern Alberta where most of the existing colonies are located, although it has approved purchases in less developed northern areas.

The usual pattern is for a Hutterite colony to split in two when it reaches 100 persons. But since few older Hutterites want to leave friends and relatives and move hundreds of miles away, some present colonies in Southern Alberta are becoming overcrowded.

Manitoba Hutterites voluntarily agreed to buy land on a checkerboard pattern and so avoid a situation that would make undue economic impact on economies of nearby towns.

In Saskatchewan a government committee studied the question in 1957-58 and concluded that the aim of government policy should be development of dispersed Hutterite colonies.

VERBAL AGREEMENTS

The Saskatchewan government now has reached verbal agreements (the Hutterites will not enter a legal agreement as a matter of principle) with the Hutterites under which they agree to the government when they contemplate a settlement in the province, recognize the principle of dispersion of colonies, and agree that colonies should be where possible be located close to large market areas.

The Hutterites voluntarily limit the size of individual colonies and the province has undertaken to avoid regulation of land purchases so long as the agreement is honored.

The provincial government also distributes literature on Hutterite ways of life to residents of communities where colonies are to be set up. The result, government officials say, is seen in the swift, unquestioning acceptance of the new colony in the Bethune area 22 miles northwest of Regina.

2 Sailor-Fishermen-Traders Of Bristol May Have Found Nfld. 3 Years Before Cabot

By ED WALTERS

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP)—Robert Thorne and Hugh Elyot, two obviously fearless sailor fishermen - traders of Bristol England, may have discovered Newfoundland three years before John Cabot's voyage of 1497.

Thorne's son, also named Robert, in a letter to Edward Lee, English Ambassador to Spain, written in 1527 said his father and Elyot "were the discoverers of the Newfound Landes."

Although the letter no longer exists, four copies of it, differ ent in certain aspects including the spelling of names, survive. A doctor named John Dee had Thorne's letter transcribed and used it as a basis for a statement of Elizabeth I's title to North America.

The statement says in part "Circa an. 1494. Mr. Robert Thorn his father, and Mr. Elyot of Bristow, discovered New found Land."

The same statement mentions the Cabot voyage of 1497, although it mistakenly names John Cabot's son Sebastian as commander of the Matthew.

Surviving records as published by the Hakluyt Society of England, a historical group concerned with early explora tion, indicate that John Cabot knew of earlier discoveries of land almost directly west of England but then thought is be a northeast corner of Asia.

CALLED BRASIL

Europeans of the time were not aware the American continent existed and the island discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1492 was believed to be part of the Orient.

Eight years ago, a letter written in 1497 by John Day, an Englishman, was discovered in the archives at Simancas, Spain. It appeared to have been sent to Columbus.

Describing the land Cabot had explored, the letter says "It is considered certain that the cape of the said land was found and discovered in the past by the men from Bristol who found Brasil, as your lordship knows."

The Isle of Brasil was the name given to a land which 15th - century adventurers believed lay to the west. When Cabot first went to Bristol in 1496 the men there were firmly convinced of Brasils existence. And some researchers read the evidence of early voyages to mean that mariners found s land in the west, as early as 1480.

Fishing ships from England, including Bristol had on many years been making annual voyages to Iceland where their masters possibly heard tales of Lief Eriksen's voyage to Labrador and Newfoundland in the 11th century.

BEATEN BACK

In 1452 the Portuguese, who traded regularly to Bristol, reported that a ship from the Azores tried to find land believed to lie in the northwest Atlantic but that it was beaten back by the winds.

Starting about 1480, the merchants of Bristol, engaged largely in the Iceland fishing trade, willingly spent large sums of money fitting out ships to look for land to the west. It's unlikely they would have put up the money unless they were fairly certain the land existed.

A merchant named John Jay was a part-owner of a ship that left Bristol July 15, 1480, to look for land to the west. She was commanded by John Lloyd, described as the most expert mariner of England. However, after nine weeks of bad weather she was driven back to Ireland.

On July 6, 1481, the ships George and Trinity left Bristol "to serch and fynde a certain isle called the Isle of Brasile."

There is no record whether they found anything, but the Trinity is known to have returned since she shows in customs records two years later.

It's believed significant that the vessels each took 40 bushels of salt, too much for the crew to eat. As they were apparently not going fishing in Iceland, they may have expected to find fish elsewhere.

FISHED ON BANKS

Pedro de Ayala, a Spanish representative in London, reporting in 1498 on John Cabot's voyage, wrote to his king that Bristol had been sending two or three ships a year since 1491 in search of a land to the west.

Some historians believe these voyages were actually fishing trips to the great banks off Newfoundland but that the merchants simply didn't bother to spread word of the discovery.

There is also some indication that Cabot may have taken with him in the Mathew mariners who had earlier made the voyage and that he was seeking to explore where they had merely fished.

One such indication is that Cabot noticed, but was apparently unconcerned by, a westward variation in the compass of 22 ½ degrees in mid-Atlantic, according to John Day's letter.

The variation in Europe at the time was in the east and therefore a change to the west would ordinarily puzzle a European navigator. This appears to support the contention that he was not the first to venture into that part of the North Atlantic during the 15th century.

Loneliest Orphan in U. S. May Be Tiny Point Roberts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hawaii and Alaska notwithstanding, the loneliest orphan in the United States may well be tiny Point Roberts.

It is a six-square-mile penin sula jutting below the international border into the Strait of Georgia. Lacking any physical link with the rest of Washing ton State, it is governed locally by 200 American residents but dominated in every other way by 1,500 permanent Canadian residents and 600,000 more who visit every year.

Border checks are a cursory ritual for entry into this fast fading sack of land. A jumble of deteriorating cottages, its future is dim for two main reasons:

—It is dependent on Canada, but Canadians cannot invest in it beyond the ownership of single plots of land by special amendment of the Washington state constitution.

—It is too small and too isolated to support any basic commerce or industry linked to the U.S. mainland.

USED BY RUM-RUNNERS

Its geography was once a boon—making it ideal for prohibition rum-runners and a base for salmon-trapping up the Fraser River. The trend of its recent development has been forced upon it — a summer home, recreation and entertainment oasis for the lower main land of British Columbia.

An attempt was made by Washington planners two years ago to have Point Roberts declared an official distress area eligible for federal aid. This failed, and the new plan centres on orderly development as a recreational area with a large boat harbor.

A movement is afoot in Canada to make it an international park, but this is sharply criticized as an idea that can benefit only Canadians.

U.S. sovereignty over Point Roberts dates to the 1846 Treaty of Washington which settled the 49th parallel as the international boundary.

B.C. RECREATION SPOT — Point Roberts, Wash., is becoming a recreation and entertainment oasis for the Lower Mainland of British Columbia. The six-square-mile peninsula jutting below the international border in to the Strait of Georgia lacks any physical link with the rest of Washington State. It is governed locally by 200 American residents but dominated in every other way by 1,500 permanent Canadian residents and 600,000 more who visit every year. (CP Newsmap)

REMEMBRANCE SERVICES

MADOC — Remembrance services were observed Tuesday in the Madoc Public School, Madoc Township Public School and Madoc High School. In each of the public schools, the pupils of each grade participated in the program with the laying of the poppy wreath, readings, sentences of remembrance, Scripture readings and talks by Mr. John Bristol, representing the local Legion branch, and branch padre, Rev. James H. Thompson.

Against the setting of three white crosses on a green mat-ing, union jack and red ensign flags and a color party, a service of remembrance was held at the high school. The whole student body and teaching faculty assembled in the auditorium. A talk by Mr. John Bristol, emphasized the importance and symbol of the red poppy. Rev. J. H. Thompson spoke on the subject "What Makes War and Peace". The service continued with sentences of remembrance and thanksgiving said by John Weaver, Lesley Brintnell and Gordon Pitts. The last post and reveille was played by Cadet Murray Birch, and the laying of the wreath by Cadet Major John Bird.

Seven Legion members travelled to the Greenbush Cemetery, St. Ola, to give Legion tribute burial ceremony to the late Mr. Palmer, a war veteran. Padre J. H. Thompson conducted the graveside service.

PROBE SEA BOTTOM

MESSINA, Italy (AP) — An eight - member German scientific expedition has begun probing the bottom of the Tyrrhen ian Sea to determine whether all of Italy's volcanoes resulted from one large, fissure in the earth. If they find the bases of the volcanoes begin at about the same depth, it will support a theory that the volcanoes were created in a single eruption opening the earth's crust.

Eager U.K. Response For Teachers Overseas

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—A campaign begun three years ago to recruit British teachers for service in Commonwealth countries has inspired an eager response in spite of Britain's own insatiable demand for teaching staff.

J. Kenneth Thompson, head of social services recruitment for the new ministry of overseas development which began life in 1960 as the department of technical co-operation, told a meeting of the Royal Commonwealth Society that the ministry's 1964 target of 720 teachers is certain to be surpassed. 680 teachers had already been appointed to Commonwealth posts in the first nine months of the year.

"We British are inclined to underestatement and are not given to blowing our own trumpet," Thompson said.

"But the fact is that in a time of educational expansion and teacher shortage in this country we have responded in a remarkable way to appeals from the Commonwealth . . . to make possible a great expansion of secondary education by sending them trained teachers."

1,000 IN 1965

Pointing out there still are 741 vacancies in 55 countries to be filled, Thompson said the ministry's 965 target will be raised to 1,000.

"We do not apologize for depriving Britain of these teachers for a short while. We believe their experience overseas will enrich the teaching profession in Britain in years to come.

"Indeed, we are working towards the time when teaching will be a much more attractive idea because it carried within it the exciting prospect of at least one period of service overseas in a Common wealth country."

Thompson, who attended the third Commonwealth educational conference in Ottawa last August, devoted most of his address to an account of the conference's work and the specifically British contributions. These included undertakings to, —Increase to 550 from 450 the places available in British teacher-training institutions for Commonwealth teachers.

—Double the number of English language teachers for language centres throughout the Commonwealth, to 60 from 30.

—Increase to an average of £5,000,000 over the next five years grants of capital assistance for Commonwealth institutions of higher education including teacher-training colleges.

A new British suggestion which aroused considerable interest at the conference Thompson said, is a "study and serve" scheme. This would enable newly graduated Britons to take a post-graduate course of their choosing—not necessarily in teaching—at universities in development Commonwealth countries.

After this they would work in the country for at least a year in their chosen field.

Commenting that educational links are among the closest that bind the Commonwealth countries, Thompson said the Ottawa conference proved that mutual cooperation and discussion on a subject of deep concern and interest in all Commonwealth countries could help strengthen links that already existed.

He suggested that what has been done in the field of education since 1959—when the first Commonwealth education conference was held at Oxford—can be achieved in the field of medicine.

Condemned as Fire Hazard

Press Gallery Overflows Space

OTTAWA (CP)—The Parliamentary Press Gallery its 139 members overflowing space originally designed for 35 in the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings, has been asked by Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton to consider moving its main activity off Parliament Hill.

The issue has created some conflict within the Canadian Parliamentary Press Gallery Association, made up of the newspaper, magazine, radio and TV reporters who report news of Parliament and the government on a full - time basis.

A small gallery committee headed by President Peter Dempson of the Toronto Telegram has requested a meeting with Prime Minister Pearson to ask whether more space might be available to the Press Gallery on Parliament Hill. No date has been set for that meeting.

The committee was appointed at a general meeting of the Press Gallery Friday Oct. 30, the second of two meetings to discuss Mr. Macnaughton's proposal.

NOW IN CENTRE BLOCK

The Press Gallery quarters now are located in the Centre Block off a large second-floor corridor that runs between the Commons and Senate chambers. There is a large common room and two small ones, one set aside as a library-lounge.

These quarters have been occupied by the press since the centre block was reconstructed after the fire of 1917 destroyed most of the original building. At that time there were 39 Press Gallery members during sessions of Parliament and about 12 in off-session periods.

Gallery membership has since mushroomed, particularly in the last 10 years with the addition of radio and TV reporters. The original corridor has become jammed with desks, filing cabinets and partitions, a situation condemned as a fire hazard by the Dominion fire commissioner.

Even with the corridor filled, about 50 gallery members have no desks.

There is no rental charge. Desks, filing cabinets, office supplies and telephones are provided free. Mr. Macnaughton estimates the annual cost to the government at about $100,000.

Last year the government offered to provide larger quarters in the newly renovated West Block which is connected to the central building by an underground tunnel. The gallery voted against moving there.

PROPOSES MOVE

Mr. Macnaughton recently suggested to the gallery that it switch its main quarters to the Norlite Building, a seven-storey structure the government owns on Wellington Street just across from the West Block.

He said that the corridor now used by the gallery must be cleared; that there is adequate space available in either the Centre or West Blocks; and that the Press Gallery cannot be divided between two buildings.

The public works department would renovate the Norlite Building, make all the partitioning required, install a cooling system and provide the essential clerical staff.

In return, Press Gallery members would pay "economic" rents to cover costs probably $3.25 a year a square foot. The Norlite Building has 40,000 square feet of usable space, the present quarters 8,418 square feet.

Mr. Macnaughton has also proposed that the present Centre Block quarters be turned into a "hot room" with common facilities for filing urgent news.

Some Press Gallery members already occupy private offices in downtown Ottawa for personal desks and telex, using the gallery facilities only for last-breaking news.

ROOM TO EXPAND

A group of members is hotly opposed to moving, however, arguing it would make working more difficult and be a break with tradition that could lead to removal of other long-held gallery privileges on Parliament Hill such as parking, access to Commons lobbies and use of the private restaurant.

Members backing the move say it would remove the stigma of "tree-loading" from reporters, allow them more privacy and eliminate serious overcrowding.

The Speaker also suggested that the National Press Club, now renting space above a restaurant on Confederation Square two blocks from Parliament Hill, could occupy the top floor of the Norlite Building.

Other space in the building not needed by gallery members would be used for members of Parliament and the parliamentary staff. But these offices would move out as the gallery expanded.

Mr. Macnaughton has set a tentative deadline of April 1 for a decision by the gallery Government offices now in the Norlite Building are due to move early next summer and it could be renovated for the Press Gallery by Oct. 1.

Cyprus Toll

More Sports Casualties Than on Peace Patrols

NICOSIA (CP) —The off-again, on-again civil strife in Cyprus has a number of contributors, and among them is the fact that the United Nations peace-keeping force there is suffering more "casualties" in organized sports programs than in its regular military operation.

At least that is what the Austrians say, and the Austrians are in a position to know. Austria's contribution to the UN effort in Cyprus is a 50-bed field hospital that looks after the medical, surgical and dental needs of 6,300 UN soldiers and civilian employees on the Mediterranean island.

In the relative calm of recent weeks, a spokesman for the contingent says Austrian doctors have spent most of their time treating such injuries as a chipped elbow suffered in a baseball game or a swollen ankle acquired in a soccer match.

The spokesman—Mrs. Charles Wimmer, 42, of Salzburg—disclosed that the number of hospital patients in late October was at an all-time low scarcely more than a dozen.

MANY TRAFFIC VICTIMS

Things were not always this quiet. In the peak period between March and early June there were as many as 150 admissions, 300 outpatients and 100 dental cases in a single month.

Most of the patients were victims of traffic accidents—perhaps through the unfamiliarity of driving on the left side of the narrow highways—or suffered from gastric enteritis, complaints like dysentery, the result of varied changes in climate and diet.

Recently, these cases dropped off sharply as UN soldiers became accustomed to Cyprus traffic; accidents in September were at an all-time low, an average of one a day.

Now the Austrians are bracing themselves for another wave of similar complaints as the various contingents complete their rotation and new men arrive on the island.

"This operation has cost the Austrian government about $240,000 over the first six months, but the operation is still vastly easier than the earlier one in The Congo where we wound up treating thousands of Africans," Mrs. Wimmer says. "In Cyprus, we can treat local people only in cases of emergency."

FLOWN TO VIENNA

Some Cypriots are treated at the hospital however. One Greek - Cypriot was sent to Vienna for treatment of a rare skin disease that could not be cured locally, and at least two Turkish - Cypriots also through the intestines during the fighting at Kokkina early in August—were patched up at the field hospital by a team of doctors in an operation that lasted from 11 p.m. to 9 a.m. the following day.

The field hospital itself, situated on a bare and arid plain south of Nicosia, retains the flavor of a concentration camp.

The buildings are low brick cabbages with tile floors and corrugated iron roofs, in a compound surrounded by two barbed-wire fences eight feet high.

Two wood - and - concrete watchtowers still stand, relics of the late 1950s when the camp was used by the British for the detention and interrogation of Greek-Cypriot EOKa terrorists.

The Austrians have relieved the grim aspect a little with borders of bright flowers along the paths and climbing vines which mask some of the barbed wire.

Lacking space inside the compound for most team sports, the Austrians used some ingenuity and constructed what they believe is Cyprus' first bowling alley.

Their outdoor "kegelbahn" is a single painted concrete strip about the width of a sidewalk open in the middle but protected at both ends with shelters improvised of scrap corrugated iron. Bowlers let fly at the clumsy wooden pins with heavy India rubber balls.

PARISHLESS CHURCH

London's famed "Marie" Bow church no longer has a parish—today it is surrounded by office blocks and Sunday services have been discontinued.

Canada Outdoors

Can Hunt in Luxury In Provincial Park

LE DOMAINE, Que. (CP)—You can fish for pike, hunt or camp in the wilderness and wine and dine in luxury — all without straying far from Le Domaine.

Le Domaine is a collection of unpretentious white frame buildings set on the banks of Lac des Loups (Wolf Lake) 35 miles deep in La Verendrye Park in western Quebec.

At first glance the region looks wild and lonely.

"Ah, but here in Le Domaine one savors real Quebec hospitality," says Lionel Fertand, Quebec's minister of tourism, game and fish.

"The cuisine, c'est parfait," he says, referring to the emphasis on such French-Canadian dishes as hog's hocks, pea soup or la tourtiere (a meat pie) in the government-operated chalet.

Industrialist Herb O'Connell built the chalet in the early 1950s as a place to entertain his friends, many of them flew into the area in small planes on a landing strip he laid out two miles away.

He put up some large cottages for his friends and for workers he hired to build the first dirt road through the domain.

A one-room building he put up a short east from the chalet became a sort of Las Vegas style night club with slot machines but without strippers. It now houses the park's biologists' laboratory.

BIG GAME PARK

The provincial government later turned the area into a 5,000-square-mile park, named after the discoverer of the Canadian Rockies, Sieur de la Verendrye, and took over operation of the chalet, although Mr. O'Connell's name in big faded white letters can still be read on the red-shingle roof.

The Outdoor Writers of Canada, meeting in Quebec for the first time, got an opportunity to see the park when Mr. Bertrand played host to the organization this fall.

The Indian summer weather prompted the writers to adjourn their meetings early and try their hand at fishing. Guide Eddie Warner took one party out on the lake for a couple of hours, long enough for each member to snag his quota of five walleye—still fishing with minnows.

Ron J. Cooke, a Montreal magazine publisher, was one delegate who bar been fishing the lake for years.

Britain Experiencing Crime Boom and Lawbreakers Getting Away With Murder

LONDON (AP) — Britain is experiencing a crime boom. The cleverest lot of lawbreakers this country has ever known are reversing an old maxim to prove that crime does pay.

Last year's highlight was the $7,000,000 great train robbery in Buckinghamshire —the biggest cash crime in history, carried off with breath-taking precision. Most of the loot still is unrecovered.

This year may be known as the big escape year. Hardly a day passes but escapes are reported from British prisons, including the maximum-security penitentiaries.

No. 1 escapist was Charles Frederick Wilson, one of the great train robbers who had hardly settled in the maximum security cell where he was sentenced to spend 30 years in solitary.

The great train robbery and the Wilson escape opened Britons' eyes to the fact that this country's criminals through the years have been outracing the law.

As one expert put it:

"Criminals, from petty thieves to wage-robbers (payroll bandits), have never been members of a less risky, more rewarding business. Crime is booming. The gap between robberies and the number of robbers caught and punished grows increasingly wide. And the professional criminal becomes more skilled and better organized."

ODDS FAVOR CRIME

It is estimated that the chances a holdup man in London will be caught and convicted today are 3 to 1 in the criminal's favor. For house burglars the rate is 6 to 1 and for auto thieves as high as 10 to 1.

A Cambridge University professor of criminology estimates that not more than 15 per cent of crime committed in Britain is brought into the open for punishment.

Even when a criminal is caught his chances of escaping justice "never fall below 50 per cent," according to a Cambridge Institute study.

Before the Second World War the conviction rate in Britain was always over 90 per cent, the study noted.

It is estimated more than $70,000,000 worth of property will be stolen or obtained by fraud this year. Less than a quarter will be recovered, police estimate.

An alarming fact about the crime rate is that at the higher end of the scale it is better organized—in the case of the great train robbery and some big jewel robberies, it has been superb.

The meticulously planned, carefully executed robbery has been an increasing feature ever since the end of the war," an expert noted.

British criminologists and the newspapers have been noting with interest that United States police are using computers to fight crime gangs — to trap them with machine data that forecasts thrusts in advance.

This may not work in Britain because there are few permanent criminal gangs here. British crime rings, a study reported, generally are composed of individual criminals brought together for a specific job and disbanded afterward. One or two men might develop the initial idea for a serious crime. They recruit the extra men needed—probably making up a gang of six to 10 men.

GANGS GO BIG

The gangs organized to do the big jobs, such as London West End jewel shop breaks, get the best tools. They have tackled safes with thermic lances capable of 5,500 - degree heat thrust. Police experts say that gangs will lay out $10,000 for equipment to stage some jobs.

"There will be money to carry the individual criminals over the planning and watching period," one report said. "There may be an immediate payment of expenses for an expert brought from another part of the country, money to provide a safe hiding place for stolen getaway vehicles until the robbery, and perhaps bribes to by given. Money also for "insurance" for their families in case some gang members are caught."

Where are the police in this race with crime? Hopelessly behind, many critics claim. Scandals in their ranks have shaken morale and public confidence. The police claim they are not supplied the necessary manpower or equipment.

The weekly Spectator, in a recent lead article, argued:

"When criminals can concentrate the resources of skill, organization and finance shown in successful robbery after robbery, the unfortunate thinness of the police's equivalent assets is laid embarrassingly bare. . . The Munich-like state of our police defences—unable alike to retaliate or to deter—is demonstrated by the fact that Scotland Yard has yet to be given its first computer, which could sift in 20 minutes the number of fingerprints which at present laboriously occupy 50 men for six weeks."

The Wooden Walls of England Mean Dividends for Canada

LONDON (CP)—The Anglo-Canadian drive to promote timber-frame housing in Britain, now entering its most dynamic phase, has already produced dividends for Canadian lumber exporters.

Softwood exports to Britain in the first seven months of 1964 jumped to $43,000,000 from $38,010,000 in the comparable period of 1963—an increase of 21 per cent. Spruce in particular—widely used as a "carcassing" material in timber-frame housing — showed a dramatic increase, more than double the 1963 figure.

Britain still buys the bulk of her lumber from Scandinavia and the Baltic countries, with Canada commanding about a quarter of the market. But with the growing interest here in Canadian building methods and materials, Canadian government officials see exciting possibilities of expansion.

"I am confident that we will continue to increase our share of the market," said B. C. Butler, Canadian commercial minister in London.

"We really hit the jackpot two years ago," said Butler, explaining how two fortuitous circumstances helped jolt Britons —and the British government— into an awareness of Canadian style timber construction methods.

MISSION TO CANADA

One was the problem of finding cheaper methods of production and construction to cope with the government's annual housing target of 400,000 new homes—a target to which Britain's new Labor administration also is pledged. The second was the harsh winter of 1962-63, when shivering Britons began to ask how Canadians survived even tougher conditions year after year.

The answer to both problems was found by a British mission to Canada in June, 1963. A 16 member team of local government officials and timber-trade and building experts, headed by Sir Donald Gibson, a leading British architect and research director at the ministry of public works, toured building sites across Canada. They returned to British feeling Canada was 30 years ahead in the building business.

Their report, which became a government white paper, extolled the virtues of Canadian timber-frame construction, stressing its speed, labor-saving qualities and warm, dry living conditions. The report also outlined a three-phase program for getting the message across to British builders and home-buyers, based on a graduated introduction of demonstration homes.

DRY FROM START

Privately, Gibson was reported to have said that if timber-frame building did nothing else here it could help combat British rheumatism. In Britain's masonry-built homes, condensation from mortar and plaster has always been a problem, producing chill, damp conditions in a new house.

Long-suffering Britons buying newly built homes are resigned to waiting months for a house to "dry out." Canadian builders say the owner can move in the day the builder moves out.

Insulation in timber frame homes is three times better than in brick and mortar houses, cutting heating bills by a third.

British laborers working in the demonstration sites are impressed by the ease of installing heating apparatus, plumbing and electrical wiring in the well-spaced timber side joists. They also are amazed to find how fast a timber framework goes up. When the roof is on, the men work in the dry.

Saving in labor is a particularly strong selling-point for the building trade in a country where six jobs chase every skilled bricklayer.

The program outlined in the government white paper now is well under way. Three pairs of semi - detached demonstration homes opened to the public in late October and early November—spaced across the country in Hertfordshire, Lancashire and Scotland.

CANADIANS IN CHARGE

The houses were built with Canadian materials under Canadian government auspices with contributions from Canadian building-trade associations. Canadians also supervised the British labor force.

One house of each pair was left unfinished to show its construction. Each pair will be donated to the local government authority.

Other demonstration homes have been put up by Scots and Canadian companies.

The climax of the three-phase demonstration mass-selling methods, with its own small on-site factory—still is in the works. Several sites have been suggested by the British government. It is possible the new town will be chosen. The Wilson administration plans one in Wales, where a Canadian construction company already operates in Swansea.

Some deep - rooted British prejudices about timber were investigated by the 1963 mission. Fire risk and wood-boring insects, attracted by damp wood, rated low in Canadian experience — and as a setting ground for damp climatic conditions, areas of British Columbia are similar to Britain.

British insurance companies however, do tend to charge higher rates for fire coverage in timber-framed houses than do their Canadian counterparts. This even applies to British branches of Canadian firms.

Youth Column

Professional Display For Teenage Artists

TORONTO (CP)—The work of high school artists gets professional display at an unusual Toronto art gallery.

Showcase for the High-Art Foundation, the gallery is a non-profit experiment aimed at encouraging young artists and giving them practical help.

The work of the foundation has been centred in Toronto since its founding 20 months ago but it has a federal charter and the hope is that it will eventually spread across Canada.

Of the paintings by its young proteges were shown in an international exhibit in Tokyo in October. And the foundation has awarded its first two scholarships—one to a painter and one to a sculptor—and has made other awards to exhibitors.

WOMAN IS FOUNDER

Founder of the High - Art Foundation is Mrs. Hartley Hunter of Toronto, art collector, art subscriber and former head of the conservation department of the National Gallery in Ottawa.

Mrs. Hunter says it was a small thing that prompted her to start the foundation.

"It was something I read—that Toronto was the lowest contributor to the arts per capita in the Americas.

"There is a need for encouragement in the fine arts and particularly, in sculpture which I have always felt was a forgotten art."

She says too much young talent was being lost for lack of opportunity to develop partly because of a lack of scholarships at the high school graduating level.

The first two foundation school awards are valued at about $600. They cover school fees plus such things as lunches, carfare, locker fees and materials.

Mrs. Hunter says the school awards are based on what a specific student needs and therefore may vary from case to case.

If a student does well his scholarship will be extended, even to cover study abroad, she says.

The first two students are attending the Ontario College of Art here but "after that year they may study anywhere in the world and we will still pay the whole shot."

Most of the foundation's funds to date have come from Mrs. Hunter personally—she wanted to be sure the idea would work—before asking others to contribute—but now she says contributions will be gratefully accepted from industry or private donors. Because of the foundation's federal charter, they are tax-exempt.

PICKED BY STUDENTS

Mrs. Hunter says the foundation incorporates several novel ideas. For one thing, the students themselves choose the paintings to be exhibited. The gallery has seven exhibitions of work from Grade 12 and 13 students representing all Toronto city schools.

"The students volunteered to man the gallery so they would hear unbiased comment, and it has taught them." During the first 18 months 15,000 visitors signed the gallery guest book.

Mrs. Hunter and other foundation representatives intend to visit other parts of Canada to talk about the work it is doing. And some award-winning paintings and sculptures are being held for eventual showing to students and teachers around the country.

"In time, I think, each province will have to have its own gallery to show in."

UK Autos Still Ahead Of Continent Models

LONDON (CP)—The British Motor Show, the world's most glamorous display of the auto body beautiful, demonstrates once again that the British emphasis on improvement rather than innovation is paying off.

Before noon on opening day British manufacturers had picked up orders worth £94,000,000 and were assured of another record when all contracts were tallied.

As usual most of the orders come from big foreign importers, domestic car-hir ers and the like who cash in on the publicity value of a first-day spend ing spree. The great mass of visitors to the annual show are "just looking, thank you."

In fact it is almost impossible for an individual to buy a car at the exhibition, unless he has his eye on one of the high-priced autos whose manufacturers traditionally insist on the right to deal directly with the purchaser.

One surprising feature is the volume of sales in sports cars in the £4,000-to-£8,000 range—the "young man's car" that few young men can afford.

"If you see one of our cars on the road," said a dealer, "you can rely on it that the driver will never see 60 anyr and it will never exceed 60 miles an hour."

But despite big sales in these expensive lines the mo-e ortho dox models remain the bread and butter products of the in dustry, which is the main cog in Britain's export business.

One of the star attractions was the new Aston Martin DB5, the bullet-proof car used in the James Bond film Goldfinger with such devices as a radar scanner, ejector seat for unwanted passengers, and twin machine-guns mounted beneath each headlight.

And the result of this exhibition shows that British cars are keeping comfortably ahead of the products of Germany and France, their two main competitors for sales orders.

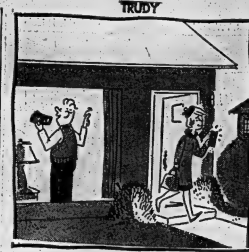
North American and continental manufacturers have long been poles apart in their approach to design—the Americans changing the body styles as often as possible and the Europeans sticking to a basic model and concentrating on inner improvements.

Now British designers after a brief and somewhat half-hearted flirtation with the American system, seem to be again leaning to the ways of their continental cousins.

The British Motor Corporation is leading the trend with its Mini, Austin 1100 and the new Austin 1800 in the expectation that the heavy initial cost of tooling up can be offset by spreading it over a number of years. Triumph has announced a similar policy and is expected the Rover 2000 also will remain basically uncharged for some years.

The theory is that steady development of the same basic model will eliminate many of the troublesome problems that seem ever present with short-run models.

Rawdon



RAWDON — On Friday evening following the commencement exercises of Stirling Rawdon District High School, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Murrey, Stirling R.F.D. 1, entertained a number of guests to a coffee party in honor of their son, David. The group included the graduating class of Grade 13, and their friends, several staff members and relatives.

David is taking a military course at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, Esquimalt, B.C. He came by plane on Thursday evening and returned to B.C. Saturday morning. David gave the valedictory address at the Commencement.

Rawdon A.O.T.S. Men's Club convened in Bethel United Church Hall on Thursday evening for their monthly pot-luck supper meeting.

President Kenneth Trumpkins presided and John Carlisle gave the devotional. Rev. W. G. Fletcher conducted the hymn singing and Frederick Beckett gave the fellowship report. Charles B. Pearce of River Valley gave an illustrated address which depicted the scenic beauties of the Canadian Rocky Mountains.

Ralph Jeffs introduced the speaker and Jack Dunham voiced thanks for the interesting message. The members were reminded that the annual district A.O.T.S. round-up will be held in Mount Pleasant Rawdon Church Hall on Saturday.

"Now, look at the bill—do you still say Franklin is on a twenty?"

W. Huntingdon

WEST HUNTINGDON — A party was held recently in honor of newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Archer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wilson. Mac Sarles acted as chairman for the gathering.

The party opened with a sing-song, led by Heather Grant, accompanied by Doris Donnan on the accordion. This was followed by a selection by Bill Grant on the violin accompanied by Mrs. Grant at the piano.

There were speeches by Mrs. Melville Donnan and Bob Wood followed by an address to the bride and bridegroom by Miss Doris Donnan.

Mr. and Mrs. Archer opened their gifts, expressed their thanks and extended an invitation to these present to visit them at their home in Belleville.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wright were Mrs. Edith Gay of Belleville, Mrs. Raymond Baker and Brenda of Kingston and Mrs. Carl Bateman and children of Belleville.

Mr. "Tommy" Cole passed away suddenly at the home of Ambrose Wright on Thursday, Nov. 5th.

Mrs. Harry Thompson has returned to her home after a stay with Mr. and Mrs. Mac Sharpe and family, Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. William Fox of Toronto is spending a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wilson.

Can't Break Kremlin Party For High-Class Gossip

MOSCOW (CP)—For a really high-class gossip session you can't beat a Kremlin reception.

The setting — St. George's Hall, most magnificent of all the rooms in the Kremlin Grand Palace, an architectural ensemble with antecedents back to the 15th century.

The people—Communist party and Soviet government elite, very often a famous visiting statesman, now and then Russian space heroes, foreign ambassadors.

The fare — hors d'oeuvres, meats and fish, caviar and bread, mineral water, cognac, white and red wine, coffee, ice cream.

The guests tie into the tempting layout while exchanging gossip on the latest wrinkles in Soviet foreign policy or Kremlin power struggles—who, loses, who wins, who's in, who's out.

Huge crystal chandeliers glitter from above, their beams dancing off a handsome floor of inlaid red and brown woods.

On the marble walls, still in place, are engraved quotations, insignia from czarist times and the names of thousands of czarist army officers.

Kremlin receptions follow a set pattern: arrival of some honored guest at the palace, and his slow progress up a long carpeted stairway leading to St. George's Hall; the playing of the national anthems; presentation to the diplomatic corps; then the mass swoop on tables laden with goodies.

The honored guest, the party leaders of the Soviet Communist party, top level officials and diplomats rub shoulders at one end of the hall, separated by table barricades from correspondents and lesser officials.

Diplomats and reporters, who basically are in the same game on such occasions, sometimes converse across the tables dividing them, swapping titbits of information.

The discussions are interrupted only by one or two short, formal speeches in which the guest of honor and his Soviet government hosts exchange pleasantries.

These usually occur about halfway through the reception, which normally lasts about two hours but may pack up sooner or last longer depending on the occasion.

Sometimes you get the most revealing insights. For instance, the sight of a Soviet cabinet minister hobbobbing with nobodies near the back of the room, brings home with heavy impact the fact that the only people who count in this society are members of the party presidium.

Sometimes you see things that look portentous. The night following the announcement of Nikita Khrushchev's downfall there happened to be a reception for Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos.

Foreign observers thought that the Soviet army brass stood farther away from the party elite that night than on previous occasions.

This, it was said, tended to confirm reports that the military was due for a shakeup under the new regime and that Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky — not present — had been sacked. In the days that followed, there was no confirmation of these rumors.

Sometimes you see things that don't seem particularly significant at the time but come back with a flash when subsequent events lend them special meaning.

The evening of Sept. 30, a reception was held for President Sukarno of Indonesia. Vividly recalled now is the sight of Leonid Brezhnev and Alexei Kosygin in animated conversation between themselves and among others.

Khrushchev was not present. He had left that morning for a Black Sea vacation. The next he saw Moscow, two weeks later, was when he came back to be drummed out of the party hierarchy and government.

The men who inherited Khrushchev's power; Brezhnev and Kosygin.

Religious Liberty Vote Evaded By Vatican Council

Leger Joins Protest To Pope About Action

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Presiding cardinals at the Vatican ecumenical council ordered its controversial declaration on religious liberty put aside today by Two U.S. cardinals and a Canadian cardinal were reported to have protested the action and carried a petition to Pope Paul.

The council was to have voted today on whether to give more time to study the declaration or proceed to an immediate vote of acceptance or rejection.

Instead, council spokesman said, Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, one of 12 cardinals form ing the council steering committee, announced there would be no vote at all on the declaration at this council session, which ends Saturday.

That meant there would be no further action on the document until the council meets again, possibly in 1966.

PROTEST LETTER

Council sources said Joseph Cardinal Ritter of St. Louis, Albert Cardinal Meyer of Chicago and Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal immediately prepared a petition for the Pope, protesting the action and saying it was up to all the 2,000 council fathers to decide whether there should be a vote.

These sources said the three cardinals circulated the petition during the council meeting and collected between 800 and 1,000 signatures. The cardinals then went to the Pope's apartment.

There was no immediate indication whether the Pope would act on the petition.

SHARE WITH POPE

The council fathers meanwhile cleared the way for the proclamation of a major doctrinal decree declaring that bishops of the Roman Catholic Church collectively share authority with the Pope over the church.

The fathers said the council approved the schema De Ecclesia, on the nature of the church, in a final vote of 2,134 to 10. It will be proclaimed as the church decree by the council and the Pope at the closing pub-

Postpone Debate On New Flag

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The political parties furled the flag Tuesday in favor of working for the next seven days on the government's spending program.

But the all-party agreement that the postpone the flag debate produced a sign that another battle is in the offing over demands that the proposed national labor code be dealt with before the recommendation of a Common committee on a Canadian flag design.

The Commons had been scheduled to start the flag debate Thursday but a lengthy discussion in the caucus meetings of the various parties followed by a meeting of the House leaders produced the postponement.

The arrangement, announced by Privy Council President George Nowlan who is government leader in the Commons, was made a special order of the Commons.

Under it the remaining departmental spending of 15 departments will be considered and approved between now and Nov. 27, including the appropriation bill covering the money involved.

AGREEMENT LIMITED

But the agreement was limited only to that period. Two other major items remain—the flag and the national labor code.

The question of which of these items will be dealt with first resulted in a sharply-worded wrangle in the Commons between the New Democrats and the Liberals.

New Democratic Leader Douglas, noting that the labor code affects some 500,000 workers, asked assurance from Prime Minister Pearson that it will be proceeded with before

Labor Might Be Willing to Talk About Policy of Income Control

OTTAWA (CP) — Could Canada ever have a so-called "incomes policy"?

It is a touchy subject, rarely if ever raised in labor-management - government discussions. The unions are particularly sensitive on the issue.

However, a leading official now says the Canadian labor movement is willing to at least discuss and explore the question if the target is a "genuine" incomes policy and not just wage restraint.

William Dodge, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, offered some views on the issue in a paper to the labor-management conference in Ottawa last week.

The conference was closed to the press. But its sponsor, the Economic Council of Canada, soon will publish pot only working research papers prepared for the meeting but the comments of various management and labor leaders.

Mr. Dodge said in part:

"Any attempt to control "incomes policy is due to the fact that in the past, and in certain circumstances, labor has not meant what it appears to mean at all; it has meant wage policy."

"And 'wage policy' itself has often been a soothing euphemism for 'profit protection.'"

The CLC official said any discussion of such a policy would have to include:

—Returns from land, including rents, speculative profits on land sales, and appreciation of land values.

—Returns to capital, including interest, dividends whether distributed or undistributed, capital gains and other forms of income.

—Returns to entrepreneurship, including salaries, stock options, expense accounts and other fringe benefits.

Mr. Dodge said there seems to be "a dangerous assumption in some circles" that complex economic problems have made traditional collective bargaining obsolete, and that it should be replaced by some system of national wage decrees.

He said some of the European countries have tried anything like that.

Pension Bill Is Approved

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The bulky Canada Pension Plan legislation was on its way to a joint Senate-Commons committee today for detailed study with one Commons member advocating Parliament sit until it comes back to the House.

Before the lengthy bill was given approval in principle—second reading — by a 164-10-9 vote Wednesday, Frank Howard (NDP — Skeena) said the present session should be continued as long as mid-1965 if necessary so the plan can be given final approval.

Mr. Howard said that if the present session is ended before the committee concludes its study and hearing of witnesses the bill will be killed, making debate up to now "a senseless waste of time."

The government could then call an election and tell voters that it was Grits' fault it effective while quietly assuring private pension companies it would never be passed, he said.

Past Liberal party behavior indicates this could happen, he said, and the government in the present session can the government avoid a charge of insincerity.

NAMES MEMBERS

The Commons has appointed its 15 committee members but there has been no indication when hearings are to begin.

During the three-day debate this week two Conservatives—Gordon Aiken (Parry Sound-Muskoka) and former health minister J. Waldo Monteith—said the committee should not be rushed.

Mr. Aiken doubted it could report by the end of the year. Mr. Monteith said sufficient time should be allowed before hearings commence so that briefs can be prepared.

Every member present for the vote backed the legislation but all members of the Creditiste party were absent.

The plan initially would cover between 4,500,000 and 5,000,000 Canadians in nine provinces. Quebec has decided to stay out in favor of its own similar plan.

Beginning in 1966, earnings between $600 and $5,000 annually are to be taxed at a rate of 3.6 per cent, shared equally between employer and employee. Self - employed persons would pay the full 3.6 per cent themselves.

MAY RISE

Both Health Minister Judy LaMarsh and Finance Minister Gordon said rates may be increased in about a generation, but Mr. Gordon said any increase would not raise the combined percentage above five per cent.

During a 10-year transitional period starting in 1967, reduced benefits will be paid. Afterwards the maximum monthly benefit for a person retiring at age 65 would be $75 a month.

The provinces may borrow from the fund to finance educational, hospital, highway and other projects within provincial jurisdiction.

The legislation also contains an amendment to the Old Age Security Act to peg payments now at $75 a month—to the ROME POLICE HAVE A MAN-SIZE CASE — A Rome customs official looks at the four-foot-long trunk in which Josef Dahan, 30, a Morocco born linguist, was to be shipped to Cairo by two U.A.R. embassy officials who have been ordered expelled from Italy. Rome police said they had information that Dahan had been a spy for both the United Arab Republic and Israel.

Spy Says He Asked for Raise, Wound up Imprisoned in Trunk

ROME (AP) — Italian police said today the man they rescued from an Egyptian diplomatic trunk now says he is an Israeli who fled to Egypt, was jailed for six months and then forced to become a spy for the United Arab Republic.

He told police he wound up in the trunk after he asked his "contact" men at the U.A.R Embassy in Rome for a raise in pay.

When the police pulled him from the trunk Tuesday night, the man said he was Josef Dahan, a native of Morocco. Police said he now admits he is Mordechai ben Masud Louk, born near Tel Aviv.

A police spokesman in Tel Aviv had said earlier Dahan appeared from his description to be Louk, a 28-year-old carpenter who left his wife and four children in a small village near Tel Aviv in 1961 and crossed illegally into the Egyptian-held Gaza Strip.

Louk fled after he was called up for service in the Israeli Army. The Italian police sent his photograph and fingerprints to Tel Aviv and said Israel might ask his extradition as a deserter.

Louk said he gave a false name when first questioned because he was afraid of repercussions for his wife and children.

He told police that after he fled Israel, the Egyptians questioned him and then put him in jail for six months. He said that he finally agreed to work for "the organization."

Police said he was sent to Europe for economic espionage and worked in The Netherlands, Belgium and West Germany before being sent to Naples early this year.

Louk was rescued Tuesday by Egyptian spy information of real value, only bits and pieces of minor news to string them along.

This, police said, might have been the reason he got in trouble.

The Italian police had said earlier they had information the man had worked as a spy for the United Arab Republic and later for Israel. The spokesman in Tel Aviv said Louk had never worked for any Israeli authority or institution

Louk was rescued Tuesday night from a trunk labelled diplomatic mail as it was being loaded aboard a United Arab Airlines plane at Rome's Fiumicino Airport.

The trunk, fitted out with a stool, shoes and clamps to hold the feet and headgear for the head, was brought to the airport by two first secretaries of the U.A.R. Embassy in Rome. It was addressed to the U.A.R. foreign ministry in Cairo.

The two diplomats were expelled from Italy and left Wednesday night for Cairo.

FBI Chief Hits Commission, Calls Luther King a 'Liar'

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has blasted the Warren commission as "unfair, unjust" and called Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, "the most notorious liar in the country."

Hoover boiled over on these and other matters, including lenient "bleeding heart judges," in a lengthy interview Wednesday with a group of women reporters.

He angrily charged the Warren commission with "a classic example of Monday morning quarterbacking" in discussing its report on the assassination of president John F. Kennedy.

The commission, headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren of the U.S. Supreme Court, has said the FBI failed to notify the Secret Service that Lee Harvey Oswald, now in Dallas last Nov. 22, the day Kennedy was slain. Oswald was charged with the murder of the president but was killed himself by Jack Ruby.

Shortly after the commission issued its report Sept. 27, Hoover was involved in controversy. The Washington Evening Star published Oct. 2 a copyrighted partial transcript of the FBI director's testimony, some of which was sharply critical of the state department and some of the security measures taken

Nazi Papers Claim Pope Favored Axis

HAMBURG (AP) — The controversy over Pope Pius XII's actions in the Second World War revived today with reports in West Germany and Britain of Nazi documents alleging the Pontiff sympathized with the enemy powers.

A high Vatican official said the documents were "clearly partisan" because of their source. "They are documents from only one of the interested parties."

The German news magazine Der Spiegel reported that wartime German foreign policy documents, soon to be published in book form, revealed that Pope Pius tried to persuade the United States and Britain to shift to Germany's side against Russia. Der Spiegel said the documents "are a bit overdone for propaganda purposes."

"He never threatened Nazis with excommunication the way he did the Communists in 1949 and never allowed himself to be moved by appeals from the Western Allies to bless the democracies' crusade against Adolf Hitler," the magazine said.

The documents show, Der Spiegel continued, that when the Pope did condemn Nazi crimes, he did so "in his fliegree-type language and then only in general platitudes" and "he only protested if Catholics were involved."

Quick Capture Of Stanleyville Is Objective

Rebels Ready to Talk About Foreigners' Fate

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Congolese troops led by white mercenaries launched their drive on rebel Stanleyville today while the rebel regime there demanded negotiations on the fate of American medical missionary Paul Carlson and other foreigners in rebel territory.

The central government force moved out of Kindu, 250 miles south of Stanleyville, for what they hoped would be a quick seizure of the rebel capital.

Some 200 white mercenaries —mostly South Africans, Belgians and Britons — were believed to be spearheading between 300 and 500 Congolese troops.

Rebel leader Christophe Gbenye had announced postponement of the death sentence given Dr. Carlson, who had been scheduled to die last Monday, following an appeal from Kenya Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta. Gbenye said Kenyatta's plea for clemency would be carried out next Monday if no basis was found for negotiations on "the prisoners of war" by then.

U.S. WARNS REBELS

Gbenye also replied to a warning from U.S. Ambassador G. McMurtrie Godley that the rebels would be held responsible for the safety of more than 60 Americans in the rebel zone. Via Radio Stanleyville, Gbenye said the United States was "held responsible for the deaths of many Congolese . . ."

The rebel radio said Gbenye was "prepared to consider all solutions to this problem and hold any kind of talks."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said there was no indication what Gbenye had in mind or how or when negotiations might be started. The embassy has not been in direct contact with the Stanleyville rebels or its own consulate there for months.

Carlson, 36, of Rolling Hills, Calif., was stationed at Kindu as a surgeon. Gbenye claimed he was an American army officer. The United States denied the charge.

Rebel broadcasts have said negotiations are taking place between Gbenye and the U.S. consul in Stanleyville, Michael Hoyt, who with four members of his staff has been under house arrest since the rebels took Stanleyville in August.

Tax Forms Available On Jan. 11

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians are being labelled with anothe: number; this time for tax purposes.

A seven digit identification code such as 123-4567 will appear on "personalized" individual income tax forms being mailed directly to taxpayers in January by the revenue department.

This is separate from the nine-digit social insurance number cards now required by all workers contributing to unemployment insurance, and obtained voluntarily by others.

The latter number would be mandatory for everyone contributing to the proposed Canada Pension Plan when it starts in 1966. The revenue department will collect those contributions, as well as taxes. Thus it will have two numbers for almost every income-earner.

Direct mailing of income tax forms was announced Wednesday by Revenue Minister K. J. Benson, until now forms have been supplied by employers and made available at post offices.

Over a two-week period starting Jan. 11 an estimated 6,500,- 000 individual income tax payers will receive in the mail an envelope marked "this is your personalized 1964 income tax form."

Inside will be:

—A pamphlet explaining that the new system is designed to speed up computer processing of returns, making for faster refunds, if any.

—A tax filing guide.

—Two tax forms, one a working paper, the other—bearing the taxpayer's name and address and number, to be sent to the revenue department.

—An unstamped envelope addressed to the revenue department's taxation data centre in Ottawa.

The pamphlet will advise employees to back these forms out until they receive their T4 slips from employers. The filing deadline will still be April 30.

What if the taxpayer loses his forms?

He can get other blank forms

De Gaulle Threat in Secret Memo Now a Reality Says Stikker

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Dirk Stikker, former secretary-general of NATO, disclosed today that French President de Gaulle in a 1958 secret memo threatened to withdraw if the United States and Britain would not join a triumvirate to decide on world policy.

"The threat then uttered has now become a reality," Stikker said.

In an address here to Dutch liberals, the former secretary-general said the secret and still unpublished memorandum was the turning point in France's attitude toward the alliance and production nuclear weapons.

Stikker said de Gaulle was "blind to the concern that many feel about the growing isolation of France."

He said de Gaulle needed the Common Market, NATO and especially American protection.

"If de Gaulle destroys NATO and thus loses American protection then every Frenchman, with the exception of the Communists, would know that he acted against the supreme interests of his country."

Stikker said French co-operation with NATO was now "practically non-existent."

Stikker was especially critical of France for withdrawing her military division and had assumed in 1954 to summit the size of her stocks of nuclear arms to the majority decision of the council of the West European Union."

He said the French action was "very dubious" because the same treaty contained the obligation for Germany not to produce nuclear weapons.

Stikker said he favored "most urgent" that European and Atlantic policy should be "activate."

He thought the time ripe for a trial period of Europe-n political union aimed at strengthening Atlantic co-operation. He also called for a new distribution of nuclear and strategic responsibility between the United States and Europe.

Elementary Teachers Finish Study of New Approach To Teaching of Mathematics

Elementary school teachers in the Belleville area this week will conclude a series of special evening sessions in which they have been getting acquainted with the new approach to teaching of mathematics at the primary school level.

The special sessions were sponsored by the local English Catholic Teachers' Association which invited public school teachers to sit in for the same studies.

In addition to the above collaboration with the English Catholic school teachers, a special pilot study in the new approach to mathematics is being carried on by teachers at King George Public School.

USE NEW LANGUAGE

The special in-service mathematics training for elementary school teachers is considered necessary to acquaint them with the different language used in the new approach to mathematics.

It is anticipated that all grade seven public school students next year will be introduced to the new mathematics text books.

This year at the regular monthly meeting of the city public school board, members received information regarding the leadership given by Inspector M. Cousins to provide in-service training for teachers in mathematics and for practical teaching activities.

The board particularly commended collaborations with the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association for the evening session on mathematics at St. Michael's School.

ATTENDANCE GOOD

The monthly report of Superintendent L. Kelly indicated that the activities of the Attendance Officer were minor and had been carried out at a very satisfactory level: 97.65%.

Four teachers will be leaving the staff at December 31, 1964, and at the meeting the Board gave approval to hiring Mrs. Lois Thompson and Mrs. Ann Crabb, both former staff members, for the period January to June 1964 at $380 and $360 per month, respectively. Recommendations regarding other replacements will be dealt with at the December meeting.

The Board received and approved, with some adjustments, the report of a special committee on conditions of work and rates of pay for custodial and maintenance employees. These employees will now commence at $250 per month, and will proceed to a maximum of $365 per month in a period of six years. Other minor changes in conditions of work negotiated with employee representatives were approved. At the same time the maximum rate for the Supervisor of Maintenance was set at $480 per month.

GET SCHOOL PLANS

Plans and outline of specifications for the proposed eight room addition to Park Dale School were received from Architects Watson and Wise and and the Chief Inspector, L. A. Kells, asked to secure approval of these plans for the Ontario Department of Education.

Two notices of motion were presented at the meeting. Trustee J. Russell Scott gave notice that he would bring up at the next meeting that the Board desist from any action to sell any part of the school site at the corner of Victoria Ave. and Haig Road. Trustee Mac Smith gave notice that he will move for a change in the method of naming and in the composition of certain committees of the Board.

Chairman F. P. Clarke announced that E. B. Bishop and G. H. Trill with himself to represent the stated policies of the Board, the group are planning to carry on. GOOD SCOUTING. Solphide; in discussion mostly, this one ray of sunshine in working for a just cause, will help to brighten the days.

All our Scouts and Cubs of Marmora "B" (Deloro) attended the Church Service in a body, with their leaders, at the Deloro village hall on Remembrance Day.

Since next month is a busy time, the District will not have a meeting. The next District meeting will be in Stirling on January 15, 1965.

A sincere thank you from the Executive is extended to Mr. West for the use of his home for the meeting; and a special "thank you" to his daughter for serving a most delicious lunch.

Please keep your secretary informed of your activities.

South African Racial Conflict Could Spread

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Rev. E. E. Long, secretary of the United Church of Canada, passed on a warning Wednesday that a racial conflict beginning in South Africa could enflame the whole continent and eventually involve the whole world.

Mr. Long said in a report to the Canadian Council of Churches that "the prediction was made in a warning address to the World Council of Churches by Sir Hugh Foot, recently appointed minister of state for foreign affairs in the British Labor government.

Even more explosive than the race revolution might be the uprising of Africa and Asia, Mr. Long said. He noted that half the African population is under 20 years of age and is destined to scratch out a living as their parents did.

The council adopted a resolution supporting moves by the World Council of Churches to set up a fund of $1,500,000 for 1965, half of which will be spent on work among refugees, and an ecumenical fund to disburse a total of $10,000,000 on emergency action in Africa during a five-year period.

Tweed District's Rainfall Five Inches Below Normal

Precipitation in the Tweed district as for this year has been 5.26 inches below normal according to a report from the Moira River Conservation Authority.

And as a result the level of the Authority's storage reservoir at Lingham Lake, north of Madoc, is now lower than it has been at any previous time in any year since 1961.

The water level is now down to 11.94 feet just .94 inch above the 11 foot minimum holding level. The present storage at the bottom of the dam is now only three inches with only 13 cubic feet of water per second being released.

The value of the Lingham Lake Reservoir is to help to maintain a minimum flow in the river during the dry summer months.

Council of Churches Plans Open Debate on Hot Issues

BY DON HARVEY

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The Canadian Council of Churches last took off its "silk gloves" Wednesday and gave approval to a resolution calling for debate from the floor at future meetings on "difficult and controversial" issues affecting its member churches.

"It's wonderful that the council will now enter into business," commented Rev. D. W. Hay of Toronto, the council's Presbyterian interim moderator, after the resolution was approved by the majority of the 120 delegates to the council's annual meeting here.

The council has matured to the point where "it now can take off the gloves and discuss those very serious issues that have affected the unity of Protestant and Orthodox church members might be offended.

The council's 20-member administrative, non-legislative meeting ground of representatives of 90 per cent of Canada's Protestant and Orthodox church population. The Roman Catholic Church is not a member although it has sent four observers to the current session.

NEW HOME OFFICERS

Earlier, a resolution was approved calling for representation on its faith and on ex-communion to be made available to all Christian Churches in Canada, including "evangelical" and Roman Catholic churches.

Representation on the commission is currently drawn from the 13 denominations which make up the council.

Rev. Norman Bernier of Kitchener, representing the Lutheran Church in America, asked the council's executive to review the council's constitution so that his denomination which now is a "friendship association" may soon become a council member.

Rev. Emerson Hallman of the Evangelical United Brethren of Kitchener, executive committee chairman, said the committee will re-examine during the next two years that part of the constitution which the Lutherans feel prevents them from joining the council.

The Lutheran Church in America, one of about 30 Lutheran groupings on the continent, has its headquarters in Ohio and is not permitted to join any council which offers membership to Christian organizations in addition to churches.

ARENT RECOGNIZED

The Lutherans do not recognize the Salvation Army or the Society of Friends (Quakers) as churches. They are members of the council.

Later in an interview, how ever, a spokesman for the executive committee gave assurance that it would not recommend the removal of the Salvation Army or the Quakers from council membership.

at any post office. But these of courses will lack the Identification number and could delay the computer processing in Ottawa.

ADDRESSES CHANGE

The forms will be mailed to the address appearing on the taxpayer's return for the previous year. One major problem is that an estimated one in every five Canadians changes his address during the year.

If the form doesn't reach him, he also will have to pick up blank forms at the post office. The same will be true for those required to file their first tax return.

Until spring for the first time, all individual tax returns were fed into the high-speed computers in Ottawa. The year previous all returns except those from Quebec were handled in this way.

The department now has the last two years' tax records of every individual taxpayer inscribed on magnetic tape. This meant assigning to each taxpayer a number that the computer could "read."

Thus, most taxpayers already have a number. In January they will see it for the first time.

the flag to ensure that it is passed on Christmas.

Mr. Pearson declined to give such a commitment, drawing a parallel from New Democrats who regarded his statement as an indication the government intends to press ahead with the flag debate.

Mr. McIlraith denied that such an interpretation could be given Mr. Pearson's remarks but Mr. Douglas maintained that Mr. Pearson's remarks that the labor code would go ahead of the flag there could be no guarantee of the labor code winning approval by Christmas.

British Officials Sceptical About Chinese Report

LONDON (Reuters) — British officials Wednesday expressed scepticism about reports suggesting that Communist China is close to exploding a hydrogen bomb.

They said China only recently managed to explode an atomic device and it seems unlikely it is close to exploding a more sophisticated weapon.

Referring to other reports suggesting China's first atomic blast had come sooner than expected, the officials noted that if it had in fact been widely forecast some considerable time before it happened.

Marsh Water Ends 36-Hour Thirst at Tilbury

TILBURY, Ont. (CP)—Marsh water was pumped into this town of 3,185 on an emergency basis Wednesday after residents had their normal drinking water supply cut off for about 40 hours by a pipeline failure.

Make-shift pumping equipment was pressed into service at the town's filtration plant two miles north, beyond the Thames River, and water started coming from the taps at 5 p.m.

The water from a marsh in Dover Township was being pumped at a rate of 500 gallons a minute, considerably less than the normal supply rate.

The supply was being heavily treated with chemicals under supervision of Kent County health department officials. Residents were advised to boil the water before consuming it.

Mayor Joseph G. Young said the town's 750,000-gallon lower storage tank would be filled today.

Meanwhile a Chatham dairy company put three huge milk can trucks at the town's disposal and some fresh water was brought in for drinking.

FOLLOWS BREAKDOWN

Some 5,000 persons of the town and township 35 miles east of Windsor were hit by the shortage following a breakdown Tuesday in the five-mile pipeline feeding the area from Lake St. Clair.

But things were returning somewhat to normal today. Schools were to reopen after a forced holiday Wednesday, and town businesses were expected to resume operations.

There were no fires during the night, but standing tanks of water were being parked in the town and area fire departments remained on the alert.

There is no hospital in the town.

Meanwhile, workmen were using an electric gadget to see whether the trouble spot in the 33-year-old, 16-inch pipeline is plugged or has collapsed.

They said the trouble has been pinpointed to a portion of the pipeline between the Tilbury pumping station and the intake station in Lake St. Clair.

If the line has collapsed, a new section will be spliced around the damaged portion, Mayor Young said. The work would take about two weeks.

Expeditions Exploratory Say Officials

OTTAWA (CP) — The Pacific Naval Laboratory, an arm of the Defence Research Board, has concluded its eighth expedition to the Arctic in the last five years to investigate sound propagation under ice.

Officials said Wednesday the expeditions have been exploratory rather than aimed at installation of underwater detection systems.

But they do not rule out the possibility of installation of such under - ice submarine warning networks in the future as has already been done by Canada and the United States in the western North Atlantic.

Defence authorities said Russia could probably achieve surprise by sending a submarine fleet under the arctic ice and down through Kennedy channel between Canada and Greenland into the North Atlantic. A route through the Canadian Arctic archipelago would be too far east for a Soviet fleet moving from the Pacific to the Atlantic or vice versa.

PROVIDE SAMPLINGS

Russian submarines could also hit North American inland cities with missiles from anchorages in Hudson Bay.

Officials said the former - man expeditions by the Pacific laboratory at Esquimalt, B.C. has provided much more than samplings of under-ice conditions.

A great deal more research needed to be done in arctic by engineers and oceanographers if Canada wanted to nail down its claim to the Arctic islands and the straits between them.

Underwater sound transmission measurements are made using both ice - based and airsetting off explosive charges lowered deep into the water. The transmitted sounds are picked up on hydrophones.

Guilty of Fraud But Sentence Is Suspended

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Wendy Wells, 28, of Kleinberg, Ont., Wednesday pleaded guilty to a charge of defrauding her employers of $6,800 but was given a suspended sentence because of recent "unusual reports" about the Mercer Reformatory for Women here.

Judge Robert Forsyth, who two weeks ago received a grand jury report attacking the facilities at the reformatory, said he would not send her to the reformatory after "all the ominous reports we have heard about that place."

Michael Bailey, 32, also of Kleinberg, the man will, whom Mrs. Wells had been living, was convicted of conspiracy and sentenced to three years in penitentiary.

Mrs. Wells said she started to make out false cheques and invoices during a six-month period so she could sell a log home with Bailey after she found she was pregnant by him

Two Arrested At Roadblock After Robbery

OTTAWA (CP) — Two men, one of them wounded in the shoulder, were arrested at a police roadblock on the outskirts of the city late Wednesday night after a 15-mile high-speed highway chase by provincial police in which several shots were fired.

Police were called by Armprior resident Mrs. Bernadette Campbell after two armed men robbed her of about $50. She managed to escape and noted the licence number of their car before they left.

Police spotted the car at Carp, about midway between Armprior and Ottawa.

One of the shots fired by the robbers went through the windshield of the pursuing police car, but none of the policemen was injured.

Board of Health Votes To Support Education Plan

TRENTON The Trenton Board of Health has voted to support the federal government's health education plan in reference to the link between cigarette smoking and lung cancer by having posters relating to the health hazard put up in the rotunda of the municipal office, the recreation gardens and on the bulletin board at the post office.

The decision came on the heels of a report from Dr. D. W. Dow, MOH for the town and a member of the board, outlining impressions gained at a recent health conference. Dr. Dow admitted there was "no quick solution" to the problem but said once lung cancer was detected, only one person in 20 benefited from any known type of treatment and he felt the problem was a growing one.

Dr. Dow also reported that public health men in the country were convinced that the Salk method of immunization for polio by injection should continue to be used in preference to oral vaccine, at least until the latter underwent further study. "Mass immunization against measles and flu will not be undertaken by public health bodies but will remain within the jurisdiction of private practice," he said.

Dr. Dow told the board a ruling of the department of health at the effect that a communite would be reimbursed 75 percent of costs for oral diabetic treatment, in cases where insulin injection is not indicated, and where the patient is "indigent," or a welfare case, would come into effect on Nov. 23. Patients must be ruled "indigent" by a local authority.

Two Ontario Water Resources Commission recommendations were also relayed to the board by Dr. Dow. The commission recommends the addition of a elevated carbon to the filtration plant water supply before the summer of 1968 as a means of improving the taste, smell and color of the water from the river.

WANTS REGULAR TESTS

The OWRC also recommends the testing of the chlorine content of water from the Sidney St. well and the Victoria Ave. pumping station, twice a day and that the department of health undertake biological tests of the water once a month. Mr. Fane would be responsible for the tests and would make reports to the OWRC.

After the chairman had pointed out that the demolition of a Fred St. property was not with in his jurisdiction,(because the condemned house has not been registered for unpaid taxes and is not now inhabited), the board passed a resolution asking town council to put through a by-law, similar to one which the city of Belleville has, giving the health officer wider scope in the control of unsatisfactory housing conditions.

As this is the last meeting of the year, Mr. Pane thanked the members of the board, Dr. Dow, Miss Marjorie Gothard and E. D. Topping for their co-operation during the year, The board will make one last school inspection before the end of December.

Mr. Pane reported he had written to the operators of a day nursery, recently opened in East Trenton, pointing out to them the regulations covering the operation of such projects in the province.

Mr. Pane brought to the attention of the board and the residents present the services of the Canadian Medic-Alert Foundation. This body supplies discs, to be worn on the wrist or as a pendant, listing the various allergies of the wearer to known drugs and anti-biotics, or any peculiar condition from which he suffers. The disc would also alert a doctor if the wearer was a commercial deep sea diver or a scuba diver. The company is located at 176 George St., Toronto 5, Ont. and the discs sell for around $5.

P. U. C. Votes Water Supply To New School

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission, meeting yesterday afternoon, voted to supply 10,000 gallons of water a day to a centralized school proposed for Murray township, from a water storage pond, which the PUC hopes to build beside the new development in the township. Details of whether the township will draw the water directly from the pond and chlorinate it, or have the commission water piped back from chlorinated Trenton water supply, have yet to be worked out. In one case, the PUC would charge nothing for the water. If it were piped back from town, prevailing local water rates would apply.

Building the pond will cost around $40,000. A 75 per cent grant on this from the Ontario government would bring the net cost of the PUC or town council down to $10,000. Whether this comes out of the town or the PUC will have to be ironed out, but as the PUC merely acts as agent for the town it all amounts to the same thing in the long run.

The commission will have to allocate around $15,000 in next year's capital budget for the painting of the water storage tank on Mount Pelion — inside and outside. As the tank is badly corroded with rust, it will be necessary to sandblast. Actual painting should only cost around $6,000. Chairman Charles Hilton and Commissioner C. A. Baker called for a thorough investigation of prices, both local and out-of-town, but agreed to the budget figure of $15,000, hoping several thousands could be saved.

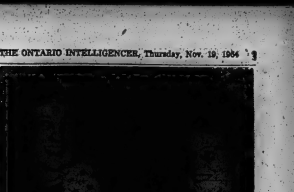
Windsor Area Board to End Segregation

COLCHESTER, Ont. (CP)—Admitting that School Section 11 has "long suffered segregation", the Colchester Area Public school board has declared its determination to eliminate segregation in its area, about 10 miles south of Windsor.

Promise to improve physical conditions at its all - Negro school was made after a meeting Wednesday night of a committee of the South Essex Citizen's Advancement Association and the board. The issue of segregation was raised by the association a month ago in a letter to the board.

At the conclusion of the meeting, which was closed to the press, Board Chairman Allen McLean and George F. Mccready, counsel for the association, issued a joint statement.

Improvements provided for in the statement include new lighting, interior decorations, improved janitor service, weatherizing of windows, improving the water for potability, and improving the building so it will comply with recommendations of the medical officer of health.



The board further agreed that subject to approval of families, it will take 10 pupils from Grade 1 - SS 11 and move them by bus to other schools within the board's jurisdiction, subject to available room in other schools. The board will consider further with the association in the event no room is available.

WILL INTEGRATE

In another resolution, the board said it will continue to integrate its school system so that there will be no segregation or discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, nationality, ancestry, or place of origin.

This the board has been prepared to do ever since it planned a new 12-room school which comes up for tenders in January and which will be ready by Sept. 1, 1967.

The purpose of the new school is to provide modern facilities for all the pupils attending public school in Colchester South.

Miss Eleanor Beach of Frankford, a third year student at Queen's University, majoring in psychology, spoke to the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club last night on her experiences as an "Operation Crossroads" worker in Uganda, Africa, this summer. Miss Beach was one of 25 Canadian undergraduates to be chosen to work for "Crossroads." At the right is Mrs. Violet Kennedy, president of the Trenton B. and P. Club.

Five-Man Crew Picked Up

HALIFAX (CP) — The five-man crew of the 50-foot Nova Scotia fishing vessel Racer have been picked up by the Italian vessel Sunmar off the Nova Scotia coast, RCAF Search and Rescue said today.

Search and Rescue said Hali fax marine radio reported only that the men had been picked up by the Sunmar, a 3,775-ton freighter, but no time or location were given.

The Racer, out of Clark's Harbor, N.S., had been missing since late Tuesday after she radioed she had sprung a leak in her engine room. She was then 22 miles southeast of Cape Sable. Gale force winds and high seas were reported in the area at the time.

Wilson Takes Middle Road

Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain, caught between the horns of a dilemma, has decided to swing from them.

He has banned future sales of arms to South Africa. But he has, also, ordered that contracts already signed with the South African government will be honored.

This decision is certain to draw fire from all sides.

It may be, though, that Wilson was acting on principle.

The point at issue covered the delivery of bombers, which South Africa had ordered from Britain when the Conservatives were in power. Labor had opposed the sale. With Labor now in power, there was pressure to have the government block delivery. South Africa's Prime Minister Verwoerd had countered with the announcement that, if the bombers were not delivered, South Africa would renege on the agreement granting Britain a naval base at Simonstown.

By permitting fulfillment of a contract already made, Wilson is in a strong moral position to demand that South Africa, too, honor its word and permit Britain to continue to use Simonstown, even though future arms orders from South Africa are refused.

It remains to be seen whether South Africa is as scrupulous in keeping its word as is Britain. If she ousts the British from Simonstown because of the refusal to sell arms in the future, Britain would be justified in taking retaliatory measures.

The reason why Labor opposes the sale of arms to South Africa is simple—these arms are much more likely to be used against South Africans than against any aggressors from outside. Verwoerd and his Nationalists are probably actually afraid of intervention by some of the newly independent African nations, such as Ghana, but it seems improbable the big powers would permit an armed invasion and, in any event, those African powers lack the resources to make a full-scaled attack feasible.

What is much more likely to occur is that the white South Africans, faced with mounting unrest amongst the country's natives and "colored" people, of mixed blood, will be forced to resort to the use of their superior weapons in an effort to check revolt.

The British Labor Party does not want to be responsible for supplying the white South Africans with modern weapons which may be used to slaughter ill-armed native rebels.

Shrewd Move

Members of the British House of Commons will get a raise in pay—but cabinet ministers will receive only half the boost they had anticipated.

Britain's new prime minister, Laborite Harold Wilson, trimmed away half the increase recommended for him and for his ministers.

Whether this decision was primarily the result of principles or politics, it is impossible for us to say.

There can be no doubt, though, that Wilson's decision will sit well with the public and that the voters' reaction is likely to be reflected at the polls, if Labor's paper-thin majority forces an early election.

It is interesting to note that the revised schedule leaves the ordinary member, who will get the full recommended increase, receiving little more than half of what a Canadian member gets. On the other hand senior ministers, with their proposed increase cut in half, will get $24,000, compared with the $25,000 received by Canadian cabinet ministers.

Quite a Stunt

Don Dafoe, the president of the Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce, was "kidnapped" by his fellow members and held for ransom—ten new members.

He was "imprisoned" in a store window, complete with telephone, by the use of which, 24 hours later, he had managed to sign up eleven new members and get the names of six more prospective members.

Quite a stunt.

Judgment on it will vary.

But at least the eleven new members will not be able to say that they had no idea of what sort of a club they were getting into.

Morally speaking, it is as wrong to feel guilty without having done something specific as it is to feel free of all guilt if one actually is guilty of something.—Hannah Arendt, author of The Origins of Totalitarianism.

To Your Good Health
Catheterization Is Not Harmful to the Heart

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am to go into the hospital for a heart test. The trouble is in the opening or closing of the valve. The doctor will insert a tube in my arm and in some way take pictures of the heart. Will you explain this test and how it works?
— M. E. C.

This is called heart catheterization. A catheter (small, flexible tube) is inserted into a large vein in the arm.

The vein carry blood back to the heart to be oxygenated and then pumped into the arteries to be used again.

Therefore, the catheter, by following the vein, will gently reach and enter the heart. This may sound frightening. It shouldn't, though, because around the country this is being done hundreds of times every day. It gives exact information which can be obtained in no other way. It does no damage to the heart, so don't be worried about having it done.

The prime purpose is not to "take pictures of the heart," even though that sometimes is done, too. Very small samples of blood are taken from different parts of the heart. Analysis readily shows the oxygen content and other factors. This data then can be interpreted, and the extent and location of the defect in the heart can be accurately evaluated. The doctor then knows in advance what needs to be done in the way of heart surgery.

It is likewise possible to take readings of the pressure in various pools. This, too, is vital information.

Finally, while the tube is in place, a harmless dye can be introduced through it. The dye makes the blood itself visible when an X-ray picture is taken, and the result is a clear outline of the shape of the inside of the heart. If there are eddies because of a defect in the valve, they will show. Or if there is leakage from one side of the heart to the other, that will show clearly.

X-rays can be taken of the heart without this dye procedure, but with it, important facts can be learned which would not be revealed with an ordinary picture.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend of mine intends to get contact lenses. I think vanity is the reason. To me, it seems that the glass pressing against the ball of the eye would be injurious, as even a little grain of dust is annoying until removed. Please comment. — F. W. C.

I've voiced caution about contact lenses often enough, now I'll take the other side for a moment.

Most of us have our vanities. No doubt vanity is the most frequent of all reasons for getting contact lenses, but I myself can't quarrel with that.

I only hope that people are aware of the facts. Some tolerate contacts very well, others can't, or can wear them only part of the day. The only way to find out is to try.

The glass (or plastic) of the lens must be fitted exactly. It actually rides on a film of fluid in the eye, and is not like a "grain of dust," any more than the inner sole of your shoe, pressing on your foot, is like a pebble.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 48 and still have regular periods with a heavy flow for about three days and then spotting for 10 to 20 days. Is this normal? — F. P.

No, this degree of spotting is not normal. I suggest that you consult a gynecologist.

Revolutions Their Aim

Winnipeg Free Press

Soviet and Chinese arms are being subsidized at Dar-es-Salaam, Tanganyika's capital and chief port, and the presence of both Chinese and Soviet instructors has been observed in this East African republic.

There may be nothing sinister in this: President Nyerere announced earlier a $43 million order for weapons from Communist China which was also to supply 11 instructors for the Tanganyika forces. A separate agreement negotiated by Zanzibar — which still has not fully merged with Tanganyika — provides for a combined force of Soviet and East German instructors as well as Soviet weapons for the island's Revolutionary Army.

However, the elimination of Commonwealth influence from strategically vital Tanganyika, and its replacement with Communist arms and instructors, is given rise to some doubts as to President Nyerere's future intentions. So, for instance it is being reported that the Chinese and Soviet instructors are now training and forming a Tanganyika force as much as grooming guerrillas for war against the Portuguese in Mozambique and against Premier Ian Smith's regime in Rhodesia.

Tanganyika borders on the independent state of Burundi — formerly part of Belgian Central Africa — which, of late, has become the focus of Chinese activities on the continent. If the Chinese can secure bases both in Burundi and in Tanganyika, they will have considerably improved their position for creating mischief in other parts of Africa.

Chinese strategy in Africa, and elsewhere is based on Mao Tse-tung's basic teachings that originally brought him victory in China: He aims at creating as many Communist uprisings as possible. The effect of such uprisings would be to disperse the armed might of the United States, which, the Chinese expect, would then try to put them down. Eventually, claim the Chinese, these guerrilla fights on a worldwide front would sap the strength of the United States that it would truly become a paper tiger.

The Russians cannot stand idly by while revolutionary activities are being fostered in Africa without losing face as leaders of a revolutionary ideology. Hence the contest between Peking and Moscow in starting new fires in Africa, fires that will cost African lives and fortunes without helping the continent to advance to a better standard of living.

Ottawa Offbeat
Pearson and Diefenbaker Change With the Times

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau
By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Have you noticed how, in the changing political circumstances, Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker themselves are changing?

Both men are moving with the shifting currents in the always fluid situation of a minority Parliament.

Basically, the Prime Minister is taking a harder line, becoming just a little firmer, in fact, sounding more and more like a man in charge.

And the Conservative Leader has softened a little, seems less inclined to meet things head-on, and goes so far as to show unmistakable signs of an increasing willingness to accommodate himself to the realities.

Consider the case of the Prime Minister.

A more amiable and thoroughly pleasant man has never occupied the East Block command post of Federal power, at least not in living memory.

He has been so agreeable that he has preferred to run things by indirection as a sort of encouraging chairman of the Liberal board, rather than take direct charge of the Cabinet after the style of Mackenzie King, Louis St. Laurent and even John Diefenbaker.

He seemed to prefer a kind of government-by-committee than administration by strict ministerial directive.

PLEASANT BUT SOFT

In the personal sense, this was an exceedingly agreeable way of doing things. And while it got him and his Cabinet into more than their fair share of trouble, it did build up what a lot of Conservatives seriously envy, an almost fanatic loyalty among the Liberals.

This was such an amicable prime minister that even a good many of the Conservatives have been unable to conceal their envy, perhaps admiration, for him.

In efforts to be reasonable and accommodating, he bent over backward so far that the Opposition Leader usually contrived him off balance with ridiculous ease.

Having made co-operation a way of life for so many of his working pre - Parliamentary days, he simply couldn't understand an opposition leader like John Diefenbaker whose understanding of his own Parliamentary role was unco-operation.

Not only did the Prime Minister appear not to understand, but often was obviously appalled and frequently unable to cope with it.

Then suddenly, just the other day, there emerged what many are calling the "new" Pearson, a harder character, a tougher talker — hard and tough enough to take on Diefenbaker, Douglas or on all but equal terms.

Unbelievable though he labelled his enemy "The Great Rejector" — a good, swinging very un-Pearsonian phrase — and in personal clashes in the Commons has been able to give as much as he takes, and sometimes more.

On these increasingly frequent occasions the opposition leader, plainly baffled by the "New" Pearson, sinks back into his chair with a look of pained, shrugging off what obviously are still small but perhaps growing reverses.

NOW SOME GIVE

Consider now the case of the opposition leader.

Long an almost professional "tough guy" in Parliament, John Diefenbaker has been belligerent long into nearly any situation, confident that by sheer vigor of confrontation it could be overcome.

But as it has to every Conservative leader, he has come to the realization has come to him that, unlike the Prime Minister, he does not command a following of almost fantastic loyalty.

But now this "New" Diefenbaker, no longer the hell-for-leather political rider, is beginning to accommodate himself to the necessities of the situation.

And with political wisdom that is at least instinctive with a veteran campaigner of nearly 40 years in the business of winning votes, he is actually making a virtue of necessity.

His retreat on the flag has been strategic.

He knew in his heart — although publicly he brushed it off as nonsense and fiction — that too many of his troops were still prepared to hold the battle-line in the Flag War.

Twenty, perhaps 30 or even more, who knows exactly how many — were it open rebellion. They were throwing down their arms in surrender.

So, saving face, the opposition leader, outlining his obviously changed and changing position on the flag, disclosed, almost casually, that only "30 or so" Conservatives would fight in the final battle of the long war.

Thirty speakers, taking their full 40 minutes, will be occupying less than four days of Commons debating time — a tremendous retreat, nicely executed, from the impossible do-or-die position taken previously of defending the Red Ensign to the bitter end of driving the Government into an election.

Strictly Personal
Hate Is Based on a Kind of Fear

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The human being is an animal so incapable of standing uncertainty that he drives himself toward a certainty that is far worse than the tension he could not bear.

That men are more romantic, and less realistic, than women, can be seen from the fact that men expect a pretty woman to have much more than her prettiness, while women do not expect a handsome man to be anything more than handsome.

Telling an artist that he ought to paint "nature as it is" makes no more sense than telling a composer that he ought to write music imitative of the surf, the thunderstorm, the birds, and the lowing cows.

Statistics are fully reliable if they are fully expressed and fully understood; our resentment and suspicion of statistics comes from those who manipulate them in a partial manner, for dishonest motives: I can prove by statistics that more children die from smallpox vaccination than from smallpox in this country — but I would be a fraud if I concluded from this fact that vaccination is bad.

Childless couples don't feel the lack of children after a time, for one of them usually develops the attitude of a parent toward the other.

A certain type of temperament is incapable of resting contentedly, for the reason so acutely given by Jules Renard: "Il ne suffit pas d'etre heureux: il faut encore que les autres ne le soient pas." ("It is not enough to be happy; it is necessary, in addition, that others not be.")

Mistresses tell stories on their maids to other mistresses, while maids tell stories on their mistresses to other maids; it is the peculiar defect of the social organism that each class can see only the pathology of the other class, and is unaware of its own pathology as a fish is unaware of water.

Perhaps the last lesson that parents learn is that to overcorrect is not worse than not correcting at all.

What the essential difference between the wise man and the ignorant man boils down to is this: the wise man will often err without judging, while the ignorant man will judge without knowing.

When we no longer fear an enemy, we begin to play him more proof that hate is always based on some kind of fear.

It is not the cunning of the confidence man, but the credulity of the victim, that makes swindles so successful; we are betrayed by our own greedy hopes, not by the shrewdness of others.

Destroyer by Another Name His Need in Political Game

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—A destroyer by any other name would sound sweeter to Defence Minister Hellyer.

Informed sources said Wednesday the new warship to be ordered by the defence department will be a destroyer-type vessel.

The department plans to order five or six, at a cost of about $30,000,000 each.

But it doesn't particularly want to call them destroyers though that, in essence, is what they will be.

The reason is that Mr. Hellyer when in Opposition had some very harsh things to say about the destroyer program of that time.

On Sept. 14, 1961, Mr. Hellyer said in the Commons:

"An atomic submarine . . . can swim circles around our destroyer escorts or anything like them. . . ."

CAN'T BE DETECTED

"These submarines cannot be detected and destroyed with the type of naval vessel that we have."

Mr. Hellyer quoted with approval RCN Capt. David Groos, who in 1963 became Liberal MP for Victoria, as saying that nuclear submarines "are the only effective type of anti-submarine vessel there is and they can be built in Canada as Canadian shipyards by Canadian workers."

Mr. Hellyer added: "We have no feeling of comfort whatsoever that our ships could find, let alone destroy, even the present, let alone future, submarines."

Consider then Mr. Hellyer's problem:

He said Nov. 6 that he hoped to be able to announce "within a few weeks" a naval shipbuilding program for the next few years.

The navy has ready drawings and specifications for destroyer and frigate types only. Drawings for any new type of ship would take 18 months to two years to prepare.

Mr. Hellyer had previously cancelled the frigate program initiated by Douglas Harkness, former Conservative defence minister.

This leaves him only with a destroyer type if a shipbuilding program is to be impemented quickly.

Anybody got any suggestions for a new name for destroyer-class ships?

Mystery Guest In Cattle Herd Said Big Ram

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A mystery guest in a farmer's cattle herd in nearby Hyde Park has its punsters baffled.

The animal—dark and shaggy with dipping, curved horns—took up pasture residence with Kenneth Playre's cattle in September. Almost as large as a cow, it has made itself at home and has become something of a leader among the herd.

Two zoologists at the University of Western Ontario can't identify it from photographs, and no one has been able to get close enough for a good look.

Dr. William Judd, assistant professor of zoology at UWO, said the animal could be an Asian or European variety of ram.

Dr. D. M. Scott, a colleague of Dr. Judd, said it might be related to the barbary sheep from North Africa.

Mr. Player suggested that the dark stranger may have become attached to a western Canadian herd and shipped east with other cattle.

Catching it is a problem. It can't be cornered along a fence as the fleet-footed animal has easily cleared five-foot fences on the farm.

U. S. Will Close 95 Army Bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 63,000 workers at 95 United States military bases, shipyards and other defence installations learn today that their jobs are to be eliminated eventually by the federal economy axe.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara scheduled a mid-afternoon press conference at which he said he would name the bases in 33 states that are to be closed.

In announcing plans for the cut Wednesday, he said it included facilities of all types—"air bases, air depots, army arsenals, army terminals, shipyards" and so on.

Major controversy has centred on the possibility some of the navy's 11 shipyards would be closed.

Balcer Group Ready to Vote For New Flag

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) Leon Balcer, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Trois-Rivieres, said Wednesday night he and all other French-speaking Conservatives from Quebec will vote for the single-maple-leaf flag recommended by the deuxe commons flag committee even if Party Leader John Diefenbaker continues to favor the Red Ensign.

There are five other Quebec Conservative members whose mother tongue is French.

Mr. Balcer, Mr. Diefenbaker's chief Quebec deputy, was addressing seminary students in his home riding.

Mr. Balcer also told the students he did not foresee a general election before the fall of 1965.

Anglo-Canadian Tax Treaty May Lapse

LONDON (CP) — Canadian and British industrialists, concluding a two-day trade conference, Wednesday predicted gradual erosion of Commonwealth tariff preferences and expressed fear that the Anglo-Canadian tax treaty, to prevent double taxation, may lapse on Dec. 31 with no early prospect of renewal.

They cast doubt on the commercial value of supersonic aircraft "in the foreseeable future," criticized British labor efficiency and pointed to "the recurring bottleneck" in Britain's trade caused by dock strikes and labor stoppages. They concluded that in some cases, it takes three times the manpower to produce a specific product in Britain as it does in Canada.

The bilateral talks, held under the auspices of the Commonwealth Chambers of Commerce, concluded also that 90 per cent of Britain's problems in boosting sales to Canada rested in lack of aggressive salesmanship and failure to meet Canadian styling, delivery targets and prices.

By 1970, Canada's living standards would rise by an estimated 18 per cent and it was up to Britain to share in the increasing buoyancy of the Canadian economy, delegates said in a communique approved by both sides.

As anticipated, British delegates, who included prominent financiers, bankers and exporters, complained of the alleged restrictive nature of Canada's anti-dumping laws. In turn, Canadian delegates spoke expressing sympathy with the need for imposing an extra 15-per-cent tariff on British imports, questioned whether the temporary cuts would produce the desired results.

BUILT BY CRIME

The 2,500 tons of granite that face Scotland Yard, the headquarters of Britain's police forces, were hewed and dressed by convict labor.

cost of living index effective in 1962.

Strongest opposition to the bill came from Creditiste Leader Caouette, who said the plan is really designed to support the government and the provinces with a new source of capital.

SEES DRAIN

He described it as another drain on the citizen's pay envelope and a "national game of chance—a bingo.

"You pay today and collect for your children tomorrow. The citizens are forced to provide the government with money it will never pay back."

Instead of the pension plan, the government should bring in a national dividend payable to every man, woman and child.

Private enterprise already had better pension plans and government should not interfere in the field.

Larry Pennell, parliamentary secretary to the finance minister, said there is no formula for integrating the Canada plan with private plans. This will permit private plans to adjust individually.

In some cases, where private premiums are relatively high, the adjustment will involve directing part of these premiums into the Canada Pension Plan and reducing the intake of the private plan. In some cases increased benefits would be possible, Mr. Pennell said.

Other integration plans might need no adjustment.

PETERS COMPLAINS

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said Canadians are tired of Parliament being a rubber stamp for agreements worked out at federal-provincial conferences. The government should present its legislation and let Canadians like it or lump it.

During the three-day debate, the opposition indicated it will try to improve the bill in committee.

The New Democratic Party particularly was critical of the clauses ranging old age security payments to the cost of living

MOUNTAIN NAMED — A 10,000-foot snow-capped peak in the Rocky Mountains has been named Mount Louis St. Laurent after the former Liberal prime minister. The peak is in the Premier Range of the Cariboo Mountains in Southeastern British Columbia. Naming of the mountain after Mr. St. Laurent, prime minister of Canada from 1948 to 1957, was recommended by the British Columbia government and approved by the Canadian Permanent Committee on geographical names.

Scouting activities

CAMP MIKEROSEPH

One week last July, on the shores of Buck Lake in Frontenac County, tents mushroomed to accommodate the Cree, Objibway, Algonquin, Huron, Mohawk, Iroquois, Sioux, Crow, Micmac and Blackfeet. The occasion was the second annual Michael's Cub Camp, combining the Parishes of St. Michael, Holy Rosary and St. Joseph.

Some fifty-eight Cubs, their leaders and their councillors moved in by car to Camp Schofield about 3 p.m. Sunday, July 3rd, and remained until the following Saturday. Holy Rosary and St. Joseph's each sent fourteen boys, while the remainder came from St. Michael's.

Akela Gordon Power, camp leader, assigned the boys to tents named after ten Indian tribes and placed the boys under the supervision of the councillors—Bill Hynse (Cree), Mrs. M. Poremba (Objibway), Pat Devine (Algonquin), John Handley (Huron), Terry Smith (Mohawk), Terry Law (Iroquois), Don Fields (Sioux), Wayne Morrison (Crow), Robert Marsby and John Doran (Micmac) and Adrian Vogt (Blackfeet.)

Fine weather helped to make the week most enjoyable and it permitted a full schedule of activities and events.

Two swimming periods each day under the "buddy system" were supervised by the councillors and swimming instructions were given. Daily hikes were a popular pastime for the woods surrounding the camp abound with many interesting phenomena including a haunted house, a mica mine, lookout points and a bit of poison-ivy (about the cause of the latter resulting.) The daily schedules also included nature study, compass and flag instruction, soccer and ball games and at the end of each day the boys and their leaders gathered around the campfire to sing songs, act out skits, enjoy a bedtime snack and recite their evening prayer before calling it a day.

Visitors to the camp included the pastor of St. Michael's, Msgr. Sullivan and parents of some of the boys.

On Saturday awards were presented for a number of competitions as follows:

Best Tent: Blackfeet, Councillor Adrian Vogt. Sixer Peter Gaffney, Cubs M. Nevills, E. Dorrington, F. Raycroft, J. Carey and J. Culhane.

Best Project: Cree, Councillor William Hynse, Sixer Ricky Poremba, Cubs T. Culhane, D. Dolan, J. Hanley, K. Joudrey, T. Wright and P. Farrell.

Best Sport: Terry Lynch.

Most Improved Cub: David Gilhooley.

Swimming Awards: J. Culhane and P. Marby.

A vote of thanks was given to the ladies who accompanied the Cubs to camp to assist in the dining hall; they were Mrs. C. Lynch, Donna Farrell and Mary Ann Wing.

Camp Mikerosesph was concluded on Saturday afternoon with all Cubs in a circle for the Cub Prayer and flag break. Many parents were present for this event. The boys then returned home with their parents after a very successful camp to which both the Cubs and their leaders generously contributed.

Will Always Remember

Dallas - - a Year After

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON Jr.

DALLAS (AP) — The driver swings his car into Elm Street. He passes the nondescript orange brick building. The underpass lies just ahead. Once more the building begins in the back of his neck.

Here, at this place on the street, the gunfire shot him.

The car slips through the brief shadow of the underpass and turns into Stemmons Freeway. Moving fast, it passes a wide, stark building on the right.

That was where the speech would have been.

Up to 60 miles an hour now in the rushing traffic, the car flashes past square towers of yellow brick thrusting up beyond a railway embankment.

And that was where he died . . . The tired young woman heading home. And the prickly feeling, the compulsive recognition of the Texas School Book Depository, of the triple underpass, the Trade Mart. Parkland Hospital have become part of his day.

This is the way it is in Dallas now, and perhaps always will be, for thousands of people who know the city only in certain way—and who were here on Nov. 22, 1963.

WEATHER A REMINDER

Now, in November, even the weather may be the reminder. A misty morning giving way to a lambent sky hour with the touch of a breeze.

That's the kind of day it was when John F. Kennedy came to town and Lee Harvey Oswald fired the bullets that killed the president and wounded Governor John Connally.

The people no longer talk much about the assassination but it lies deep within them.

When, generally, they do assassination it is almost always as a reference point, a landmark like time: "It was a year before [his] assassination" . . . "Since the assassination, I . . ."

A year ago, questions of personal and community guilt seared Dallas.

Few, if any, in Dallas believe now that the city was to blame, or feel personal guilt. When the Warren commission report was released, with its comment that the assassination could not be linked to any "climate" in Dallas, newspaper editorials, officials and people said it was said, in effect—see, Dallas is innocent, just as we knew all along.

But the glare of attention had long before made them see something else — that Dallas had become known as a stronghold of extreme right wing thought and action. Some had decided to change that.

EXAMINE PROBLEMS

Soon after the assassination, Southern Methodist University began a program of joining with city leaders in examining community problems of law and morality. This is continuing.

Last summer, more than 300 leading businessmen formed a group called Businessmen for Public Justice. Many of them had been voting Republican since at least 1952. Harry Truman in 1948 had been the last Democratic presidential candidate to carry the county.

President Johnson carried it on Nov. 3 by a crushing majority. Republicans won only one county office.

Dallas people are less sensitive now about visiting other cities; they seldom run into the bitter remarks and sneers that met them in the months just after the assassination.

And the city has had plenty of visitors. There have been unending conventions. Business has never been better.

On Nov. 22, the Dallas Civic Opera will present a tribute to dance to Kennedy, using premier dancers of great ballet companies around the world.

PLAN MEMORIAL

In another year, construction may have started on Kennedy Memorial Plaza. This will be a quiet park a block and a half from the scene of the assassination. The city and public have raised $225,000 for the plaza and for donations to the Kennedy Library in Boston.

Plaza planners have already made a memorial of Dealey Plaza, where Kennedy was shot.

They wander through the white colonnades where mourners first brought flowers and kept bringing them for months. They stand on the grass and stare at the sixth floor window of the depository or at a guessed-at spot on Elm Street.

to protect the president.

Wednesday Hoover said there is "not a schism" at present between the FBI and the Secret Service, which is charged by law with protecting presidents.

Efforts to reach the members of the W a r r e n commission, some of whom are traveling abroad, were not successful.

Hoover's blast at Dr. King, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, "warped" civil rights. He called the Negro integrationist a liar for advising Negroes not to report any civil rights violations to the Albany, Ga., FBI office because FBI staff members were all southerners.

When he asked Dr. King to make an appointment so he could prove that four of the five men in the office were born in the North, Hoover said, Dr. King would not make the appointment.

An aide to Dr. King said he was not immediately available for comment, that he was vacationing in The Bahamas.

But in Houston, Aaron Henry, a Mississippi member of the National Association for the Advancement of colored people, said that FBI agents in southern states generally are not in sympathy with civil rights.

"If I go farther than that," said Henry, a Clarksville, Miss., druggist, "J. Edgar Hoover is due to lose his civil rights."

In discussing civil rights with the women reporters, Hoover said, "great progress" is being made in solving the slaying of three civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss.

Director of the FBI since 1924, Hoover has been told by President Johnson his tenure will be extended "for as long as I am in the White House." The FBI chief is 69.

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—By a degree of agreement among the political parties almost inconceivable in current partisan warfare on Parliament Hill, the House of Commons has accepted the rule of guillotine.

Applying the guillotine to limit time spent on debate has long been established in the procedure of the British House of Commons, and while its use is occasionally protested it has gained more acceptance as the weight of parliamentary business has grown in recent years.

In brief terms, the guillotine is a device set in time limits on debate, agreed to or imposed in advance of the opening of a debate, by which all the motions required to complete parliamentary action on a bill are put at the expiry of the time limit without further discussion.

This differs from closure. Closure can be imposed by any one — usually, a government member—after a debate has been opened and either bogged down in repetition and filibuster, or has become acrimonious by a small number of dissidents who obviously have not much support in the House.

Closure has a connotation of dictatorship in the Canadian Commons. It was first employed in 1913 to force through the Conservative naval bill over the objection of Liberals led by Wilfrid Laurier. It was last used in 1956 by the L. S. St. Laurent government to force through his bill incorporating Trans - Canada Pipe Lines Limited.

The guillotine is new on Parliament Hill. There have been occasional attempts by words of mouth many times to try to complete debate on certain measures at certain times—as much as ending the second reading debate on the Canada Pension Plan by Wednesday night this week.

The new agreement, however, is embodied in an order of the House. This stands as a temporary rule. It is that appropriations will be discussed every day until adjournment time Friday, Nov. 27.

If all the appropriations are not passed by that time, the unfinished ones will be put to a vote without further debate. They will embodying the appropriations in law—"granting certain sums of money for the public service of Canada"—will then be pushed through, too, without further debate.

The distinction between the guillotine and closure is that the first is agreed to, in time, before a debate opens so no one is caught unaware of the time limit. Closure is imposed after a debate has started and some MPs already have had a chance to state their position.

In the British Commons, the guillotine is applied under some standing rules of the House. For instance, the British House has a rule that interim supply will be discussed on two days before the end of a fiscal year and then cut off by the guillotine.

In Canada, interim supply debate can be ended by the government Opposition as long as it wishes, to the point of threatening or even forcing a general election.

Drinking Spree Lasted 12 Hours Court Is Told

PERTH, Ont. (CP) — John Hall, 22, and four other men went on a 12 - hour drinking spree "in search" for Hall's wife, homes the night Hall was stabbed to death, a non-capital murder trial was told Wednesday.

Witnesses at the trial of Jean Louise McArthur, 32, mother of four who is charged with Hall's death Jan. 28, said the five men consumed 48 pints of beer and 26 ounces of wine as they caroused through the small community 36 miles northeast of Kingston.

lic meeting of this council session Saturday.

Many bishops hope this would help to ease the road to Christian unity by putting the Pope's supremacy, generally considered a stumbling block, in a more attractive light to other Christians.

The outcome of the vote was greeted with applause.

CREATES DEACON GROUP

The document, in addition to defining the shared authority of bishops with the Pope, also creates a group of permanent deacons to help priests and permits mature married men to enter the deaconate. Also in the schema is a section on the Virgin Mary saying that the church has always venerated her "as its most beloved mother."

The religious liberty declaration aroused heated debate in the council last September. Among those who spoke out were its strongest supporters. It advocates that every man should be free to worship according to his conscience, and that church and states should be separated.

European prelates argued that such ideas might be dangerous to Roman Catholicism, which views itself as the one, true religion.

Following the September debate, the declaration was revised. The new version was distributed to the council fathers Tuesday.

Lesage Sees No Prospect of Quebec Seceding

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage said the prospect of Quebec seceding from Canada and dismisses members of the separatist movement as irrational, badly informed and lacking influence.

Mr. Lesage said in a CBC television interview Tuesday night that the separatists display poor understanding of the economic facts of Quebec life, the world trend against economic nation alism and Quebec's growth as a world of state in Canada.

As far as separating from the rest of Canada is concerned at the present time I don't feel that we are economically strong enough," Mr. Lesage said.

"And when we are economically strong enough nobody in Quebec will be thinking about it (separating) because we will have the economic strength — and this is very important as far as the status of Quebec is concerned."

GROUP HOMES WANTED

The Children's Aid Society would be pleased to receive inquiries from married couples in the Belleville area interested in offering a home living to three or four teen-age girls now enrolled in local schools. These are young people who, because of their previous life experience, are unable to accept substitute parents but who can live relatively normal lives in a group setting.

The family or families selected should be between the approximate ages of 33 to 45, in good health and free from more than their rightful share of the pressures and stresses of modern living. Because of the needs of the girls involved, it is essential that the applicants do not have children of their own in the age group likely to be demanding of much of their energy and time. Of course, they must be genuinely fond of young people and able to demonstrate their fondness by acceptance, understanding and warmth of personality.

Since the family will be considered to be an integral part of the Society's child care program, professional counselling and direction will be regularly available. For their efforts they will receive adequate and mutually satisfying compensation.

P.C Women Dress Dolls For Firemen's Project

Comprehensive reports of the annual Provincial meeting and election of officers which was held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, recently were given by the two delegates, Mrs. Stuart Howell and Mrs. H. Yorke at the regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Unit of the Conservative Women's Association.

Mrs. Yorke reported that the meeting was of tremendous interest starting with a reception on Sunday evening given by the Y.P.C. Association, at which time they presented a skit performed by members of the newly formed Arts Council of the young people. Mrs. Yorke read excerpts of the address, by Mr. Fernand Guindon, M.P.P. for Stormont who spoke to the women delegates on "An Ontario French Canadian Looks at Canada"; Mr. Guindon wanted to explain first that he spoke as a "Canadian".

He pointed out that the issue we face today is not an issue between English Canadians and French Canadian. It is an issue between those Canadians whatever their language, who stand for a united and strong Canada, and those other Canadians, whatever their language, who would divide and weaken Canada Mr Guindon placed himself and he believed other Ontario French Canadians, placed themselves, firmly on the side of a united and strong Canada.

KEYNOTE ADDRESS

Mrs. Howell gave a portion of the speech which the Hon. William Davis, Minister of Education and University Affairs made as the keynote address to the delegates. Mr. Davis pointed out that in reviewing our societies and our work we have cause for satisfaction and pride in our achievements. Ontario has an unprecedented prosperity, more people employed, more good being produced and more wages paid. More schools, universities and hospitals are in operation and more industries, more mines and mills and factories are producing opportunities for more people than any other period in our history — and on top of that our growth of population is among the highest in the western world.

DYNAMIC CREED

But all this Mr. Davis emphasized, is not justification for self-satisfaction or complacency. He reminded the audience of the present words of the Prime Minister, Hon. John Robarts, "Modesty helps one to progress, while conceit causes one to lag behind. Let us not make the mistake of patting ourselves on the back for our capital — more industry — more jobs — and more wages — more opportunity and from these more productivity and revenue with which to satisfy the needs and enrich the lives of our people, materially, culturally and spiritually.

Mr. Davis concluded his address with "Let us therefore, resolve now, that at mature Canadians, we on our part, will do everything to unite and do nothing to divide. If we follow this resolution we shall be worthy successors to those patriotic and wise men who laid the foundations of our country, a century ago.

DRESS DOLLS

A report was given regarding the number of dolls, which the ladies have been dressing, according to the needy children of Belleville area through the firemen's Christmas project. These have been tremendous effort on the ladies' part and there are 120 dolls, all beautifully dressed and knitted wear.

The draw was made for the quilt which the unit had sold tickets on and a new member, Mrs. Hofmeyer drew the winning ticket held by Mr. John Fudge, 33 Lewester Street, Belleville.

NEXT AT CLINIC

Six members of the association have volunteered to work at the Canadian Cancer Clinic and will go as a group to do this work, when they are required to do so.

Following the meeting a game of cards took place with the prizes being won by Mrs. Eva Heath, Mrs. C. Hyde, Mrs. D. Diment. The lucky draw was held by Mrs. Evans.

A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. McKenna and her committee at the conclusion of the evening.

Dedicated Housewife Now Running 10 Downing Street

By LYNNE EDMUNDS

LONDON (Reuters)—For the first time in decades there is a dedicated housewife running 10 Downing Street, the home of Britain's prime minister.

Mary Wilson, wife of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, proved it when she took over less than a week ago. She fired the cook. "We don't like having staff around us in our home," she told 30 British women reporters Wednesday.

The Wilsons have a six-room apartment at the top of No. 10, which Mrs. Wilson manages with no help except a part-time cleaner. She buys her groceries at the dividend-paying "co-op" which is favored by working-class shoppers.

She also does the family washing in her own automatic but draws the line at drying it.

"I can't see hanging out the washing at No. 10," she said.

Mrs. Wilson talks politics with her husband while he's having breakfast, and "if there is something I feel very strongly about, I try to see he takes the right line."

CLINGS TO FRIENDS

She clings to her friends from Hampstead, the residential London suburb where the two have lived for 16 years before Wilson became prime minister in the Oct. 15 election.

She is determined to keep on writing poetry, singing in a choir and buying her dresses from her favorite shop.

Her one dream of extravagance is to wear a tiara—borrowed, not bought. She said "I don't have any jewelry."

Before she was married, Mary Wilson was a secretary.

She still harbors dreams of being a writer. She's keeping a "very frank" diary of life at No. 10 — "for publication in about 100 years."

She doesn't think her sons, Robin, 20, now at Oxford, and Giles, 18, will go into politics and doesn't mind. Lacking personal political ambition, she is nevertheless delighted at the increasing number of women members of Parliament — 28, compared with 25 after the 1959 election.

Resolutions were passed to provide donations for the Monsignory Burnsey Burnsey and the Father Ainsley bursary.

After a discussion it was decided to have a Christmas Fair, early in December. Conveners were chosen to look after this project were Mrs. Hugh Brady and Mrs. Charles Clairmont, assisted by Mrs. Breen O'Connor and Mrs. William Monk.

Mrs. Brady gave a report on the recent regional meeting held in Batawa.

An essay entitled "What Does Remembrance Day Mean to You?" was given; also a reading by Mrs. M. Monk.

Bridge Street U.C.W. Sponsor Christmas Tea and Bazaar

Even though the weather turned somewhat cooler the atmosphere within Bridge Street United Church hall was warm and cheery to recompense the many patrons who attended the annual Christmas tea and bazaar held yesterday afternoon.

The well organized event was under the fine convenorship of Mrs. R. K. Jeffery and Mrs. D. M. Scott.

The decorating scheme throughout was in keeping with the lighter side of Christmas with numerous motifs of Santa Claus and his sleigh holding an assortment of gift wrapped packages. Located in the vestibule was a scene depicting Christmas eve with its cheery fireplace with stockings hung from the mantel and a glittering Christmas tree encircled with a selection of toys. Mrs. Lyle Jones was in charge of the decor which was most attractive in its simplicity.

The guests were warmly greeted at the entrance by Mrs. H. M. Davis, wife of the minister, the president Mrs. J. B. Leslie, Mrs. A. Poulter and Mrs. J. S. Loynes.

OFFICIAL OPENING

Rev. H. M. Davis officially opened the bazaar and commended the ladies of the unit for industry and skill applied in making the many items which were displayed and wished them every success in their endeavor.

The tea room, located in the bright and spacious church hall was highlighted with a realistic Santa Claus, standing on the balcony, complete with loaded sleight and reindeer as if prepared to take off on his long journey from the North Pole. Centering the room was the tea table covered with white tulle, having colorful felt Yule appliques and bearing a miniature Christmas tree surrounded with gaily wrapped parcels.

The twin tea tables set at diagonal angles, so convenient for serving were most attractive, each centred with a replica of Santa's sleigh made from crated oranges with candy cane runners and along with Santa Claus held an assortment of tiny gift wrapped parcels. Bright red candles in crystal holders, appropriately adorned serviettes and the silver tea services completed the settings.

The guest tables were likewise in their decor, each covered with white linen cloth and centred with a smaller replica of Santa's sleigh, of puffed rice and candy cane runners.

Tea room conveners were Mrs. S. J. Hibbard and Mrs. D. G. Williams, while hostesses were Mrs. R. Patterson, Mrs. G. Andrews, Mrs. E. Denyes, Mrs. C. Hyde, Mrs. B. Kerr and Mrs. Neil O'Neil. Pouring throughout the afternoon were: Mrs. G. S. Cronk, Mrs. J. Denyes, Mrs. G. Moore, Mrs. F. Burrows, Mrs. J. B. Patrick, Miss O. Elson, Mr. G. Anderson, Mrs. R. Bollins, Mrs. E. Bird, Mrs. J. Nalles, Mrs. R. K. Jeffrey, Mrs. M. Watson and Mrs. A. Guest. Kitchen conveners were Mrs. W. G. McGee and Mrs. W. D. Leslie, while other ladies of the organization assisted in the replenishing and serving.

VARIETY OF SALES

The various sales tables were well patronized with each carrying out the attractive festive decor. These were convened by the various members of all units of the U.C.W., as well as a Christmas boutique which was an assortment of articles for decorating made and sold by the C.G.I.T. and Explorers' groups. One section was occupied by a display of mixed nuts with sale of these being a project of the A.O.T.S. Men's Club. The Sunday School rooms where the homebaking, candy and variety tables were located was a hive of activity with their respective goods selling rapidly. Many aprons were displayed which are so appropriate for gift giving, also the numerous items on the fancy goods table including knitted and crocheted baby sets as well as other fancy items sewn wearing apparel for the little tots. It was in the late Fall of 1904 that George T. Woodley opened a small fur business on Charlotte Street in Belleville. In six months this shop was too small and the business was moved to the present location on Front Street. It was not long before more floor space was needed so the store next door was taken, the dividing wall removed, doubling the shop's size. Business continued to prosper. In appreciation for this continued patronage, Woodley Furriers have planned to make their Diamond Jubilee Year, one that will be long remembered. New Fashions as Fascinating As Bird Watching for Folks By Use of Fine Feathers

NEW YORK (AP)—Your fine feathered friends this spring may be your wife, mother, daughter or sweetheart, that is, if you flock with folks who can afford the elegant ambition of bird - feathers introduced by Count Sarmi Monday.

Six willowy models fluttered into the showroom in yards of delicately patterned chiffon. The wispy fabrics were gathered at the high bodice line where the plumage of jungle birds nested attractively over the curves.

Count Sarmi said he was striving for a collection of "pretty, feminine and soft" clothes—and feathers are just about as soft as you can get.

Richly embroidered ball gowns with full skirts; ornate lace patterns over contrasting silk dinner costumes; blouses of lace or black crepe around hemlines, necklines or down the bare backs of cocktail dresses: all made as interesting watching as bird-watching.

In his daytime costumes, skirts were softly shirred or pleated, or swingy in one way or another, short but not above the knee.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—California fashion designers decreed Monday what men knew all along: It's the woman who wear the pants in the family.

Trousers sheathed nearly every slender leg at the opening of designers' week - long spring and resort wear showing for fashion editors.

Geno-Kico showed pants for patio, pool and fireside wear. They ranged from sheath-like pink silk jump suits, with neck lines plunging to the navel, to trousers split like trumpet bells riding on the hips and baring the midriff.

Silk-knit pants—really an acetate fabric—were a showpiece of the Beverly Hills Cardinal collection, again with matching over - blouses, middies and T-shirts.

Flowing silk dinner trousers was John of California's contribution to the trend, topped with a four-button, double-breasted blazer.

Campus Casuals joined the club with a shocking pink terry-cloth jump suit, cut off just above the knee.

"Do you have a book on how-to-get-a-lazy-husband-to-do-it?"

The Experts Say 'How to Buy and Cook Poultry' New Book Out

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — With the Christmas turkey-and-trimmings season just approaching, home economists in the consumer section of the agriculture department have issued a colorful 70-page book on poultry.

Entitled simply Poultry—How to Buy and Cook It, the book has such information as what the various grades of poultry mean and fancy recipes for such delicacies as turkey vegetable soup and shish kebabs. It's available from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, for 75 cents.

In the introduction, home economists say nothing has changed more in the space age than food technology and the poultry industry has kept pace. "Until recently, poultry was served only on special occasions. Now it may be served any day of the year, thanks to the advances in production, processing and storage methods.

During the last 10 years consumption of turkey in Canada has almost doubled, increasing from 4.3 pounds a person in 1953 to 7.7 pounds in 1963.

TURKEY ROLLS

The poultry industry is producing more and more "convenience" foods, along with the usual whole and cut-up fresh chicken and turkey. One example is the turkey roll now appearing in some markets. They may be bought raw or pre-cooked. The large rolls are usually made from 20-to-30-pound turkeys and the small ones from 10-to-15-pound birds.

The skin and bones are removed and the layers of white meat and dark, or all white and all dark, are rolled up in the skin and securely tied. "Turkey rolls are ideal for buffet suppers and sandwiches," write the home economists.

Much of the material in the book is practical information. It answers hundreds of questions like this one: How long does it take to thaw out a five-pound frozen chicken? (One day in the refrigerator, or 7½ hours at room temperature, or five hours in cold water, with the original watertight wrapper left on.)

It also gives a series of charts showing cooking times for various types of poultry and tells how you find out if your chicken or turkey is done.

DONE AT 190

With a roasted chicken, you just press the thick muscle of the drumstick, inserting your fingers with a cloth or paper towel; if it feels soft, the bird is done. Another test is that the leg of the chicken moves readily when you lift or twist it.

"If you use a meat thermometer, insert it into the thickest part of the chicken's thigh muscle and into the center of the stuffing; make sure it does not touch the bone. When the chicken is cooked, the thermometer registers 190 degrees Fahrenheit in the thigh or 165 degrees in stuffing."

Following the information section, which covers chicken, duck, fowl, goose and turkey are 40 poultry recipes including salads, sauces, soups and stuffings.

Ingredients: 10 cups soft stale bread crumbs (1½ - 24 - ounce loaves), 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sage, 1 teaspoon savory, ¼ cup chopped cashew nuts, 1 cup butter or margarine, melted, 3/4 cup chopped onion, ½ pound chopped mush rooms, (or one 10-ounce can of mushrooms drained and chopped).

Mix the breadcrumbs, seasonings, parsley and nuts. Saute the onions and mushrooms in butter and add to the crumbs mixture lightly but thoroughly. Makes 10 cups of stuffing—enough for a 12-to-20-pound turkey.

Nail or screw brush upside down outside your door. People can wipe their feet in lobster instead of beating it in.

Ann Landers

Family Has Problem With 'Stingy Aunt Lucille'

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have a sister-in-law who figures her groceries so close you need a search warrant to find an extra piece of bread in her house. Lucille is so tight you could bust right in her living room before she'd offer you a cup of coffee.

Last Sunday afternoon my husband and I and our two children were driving by their home. They were sitting out in front on lawn chairs and waved for us to stop. After about an hour our oldest boy said, "Aunt Lucille, I'm hungry." She replied: "Wait 'til you get home. I don't want to spoil your supper."

ANN LANDERS

I was so burned up when I heard her answer the boy that way I suggested we leave.

Now I'm sorry I didn't tell her off. Should I have said something? If so, what? — DELAYED REACTION.

DEAR DELAYED — What good would telling her off do?

Since you are aware of Aunt Lucille's stinginess, feed your children before you take them to her home. Or if you want to be obvious, carry sandwiches along in a paper sack and ask if you can use her dishes.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have become interested in a woman who is 43 but she could pass for much less. I am 37. This sounds like a big difference but mentally and physically Rena and I are awfully close.

My mother is 65 years old and ready to take the gas pipe. I've told mother if she met Rena she'd like her a lot but mother says she doesn't want to meet Rena because she isn't sure she could control herself.

The problem is that Rena wants to back me in the restaurant business — no strings attached. I have a great location picked out and I'm sure I could do well. My mother says she will mortgage the house and get me the money if I have my heart set on the deal, but she doesn't want me to accept Rena's backing. Frankly I don't want to take a chance with mom's money. Please help me decide. — REX.

* * *

DEAR REX — If you haven't enough confidence in the deal to accept your mother's money then for heaven's sake don't accept Rena's money. Financial obligations make strange bedfellows — both literally and figuratively.

Get back into your own generation, Buster. You have one mother. That's enough.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I read the letter from the little boy who was afraid his parents might put his dog "Skippee" to sleep. As a member of the veterinary profession I resent your use of the term "vet." This is degrading to the profession and its members.

The proper terminology is "veterinarian" or "veterinary medical doctor" or "doctor of veterinary medicine." The word "vet" suggests an individual who has served in a war.

When "vet" is used in conversation I suspect the person cannot pronounce veterinarian. When it appears in print I suspect the writer cannot spell it. I hope you will publish my letter. — W.W.N., D.V.M.

* * *

DEAR W.W.N., D.V.M. — I checked with three Chicago doctors of veterinary medicine. None of them like being called "vets."

One said the term "vet" is a hangover from the days when medical training was not a prerequisite and animals were treated by lay people who wanted to help suffering creatures. Today a veterinarian (see, I can too spell it) is trained in the science of animal medicine and deserves to be called by his proper title.

I'm glad you wrote to correct me. I feel the same way when someone calls me a lovelorn columnist.

* * *

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Women's Institutes

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

SIDNEY — Thirty-eight members of the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute, including representatives from Hillier, Uxbridge, Tweed and Frankford Institutes journeyed by bus to Stoney Creek to visit the Adelaide Hoodless Home on November 11th. Mrs. Morris Sickle capably handled the arrangements.

Mrs. R. Lockman, the hostess at the home, greeted the visitors with a warm welcome. The house has antique furnishings which were sent in from all over Canada. In the library of 121 volumes, 52 came from the Cyprus estate in Paris. The furnishings have been gifts from groups or individuals.

A tribute to Mrs. Hoodless is on a plaque at the fireplace, placed by the Ontario Archeological Society and Historic Sites Board: "Adelaide Hunter Hoodless, 1857-1910. Adelaide Hoodless was born in this farm house and lived here until she married James Hoodless in 1881. On February 19th she organized Stoney Creek, the world's first Women's Institute. As her life's work and in this organization rural women could discuss their problems and work together to improve their standard of home making and citizenship. The movement spread rapidly throughout Ontario and later to other provinces. Mrs. Hood less, a natural leader and forceful speaker, introduced the teaching of domestic science into Ontario schools and obtained funds for the building of MacDonald Institute at Guelph."

HOMESTEAD RESTORED

The homestead was purchased by the Women's Institutes Institutes of Canada in 1959, and was restored and furnished in the typical fashion of the period of Mrs. Hoodless. This is a project for all Institutes in Canada.

A cairn stands at the junction of Highways 8 and 54, a half mile from the homestead, to commemorate her birthplace erected by the Women's Institutes of Ontario and unveiled by Lady Tweedsmuir on Oct. 7, 1937.

When the Scottish Rural Institute members made a tour of rural Canada in 1939, a flag pole and flag were dedicated in the Adelaide Hoodless Memorial Park. A bronze tablet tells township council erected a plaque in 1960.

The Federated Historic Sites and Monuments Board erected a plaque in June, 1962, proclaiming Adelaide Hunter Hoodless an eminent Canadian

The ladies were treated to tea at the Adelaide Hoodless Memorial Park. A trip to Homestead From here they were taken to Melton Airport for a visit and lunch at the Parkdale Shopping Plaza.

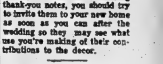
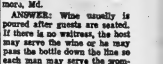
MAIL CALL

QUESTION: My wedding is to take place in January. Invitations haven't been sent out yet, and already I've received a number of wedding presents. Several are from friends of the family I hadn't intended to invite. Since they sent gifts, must I now add them to the list? I've also had hints from a couple of friends that they plan to give showers shortly.



One girl, I understand, has a sizable list made up for her party. In return, must I invite to the wedding everyone who attends a shower in my honor? If it's necessary to invite so many extra people, I may have to change my reception plans and make it a buffet instead of a sit-down lunch. Would you please let me know what my obligations are? — C. A., Syracuse, N.Y.



ANSWER: Friends who attend showers in your honor are not invited to the wedding and reception if at all possible. The same applies to family connections who have sent gifts and sent gifts without first getting a wedding invitation. If it's impossible to include so many extras, in addition to sending thank-you notes, you should try to invite them to your home as soon as you can after the wedding so they may see what you've received of their contributions to the decor.

QUESTION: I have a few questions to ask about serving wine with dinner. Are wine glasses filled before guests sit down or after everyone has taken his place? Should the glass be filled to the top or just half filled? Is the bottle correctly filled at the table after glasses are filled? — Mrs. F. F. Baltimore, Md.

ANSWER: Wine usually is poured after guests are seated. If there is no waitress, the host fills the glass to the top as he may pass the bottle down the line so each man may serve the woman on his right and himself. The glass is filled about two-thirds, not up to the rim. The bottle may be placed on the cloth or on a serving table nearby, either in an attractive bottle holder or cradle or basket, if the wine is the type that should be served chilled.

Susanna's Family Fare

NO HOT LIPS

Dear Susanna: Coffee stays far fresher much longer when, after it is opened, I place it in a tightly sealed can and store it in the refrigerator.

With me, this is a must to ensure truly fresh coffee all the time — and believe me, I'm sure fussy about my coffee. — Harold Dennis.

For non-smokers, this is also the perfect way to help you keep cigarettes fresh from one party to the next.

So often friends will arrive and the host or hostess finds himself with nothing but dried-up tobacco to offer. Next time, as soon as the guests leave, wrap the supply on hand in aluminum foil and stow it away in the fridge.

When you first bring them in and light one up, you're in for a really far out treat — fiery tipped cigarettes and cool, cool lips — SUSANNA

FATTENING FESTIVITIES

Dear Susanna: Now that the festive season is upon us and hostesses will be enticing guests to eat all sorts of rich and fattening goodies, do you not think it would be thoughtful of our friends would remember those of us who, for one reason or another, must count the calories?

While our "thin brothers and sisters" are munching on chips and dip, bon bons, shortbreads, olives, sausage rolls and mixed nuts, it would be most appreciated by a great many more people than you would suspect, if small trays of such items as celery curls, carrot sticks and little bunches of grapes were included. — Calorie Counter

UCW Meeting

BATAWA U.C.W.

BATAWA — The U.C.W. of Batawa United Church met on Monday evening in Batawa Public School with ten present. President Mrs. L. Bedford presided. Mrs. Ivan Lockhart conducted the devotional period and showed a film on India.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. I. Lockhart and Mrs. W. Arbuckle.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Next time let ME toss the salad!"

Women's Institutes

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.I.

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. William Burkitt opened her home for the November meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute with Mrs. Grant Minaker acting as co-hostess. There were approximately 30 ladies present.

The meeting was opened with the president, Mrs. W. Motley, presiding. A short business period was held. Plans were made for the family night to be held in the basement of Mountain View Church on November 27.

The topic for the meeting was Canadian Industries under the convenorship of Mrs. Charles Watering, who gave a talk on apples from Bootes's apple orchards, which proved interesting.

ROCK BOUND

Mrs. Seymour Hamilton read an article on the sodalite ore mines at Bancroft. These rocks are made into jewellery for the rock hounds.

The hostess was thanked for hospitality by Mrs Robert Barber. Lunch was served by the hostesses and lunch committee Mrs. Ben Anderson and Mrs. Seymour Hamilton.

TAKE TWO TOURS

On Wednesday November 11 about fifteen Institute members motored to Belleville and were taken on tours of two plants. The first one was at Vagden Mills, manufacturers of men's and boys' hosiery. They have approximately 60 employees and have around 20 machines with three shifts working a 24-hour day.

The second tour was the new executive building of the Bell Telephone Company. The managers of the different departments explained the workings of their departments and answered any questions. The two tours proved most interesting.

CONFERENCE SET

OTTAWA (CP)—A conference of centennial planners in Toronto next week will try to spark wider interest in the 1967 anniversary of Canadian Confederation among church, university and women's groups. Special panels of the 50-member National Conference on the Centennial of Confederation will cover these subjects and take a close look as well at the contribution the century can make towards strengthening Canadian unity.

Two Souffles For Special Days

By MARY MOORE

One of our readers of Irish extraction felt she should repay me for giving her a recipe, so she sent her prized Cold Lemon Souffle. This kind of reciprocity is not necessary, but it is delightful, especially when the recipe is so good.

I made up Mrs. P. B.'s Cold Lemon Souffle and served it to guests last Saturday night and all declared it delicious. It is light and lemony and may be made 24 hours in advance.

COLD LEMON SOUFFLE
(Serves 6 - thanks to Mrs. P. B.)

5 eggs - yolks and white separated,
2 large lemons - juice and grated rind,
¾ cup sugar (1 cup less 2 tablespoons),
1 tablespoon milk,
1 teaspoon gelatine,
1 cup 32% cream, whipped.

In heavy saucepan mix together egg yolks, grated lemon rind and juice, sugar, milk and gelatine. (It curdles a little but this does not matter.) Stir over low heat until it thickens. It does not have to boil. Remove from heat and cool. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into cooled mixture. Whip cream until stiff and fold in smoothly. Pour into cut glass bowl or other serving dish or into 6 stemmed glasses and refrigerate. If to be stored in refrigerator overnight, cover it. Just before serving sprinkle with chocolate shot or little curls of shaved semi-sweet chocolate.

HOT APRICOT SOUFFLE
(uses up leftover egg whites)

(Note: This is a simplified version of my Salzburger Nockerel which you found so popular in December 1959).

1 cup apricot puree (may be baby food or puree from strained or sweetened thick stewed apricots),
3 egg whites,
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar,
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until definitely stiff but not dry. Fold in apricot puree and grated lemon rind. Turn into straight-sided ungreased souffle baking dish. Stand in larger pan of hot water to depth of 1" and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Serve at once with Hot Foamy Sauce: One-half cup butter, 1 cup icing sugar, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons sherry or 1 teaspoon rum flavoring. In top of double boiler cream the butter, adding sugar gradually then egg well beaten and flavoring. Beat while heating over hot water. Serve at once.

Beatitudes for Parents Have Great Deal of Merit

DEAR DORIS — I'd like to share the following lines, which were sent to me by a viewer for use on my TV show. They were written by Marion Zinneman.

BEATITUDES FOR PARENTS

Blessed are the parents who make their peace with spilled milk and with mud, for of such is the kingdom of childhood.

Blessed is the parent who engages not in the comparison of his child with others, for precious unto each is the rhythm of his own growth.

Blessed are the fathers and mothers who have learned laughter, for it is the music of the child's world.

Blessed and wise are those parents who understand the goodness of time, for they make it not a sword that kills growth but a shield to protect.

Blessed and mature are they who without anger can say no, for comforting to the child is the security of firm decisions.

Blessed is the gift of consistency for it is heart's-ease in childhood.

Blessed are they who accept the awkwardness of growth, for they are aware of the constant perilous choice between marred furnishings and damaged personalities.

Blessed are the teachable, for knowledge brings understanding and understanding brings love.

Blessed are the men and women who in the midst of the unpromising mundane, give love, for they bestow the greatest of all gifts to each other, to their children, and — in an ever-widening circle — to their fellow men.

VI SCRIVER, Kitchener, Ontario.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR VI — Words of wisdom! Thank you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — This argument has been going on since my son was married 12 years ago. My husband and I have been separated for 15 years, but he is the father of all my children.

When my sons married, the girls' parents have of course always announced the engagement. My husband was very hurt when one engagement was in giving just my name, like "son of Mrs. Ellen Jones." I want to announce my daughter's properly. I do not want to hurt her father or her grandmother.

Though separated, my husband and I are still friends, still speak. He visits the boys in their own homes. — MOTHER OF BRIDE.

* * *

DEAR MOTHER — It is quite proper to identify your daughter similarly to: "Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jones."

* * *

Confidential to BLEMISHES — Your pimples are probably a symptom of acne. Write in again, enclosing ten cents and your name and address on a stamped envelope, and I will send you an article by an expert giving instructions about what to do. Skin care and cleanliness, diet and other health routines are all involved.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — There is a girl in my class who thinks she is the only one alive! We are only in grade nine but she is always hanging around boys in grade 10 and 11. I don't know how they can stand her.

Her hair is teased to no end, while her teeth are unsightly. You will probably say something about inside qualities. Hers must be very limited as she talks mostly of herself and is very inconsiderate of others.

She is also ruining the character of another girl who used to be kind of nice. Why does this girl act this way and why is she excited to older boys? — BEWILDERED.

DEAR BEWILDERED — Your flirtatious friend may be seeking thrills to make up for a lack of enough loving attention and care at home — especially since you mention the unsightly teeth. She has the idea that it is smart to act grown up. If the other girl has an understanding mother to talk to, she'll come out of it all right. Right now this ninth grade sophisticate seems glamorous to her.

* * *

Confidential to WORRIED FRIEND — I will send a private reply to your question if you will write again, repeating it, and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. I cannot deal with it in the column.

* * *

(Doris reserves the right to ignore anonymous letters. When writing in, sign your right name, and enclose a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Many Women Misled by Use of Word

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Lloyd Miller says natural childbirth association should remove the word "natural" from their name.

The reason, says the chief of obstetrics at St. Luke's Hospital, Cedar Rapids, Iowa is that many women are misled by the use of the word. They think it means labor and delivery entirely without the assistance of anesthetics.

"This is not so. The term refers to a reduction, not a with drawal of anesthesia and medication. We always ask the mother if she prefers to be sleep or awake when her baby is born and we never expect all patients to go through labor without medication."

Dr. Miller, who has been conducting lectures on natural childbirth in Canada, has met with some success in his campaign. He says at least two Canadian groups are considering deleting "natural" from their names.

The noted obstetrician, who has delivered more than 6,000 babies by the natural method, says 95 per cent of his patients are awake to hear their baby's first cry.

"There was a time when I was proud if a woman told me she couldn't remember anything about the birth of her baby, but I've certainly changed my ideas since then."

Labor is considerably shortened and mothers are much more at ease when they learn the series of relaxing exercises to help through childbirth, says Dr. Miller.

He would like to see teen-age girls given courses in natural childbirth in high school and believes they would then be more likely to have their children by this method. "Education is the important thing. That way, misunderstanding is avoided and fear alleviated."

Highways Minister Defends County Council System in Talk to Warden's Banquet

PICTON (Staff) — Members of council and their guests, numbering 200, attended the annual County of Prince Edward Warden's Banquet in Picton Wednesday night. Guest speaker for the occasion was the Honorable C. S. MacNaughton, Minister of Highways for Ontario. In his opening remarks His Honor Judge W. S. Lane, toastmaster for the event, mentioned that the evening's proceedings would do away with the traditional round of toasts to the county and municipalities and would feature this year a new innovation, a guest speaker, and added that it was indeed an honor to receive an address by the Minister of Highways.

Warden Ken Hicks, this year's host for the occasion, outlined many of the changes that had been inaugurated during his term of office. He stated that the county's road program was going very well. Tenders were under way for the footings of the new bridge at Cronk's Ferry. He also mentioned that catering to the convention for Homes for the Aged this year did a great deal to advertise the county. As much if not more so than the Harmsworth races. In closing his speech he thanked council for their full support and co-operation during the past year and added special thanks to County Clerk Tom Walker.

Warden Hicks introduced all the members of County Council to the guests and also introduced the members of North Marysburg Township Council. Last year's warden, Don Bond, replied to the warden's welcome. He said, Ken has worked hard and deserves a lot of credit for the things he has done for the people of the County of Prince Edward.

SPEAKER INTRODUCED

Norris Whitney, M.P.P., before introducing the guest speaker, said that the innovations brought about during Warden Hicks' term led to better government of the county. The Hon. Minister also opened his talk with compliments for the retiring warden. "Under Warden Hicks' leadership," he said, "Prince Edward County is one of the first counties to move in a modern direction, with the appointment of the County Welfare Officer and a county assessment officer. Few other counties have advanced this far," he said, "and I congratulate Warden Hicks on his foresight." The Minister said that there had been a fair amount in the papers regarding the possible abolishment of the County Council system. This arises from reporters taking one person's viewpoint as authoritative rather than taking the opinion of the majority. He continued, it is most important before denouncing the system obsolete or deficient that we sincerely examine what we have and try and make it work. There is a shift in emphasis in Government the Minister said and there is a definite growing interest in helping the municipalities. The Department must become more closely involved with the municipalities and assist with road problems and requirements.

Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P., Prince Edward Lennox, thanked the Hon. Mr. MacNaughton for his words and also congratulated Mr. Hicks on his work for the year. Warden Hicks, he said, has a high reputation for getting things done.

Others who brought greetings to Warden Hicks were Mayor J. Ellis of Belleville, who said that there has always been a lot of "play" between Prince Edward County and Belleville. Belleville, he said, is not a part of either county but rather is the heart of both. "I bring greetings from this heart," he said.

Tom Burnside, Warden of Hastings County; D. Brown, Warden of Lennox and Addington; D. McMaster, Warden of Northumberland and Durham were also in attendance and extended their good wishes to Warden Hicks.

Driver Fined $200 for Impairment

PICTON (Staff)—In Magistrate's court on Wednesday morning Delbert Campbell was fined $200 and costs for driving while impaired, by Magistrate T. Y. Wills. Campbell pleaded not guilty and was defended by R. E. Nourse of Picton. Testimony, given by defence witness, George Fox, was waived as being invalid and unsatisfactory.

William Hodgins, age 30, charged with the theft of a 40 H.P. outboard motor from the property of Rest Haven Home on Hill St., Picton pleaded guilty to the charge and was remanded for sentence for one week pending an investigation into his previous police record. Hodgins was arrested on Tuesday after the motor was located at a Kingston dealer's over the weekend. The theft took place Sat., Nov. 14, value of the motor was estimated to be $850. Donald Ward of Picton is also being charged with possession in the same case. His trial must be heard by a Kingston magistrate.

Ronald Hineman, age 32 appeared in court to face two charges. One of common assault and the other leaving the scene of an accident. In view of the defendant's past record and the nature of the charges Hineman was sentenced to three months in common jail for the assault charge and one month consecutive for leaving the scene. The assault took place at the home of Mr. John Kelly of Royal Street. Three other men were involved in the attack on Kelly, who was severely beaten after being aroused from his bed by the men. Hineman pleaded guilty to the charge.

Makes Arrest of Dangerous Man

TORONTO (CP) — A policewoman stopped an erratic driver Wednesday and found she had detained a man described by the police radio dispatcher as "angerous" and possibly armed.

Policewoman Diane Ramona Kett, 29, kept the man occupied until detectives arrived to take him into custody.

Policewoman Kett said she stopped the car because it was being driven erratically. While she talked to the driver, she noticed a pair of handcuffs in the back seat. Ordering the driver into the back seat of her cruiser, she radioed for a check on the car.

Back came a message: "This car is wanted and you are advised to use extreme caution as its occupants are considered dangerous and may be armed."

The figure is 32,700 tons more than the amount the Soviet Union imported from Japan during the same period.

Canada Packers Recall 48,000 Cans of 'Klik'

TORONTO (CP) — Canada Packers Limited has recalled about 48,000 cans of a luncheon meat sold since Sept. 16 in Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces containing less than the normal quantities of one of the curing ingredients.

A company statement issued today said there is a small chance the cans of Klik could deteriorate over a long period of time and might then cause serious illness if eaten.

W. D. Lasby, Canada Packers general manager, said the effect "of a smaller than normal quantity of this curing ingredient has not been clearly established by food scientists."

Klik is a pork product.

Mr. Lasby said: "Extensive tests have been undertaken by the company with the co-operation of scientific consultants and the food and drug directorate of the national health and welfare department.

"The best scientific opinion indicates that the risk of impaired keeping qualities is small, but may exist. Therefore, there is a small chance that the product could deteriorate and might then cause serious illness if eaten."

RETURN TO DEALER

Canada Packers said anyone in possession of any of the affected tins are asked to return them immediately to their retailer for replacement or refund.

The affected tins contain the following code indented in the tops of the tins: EST 7 and one of the following numbers: 00144 00164, 00174, 00214, 00234 00254 00284, 00304, 00324. Cans bearing any other combination of numbers and letters are not affected.

Company officials said all Klik now on retailers' shelves, has been carefully checked by company employees to ensure that it is not from the lot in question.

Canada Packers said the lack of curing ingredients was found in spice mixes supplied to one of the company's plants. Klik is cooked during the canning process and the curing ingredients are added in the spice mixes to assure long-term keeping qualities.

Every home heating fuel claims economy, dependability, cleanliness, convenience.

But compared to other fuels Natural Gas is best.

Just how economical is economical? How dependable is dependable? Just how clean is clean? Compare one fuel to another and the facts will prove that Natural Gas is best no matter what the others claim.

Fact: Natural Gas costs far less than electric heating, and in most areas of Ontario less than oil.

Fact: Natural Gas is so economical that you can heat an entire house with normal insulation evenly, including basement . . . no need for individual room thermostats, for closed off rooms.

Fact: Natural Gas requires none of the extra thick wall and ceiling insulation, or the special basement insulation required by electric heating.

Fact: Natural Gas is dependable. Supply lines are buried underground. Weather and road conditions, power failures or burned out fuses do not disrupt the flow of fuel.

Fact: Natural Gas burns cleaner. All its volume is turned into heat energy. No soot. No greasy deposits. No baked-in dirt on walls or drapes.

Fact: Natural Gas forced air systems make living more comfortable and healthier. The warm air is circulating and being filtered constantly. Uncirculated air, as provided by electric heating, is stale air.

Fact: Natural Gas lets you conveniently and economically use your heating system for air conditioning during Summer months. Lets you humidify the circulating air too.

Fact: Natural Gas, properly installed, with Automatic shut-off and other modern safety controls is as safe a heating system as you'll find anywhere. Electricity leads the list of fire causes over all other forms of energy. (Ontario Fire Marshal's Report.)

Fact: With Natural Gas, service is free.

There is other evidence. But these facts are enough to show that although every fuel makes the same claims, if you compare one fuel to another, Natural Gas is best.

Teen-Age Canada Booklet Outlines Facts Baby-Sitters Should Know

By JACK HUTTON

It takes more than just the ability to read a bedtime story to be a qualified baby-sitter, Teen Age Canada suggests in today's column. How would you rate as a baby-sitter?

Should all baby-sitters take some minimum form of training before accepting the responsibility of looking after someone else's child?

What is the youngest age at which one should accept baby-sitting assignments? Fourteen? Sixteen? Eleven?

Is it wise for any baby-sitter under 20-years-old to accept a sitting assignment with anyone else than relatives, friends or strangers the first two have recommended?

These questions, and many others, are receiving a great deal of attention these days as several thousand Canadian girls pick up their fall and winter roles as "parents-by-the-hours."

And the trend, I find, is for local communities to provide a chance for their baby-sitters to find out about problems they'll face. Not only that, but the vast majority of sitters welcome the opportunity.

IT'S FRIGHTENING

How many people can avoid panic when faced with a crying, wet baby for the first time? Not many, I'll bet, and I'm including myself among the cowards.

It should come as a relief, therefore, to hear that a 30-page booklet is available across Canada outlining the basic facts that baby-sitters should know. Some parents, in fact, might take a few tips from its pages.

I talked this week to Mrs. Adams, not only one of the most charming people I know but also the editor of the Baby-Sitters' Training Course for the National Safety League. (If she's available as a baby-sitter I stand first in line.)

"British Columbia and Alberta have been leaders in offering instructions for sitters," she said. "But Ontario has been offering a course through community organizations since 1961. Its course is the one being offered across Canada through the National Safety League."

SEVEN LECTURES

The course (it's available to local groups for $1 by writing the National Safety League, 30 The Driveway, Ottawa 4) suggests seven lectures that cover everything from body cleanliness to playing the family's TV set without permission.

I can't imagine a more detailed or helpful outline in any form. And I'd include experienced baby-sitters in that recommendation.

For example, name six qualities you believe a baby-sitter should have. If you've been looking after neighborhood children for several years this should be easy. Now look at the list prepared by the National Safety League.

It includes: dependability (do you follow instructions faithfully?); punctuality (always on time?); honesty (do you raid the refrigerator?); good manners (do your friends drop in later?); good appearance (sloppy jeans?); love of children (can you comfort a frightened 2-year-old?).

FOR EMERGENCY

The booklet emphasizes something every baby-sitter should know before his or her first assignment make sure the parents leave behind emergency telephone numbers.

These should include a telephone number where the parents can be reached, the family doctor, and a nearby relative. The sitter should already know how to reach both police and fire departments in case of emergency.

It's only fair, of course, that parents will also tell the sitter in advance whether people are expected to call later. And the sitter should accept these later messages politely, noting the information for the absent parents.

No parent can expect the sitter to do something that wasn't mentioned earlier. I still remember the complaining letter of one sitter who said she was scared stiff by scratching sounds at the back door.

It turned out that the family cat was shivering in below-zero temperatures, trying to get back in. No one bothered to tell the sitter, who took all the blame later.

If you're still wondering about those first questions, here's how the National Safety League answers them. Every sitter should have some training. Fourteen is the best minimum age for sitters, and never sit for strangers.

Happy sitting.

Western Europe Hits Wall Of Economic Difficulties in Long March Toward Unity

LONDON (AP) — Western Europe has run into a wall of economic difficulties in its long march toward unity. Its prolonged boom also seems heading for trouble.

Talk is even heard of a general slump in world trade from such men as Britain's new prime minister, Harold Wilson.

Wilson will seek President Johnson's support when they meet next month for a radical new system of international credit that will allow a freer flow of money and goods.

There is immediate peril that Western Europe's two chief trading groups—the six nation Common Market and the seven-nation European Free Trade Association—will break up because of actions by key members.

A longer-term pupil lurks in the possibility that the European boom will play itself out. To safeguard themselves the nations might then adopt protectionist policies. As trade contracted markets shrank and unemployment spread, the Europeans and their trading partners would slide into a slump.

Already there have been ominous pollents.

In most industrial countries of West Europe, except West Germany and Sweden, imports are outstripping exports, leaving a trade deficit.

PREDICT SLOWER GROWTH

A survey by Common Market economists is generally foresees a tapering off to the average European growth rate from 5.5 per cent this year to four per cent in 1965.

If this, as the experts say they expect, coincides with a slowdown of American expansion after nearly four years of high riding, a contest for world markets may develop with ever growing intensity.

In the Common Market, French President de Gaulle recently threatened to walk out if the Germans did not come to terms with France soon on a common grain price. France, with cheap wheat, wants to sell more to her partners. West Germany's Christian Democratic government, with subsidized wheat farming and a general election next fall, does not want cheap wheat dumped on its doorstep.

In EFTA, Britain's new Labor government took the drastic step of putting a surcharge on almost all manufactured imports while offering tax cuts to exporters. The aim was to bring earnings into line with spending and so head off bankruptcy.

Big international loans, cuts in national spending, higher taxes, and curbs on wages and profits are on the British slate but have still to make their impact.

The 15-per-cent import charge has hit Britain's EFTA partners, whose economies already are sagging. Foreign Minister Per Haekkerup of Denmark warned that EFTA may collapse unless the levy is swiftly scrapped.

WINTER'S THE TIME to have those odd jobs done. So say Jim Staveley of the local employment office and Jaycee member, Ezri Amyotte, as they post sign advertising the Winter Works Program at the Belleville Plaza. Local Jaycees volunteered to put up nearly 300 posters urging residents to have those odd jobs done this winter.

Shape of New British Nuclear Policy Starts to Emerge

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The shape of the new British government's nuclear policy has begun to emerge in advance of a full - dress defence review scheduled for the weekend.

The main feature is that Britain appears to be moving toward acceptance of the idea of a multilateral nuclear force although in a form far different from that originally proposed by the United States.

The weekend conference, described by one newspaper as "the beginning of a watershed in British military history," will be held at Chequers, Prime Minister Harold Wilson's official country residence.

Besides Wilson, 48, and Defence Secretary Denis Healey, 47, there will be six other ministers and an array of admirals, generals, air marshals and top-rung civil servants.

The Chequers meeting will discuss Wilson's December meeting with President Johnson in Washington and particularly what is to be done about the Polaris submarines being built under the Nassau agreement which Wilson is pledged to "renegotiate."

Wilson, in a major speech Monday night, lined up Britain solidly beside the U.S. in overall NATO policy while at the same time his foreign minister, Patrick Gordon Walker, was in Bonn explaing the new Labor government's eagerness to contribute to European unity.

Gordon Walker apparently spoke of an Atlantic nuclear force, or ANF — the old term "MLF" seems to be falling into disuse — in a way that impressed if it did not convince other delegates to the Western European union council of ministers.

Reports indicate the foreign minister spoke of an ANF containing 10 Polaris missile-armed mixed - manned surface ships, rather than the 25 proposed by the U.S., plus nationally-manned Polaris submarines — Britain is to build three rather than the five originally intended.

Also included in this plan were the TSR-2 supersonic bombers now being developed here and the British V - bomber force already committed to NATO.

One West German objection was that the TSR-2S and the V-bombers would be out of date within five years, and Britain's Polaris contribution would give it an undue preponderance among European contributions to the NATO force.

The former British Conservative government's policy was that the Polaris submarines, using missiles obtained from the U.S., would supersede the RAF's V-bombers as the custodians of the British independent deterrent.

The apparent Labor policy is that the Polaris submarines will be assigned to whatever combined NATO nuclear force is established. Britain would then have no independent deterrent but would retain a veto over use of the NATO force.

Gordon Walker and George Brell, U.S. undersecretary of state who also was in Bonn, were acutely aware that President Charles de Gaulle has threatened to take France out of NATO over the nuclear issue.

The new Statesman, British left - wing weekly, says London and Washington feel de Gaulle is capable of going through with "his privately uttered threat of a demarche to Moscow, claiming that he alone in the West realizes the dangers of West Germany's acquisition of nuclear responsibilities."

"Nevertheless, the consensus is that de Gaulle is a realist who is too conscious of Western Europe's strategic dependence on the U.S. to take NATO over the brink."

Ninety-Pounder Ready to Tackle Baseball Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — Gloria Parker is a flame-haired 90-pounder who's not afraid to tackle something twice—or a million times—her size.

So she has chosen to challenge a pair of giants, the Columbia Broadcasting System and New York Yankees, in the courts.

CBS recently bought 80 per cent of the Yankee stock for $11,200,000. The deal stinks, Gloria insists. It is illegal. It is un-American. It strikes at the grass roots of American life.

"Baseball belongs to America," Miss Parker said today, with an angry toss of her red locks. "We must save it from the clutches of this monster.

"It was the television networks, remember, which were responsible for the quiz scandals a few years ago.

"They will manipulate baseball to fit their own interests. It won't be a sport any more. It will be show business. And, mark my words, the TV people will partake in the ball park with their shenanigans.

On Oct. 27, Miss Parker filed suit in the southern district U.S. Court asking dissolution of the CBS-Yankee deal on the grounds it violates the anti-trust law. The attorney-general's office answered this week, calling for the suit to be dropped. It will be argued Dec. 1.

"I plan to serve as my own lawyer—I will argue the case by myself," Miss Parker said.

Gloria is not really a lawyer. She is an entertainer, song writer and poetess.

She feels she is entitled to get into this issue because she is a CBS stockholder. She has one share of CBS stock, bought originally for $86 and now worth $90 after a stock split.

Also she is concerned about baseball players, as she is about stray cats and pigeons.

"I have built a sanctuary for cats behind my home in Brooklyn" Gloria said. "I have scores of them around. And I carry around a big bag of bird seed to throw on the sidewalks for pigeons and other hungry birds."

Next to her musical ability, Miss Parker, who is 25 and unmarried, says she is proudest of her 32-18-32 dimensions and her newly acquired ability to write poems.

"I recently wrote one about Adam and the apple," she said, beaming. "It goes like this:

"How could you have been so very stupid,
"To permit Eve to tempt you like this.
"Just think of the shape this old world would be in if you would have settled for a kiss."

Nursing Sisters Get Certificates Of Appointment

At the fall meeting of the Saint John Ambulance branch, as well as the presentations shown elsewhere in this paper, Appointment Certificates were received for Nursing Officers to the Nursing Division for Mrs. Margaret Berry, Reg. N., and Mrs. Sabra Arnott, Reg. N.

The branch meeting was well attended by members of the Nursing, Ambulance and Cadet Divisions as well as members of the Belleville Medical and Nursing professions. All divisions as well as planning the usual public duties to the various organizations in Belleville and district, were considering campaigns for new members so that the ever increasing demand for public services on the three divisions could be adequately met.

Mr. J. L. Shields was appointed to the publicity committee so as to be available in the periodic absence of its chairman, Mr. P. L. Allcorn.

In the new year the Nursing Divisions are planning on giving a course in Child Care, which would be available to all new mothers, many of whom had already taken the Pre-Natal Course given by the City Health Department. The annual meeting of the branch was planned for early in January when complete reports from the three division would be available.

Editors Told Polls and Vote Projections on TV Will Stay

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A one-time southern governor predicted Wednesday that American voters will cease to think of race problems.

Instead, Florida's Leroy Collins said, "we will think of human problems.

"We will stop worrying about integration of the races and will concern ourselves instead with the integration of programs to meet our common needs."

Collins, now head of the Community Relations Service, spoke at the annual meeting of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association.

At various sessions the editors heard about polls, the election service in which the two big TV networks and three television networks combined to report returns, and got some ammunition to use on critics of the press.

Robert (Shad) Northshield, general manager of National Broadcasting Company news, and public opinion analyst Lou Harris both said polls and vote projections on television are here to stay.

The network election service, set up by the AP, the Columbia Broadcasting System, NBC, the American Broadcasting Company and United Press International, was praised.

Sam Ragan of the Raleigh, N.C., News and Observer said the Warren commission that investigated the assassination of president Kennedy should have commended the American press instead of censuring it.

The commission criticized reporters for showing a "lack of self-discipline and general disorder in the Dallas police headquarters."

Ragan agreed with criticism that mass coverage of major events stories poses a problem and said that committees are at work to find a solution.

The AP, which set the pace, said he said, is pooled coverage.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Florida skin divers flew to New York Wednesday and pleaded guilty to stealing the Star of India sapphire and other gems from the Museum of Natural History, and flew back to Florida. Jack Murphy, 27, and Allen Kuhn, 26, appeared before Judge Joseph Sarafite to deny charges of grand larceny, burglary and possesion of burglar tools.

2,400-Acre Property Will Be New Park

TORONTO (CP)—Land surrounding Wye Lake in Simcoe County has been acquired by the provincial government for use as a public hunting, fishing and recreational area.

The 2,400-acre property is adjacent to the area where Fort Ste. Marie is to be reconstructed on Georgian Bay as a historical site.

The Wye Lake land will not be a provincial park as such, but has been obtained to stifle any commercial development that might mar the area.

The $120,000 cost of the land is to be shared equally by the provincial and federal governments under the provisions of the Agriculture Rehabilitation and Development Act.

The area is mostly marsh land poorly suited for agricultural purposes but excellent for ducks, some geese, and for upland game.

Fort Ste. Marie, site of Ontario's first white settlement in 1639, is being reconstructed by the Ontario government in conjunction with the University of Western Ontario. The overall cost of the project is estimated at $1,000,000.

Publishers Want Cooling Off Period Reduced to 2 Days

TORONTO (CP) — A proposed "cooling-off" period to allow a householder to renege on a contract made with a door-to-door salesman met with the approval Wednesday of the Educational Reference Book Publishers Association.

This group, made up of seven companies which sell encyclopedias, proposed, however, that the period during which a person could back out of a contract should be two days—not four, as recommended to the select committee on consumer credit.

In a brief to the committee, the publishers' association said a waiting period of more than two days would be too long in the light of practical problems imposed on a business administration by the normal five-day week.

Also, customers would be impatient for delivery of their encyclopedias after having agreed to make the purchase.

Arthur Elliott, president of the association, said it recognized that "occasional infractions of good selling practices do occur within the reference book industry."

Under questioning by committee members, he said he could not deny there were some high-pressure salesmen in the business.

He said encyclopedias were sold primarily by direct solicitation by the publishers. Hardly any were sold through retail outlets.

"In all Canada there are fewer than 75 bookstores that can stock and maintain a wide range of hard cover books," he added.

Mr. Elliott also cited the high cost of preparing encyclopedias, saying the encyclopedia Canadiana had been on the market since 1957 yet had not recovered even one-quarter of the original capital investment.

The consumer credit committee is considering proposals providing a four-day waiting period after the signing of a contract with a door-to-door salesman to prevent gullible householders from being victimized.

The managing director and sales manager of Encyclopedia Britannica of Canada were questioned by the committee about alleged high pressure and unscrupulous sales tactics.

John White (PC — London South) told the men the company should not have to check on contracts turned in by its salesmen, as the company does, if it did not fear the customers had been high-pressured into the deal.

The two officials said the company telephones the customers to confirm the order before the books are shipped.

Mr. White said the verification of orders "is not necessary in any sales organization where high-pressure tactics are not permitted."

C. E. Swanson, managing director of Encyclopedia Britannica for Canada, admitted to the committee that the turnover in salesmen is high. R. A. Graver, sales manager, said the company has about 65 salesmen in Ontario.

No Immediate Danger at Elliot Lake

Drury

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Drury said Wednesday radioactive contamination in the Elliot Lake area of Ontario poses no immediate danger but government agencies are concerned about the long-term hazard if the problem is not brought under control now.

Mr. Drury told the Commons that the Atomic Energy Control Board has endorsed steps taken by the Ontario Water Resources Commission in 1957, that future plans to cope with the situation and its conclusion that there is no immediate hazard.

Mr. Drury said that since 1957 the OWREC has been carrying out investigations in the Elliot Lake area aimed at minimizing the chemical and physical effects of uranium ore waste on the Serpent River waterfalls.

The AECB has been kept informed during this period about the presence and levels of radioactive elements in the waters of the area, he said.

"In order to rectify the existing situation, which has some long-term dangers but no immediate hazards, the commission has been discussing with the mining companies concerned the taking of measures necessary, both in their view and the abatement of the existing pollution."

The industry minister who is responsible for the AECB said he has been advised that radioactive contamination of water supplies at other uranium mines in Canada is not a problem.

He said a report about the spreading of dust from the piles of tailings is also "unduly alarmist."

The AECB told him that the concentration of radioactive material in this dust is so low that it poses no health hazard, he said.

Mr. Drury tabled a statement from the OWREC outlining steps already being taken and planned for the future to halt the pollution.

He said the pollution of waters was primarily within the province's jurisdiction and that the AECB had a direct interest in the present case because of the radioactive element.

Alexander Shelepin Man To Watch as Power Structure In the Soviet Union Unfolds

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP)—As the post-Khrushchev power structure begins to clarify, the man to watch in the younger generation of Soviet leaders is Alexander N. Shelepin.

Stalin used him to control Russia's youth as boss of the Young Communist League (Komsomol). Khrushchev used him as head of the Soviet secret police, the KGB.

Now 46, Shelepin has joined the small elite circle of men who belong to both the key units within the Communist party, which controls the Soviet Union —the presidium and the secretariat. He also is a deputy premier.

Shelepin was elected by a secret Kremlin meeting of the party's central committee Monday to full membership in the committee presidium, its directing nucleus. He already was a committee secretary.

Only three men now are on both the secretariat and presidium. One is Leonid I. Brezhnev, who took over from Nikita Khrushchev a month ago as party first secretary. The others are Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Mikhail Suslov. None has a significant government job while Premier Alexei N. Kosygin is only on the presidium.

PONGORNY RECOND

In the top command, Podgorny now seems to be functioning as second man to Brezhnev, the way first Nikolai I. Kozlov—partly paralyzed by a stroke—and then Brezhnev were once Khrushchev's No. 2 men. Suslov, the old Stalinist who voiced the criticism that toppled Khrushchev at the last central committee meeting, appears less active. Ill health might be a factor.

Shelepin is more than a decade younger than the other three leaders. He is the first of the generation born after the Bolshevik revolution to gain the elite status.

This status and his youth make Shelepin the man most likely to succeed to eventual ranking as No. 1, if he continues to show his adroitness for doing the right thing within the high command.

Shelepin is something of a rarity in the present leadership, however, because he has been strictly a party professional.

Brezhnev is a steel engineer turned party organizer. The top central committee is loaded with engineers and other technicians trained in the first rush of Stalin's industrialization.

VACANCIES CREATED

Born into what some sources identify as a middle-class family, Shelepin attended the Moscow Institute of History, Philosophy and Literature. It was the time of Stalin's purges and Shelepin moved into suddenly created vacancies in the institute's Komsomol organization.

After brief military service on the Finnish front in the second World War, he began working in the Komsomol, headquartered and joined the Communist Party in 1940. In 1952 Stalin made him first secretary of the Komsomol.

Khrushchev left him there until 1958, using him to dragoon "volunteers" into the bleak work of opening up the virgin lands agricultural area and colonizing remote parts of Siberia. Then Khrushchev made Shelepin chairman of the committees of state security, known from its Russian initials as the KGB, radar.

No longer the independent insti. ent of power that Stalin used for the purges, the secret police are still a powerful arm of government.

Both Shelepin and Pyotr Demichev, another who was given candidate status on the presidium, were elected party secretaries at Khrushchev's instigation in 1961. Shelepin was given the most important secretarian assignment of heading the committee for party and state control, a vital tool in intraparty struggles.

Now Brezhnev has promoted Shelepin to a new prominence

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

Before mailing an income tax return a taxpayer should be sure that all income is reported. If a T4 slip showing income has not shown on the returns, the income tax department will add the amount to the income tax later in the year and assess the taxpayer on the new taxable balance. When this is done, the taxpayer is charged interest on the balance owing.

If the taxpayer received a T4 slip after his return has been mailed, he should make an amended return, as the one originally filed can be adjusted to include the new information. The T4 slip should never be mailed in until such time as the assessment notice is received. If it is sent in before you get the assessment notice, it is almost impossible to match it to your return. Returns are not filed alphabetically and after the assessment has been completed. Omitted bond interest should be reported in the same way.

It should be kept in mind that when a taxpayer signs his return, it is a declaration that the entire income for the year has been reported. If he had not disclosed all his income, he is then has committed an offence that is punishable by the courts. He can also be penalized by the income tax department for evasion of tax. In view of this it is wise to report all your income.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

QUESTION: I forgot to attach my T4 slip showing three weeks work. What should I do now?

ANSWER: Wait until you receive your assessment notice, then send it in to your local income tax office and request that your return be adjusted.

QUESTION: I have never reported my bond interest received during the last five years. I did not know it was taxable. Should I report all of it this year?

ANSWER On this year's return show only the interest received in 1963. Send a letter stating the amounts received each year and request the returns for the years in question be adjusted.

Mother Greets Daughter Left As Infant 23 Years Ago on Way to Concentration Camp

TORONTO (CP)—Sara Salamon, a petite Jewish mother, is reunited with the daughter she left as an infant in a Roman Catholic church in Poland as the first step to notorious Auschwitz concentration camp.

Mrs. Salamon met the daughter she lost 23 years ago in quiet, tearful meeting Tuesday night at Toronto International Airport after years of efforts to trace her. The daughter, Barbara Stanislawa Latkiewicz, arrived from Poland with her husband Richard, a two year-old daughter and two - month - old son.

Mrs. Salamon, who still carries a tatoo on her left arm which identified her as Auschwitz inmate 45338, remembers the nightmare moment in 1941 when she abandoned Barbara her last link with love and family after her father and husband had been killed in a camp and her eight-year-old son gunned down by a Gestapo officer near her home in Lublin.

Shortly after her son had been shot because a Polish policeman identified him as a Jew Mrs. Salamon—her husband was Litwinska—was herded with other women for the march to Auschwitz. A woman neighbor whispered that she would have no chance with her baby.

In 1945, after surviving four years in Auschwitz, Mrs. Salamon was transferred to other camps ahead of advancing Allied armies, ending up finally in Belsen. There she met her second husband, David Salamon.

They moved to Sweden in 1947 and in 1951 to Canada. Mrs. Salamon began writing letters to the Red Cross and Polish authorities in an attempt to trace her daughter. Finally, she traced a priest just released from a Siberian prison camp who remembered finding the child and traced Barbara through nuns who had raised her.

"So my daughter is a Catholic," Mrs. Salamon said Tuesday night. "I won't try to change it. She is over here. That's all that counts."

Hawks Clip Wings; Leafs Down Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don't look now, Detroit, but everyone's on your heels.

The National Hockey League race has burned into a chase, with four teams within range of hauling down the once-streaking Red Wings. Only lowly Boston Bruins are more than three points away from the front-running Wings.

The Wings, beset by a string of injuries, dropped their fourth decision in five games Wednesday night when Chicago Black Hawks rode to a 3-1 victory on two third-period goals.

In the only other game played Toronto Maple Leafs scored a 3-1 home-ice victory over the sliding Montreal Canadiens. Bobby Pulford scored twice for the Leafs.

The results left Montreal one point behind the Wings and Toronto two points back. Chicago moved into a four-point tie with idle New York, three behind the league-leaders.

Hull broke a 1-1 tie with his 12th goal of the season at 7:15 of the finale and then potted No. 13 into an empty net as the Wings employed an extra attacker in the final minute in a vain search for a tie-maker.

TIED FOR LEAD

The two-goal effort moved Hull into a tie for the scoring leadership at 18 points with teammate Stan Mikita, who tallied Chicago's first goal.

With 13,625 Chicago fans harshly settled in their seats, Mikita out-skated the entire Detroit team to beat Roger Crozier with a 10-footer 27 seconds after the opening whistle. Detroit's Norm Ullman tied it less than three minutes later.

Toronto's triumph was built on a goal in the last minute of each period. Montreal's John Ferguson gave the Habs an early 1-0 lead, but Andy Bathgate tied it near the end of the first and Pulford scored in the last minute of the second and third frames.

The Canadiens were without three centres most of the way with Henri Richard out, injured Jean Beliveau inactive after the first period, and Bobby Rousseau hurt in the finals. Dave Balon had to be shifted to a centre spot and standby pivot Gary Peters was given a line

A Toronto crowd of 14,174 roared in surprise as Terry Sawchuk fanned on Ferguson's 25-footer, but that was the goalie's only mistake as he stopped 34 shots and remained the Leafs' unbeaten netminder with six wins in six starts.

Sawchuk was credited with an assist on the winner. With Toronto penalized for having too many men on the ice, the goalie passed to Carl Brewer. Pulford took the relay, deflecting a shot of Ted Harris' glove past Charlie Hodge.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The big black bear (350-400 lbs.) ambling slowly down a runway in deer country south of Denbigh, stopped suddenly in its tracks.

It sniffed the air. A strange aroma wrinkled its snout. "This could be the guy they call the Great, White Hunter," it told itself.

Then it saw a strange figure. Clad in a Joseph's coat, it bore the insignia, "I'm Armed. Next-at-bis, say Duffy in Belleville."

A half-mile away Jerry O'Connor and George Brown, members of the Bear Lake Rural Club, trudged through the forest enroute to their deer command posts.

The morning air was clear and crisp. Not a breeze disturbed the leafless arms of the silent sentinels of the woods.

Suddenly the air was shattered with the crack of a rifle-shot. They stopped. A minute later another blast split the forest silence.

"It sounds," opined Mr. O'Connor, "like Mr. Duffy has got something."

"Or," quoth Mr. Brown, "something has got Mr. Duffy. Let us investigate."

They strode up the tinder-dry woodland corridor. Another shot rang out. They halted again. And as they waited four more shots, carefully spaced, echoed in the woods. Then two fast repeated silence.

"It sounds," opined Mr. O'Connor, "like Mr. Duffy has shot himself a herd of buffalo."

"Or," quoth Mr. Brown, "that a platoon of the Hasty Pees has got itself one of Col. Angus Duffy's favorite brothers.

They raced to the top of a knoll. The morning sunlight splashed over a strange sight in a tree-bordered glade.

In a Roman gladiator pose with one foot placed on the body of a very dead black bear stood the "Great White Hunter."

With spotwatched hand clutching his rifle, he was shouting excitedly, "How's Dewe, Brown Cow." Then spotting his fellow hunters he beat his chest in Tarzanic manner and said "Him bear—me Duffy."

"How come the nine shots?" he was asked later.

"Well," modestly replied the GWH, "I saw this big fellow coming at me with a look of affection in his beady eyes. I don't buy love-making with a bear in the bush so I decided to start the opening stage of acquiring a bearskin rug for the 'rec' room.

"I shot—and missed. The bear changed the love-look to one of hunger. I shot again—and missed. Then I started to pray. I punctuated the prayer with rifle shots. Still he came at me. The prayer ended and I fired two quick 'Amen' shots."

"I should have started to pray in reverse, beginning with 'Amen' for these shots brought him down. The last two bullets are the difference between a bear-rug for the Duffy den and a Duffy hide for a bear lair."

Otherwise the Duffy-O'Connor Bear Lake Hunt Club party had good hunting. They brought out eight fine deer, while on one occasion a member was caught flat-footed when a large cow moose with two calves broke out of a thicket some twenty yards away. However, there was no season on moose in this part of the country so no moose steaks for dinner.

On another hunting front there were touches of drama and disappointment. Mrs. Audrey Davies, this city's Diana of the Northwoods, missed bringing home her deer quarry for this first time in some seasons.

But wearing the big smile of victory is hubby Gordon, who bagged a big buck on Friday the 13th, while the other members of the party brought home a buck and a doe.

"I had my chances," says Audrey, "but this was not my year. I will hang up the gun until next season, be a dutiful wife and fry the venison."

Hunting parties as a rule do not adopt theme songs, but the Davies crew proved an exception. The last few days in camp they were humming the old negro favorite, "The Palson and the Bear," (remember "Oh Lawd I'yah cain't help me f'goodness sake doncha help him dat b'ar.")

The theme actually was a gentle ribbing for one of the party who shot a bear—but was not tired by it. You guessed it,—the hunter who brought down Bruin was a minister.

Player Sues Saskys For Contract

REGINA (CP) — A civil action against Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference opened in Court of Queen's Bench here Wednesday.

Ken Beck, former Saskatchewan offensive guard, seeks payment of his 1963 contract with Roughriders. He was cut by the Riders after nine games of the season.

Beck testified that he suffered a knee injury in a game against British Columbia Lions. He said he played one more game after the injury, and then was cut from the team.

Beck entered football at a Texas University and played years with Toronto Argonauts before coming here. He now teaches school in Louisiana.

Bills' Brass Relents

Sorrowful "Cookie" Back In Jar

By MARVIN R. PIKE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Cookie Gilchrist, fired Tuesday from his $30,000 job as fullback for Buffalo Bills, was back on the American Football League club's payroll today after admitting he had been a bad boy.

He was placed on the waiver list two days ago by coach, coach Lou Saban said, Gilchrist's behavior had been injurious to the morale of the Bills. He has been in trouble with Buffalo police, missed some practice sessions and was reported to have violated curfew rules.

But Wednesday night, the 29-year-old, 250-pound line-smasher stood before reporters and said he had told Saban and his teammates earlier he was "truly sorry" for the things "I have said and done."

Saban, absent from the press conference, released a statement in which he said he would give Gilchrist another chance.

"Because Cookie has asked the forgiveness of his teammates and admitted to me he has been 100 per cent wrong in incidents leading to his dismissal, I have reconsidered and will give him an opportunity to prove that he is part of the Buffalo Bills team."

CRITICIZED UNJUSTLY

The 11-year veteran of professional football, in his third season with the eastern division-leading Bills after being dealt off by Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, told reporters he had "criticized my teammates and my coaching staff unjustly."

Shortly before Saban relented, Gilchrist appeared headed for Oakland Raiders, one of three AFL teams that claimed him. It would have cost the Raiders $100, the waiver price, and they would have had to absorb his $30,000 contract.

Boston and New York Jets also put in claims.

Gilchrist, the Associated Press' Player of the Year in 1962 when he rushed for 1,096 yards, is setting the ground-gaining pace in the AFL this year with 771 yards in 162 carries.

American League Brooks Robinson MVP

BOSTON (AP) — Baltimore's third baseman Brooks Robinson, main driving force behind an Orioles' pennant bid which just missed, was named Wednesday as the 1964 American League's most valuable player by an overwhelming margin.

The man with the golden glove and 118 runs batted in was the lone player to be named on all 20 ballots cast by the special committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Secretary Hy Hurwitz of the BBWAA announced the results. On the basis of 14 points for a first, nine for second, eight for third, and so on, Robinson drew 269 of a possible 280 points, with 18 first-place ballots.

J. Lumsden looked after the first two Belleville goals, both unassisted. D. McCormack upped the count in the second stanza, assisted by D. Hutchinson.

D. Kilfoyle put Picton back in contention by scoring both third-period goals. A. Calver helped on one and F. Baverstock on the other. The winners battled hard to preserve their one-goal win over the final seven minutes.

The midget Oddfellows, ahead 1-0 and 2-1 by periods, broke the game wide open with four unanswered goals in the third period.

Stamps Twist Lions' Tail, Win 14-10

Rubber Game Sunday

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Calgary Stampeders were still alive and kicking today. They weren't kicking particularly well—but British Columbia Lions were outwrestled them in the punting department.

That was the greater part of the story as the Stampeders came away with a 14-10 victory over the Lions before 30,547 disappointed fans Wednesday night squaring the best-of-three Western Football Conference finals and sending the series into a sudden-death rubber match here at 2 p.m. (8 p.m. EST) Sunday.

Larry Robinson, who missed no fewer than five field - goal attempts, connected twice and salvaged a single from one of his unsuccessful efforts to give the Stamps more than enough for their victory margin.

Bet Neal Beaumont, the B.C halfback whose punting average this season was the best in the West, kicked weakly all night, presenting Calgary with good field position for every scoring thrust.

Robinson's field goal and single gave Calgary a 4-3 halftime lead and he added a third quarter placement before converting Lovell Coleman's touchdown early in the fourth quarter.

SCORE FIELD GOAL

Lions could squeeze only a field goal by Peter Kempf out of the first half and a touchdown by Bob Swift, converted by Kempf, the rest of the way.

Both plays played giveaway football through a frantic second half.

Beaumont kicked only 27 yards on his first punt of the third quarter and Stampeders came back with a 29-yard field goal, making it 7-3.

When Lions completed a 39-yard pass from Joe Kapp to Mack Burton and looked ready for a comeback, they put them selves in an impossible third-down-and-32 situation with a penalty, rushing loss and fumbled quick kick.

Calgary reciprocated with a fumble by halfback Teo Woods at his own 20, and Lions were able to parlay that into Swift's touchdown, scored on a 2½-yard plunge.

But Lions gave the ball away on a fumble of their own minutes later when Willie Fleming let the ball skitter to Robinson.

Beaumont was on hand for an interception off Eagle Day two plays later but when Lions had to give up possession, Calgary struck for a 67-yard pass-and-run play to end Pete Manning, who caught the ball after it bounced off the hands of two defenders.

Manning took it to the Lions' 12, but Stampeders missed two pass attempts and Robinson's field - goal try from the 26 was tipped wide.

Calgary had the ball back quickly when another poor punt by Beaumont, this one for 15 yards, left Stampeders still in excellent field position on the B.C. 32.

Coleman, playing his first game since being named Canada's outstanding player broke through for 15 yards to the one-yard-line and scored two plays later for a 14-10 lead that Stampeders held through the last 14 minutes of the game.

Lions had one excellent scoring chance in the fourth quarter but Swift fumbled the ball to Harvey Wylie on the Calgary 20.

"We'll settle for the same kind of ball game Sunday," said Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs.

In a much quieter meeting room across the stadium, assistant coach Frank Johnston of the Lions looked at it this way:

"The pressure's on everybody now—Calgary and us."

Beaumont's average of 33.7 yards on a dozen punts was the crucial statistic of the game—Jim Furlong of Calgary was aged 36.6 but only kicked eight times. Otherwise Lions ran the margin, with 106 yards rushing and 192 passing on 11 completions in 22 attempts by Kapp.

Day completed 12 of 28 pass attempts for all but 34 of Calgary's 228 aerial yards. Stampeders gained only 27 net yards rushing, with Day responsible for a net loss of 19 yards. Coleman was held to 39 yards on 17 carries.

LIONS ON ATTACK — Quarterback Joe Kapp of British Columbia Lions hands off to fullback Bob Swift as Lions opened their game in Vancouver Wednesday against Calgary Stampeders.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

One of the hardest defencemen with a stick I ever saw as was Jack Stewart, in the days he was an All Star with De roit. "Black Jack" continued in hockey for a time as a coach but now he's a harness racing official. When he was in front of the net, on occasion he used to get his stick in the cuff of an opposing player's glove. When the puck came towards them, all he had to do was give the stick a little push.

He'd push the player's arm back and he had no control over his stick. This is spearing and it's a minor penalty. But it goes undetected many times.

He had another trick he used, if he was caught a little out of the play. If a player went to shoot, he'd just tap him on the elbow with his stick, throwing his arm forward.

This was especially effective if the fellow liked to carry the puck with his stick more or less to his side like Marty Pavelich, a former Red Wing; now Ted Lindsay's business partner.

Any time you put yourself in that position, dragging the puck, as soon as the defenceman spears that upper hand, it's an impossibility to get the shot away.

Many players, like Alex Delvecchio and myself, like to carry the puck well in front of us. When we're in that position, any attempt to spear your arm won't bother you to any great degree. There's another manoeuvre, used alike by defensive as well as offensive players on occasion. It not only is illegal but it is dangerous.

It is called "clearing the house," a term borrowed from the game of curling. There's a big scramble in front of the net. A defenceman will charge in, trying to tie up as many opposing players as he can. Opposing forwards will do it, too, to add to the confusion in front of the net and harass the goaltender.

Hunting Good In District

By W. F. CHESHIRE

The 1964 deer hunt started with the usual clamor again this year, when some 20,000 hunters moved into the woods north of Number 7 Highway in the Tweed District. The weather was dry for the first three days. Many hunters complained the ground was so dry the deer could lose the deer readily. The deer were sticking to the hardwood ridges and would not move them. Hunters therefore had to go up after them where dogs could not be used effectively and hunters could be heard moving through the woods. A number of fires burnt in the district during the early days of the hunt, which kept forest fire fighters on the job. Rain fell during the latter part of the hunting season which would help improve hunting conditions to some extent.

The fawn crop was up this year compared to last. This probably contributed to the increased hunting success. Statistics gathered over the past ten years by the Department of Lands and Forests on the annual age composition of the deer population in the Tweed district, shows that fawns make up from 24 to 34 percent of the annual kill. Any major change in the farm crop from one year to the next could make significant contributions to hunter success.

Information to date shows that 2,569 hunters passed through the deer check stations operated during the deer season, and 783 deer were examined. Forty-six bear and two wolves were recorded.

There will be many a story told by the evening fireplace during the long winter months on the details of the hunt, along with amusing incidents and accidents. One man who had dragged his deer a long way out of the woods, claimed if he had to go further he would have brought it out between two slices of bread.

FORECAST WAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four days before attacking Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, Japan told its Axis partners, Germany and Italy, that war with the United States was "possible and imminent." The Japanese government urged an immediate subsequent declaration of war on the United States by Germany and Italy, according to captured documents of the German foreign ministry made public Wednesday by the U.S. state department.

Belleville Lightfoots chalked up their second straight Bay of Quinte Basketball League victory last night, defeating Cobourg Kiwanis 62-50 in a closely fought game.

On another league front the Trenton RCAF turned back Trenton Wilsons by a 76-63 score.

The first half was hotly contested with the city team holding a narrow 19-17 lead.

A driving offensive gave the Kiwanis the lead early in the second half. Late in the period Lightfoots staged their bid for victory outscoring their opponents 43-33 to emerge with the victory.

Four of the city team league players were fouled out with Cobourg losing two via the thumb route.

Ian Houchin of Lightfoots was the top scoring star of the game, racking up 29 points. Dennis Clarke was the best for Cobourg being credited with 16.

Garry Duggan and Ron Marriott each accounted for nine points for the winners with John McKibbon and Bob Smith good for seven points each. Don Smith scored two points with Ted Ewing and Larry Soule going pointless.

For Cobourg Brian Sayers added 11 points to Clarke's score with Jim Coughlan sinking ten. Pat Gallagher accounted the four with Garry Quinlan getting six, Stan Frost and D. Bennett two each and Jim Milne one.

Girls Can Beat Boys, Up To 13

HAMILTON (CP) — Allan Smith, chairman of the physical education department at McMaster University, said Wednesday that girls fared better than boys in a fitness - performance test at a public school here.

However Smith, conducting a series of such tests at 40 Nia gara Peninsula schools this week, said girls are usually physically more mature than boys until they begin to get older He said the superiority disappears by the time they are 13 and the boys easily surpass them.

In one of Tuesday's tests, a seven-year-old girl beat a seven-year-old boy in a 300-yard run to test endurance.

Other tests were a 50-yard dash for speed, a shuttle run for agility, standing broad jump for leg power, sit-ups for abdominal strength and holding a chinning position on a bar for arm strength.

The tests are being given at schools across the country to establish fitness performance standards for boys and girls in the seven- to 17-age group. Testing is conducted by the Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation with a grant from the national fitness and amateur sport directorate in Ottawa.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Guess who kept them guessing in Wednesday night's Garden City raceway feature.

Off as a 5-to-1 choice with the crowd of 2,065, the six-year-old second choice kept most of the mile trot and then staged a stirring stretch drive to catch early-leading Cadenza by a nose.

Officially named the Sir Te Trot, Wednesday night's feature went at the eighth race and was worth $1,000 to Guess Who. It was enough to boost his 1964 earnings for owner A. M. Jeffrey of Belleville to $6,583.

Guess Who got off in fifth spot among the eight-horse field as he went after his fifth win in 15 starts this season. But with Cadenza, from the Clements Brothers Stable of Dobbington, hitting the quarter in 29 3-5 seconds, driver Ken Galbraith moved Guess Who to second.

Swinging wide on the final turn, Guess Who pressed Cadenza to get his nose in front at the wire. Bishop Song, from the Beckingham and Kenney combine of Arcadian, was third, 1¼ lengths back.

Guess Who paid $13.20, $6.30 and $5.40 across the board, while Cadenza was worth $12.80 to place and $7.20 as show. Bishop Song recorded a $4.80 show price.

Zagers May See Action
Sazio Counts On 'Pride'

HAMILTON (CP) — For the last seven games, Hamilton Tiger-Cats have struggled along without their best punter, a key defensive back and the only man in Canadian professional football who ever threw eight touchdown passes in a single game.

The defending Grey Cup champions lost this considerable array of talent in a single play Sept. 26 when quarterback Joe Kapp of British Columbia Lions was thrown for a loss and Joe Zagar of Hamilton limped off with a shoulder injury.

Since then, coach Ralph Sazio has managed to get by with the quarterbacking of Bernie Faloney and Frank Cosentino and Faloney's punting while he waited for Zagar's should to heal.

But, ready or not, the 34-year-old Arizona State Univer sity graduate will probably be in uniform Saturday when the Ticats meet Ottawa Rough Riders here in the second game of their two - game, total - points Eastern Football Conference final.

After Hamilton's 30-13 defeat at the hands of the Riders last Saturday, it appeared that Zagar would be needed to replace Faloney, whose back was brutalized by the pounding he took from the Ottawa defensive line

That won't be necessary. The 35-year-old veteran is looking spry after a couple of days rest. But Sazio is having one of those days when a new gap appears in his lineup as fast as he fills an old one.

MAY BE MISSING

The latest potential absentee is Jackie Simpson, the defensive back Hamilton acquired from Toronto Argonauts early this season. Simpson, who intercepted seven passes during the EFC schedule, pulled a muscle in practice last week. He played against the Riders Saturday but hasn't been able to shake off the effects of the injury.

So Zagar, who threw passes in the 1962 Grey Cup final and better than down against the Lions in 1963, will probably have to report for duty at 1 p.m. EST Saturday if he wants anything better than a seat in the stands for the 1964 classic.

Sazio admitted to a Quarterback Club session Wednesday that he rather hoped the Tiger-Cats would have a let-down in their final scheduled game against Montreal Alouettes three weeks ago. He was disappointed — they whipped the Als 21-14 and looked sharp in the process.

The coach explained that a defeat at Montreal might have given him a psychological weapon to use on his players, who came through their last 12 games with 10 victories and a tie. As it was, it took last Saturday's experience at Ottawa to bring them down to earth.

"However, in 60 minutes you can do a lot of things. I know our players have been humiliated and I know we have one thing in Hamilton, and that', pride. I'm counting on that."

Evidently Hamilton fans are counting on it too. Television viewers watching crowd scenes on the CBC or CTV national network when Saturday's game gets under way will see no shortage of the traditional yellow chrysanthemums with black ribbon that the faithful sport as bootonnieres whenever the team makes the playoffs.

Hamilton florists say they're going better than ever this week at $3 apices.

Race Time, Ayres Top Nags

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Trotting's triple-crown winner, Ayres, and Race Time, second in two of the three triple-crown events for pacers, were named Wednesday as both year's best three-year-old harness horses by the U.S. Trotting Association.

Ayres, owned by Mrs. Charlotte N. Sheppard of Hanover, Pa., swept the Hambletonian and the Yonkers and Roosevelt Futurities and equalled the world record for age and gait when clocked in 1:56 4-5 in the Hambletonian at Du Quoin, Ill., in September.

Race Time, slowed by a virus part of the season, won the last of the triple-crown events for pacers last Friday at New York's Yonkers Raceway. He won the $123,191 Cane Futurity Owned by Castleton Farm of Lexington, Ky.

The two horses were selected in a nationwide poll of harness racing experts.

Faloney Replaces Jackson At Quarter
Tiger-Cats Dominate Eastern All-Stars

By IAN MacLAINE

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Bernie Faloney, whose play this year ranged from inconsistent to brilliant, heads a horde of Hamilton Tiger-Cat players named Thursday to the 1964 Eastern Football Conference all-star team.

The team, who placed 11 on the Football Reporters of Canada 34-man offensive and defensive all-star squads, dominate the position with six on offence and five on defence.

Faloney, the only player in Canadian football to quarterback Grey Cup champions in the East and West, replaces Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders at the all-star pivot.

JACKSON MISSES SPOT

Jackson, named the top Canadian and outstanding football player in 1963 along with all-star rating, failed to gain say off-field laur els this year.

Unanimous voting for Hamilton's great pass-catching end Hal Patterson and flanker Tommy Grant of the Ticats and halfback Tommy Grant of Ottawa and Dick Shatto of the Leafs - place Toronto Argonauts also were highlights of the voting by 21 FPC members—football writers and sportscasters in the four league cities.

The Riders, who finished a comfortable second behind Tiger-Cats with 14 - game schedule, landed six men on the dream team, including four on the offensive unit. The selectors also picked five Argonauts—two on offence, three on defence—and two from Montreal on the defensive unit.

Offensive Team

Fullback—Dave Thelen, O
Half—Dick Shatto, T
Half—Ron Stewart, O
Flanker—Tommy Grant, H
Quarter—Bernie Faloney, H
Centre—Chet Mikrza, H.
Guard—Ellison Kelly, H
Guard—Ed Harrington, T
Tackle—Roger Kramer, O
Tackle—Bronko Nagurski, H
End—Hal Patterson, H End—Ted Watkins, O

Defensive Team

Half—Garney Henley, H
Half—Don Sutherin, H
Half—Ed Learn, M
Half—Jim Rountree, T
Half—Joe Poirier, O
Linebacker—Ron Brewer, T
Linebacker—Bobby Kuntz, H
Mid-Guard—John Barrow, H
Tackle—Ted Elsby, M
Tackle—Billy Shipp, T End—Pete Neumann, H
End—Billy Joe Booth, O

Faloney, 32, an All-America at the University of Maryland before coming to Canada in 1954 when he guided Edmonton Eskimos to a thrilling 26-25 Grey Cup victory over Montreal Alouettes, arrived in Hamilton in 1957. He led Tiger-Cats to a Grey Cup triumph by over Winnipeg that year and repeated in 1963 when Ticats beat British Columbia Lions.

Grant, voted the outstanding Canadian football player two days ago and a product of minor football in the Windsor, Ont. area, gained a place on the dream team in 1963. For Patterson, it was his ninth time in the 11 years since he joined Montreal in 1954 from the University of Kansas.

Stewart, a 190-pound speedster who has won numerous awards in his seven seasons with the Riders, reached as other platoon in his illustrious career during the 1964 season when he took league rushing honors—867 yards on 144 carries. He was third in league scorers with 48 points and caught 18 passes for 334 yards and three touchdowns.

Shatto, 11-year-veteran with Argos, had another outstanding season despite the club's dismal last-place finish. He lost out in the final ballot to halfback Lovell Coleman of Calgary Stampeders as the outstanding player in the country. He led the league in pass receptions with 53, and was third in the scoring with 60 points.

Rounding out the offensive backfield is Thelen, the 205-pound fullback of the Riders. Another repeater from the 1963 team, he was runner - up to Stewart in the rushing department with 777 yards gained in 1962 carries and was fourth in scoring with 60 points.

BARROW HONORED AGAIN

Selection of Barrow to the defensive unit was no surprise. He has been an all-star in his eight seasons in Hamilton, won the outstanding Canadian lineman award in 1962 and was the East's nominee for that position in 1963 and again this year when he lost out for the second straight season to B.C. Lions' Tom Brown.

Native-born Canadians played a significant role in this year's all-star balloting, earning places in nine of 34 positions.

Stewart and Grant, Mikrza earned all-star rating on the of fensive unit.

Learn, Poirier, Brewer, Kuntz, Elsby and Neumann are Canadians who earned places on the defensive team.

The selection of Henley and Sutherin, Hamilton's deep backs, to the squad's defence was a testimonial to their outstanding play. Henley is equally brilliant on offence while Sutherin, a place-kicking specialist, won the East's scoring title with 94 points on 34 converts, 15 field goals (a conference record) and 13 singles.

1,000 Mark 50th Birthday

"Dimaggio Day in Frisco"

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays said: "This guy was my hero. I tried to do things like him, but you know only he could do them."

Mickey Mantle added: "He was always my idol, too. I think he was the greatest player ever."

Lefty O'Doul called him "a maker of managers" and U.S Open golf champion Ken Venturi declared: "In my athletic career, the greatest honor I ever had was meeting Joe Di Maggio."

They and more than 1 000 others gathered Wednesday night to help DiMaggio, the famed New York Yankee centre fielder, celebrate his 50th birthday.

The ballroom of the Sheraton Palace Hotel was jammed for the climax of what Mayor John Shelley had proclaimed, "Joe DiMaggio Day in San Francisco."

HEARS FROM LBJ

President Lyndon B. Johnson wired, "Happy birthday to an American sports hero."

Joe's old roommate, ex-pitcher Lefty Gomez, said: "I made a star out of him. They didn't know he could go back to catch a ball until he played behind me."

His gifts included a gold bat inscribed with his birth date Nov. 25, 1914. The party came a week early so as not to interfere with the Thanksgiving holiday.

DiMaggio listened to the homage and then observed: "If I thought I was that good, I would've asked the Yankees for $200,000.

"But I've seen both Mays and Mantle and they have both made plays I never dreamed I could make."

MINISTER DIDN'T KNOW

OTTAWA (CP) — Citizenship Minister Tremblay said Wednesday in the Commons that the Vous ballshed head - and - bread moved from all citizenship courts in Canada without his or the government's knowledge. He accused Opposition Leader Diefenbaker of trying to harm national unity by accusing the government of issuing the order concerning the portraits.

Hershey Unbeaten In Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There probably were times during the last 11 years when Danny Pollistel thought he was a misplaced person.

The 29-year-old Sydney, N.S., native has seen service in the Quebec Hockey League and with three different American Hockey League clubs. He also got a one-game trial with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League in 1959.

But Pollistel looked anything but lost Wednesday night as he fired three goals to spark Hershey Bears to a 6-2 victory over Providence Reds.

The win gave the Bears a strangle hold on second place in the eastern division of the AHL with 21 points, seven less than Quebec Aces, who had won their opening 10 games of the season.

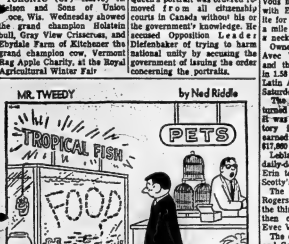
WIN SIXTH

The win ran the Bears' undefeated string to six victories and a tie.

In other action Springfield Indians edged Cleveland Barons 4-3.

Pollistini scored a goal in each period, while Keith McCreary, Michael Harvey and Ralph Keller added one each. Gil Moffatt and Jean Gilbert replied for the Reds.

Jim Anderson scored twice for the Indians. Dave Amadio and Bill Sweeney got one each in the final five minutes to overcome a 3-2 deficit.



Frank Martin, Joe Szura and Cecil Hockstra were the Cleveland marksmen.

Canada's Map Makers Meet Big Demand

One Million Maps and Charts a Month

A nation with 4,000,000 square miles, the longest coastline in the world, surging economic expansion and ever-growing developments of rich natural resources, has a vital requirement—millions of maps. Topographical and geological maps, nautical and aero-nautical charts, special sheets for electoral districts and arctic expanses, realistic relief maps for low-flying jet pilots, world maps and lattice maps for electronic navigation are just some of the million copies of maps a month that speed off the government's map presses in Ottawa. With 12,000,000 maps in storage, customers can be supplied at short notice—whether they be hunters going on a local trip, ship's navigators heading for arctic waters or specialists studying glaciology or regional planning. Canada's map makers, using modern cartographic techniques, including delicate scribing on plastic sheets, distribute a million maps a year, supply the graphic foundation for the country's growth and development, provide a fascinating, multi-dimensional picture of a massive nation.

Part of the huge storage room where 12,000,000 copies of thousands of different maps are stored. Two million maps are kept on shelves to meet daily requests.

NATIONAL FILM BOARD PHOTOSTORY

Ten big presses in Department of Mines and Technical Surveys roll off 12,000,000 maps annually. Because most are multi-colored, total impressions are 36,000,000. Division buys 5,000 pounds of ink, 6,000 tons of paper yearly.

Plastic map sheet is positioned for photographing. Public may be placed on new-map notification list if desired.

British Feet Said Too Big For Footwear From Canada

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—The trouble in trying to sell Canadian footwear in Britain is that British feet are too big.

Canadian salesmen, at a recent exhibition of their products, put it a little more tactfully. British feet, they said, tend to be "a different shape"—not necessarily longer but usually broader and deeper.

Fortunately for the Canadian manufacturers, who put on the four-day exhibition at Macdonald House to show off their footwear to British buyers, the problem applies mainly to fine, high-quality dress shoes.

CASUALS SUITABLE

Most Canadian-made slippers, sandals, overshoes and casual and sports shoes are suitable for the British foot. Moccasin slippers were particularly popular, with orders pouring in.

But even among the casual shoes, there are exceptions. A buyer from one of London's most expensive men's wear shops paid fine tribute to the style, quality and price of a pair of golf shoes and then put them back on the shelf.

"If the average Englishman wore those around the course they'd have to carry him off the 18th green on a stretcher," he said. "They're too narrow."

One line that drew a lot of attention — and compliments — but few orders was a selection of women's knee-length, fur-lined boots in various colors and designs.

STYLE FIRST

"The English girl looks first at the style and then the price," said William Stephens, one of the Englishmen who helped organize the exhibition. "She's sold on the style of these boots, but the price is too high, particularly since English winters are milder and she wouldn't get as much use out of them as she would in Canada."

H. C. Monk, general sales manager for the Granby, Que., firm that made the boots, said it may be that a cheaper line, designed specifically for the English winter, would sell well here.

One of the most unusual features of the exhibition was rubber boots for cows and horses.

They are used to keep a bandage or dressing dry when an animal is being treated for a foot infection.

Fortunately British cows and horses have the same size hoofs as their Canadian cousins.

Tony Randall Is Authority On the Art of Losing Jobs

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Tony Randall, whose comic talents hope him film stardom, is something of an authority in three fields—opera, Italian Renaissance painting, and the art of losing jobs.

In the last-named field Tony feels he is probably unique.

"So far as I know," he said, "I'm the only performer who has been fired in every medium —twice in radio, once in television, once in the theatre, and once in films."

Tony never let the dismissals break his spirit.

"It's an awful thing to go through," he remarked. "But I thought the other fellow was wrong in each case."

Tony does have a feel that way, I suppose, but there is a possibility I was right. Anyway, none of the shows was fired from was a success. Disaster followed every time, and I hope the record is clear: Don't fire Tony Randall."

Right now there aren't many people standing in line trying to get Tony off the payroll. In fact they're bidding for his services.

The slender, dark-haired comedian recently completed Send Me No Flowers, a satire on suburbia in which for the first time he co-starred with Rock Hudson and Doris Day. The two earlier films by the triumvirate—Pillow Talk and Lover Come Back—were hits.

ACTED WITH GREATS

Tony, who comes from Tulsa, Okla., spent a year at North western University before coming to Broadway. His appearwith such notable performers as Ethel Barrymore, Katharine Cornell and Paul Muni before going on to television and then the films.

But he feels his most educational experience in show business was the time he spent in Cardinal summer resorts.

"I got $10 a week and room and board," he said. "I slept in the attic under the water tower and the tower didn't stop leaking all summer.

"But for variety there was nothing like it. Every night in the week we'd put on a new show. Everything from musicals to Shakespeare. It taught me self-confidence if nothing else.

"I did so well that at the end of the season the manager invited me back for next year at a $5 cut in salary."

Tony is amiable and dry-witted, but he believes people should hold strong opinions and have the courage to express them. Asked to express his own dislikes, he smiled and said:

"I despise it's 'it' not music.

"I hate all baseball—including little league baseball.

"I hate to see a fat lady in curlers chewing gum nd smoking cheap cigars and smoking cigarettes in a supermarket. That is a combination so ugly it is impossible to bear."

Grant Makes Father Goose Best of Latest Comedies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The latest batch of comedies indicates how far afield Hollywood is travelling for subject matter. The movies concern the Pacific and reincarnation. The results are mixed.

Father Goose is the best of the lot, thanks to the consummate artistry of Cary Grant. This time he is playing an unshaven, scrounging South Seas escapist, but beneath that stubble is the same suave Grant.

The plot is a natural for comedy. Grant, a confirmed misanthrope, is tricked into becoming a coast watcher after the Japanese drive through the South Pacific. Who should fall into his charge but a prim schoolteacher, Leslie Caron, with a covey of young girls.

As with all recent Grant films, this one has been put together with expert care and originality that right amounts of adventure, laughs, scenery, sentiment and a soupcon of sex. About all it lacks is that precious element of surprise that denotes inspired comedy.

Ralph Nelson, who evoked such warm humanity in Lilies of The Field, continues his witty touch with Father Goose. Leslie Caron makes a welcome return to American films, and Trevor Howard is a proper foil as the British commander for whom Grant is an unwilling hero.

MAY DRAW OSCAR

Grant is great. Maybe now he'll draw that Oscar recognition that is long overdue.

Considering the talent that went into Goodbye, Charlie, it is curious that the film isn't funnier. Vincente Minnelli (Father of the Bride) can handle comedy expertly, as Henry Hunzis (Inspector General) is a fast man with the gal line, and Debbie Reynolds-Tony Curtis and Pat Boone are handsome, accomplished performers.

The plot is outrageous and it almost comes off. A wisecracking young screen writer is shot by a producer while dallying with the producer's wife. The writer returns from a watery grave to seek revenge upon his former boss in life form. But in the reincarnation he has been changed into a girl.

Naturally, Charlie proceeds merrily for the first few reels, reaching hilarity when Miss Reynolds tries to convince her (his) writing pal, Curtis, that she (he) really is Charlie. But then the film somehow obviously didn't know where to go and raced off in all directions.

Threat of Nuclear War Greatest Burden of Kennedy

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "I think Berlin—that confronted the late president and the people during his short administration.

The program was primarily an evaluation by his associates of the president in the one area and his achievement of the nuclear test-ban and it moved as solemnly and slowly as a funeral march.

Chas. Wilson, Shady Citizen From 'Way Back' Makes Headlines of Another Kind

LONDON (CP)—Sprung the same Wilson on a British bobby and he'll probably ask about Charles the train robber, not Harold the prime minister.

Harold, the new premier, has brought fame and glory to the Wilson name and made it a household word. But Charles, a shady citizen from 'way back, makes headlines of another kind.

"You can be sure they're not related," said one detective with a grim smile.

A police search for Charles Frederick Wilson, 34, a blue-eyed self - styled bookie, has spread over continents since he was sprung from a Birmingham prison Aug. 12.

It was a sensational and humiliating sequel to the even more sensational great train robbery of Aug. 6, 1963, when a gang grabbed more than £2,000,000 from a Glasgow-London train near Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire.

Wilson had served just under four months of a 30-year sentence for his part in the robbery when accomplices from outside the prison, apparently using a master key, n.gged a guard and took the gangster away.

MILLIONS STOLEN

The over-the-wall operation was conducted with Hollywood-like precision reminiscent of the robbery itself, for which 11 men besides Wilson are now serving a total of 307 years. Some £2,300,000 of the loot has yet to be recovered and it is thought Wilson wasn't exactly short of cash after his escape.

"We're tracking down every clue and every report," is the gist of comment by spokesmen for Birmingham police and Scotland Yard.

But they indicate no definite knowledge of the whereabouts of Wilson, the "silent criminal."

Police spoke with typical British reserve, but it is clear that the Wilson case rankles, having set off a wave of public criticism of law - enforcement agencies and even of the judiciary.

Chief Superintendent Gerald Baumber of the Birmingham criminal investigation division and his men have checked thousands of tips from citizens and the underworld. Inquiries have stretched to North and South America, North Africa and Europe, with Ireland being a favorite hunting ground. Britain gave Canada a description of Wilson through Interpol, the worldwide police agency.

DECRIED SENTENCE

Amid the public outrage, there was a certain amount of sympathy for Wilson. Some felt considered it strange that Wilson got 30 years merely for trial murder and sex crimes carry lesser penalties. One vicar said from his pulpit that the Wilson sentence was "barbarous."

Baumber has conducted a study of the escape from Birmingham's Winsongreen Prison. His report has been given to the home office and the director of public prosecutions for possible action.

Theories conflict as to how Wilson was freed from his cell — cord - storey cell, which was constantly fully lighted and checked by guards every 15 minutes.

One surmise is that he used balloons to simulate his body under a blanket and thus delay discovery. There is even a theory that his accomplice visited the prison twice — the second time to remove the balloons.

Married with three children, Wilson once boasted to his wife that no jail would hold him and was described by his pal Jones as the most "taciturn" of the train robbers, having spoken less than a dozen times words during his 57-day hearing.

TEN BOX THEORY

One underworld informant said Wilson was taken from Birmingham to London in a ten box screwed on the back of a truck driven by four drivers in RAF Cars were started at intervals ready to fake an accident if the truck was chased.

The Kings of Soho, bosses of the London underworld were supposed to have staged the coup, perhaps for payment and perhaps in the hope of getting their hands on the train-robbery loot. Vengeance would be hideous for anyone who squealed, convicts said.

There were numerous false starts toward a Wilson capture.

A stolen luxury yacht was tracked by the Royal Navy and the RAF—but it carried only a couple of tees-age adventurers, not Wilson. No one yet has accepted the services of Jack Llewellyn, a 74-year-old ferry diviner who offered to find the desperado.

He said he could do it with a wooden ball, a fishing line and one of Wilson's boots.

TOURIST ATTRACTION — Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllantysiliogogogoch, a small town in North Wales has a thriving tourist business, the name being the sole attraction. Holidayers head for the railway station to see the town's name correctly spelled and spend three pence on the world's longest railway platform ticket. (CP Photo)

Name of Town Inveigles Hundreds of Tourists

LLANFAIRPWLLGWYNGYLLGOGERYCHWYRNDROBWLLLLANTYSILIOGOGOGOCH (CP) — What's in a name? A thriving tourist business for this tiny hamlet in remote North Wales.

The 58 letters inveigle hundreds of people every year into visiting Anglesey County.

Holidayers head for the railway station here to see the town's name correctly spelled on the sign. They try to pronounce it and give up. They spend three pence on the world's longest railway platform ticket. Soon they realize that Llanfair P.G., as it's known for short, offers nothing else.

You can have a drink in the village's only pub—the Penrhos Arms—and if the regulars are in a good mood they will lapse into English and laughingly challenge you to a game of darts. Otherwise they maintain a steady stream of Welsh.

Nobody will tell you the town's name is really a fraud. Welsh towns are notorious for long names and in the 18th century a playful cobbler, whose name has been forgotten locally, added 38 spurious letters to the original 20.

His aim was satire. Little did he know what a boon he was granting to later generations of postcard salesmen in this odd market community.

For all its 58, Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllantysiliogogogoch is perfectly good Welsh. It means: Mary's Church in the hollow of the white hazels near the rapid whirlpool and Tysilio's church near a red cave.

DON'T NEED TICKET

The government-owned British Railways introduced the platform ticket gimmick about 2½ years ago. Since then more than 160,000 bits of pasteboard have been sold.

Nominally the tickets gave you the right to walk on to the platform but they are not needed. There is no barrier and nobody asks to see your ticket. In fact you have to hunt up the stationmaster to sell you one.

The ticket allegedly is good only for one hour but even if some masochistic urge should delay you on the smoke-blackened platform, heavy with fumes from the reeking lavatories, the stationmaster admits nobody is ever chased away.

University students occasionally steal one of the two 20-foot-long railway signs. That has happened four times but the sign has always been returned.

There's only one other thing in this area that could loosely be termed a tourist attraction and it is a tower overlooking the sea. It was erected in 1816 in honor of Henry Paget, first marquess of Angelsey, who commanded the Duke of Wellington's cavalry at the battle of Waterloo.

A cannonball tore off the marquess's leg in the heat of battle. A local anecdote tells of the man's bravery and of the duke's coolness.

As he was riding off the battlefield, the marquess looked down and said to the duke: "By God sir, I've lost my leg."

The duke looked down, said: "By God sir, you have," and returned to his telescope.

Congo Rebel Chief Warns Any Attack On Stanleyville May Mean Doctor's Death

Congolese Troops Race North; Kenyatta Is Urging Cease-Fire

By ROBIN MANNOCK

KINDU (AP) — Congolese troops and their white mercenary leaders raced northward today toward rebel Stanleyville. There were no reports of rebel resistance.

Congolese Army headquarters announced the advancing column, which left Kindu Thursday, had entered the Punia district 150 miles north of Kindu. They still had 180 road miles between them and Stanleyville.

En route they must cross the 300-yard-wide Lowa River at Yumbi. Normally, there is a motor launch ferry here, but it was not known if it was in working order.

Radio Stanleyville broadcast a warning from rebel leader Christophe Gbenye that "any attack provoked by the Americans may end the stay of execution of Paul Carlson." Carlson, an American medical missionary, was sentenced to death as a spy but his execution was postponed until Monday.

The Congolese Army's commander-in-chief, Gen Joseph Mobutu, predicted in Kindu that his forces would take Stanleyville by next week.

Maj. Michael Hoare, a South African mercenary, moved out of Kindu Thursday with his Fifth Commando Group and headed for Punia. A single unpaved road through the tropical rain forest is the only route north from Kindu to Stanleyville.

Informed sources said between 200 and 400 mercenaries —mostly South Africans, Belgians and Britons — were leading the attack, supported by between 500 and 1,500 Congolese.

Premier Moise Tshombe's central government hopes the capture of Stanleyville will break the back of the rebel resistance and help unify the Congo. Tshombe broadcast an appeal to the rebels Thursday to surrender.

Radio Stanleyville broadcast which was heard in the neighboring Central African Republic also said Gbenye sent a message to the U.S. government acknowledging receipt of the American request to discuss Carlson's status.

In Washington, the state department announced the U.S. was ready to negotiate with rebel representatives to ensure the safety of Americans held in the Stanleyville area.

The United Kenya Kenyatta appealed to United Nations Secretary U Thant to use "any influence you may have on the rebel's supporters outside Africa" to achieve a cease-fire in The Congo.

It was also reported that Gbenye sent a message to G. C. Senn of Switzerland, head of the International Red Cross delegation in Bujumbura, Burundi, who had appealed to the rebel leader to spare Carlson's life.

Gbenye's reply said: "Before making any proposals I invite you to bring back to life all the Congolese massacred by the Americans in The Congo."

Donation To Plan Approved

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservative party failed Thursday night to chop Canada's $350,000 Colombo plan donation of wheat flour to Indonesia.

A motion to cut the donation because of Indonesia's aggression against the Federation of Malaysia, a Commonwealth member, was defeated 46 to 33 in the Commons after External Affairs Minister Martin strung out the debate long enough to muster voting support.

While Mr. Martin spoke in opposition to the motion put forward by Wallace Nesbitt PC-Oxford, Liberals were announced into the House from the government lobbies.

Minority party members, with the exception of three forward NDP-Sreams, backed the government. Lone Conservative to vote against the motion was Paul Martineau Pontiac - Temiscamingue.

The vote was held about 4 minutes after the usual 1 o'clock adjournment hour as the external affairs minister attempted to win approval for all his departmental spending estimates.

BULK APPROVED

The bulk of the department's $124,000,000 spending program for 1964-65 was approved before the debate ran aground on the external aid item that included the aid to Indonesia. The debate continues today.

Mr. Nesbitt strongly criticized the government for giving aid to Indonesia, even though it was in the form of wheat flour. He said if Canadian President Sukarno spent more time worrying about his economy and less time on aggression against Malaysia he might not require such aid.

When Liberals stood to vote against the motion one Conservative shouted: "Sukarno's boys."

Mr. Martin asked the Conservative MP to withdraw the motion.

He said Mr. Nesbitt "cannot have reflected seriously" before moving it that the effect of his proposal would be "taken seriously in certain circles."

SENT NO WHEAT

No wheat flour had been sent while the matter is being studied, Mr. Martin said.

But Australia, New Zealand, Britain, France and United States were sending non-stop tragic supplies and it was a "collective judgment that this aid should not be terminated."

CNR Head Critical Of Labor Code

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—CNR President Donald Gordon has sharply criticized the new federal labor code, still before Parliament.

He said that in many ways the bill "seems to produce some utterly impractical situations between employees and management."

Mr. Gordon's remarks were made last week in a closed labor - management conference sponsored by the Economic Council of Canada.

The council shortly will publish speeches at the conference, along with a series of research reports on labor - management relations in Europe, the United States and Canada.

The head of the Crown-owned CNR was commenting in the conference on one of three re-

Council Convinced Churches Drawing Closer to Unity

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The 16th meeting of the Canadian Council of Churches ended here Thursday with most of the 128 Protestant and Orthodox delegates and Roman Catholic observers convinced that a spirit of unity is drawing most Canadian churches closer.

"I was astounded at the ecumenical spirit that permeated the meeting from the first day," Rev. John Martucci of Montreal, one of four Roman Catholic observers, said afterwards.

Many delegates were still talking with amazement two days after Rev. Kenneth Dietrich, a young priest of the Scarbor.ugh Foreign Missions Fathers and the first Roman Catholic ever to address the council, told it that 95 church now realizes "there are people outside the canonical boundaries of the Church."

Father Dietrich said his church admits it was "largely responsible" for the splits in the 11th and 16th centuries which saw the Greek Church first break away and then the Protestant movement come into existence on continental Europe, and the Anglican Reformation sweep Roman Catholicism out of "official" England for a time.

"The truly magnificent thing about Father Dietrich's address was that he had his bishops' sanction to come here and say what he did," said Rev. R. M. Bennett, secretary of the council's permanent overseas missions and evangelism department.

The smooth deliberations of the council were only once on the brink of being ruffled.

A delegate from the Lutheran Church in America asked from the floor Wednesday for re-examination of the council's constitution so that his church might soon join the Salvation Army and Quaker delegates, among others, made no rejoinder.

Delegates explained that the significance of the Lutheran request lay in that church's inclination to regard the Salvation Army and the Society of Friends (Quakers) as religious organizations rather than as churches.

The Lutheran Church in America is one of numerous Lutheran groups which make up North America federation. The federation will not allow its members to join a council in which membership is not restricted to churches.

But there were no hard feelings. Rev. Malcolm Flannigan, one of five Salvation Army representatives, said after the debate he laughed off the incident as instignificant in view of the "overwhelming spirit" that pervaded the meeting.

Executed by British for Treason, Irishman's Bones May Go Home

LONDON (AP)—The remains of Roger Casement, Irish revolutionary, soon may return to his homeland.

Casement lies beneath the British Museum's Pentonville Jail, where he was hanged by the neck Aug. 3, 1916, during the First World War. Just before he died, he said:

"I have always gone with me, don't let my bones lie in this dreadful place. Take me back to Ireland and let me rest there."

Since then successive Irish governments and friends of Ireland in the British Parliament—have urged that Casement's dying wish be granted.

Thursday night in the House of Commons came a hint that the new Labor government may yield.

Labor member Emrys Hughes, a Welshman who holds the Irish view that Casement was martyred, asked Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice to arrange for Casement's return.

Soskice promised a statement before the next anniversary of the 1916 Easter rebellion against British rule in Ireland.

"I realize the strength of feeling on this matter," Soskice told reporters: "At last we seem to be getting somewhere." Casement, it is remembered, was returned to France after his death in St. Helena.

Casement was hanged because he toured prison camps in Germany in an attempt to recruit an Irish legion to fight against the British. His attempt failed, and a Germany submarine landed him in Ireland in 1916. The British captured him almost immediately.

A powerful movement grew among Irish Americans demanding that Casement be released. To counter this movement the British government circulated the notorious "black diaries" suggesting that Casement was a homosexual.

Debate over whether the diaries were genuine or secret service fakes still continues.

FBI Following Appeasement Path In South Says Dr. Luther King

BIMINI, Bahamas (AP)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said Thursday the U.S.-Federal Bureau of Investigation under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover is "following the path of appeasement . . . in the (U.S.) South."

The American Negro integration leader, smarting under criticism by Hoover, also accused the FBI chief of "faltering under the heavy burden and the criticism of the South."

His comments came in reply to Hoover's statement in a Washington press conference Wednesday that King "is the most notorious liar in the country."

The FBI, King said, "is following the path of appeasement of political forces in the south. If this continues, the reign of terror in Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia will increase rather than subside."

King spoke to this tiny Bahamian island to write his speech accepting the Nobel Peace Prize, said it is certain Hoover "would not have made such a vicious accusation without being under extreme pressure."

"This pressure," he said, "has come on the racial front and from the Warren report raising serious questions about the effectiveness of the FBI."

In an exclusive interview with The Associated Press, King repeated some statements he had made earlier in a telegram to the FBI director.

King drew support from six other Negro leaders, who held a presidential council in Washington Thursday they share King's views that the FBI has not provided protection for Negroes in the South.

The FBI, King said, "is following the path of appeasement of political forces in the south. If this continues, the reign of terror in Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia will increase rather than subside."

3RD BELLEVILLE CAMP OF '66

On the nineteenth of July some sixteen Boy Scouts and their leaders from St. Michael's 3rd Belleville left by the car island on Mosquito Lake. Equipped with canoes, boats, tents and various other camping essentials the three patrols ventured into the hills and dense woods northeast of Kaladar to explore Mosquito Lake and the island which would be their camp site for the next week.

The island was rough and rocky, making the operation of setting up tents and patrol corners no easy task. Though unaccustomed to such rugged conditions, the Scouts and their leaders made the best of what they had, and within a few days gave it the appearance of a regular Boy Scout camp.

The days at camp were busy days of play and work. Two big games of war lasting five or six hours were engaged in; hikes were organized and walked; instructions were given and exams were written and passed for tenderfoot, 2nd and 1st class and some considerable time was spent entertaining the fish with an assorted collection of bait.

On Sunday, July 20th, the camp ended and thanks to the Mother, the Group Committee and the Scouting spirit of all the Troop, Camp 1966 was a Scouting success.

Struck by Car, Child, 5, Dies Of Injuries

A five-year-old boy, Christopher Dodson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Dodson of R.R. 3 Belleville, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon near his home when he was struck by a car on Highway No. 2.

The accident occurred about 3.00 p.m. He was rushed by City Ambulance to Belleville General Hospital where he died in the operating room of internal injuries about three hours later.

Driver of the car was 26-year-old Roger Holden of Napanee, a service station operator in Napanee.

Police said Mr. Holden was eastbound on Highway No. 2, enroute to his home in Napanee when the accident occurred just east of Potter's Cabins at Jones' Creek.

The Dodson lad was found pinned beneath the front of the vehicle which had to be jacked up in order to free him. It is believed that he was dragged beneath the vehicle into the ditch or if he was thrown into the ditch by the impact and then run over by the car.

Both the Holden car and the boy were found in the ditch on the north side of the highway.

The accident is still under investigation by the Ontario Provincial Police.

Slushy Snow Made Driving Treacherous

Two to three inches of wet, slushy snow made driving conditions treacherous north of Belleville yesterday as the district received its first real touch of winter-like weather.

The slippery roads reminded motorists in many accidents caused mostly by vehicles going out of control and sliding off the highway.

Snowplows were out in the Madoc area on both Highway No. 62 and 7 as well as on the county road south of Madoc.

Snow which had continued for most of the afternoon, turned to rain early in the evening.

Apparently Walked Into Side of Car

A Belleville man escaped serious injury yesterday noon, after he apparently walked into the side of a moving car. Benjamin Brickman, 53 years old, suffered only bruises in the accident at the intersection of Front St. and Victoria Ave.

A report of the accident shows that a taxi, driven by Ross Wayne Tracey of 64 Holmes Road, had stopped for a red light on Front St., at Victoria, and was moving out on the green light when Mr. Brickman stepped out from the curb on the east side of Front St. and struck the side of the vehicle.

Minister Says Quebec Has Trouble Getting Views of English-Speaking Population

QUEBEC (CP) — Faced with calls by a number of Quebec groups for radical changes in Confederation, a Quebec cabinet minister said Thursday the problem lies in the Province legislature's committee on the constitution is getting English-Canada's viewpoint.

Pierre Laporte, municipal affairs minister, told the committee the English Canadian view point has not been put forward on the problems under study.

"Personally, I want to find out what English Canadians are thinking," he said. "Do they feel we should keep the status quo, that Quebec should have a special status, or what?"

The committee also heard a denunciation of co - operative federalism by a student leader, rejection of the "associate state" proposal by a former separatist chief and pleas for the province's leading role in the French-Canadian community.

IS ILLUSORY

Robert Marceau, president of the Laval University Students' Association, said co-operative federalism is illusory for Quebec and that Quebec's only option is sovereignty-association as due to success in "twisting the federal government's arm to make it drop some crumbs."

Marcel Chaput, former leader of Le Rassemblement pour L'independance Nationale and the defunct Parti Republicain du Quebec separatist groups, said Canada divided into English- and French-speaking "associate states" would last very long.

The Quebec Federation of Catholic School Boards said recently it is a "fallacy" to maintain should be sought to ensure that provincial governments have a minority voice and to give the federal government powers to intervene if this is not done. The Quebec Federation of Labor's brief contained the same proposal.

The Canadian Jewish Congress was critical of the section in the British North America Act dealing with education and minority rights. Because of this, the Congress said, Jewish citizens have been face "taxation without representation" in that they must pay taxes to Protestant schools whose children are educated but do not have representation on the school boards.

Rabbit Hunter Is Fined $45; He Shot Cow

A rabbit hunter who shot a cow was fined $45 yesterday, in county magistrate's court. Magistrate T. Y. Wills found George Herbert Raby of R.R. 1 Foxboro guilty on charges of discharging a firearm and of hunting without a permit. He assessed fines of $20 and $15 on the two offenses. Raby had already paid $200 for the carcass of the cow.

Harold Lake of R.R. 3 Stirling told the court of finding the heifer in a field, while searching for the owners of a car parked in the area. The animal had been shot through the head, and its throat had been cut. He did not find the owner of the car, and police later had it towed to Stirling.

Raby told police that he had been hunting rabbits, that he had seen a rabbit dart through the fence and had shot at it. Night was falling at the time.

Passing judgment, Magistrate Wills told the defendant, "the rules for doe are in the hands for the owners of a car parked of rifearms are not open to casual interpretation". A hunter has the duty to know where his bullet will hit before he shoots, the magistrate added.

WILSON — In ever loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Edmond Strum, who passed away five years ago, November 26th, 1961.

When we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing,
That grief can call its own.

The years we had together,
Will be sweet memories our life
With heartfelt pride we'll remember,
Being both a Dad like you,
—Dearly loved and remembered by daughter Beade, sister and grandchildren.

Ontario Motorists Travel Equivalent of Trip to Moon And Back Every 13 Minutes

A man making a round-trip to the moon every 13 minutes, would just barely keep pace with the way Ontario motorists are rolling up the miles, Hon. Irwin Haskett, Ontario Minister of Transport, told about 650 people at the I.A.P.A. safety rally last night. The rally, at B.C.I.V.S., was a feature event of the year for the Belleville-Trenton section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

Ontario drivers drove about 20 billion miles last year, Mr. Haskett said, and had more than 107,000 accidents. More than 40,000 people were hurt in the accidents and 1,421 people were killed. When an airliner crashed outside Montreal last year, killing 118 people, it was considered a national catastrophe, the minister said, but 118 people die on Ontario highways every month and nobody seems to care, he added. The Department of Transport was formed, seven years ago, to do something about the problem.

POINT SYSTEM HELPS

The point system is helping to reduce the toll. About 40,000 people a year get six demerit points on their driving licenses, Mr. Haskett said, and receive a warning letter from the Department. Of these 40,000, about 21,000 run their totals up to nine points, he said, and are invited in for an interview with a Department of Transport inspector. Only about 1,300 people per year, he said, get 15 demerit points and have their licenses suspended.

Highway traffic is increasing, the minister said, but traffic accidents are being held to the same level on accident - per-mile basis. He said traffic on Ontario roads has increased by four times since 1938, had doubled since 1945 and increased by about nine percent during the past year. The rate of accidents has been held constant on an accident-per-mile basis, however, since about 1953, the minister said.

Mr. Haskett was introduced to the meeting by Norris Whitney, M.L.A. for Prince Edward, and thanked after his speech by Arthur Duncan, of the I.A.P.A. Mr. Duncan presented a made-in-Trenton silver tray as a gift to the speaker.

Also featured during the rally was Ted Rust, Toronto ventriloquist.

Numbered ticket stubs were drawn, by R. L. Sharp of Trenton, during the meeting, for a total of 75 prizes donated by area industries.

NOW CHIP CHAMPION

LONDON (AP)—College student Leonard Palfrey, 21, who claimed the world's potato eating championship after eating 30 packages of chips in 56 minutes 37.2 seconds, lost Thursday "it was awfully dry work."

Underwriters Hold Annual Dinner Meeting

In addressing the annual dinner meeting of the Quinte Life Underwriters' Association at the Hotel Quinte last night, J. Roger Flumerfelt, Canadian Life Underwriters district manager of the St. James Agency for the London Life Insurance Company in Montreal said that "with such technological developments taking place in Canada as we have today — tomorrow young Canadians will be working in jobs unknown in today's business world."

Speaking on "Dollars and Human Dignity," Mr. Flumerfelt said that "we have living with us today, 75 percent of the total number of scientists known to man since technological advancement was started on earth."

The speaker also mentioned cases of his own experiences where the availability of life insurance dollars had meant the difference between a transaction being accepted or refused and recommended that the modern concept of living insurance be considered rather than the old idea of providing a burial fund.

President of the local organization and chairman for Thursday evening's meeting, G. Sidney Martin in welcoming the guests said that "we are pleased to have the opportunity of presenting our third annual dinner to our friends and professional associates and hope this occasion is one of inspiration and information."

'After the Fall' Will Be Seen At Toronto

Arthur Miller's much-discussed new hit "After The Fall will open a 3-week engagement at O'Keefe Centre on November 26, when the National Theatre and Academy will present the Martin Tahse production.

The controversial play in nine years, After The Fall was the inaugural play at the Repertory Theatre in Lincoln Centre and quickly became the dramatic hit of New York. When two successive plays at Lincoln Centre failed to match the Miller play in popularity, they were withdrawn and Miller's play assumed a full eight-performance week.

It has been sold out since it opened last January and will continue to be so while the national company is on tour.

Because After The Fall had been produced by the Repertory Theatre, which is committed to a schedule of plays in New York, it had always been felt that the play would never be seen outside Manhattan. But so great was the dramatic interest in the play and because of the eminence of Mr. Miller in the theatre, the Lincoln Centre group decided to release a tour.

$1,200 Damage In 3-Car Crash At Intersection

Damage totalled more than $1,200 in a three-car accident yesterday at Harriet and Coleman Streets. Police report of the accident indicates that a car driven by Andrew Gordon Wright of 55 Boswell Street, Belleville, stopped on Harriet St., east of Coleman St. and facing west, at the time of the accident. Another car, driven by Mrs. Jane Gertrude Brown of R.R. 1, Frankford, approached the intersection from the west, stopped at the stop sign and continued through. Her car was struck as it passed through the intersection, by a Bell Telephone Company station wagon driven by Robert Wayne Bunnett, of 28 Pringle Drive. After it was struck by the station wagon, Mrs. Brown's car struck Mr. Wright's car.

Damage to Mrs. Brown's car was estimated at $500, to the station wagon, at $600, and to Mr. Wright's car at $150. Mrs. Brown's car was not insured.

Planning Board on Griddle At Meeting of Ratepayers

TRENTON — On Oct. 16, clerk-controller O. W. Larry, in his capacity of secretary of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board wrote to the Trenton Ratepayers' Association, asking, in effect if the association had any recommendations to make regarding the zoning by-laws now in effect in the town.

The association has several. And they were aired at an association meeting last night.

One of them was: "Throw the whole d . . . . thing out."

Association president, Alfred Vaughan, admitted he was "biased, right off the bat," and added, enigmatically, "I know what I think of the planning board."

Mr. Vaughan, however, explained that the planning board was anxious to gain the views of town citizens about what they might think necessary changes in the zoning. Anybody and everybody, individuals and groups, may write in recommendations to Mr. Larry, who will in turn, relay them to the planning board. The board will consider them, then call upon Project Planners of Toronto to pass judgment. Public meetings would then be held in Trenton to acquaint the citizens with the proposed changes in the by-law.

Mr. Vaughan then asked for comment or question from the floor. Douglas Hyde, association secretary (who confessed he had mislaid his notes from the last association meeting, Nov. 19, 1956) took the burden off Mr. Vaughan's should ers by answering a number of queries from the 18 persons at the meeting.

"Who paid for the zoning in the planning pace?" one member wanted to know.

"The taxpayer pays for the municipal business administration," Mr. Hyde opined, but added, "I wouldn't want to be quoted on that."

"Well, I think they should change the zoning all over town then let it stay that way. The whole d . . . thing was made up cockeyed in the first place."

POOR PLANNERS' CLAIM

This was a comment from a gentleman in the front row, who went on to elaborate. "There's poor planning going on right now, all over town. Gilmour Hill is one example. It should be re-named 'death alley'."

"Wait 'till the snow comes."

"Do they really have to call in these fellows from Toronto? Or is there a local man been felt by the taxpayers' money?"

"Yeah. They want land residential where it should be industrial. Those consultants take a look at a place where there are 25 houses, and they zone it 'green belt'."

"Somebody's mind is very weak. The consultant walks by a store and sees people going in and coming out with a bag of groceries, and says, 'ah, obviously, that's residential'."

Re-emphasizing a bag (Dick) Whitley, himself a member of the planning board, got up to explain that the board itself wasn't satisfied with the present zoning and intended to make it meet people as possible when changes were made. As to the hiring of consultants, the town has to hire consultants, nobody in Trenton knows anything," Mr. Whitley was being facetious.)

A Mr. Thomas Stone of North, Murray Street, came up with a suggestion which seemed to meet with the approval of the majority. Let representatives be appointed from various areas in town and bring recommendations from those areas to the planning board.

A voice crying in the wilderness was Mr. Wilkie's. Let the representatives have their say — but agree to the town hiring experts to sort out the various recommendations and suggestions from the interviewed zoning law.

"The people of the town could plan it 2,000 times better than strangers."

Agreed, Mr. Stone's suggestion will be sent to Mr. Larry.

'BEEF' SESSION HELD

During a "beef" session, Mr. Stone wanted to know, "where's my sewer?"

North Murray Street has: one light bulb and holes in the road big enough for a cow to fall into, but it hasn't got a sidewalk, or a sewer. With the rest of the town getting such niceties as curbs and boulevards, Mr. Stone doesn't think it is asking too much for a sewer.

A letter from the association will be sent to council enquiring about Mr. Stone's sewer.

Another good question. Why is the town proposing to build a swimming pool in the high school in west Trenton? Is the pool for "Mortgage Hill" children, or will free buses be laid on to take the children from outlying areas in town to the pool? Why not put it in Bright-on? On second thought, why not move the whole town to Bright-on?

Everyone was all for a pool, but the general concensus was that it should be built in the community gardens which is central.

Mr. Hyde came up with the information that the foundation for a pool had been allowed for in the latest addition to the high school. But he said "there was a lot of misbelief" in the $25,000 the Lions' Club has "verbally," (to quote Mr. Hyde), promised towards the pool.

"They haven't got the money in the bank," Mr. Hyde said.

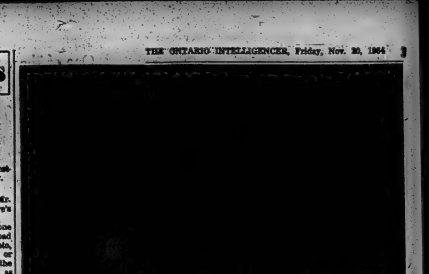
Council will be asked (again) to put a fire hall on the east side of the river and to look into a suggestion that a traffic signal light be placed at the corner of Dundas St. E. and Byron St.

An announcement from Mr. Vaughan that Howard Tackaberry, president of the Trenton Council of the Civil Service Association of Canada, and well-known in labor circles, will run for a seat on town council, brought thunderous applause from the audience. Mr. Whitley told reporters after the meeting he will run again this year.

One association member's opinion of present council: "They're all businessmen. The Chamber of Commerce runs the town."

J ST 'DARK HORSE'

Nearly everyone at the meeting seemed to have a pretty high time men from the work. Big Jim got elected to town council.



Mr. Vaughan, who has made a name for himself as a town council seat, hinted darkly he might run . . . but said he was content as a "dark horse" at the moment.

Mr. Vaughan and Mr. Hyde will be on hand to get out to the citizens' meeting to be held on November 30. At this meeting, councillors and other elected officials report on the people's activity and candidates for the coming election set out platforms.

Mr. Vaughan deplored the fact that only 18 people were up at the 1952 citizens' meeting and only 25 last year. (And there wouldn't have been that many if the town employees hadn't brought their wives").

"Yes," agreed Mr. Hyde, "the candidates all leave their jobs on the form on the hour and nobody's there to hear them. Fifteen people more at a time of 15,000 voters is getting pretty much below the mill rate."

Mr. Vaughan would have liked to hold an election of officers last night as he said he would like to step down from office and let someone else "have a go at it." However, he thought more of a full house of members of the association might show up at the annual meeting in January to vote.

UPSIDE DOWN — Power was disrupted when car containing five airmen went out of control and broke off a high tension pole. The vehicle is shown upside down after coming to rest near a house.

Mr. Hyde resigned at last night's meeting. She said this was due to a lack of interest on the part of the ratepayers, a lack that there was $2.35 left in the treasury from the year's activity...

Throughout the meeting in the board room at the community gardens, the Quinte Band and Drum Band practised above with the swirl of pipes and the beat of the drums practically drowning out conversation down below.

This had the end result of the ratepayers shouting their comments to be heard above the din, and when the band suddenly paused, continuing to bawl out their comment in a deafening roar before they realized the reason for shouting had ceased.

Queen's Student Guest Speaker At Women's Club

TRENTON — The monthly meeting of Business and Professional Women's Club was held in the Hotel Gilbert on Wednesday last, with a dinner meeting, president Cecile Kennedy presiding. After the dinner the club was entertained by the B & P Choristers, consisting of Mary Thompson, Eva Baker, Elizabeth Blackledge, Doris Wade, Allie Hayes, assisted by Annis Darling at the piano.

The Highlight of the evening was the guest speaker Miss Eleanor Beach, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Beach of Frankford, Ont. Miss Beach is in her third year at Queen's University, studying Psychology and Mathematics. Her speach was on "Crossroads Africa", a trip she made with 25 other students, Miss Beach also had slides of her trip, and told of the conditions etc. Her particular project was a construction of a building for a social centre, which they completed in the two months while there, eating and living in general with the native people.

Crossroads Africa was formed by Dr. Robinson in 1957, and is a work camp, study seminar, friendship and aid program. To participate those chosen have to be educated and capable people, each pays $300 towards the expense, the balance is contributed by individuals, schools, colleges and churches.

Miss Beachy plans for the future, she hopes to travel with the United Nations or some international agency.

Five Airmen Hurt as Auto Hits Hydro Pole

TRENTON — Five Trenton airmen were taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital shortly after 1.00 a.m. this morning following a one-car-crash on Dundas Street at Herman.

Taken to hospital by Rushnall Ambulance service to Trenton were the driver, Arthur Robitaille, 19; Roger Dennis Gipsan, 20; Raphael Franklin Noble, 21; Laurent Gauthier, 20 and Joseph Fortier, 21.

All five men were treated at the hospital and released.

Police said the vehicle, driven by Robitaille, went out of control on slippery pavement and struck a high tension hydro pole. The vehicle came to rest on its roof.

Power was disrupted for several blocks in the area and two fire engines from the Trenton Fire Department were dispatched to the scene to stand by in case of gas leakage.

The five occupants of the vehicle were able to crawl from it and walk to the ambulance.

Damage to the hydro pole was estimated at $100, while the Robitaille vehicle was described as a total wreck.

Have Children No Rights?

John Hillebrand, an Australian tennis player, wants to bet a thousand pounds that his daughter will one day win the women's singles championship at Wimbledon

Since his daughter is only six months old, this may look like a long-odds bet, and Hillebrand is playing it that way—he wants twenty thousand pounds for his thousand.

Hillebrand, though, might just be a winner. His wife is also a tennis player and his father is a professional tennis coach. He plans to put a tennis racket in his daughter's hand as soon as she can hold one and keep her "living with tennis for years to come."

What about his daughter? What if she does not like tennis, and it is difficult to believe that she would if her nose was kept to the net in this manner. Has she no rights?

Most people will be appalled at Hillebrand's plan to force his daughter into a mold of his choosing. They will recognize that he will not be treating her as a human being, with her own tastes, her own natural talents and the right to develop them. Instead, she will be just a tool to enable Hillebrand to enjoy by proxy the triumphs he cannot win by his own skill—he was eliminated in the first round of the Queensland state championships last week.

Such a program might have merit if combined with moderation. We would not even suggest that much attention should be paid to the first protests against the drudgery which is almost invariably present in acquiring any skill. But there comes a point where, if the child is to be treated fairly, he or she needs to be given the right to decide whether to continue this instruction, be it on the tennis court, at the piano or in one particular field of work.

There ought to be an eleventh commandment —thou shalt not force any of your offspring to be what you would have liked to be, but could not.

Wilson Rejects French View

Americans who have been worrying about the possible effects of the change in the British government in that country's attitude towards NATO could draw considerable reassurance from Prime Minister Harold Wilson's speech on Monday to British business and financial leaders.

It was plain that the differences which divide British and U.S. policies are concerned with means, rather than ends.

The Labor Government has no use for the U.S. proposal to establish a multi-nation fleet carrying nuclear weapons. France is also opposed to the plan. But instead of joining forces with de Gaulle, Wilson made it abundantly clear that Britain rejects the proposal on which France's opposition is based—that a separate European nuclear deterrent be set up. Britain's basic aim is the same as that which prompted the U.S. proposal for the multi-nation fleet—a desire to prevent the spread of nuclear arms. While the U.S. views the proposed fleet as achieving this, Britain not only doubts its feasibility but also dislikes the fact that it would give West Germany a share in the control over nuclear weapons.

There are thus three distinct policies on the future of NATO and its nuclear power. France wants a "third force" divorced from the U.S. deterrent. The U.S is willing to spread nominal control, while reserving effective control for itself. Britain wants the U.S. to continue to play its present role of policeman and the Labor Government may even decide to strip itself of nuclear weapons as a means of preventing their spread.

The Result of a Prank

Families in the Newmarket area are conducting a door-to-door canvass to raise money for a family of four. A delivery man and his three children were seriously injured as the result of a Hallowe'en prank. Revellers removed a "Yield" sign from a concession road. The delivery man's truck was struck by a car which failed to yield the right-of-way. The removal of the sign has resulted in a child of seven losing the sight of one eye and being paralyzed on one side. Two other children and their father were less seriously hurt.

Hallowe'en pranks often create a hazard for others, but frequently this fact is overlooked. No sensible person, though, can help realizing the tragic results which could result from the removal, or alteration, of a highway sign. When our safety depends on people following directions properly, it is imperative that these directions should not be tampered with. Persons responsible for doing so should be severely punished.

One of Those Infrequent Breaks for Freedom

To Your Good Health
Tuberculosis Is Caused By the Tubercle Bacillus

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is tuberculosis of the bone? How is it contacted?

I am 25. For more than five years a number of doctors said I had rheumatoid arthritis. After surgery, I learned I had tuberculosis of the bone. Is such an error in the first diagnosis made easily? If so why?

Naturally, I am thankful I haven't rheumatoid arthritis, my doctor says that with medication I can now be cured. — Mrs. E. W.

Tuberculosis is caused by the tubercle bacillus.

This germ does, indeed, attack the lung more frequently than other areas. But it can attack any part of the body, skin, bones, glands, joints and other structures.

Without a history of your case I can only guess at the reason for the original belief that it was rheumatoid arthritis, but this could happen very easily indeed. The germ, in such cases, attacks the bone and can cause bone destruction, depending on the exact location, this could readily create the same condition of pain, stiffness, swelling and distortion as rheumatoid arthritis.

Since the precise cause of rheumatoid arthritis has not been determined, we remain handicapped. On occasion one can test for a specific organism as with the tuberculin test. Otherwise we must depend on identifying the pattern of things which occur, or usually occur from the disease.

I might add that medical authorities recognize "tuberculous arthritis," which is another name for your trouble.

How does the tubercle bacillus spread? For the most part, the germ is passed from person to person with the invisibly small droplets of moisture that are exhaled.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it harmful to sleep in a room where para-dichloro-benzene nuggets are used in garment bags and clothes closets? — Mrs. A. M.

No. (This is a moth and insect repellent.) True, the benzene products can be toxic if breathed in heavy concentration, but you are protected by two things. First, heavy concentrations will be annoying to you. Second, you keep the nuggets in closed garment bags or closets so the chemical will do the most good is driving off moths. Therefore you don't get much in the air of your room anyway.

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like your opinion about an operation called glomectomy for emphysema. R. L.

Glomectomy is the removal of a specialized bit of nervous tissue in the neck called the carotid body. The procedure is very new, and while I have read technical reports of it, I have had no personal experience with it.

Varying reports of its use have been made in regard to its employment in the most severe and stubborn cases of bronchial asthma, and more recently it has been used in some similar cases of emphysema, since the two ailments may occur together.

It is not a cure for emphysema. It is not attempted in bronchial asthma which responds to more conservative treatment. Like any new treatment, it requires a good deal of observation before we know what it will and won't do.

Note to Mrs. J. C.: Yes, an enlarged ovary may indicate some ailment that can interfere with becoming pregnant. But, the other ovary may be perfectly normal so pregnancy can start from that side. At the age of 21 I think you are worrying too much too soon.

Interpreter's Role Vital

Milwaukee Journal

The unsung heroes of international diplomacy are the interpreters. These nameless men and women work behind the scenes, patiently tending the lines of global discourse smoothing the path for greater understanding.

You find them in Paris London, Geneva, New York, in every capital of international talk. Their interpretation is sometimes so fluent and polished that it is more effective than the original.

The United Nations employs about 80 staff interpreters, many of them in New York, the rest at the UN's European headquarters in Geneva. There are about 500 other professional interpreters spread over 23 countries, most of them free lancers.

Secrecy is the byword of the professional interpreter and a keystone of the code of the International Association of Conference Interpreters, established 12 years ago.

The IACI stoutly maintains that interpreters should have linguistic skills. But those few can be candies. At one conference months ago the translation in less developed countries, the word "privy" was repeatedly translated into French as "privy council."

The London Observer reports that because of a one letter mistake, the title of a Russian paper on encouraging developments of a country's resources read: "Some Prospects for Increasing Slave Hardihood on The West Coast of Africa." An official correction was issued saying that "at the request of the Soviet government, xyboloxytox (fish stinking) should be substituted for rabolovstov (slave handling)."

One of the most welcome interpreting mistakes occurred during one of those excessively windy seminars. After a delegate had rambled on for almost an hour, the exasperated interpreter stood up and announced: "Gentlemen, Mr. S. after reviewing the situation in terms with which you are all thoroughly familiar, said it is high time we went to eat."

Strictly Personal
Word Justice Seldom Used In Courtrooms

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In the recent election, a local candidate running for district attorney accused his opponent, then in office, of "rigging his record" of convictions during his farm as prosecutor.

He charged that the district attorney had indicted only persons he was fairly sure he could convict; that he allowed "reduction of charges" so that defendants would plead guilty; and that he generally conducted his office so as to enhance the "image" of himself as a crime-buster.

I don't know the facts in this specific situation, but I do know that the situation is common enough throughout the United States. And I also believe that if the candidate won the office, he too would follow much the same pattern of enhancing his image.

Politicians stand and run on their records. The record a prosecutor runs on is his "batting average" of successful prosecutions. But while this may look good on paper, and sound good in speech, it is a poor criterion for discharge of public duties.

For a prosecutor represents the people — all the people. His job is not merely to obtain a high number of convictions, but to protect the rights of those persons who come under suspicion. He is an officer of the court, and not just a rat-catcher.

A district attorney, for instance, has no right to suppress evidence that might be favorable to the defendant; indeed, he has a distinct duty to make such evidence available to the court. Yet, in the drive to secure convictions — which is a political goal, and not a juridical one — not one prosecutor in a hundred would make so disinterested a gesture.

In Great Britain, where this important office is purely political - oriented, the rights of the defendants and the interests of the public are much more rigid. by protected than in the United States. There, a man's job does not depend on his "batting average" of convictions, and he is not building up credit for the next election.

It is part of the mythology of our prosecutor system that the more persons a prosecutor puts in jail, the better an officer he is, and the safer the community is. This is demonstrably nonsense. Convictions in themselves mean little — they tell us allowed to reduce the charge to simple assault, and gets six months instead of ten, his conviction has done little to safeguard the community.

Cases, of course, are not decided on their merits, but on a host of other factors — the amount of evidence, the time involved, the kind of attorney a defendant can command, the odds on winning a protracted trial, political pressures, and many others. Justice is a word used in the classrooms, but almost never in the courtrooms.

The Nuremberg trials of 20 major German war criminals at the end of the Second World War began in Germany exactly 19 years ago today—in 1945. The international trials occupied nine months and led to the hanging or sentencing of most of the surviving leaders of the Third Reich. Many of those sentenced in 1945 now have been released from prison on the conviction of their sentences.

1962—The Saskatchewan city of Moose Jaw was incorporated.

1947—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip were married at Westminster Abbey.

Fifty years ago today—in 1914 — Russian warships bombarded the port of Khopa in Turkish Armenia and the Russian armies made gains near Przemysl in southern Poland; snow and rain slowed up activity in northern France.

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1939 — the British government announced it would ration butter and lard; a flooded Rhine and border rivers reduced activity on the Western front; the German air force made unsuccessful attacks on the Orkney Islands and a British destroyer.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

50 YEARS AGO

Nov. 20th, 1914

The first snowflakes of the season on Thursday created a realistic prelude to the late autumn and winter weather ahead. The first snowflurries of winter are generally a time for children to become sportive as the little flakes whirl playfully and frolickishly about.

To older folk, however, such a scene creates a sudden ambition to do any work which has been neglected about the lawn, in the shed or the basement to gather in any crops that are without; to make sure the storm windows and doors are on, and to put everything in readiness in case the wintry visitor should soon appear in earnest. Almost without exception winters give a clear hint of their coming a considerable time in advance.

Ten years of outstanding service to the boyhood of Belleville received unusual recognition on Friday evening at a meeting which was held in St. Thomas' Parish House, by the presentation of the coveted "Medal of Merit" of the Boy Scout Association to Mr. James Varley Bleecker Ave., Scoutmaster of the 3rd Belleville Troop of St. George's Mission. The presentation was made by Assistant Provincial Commissioner, Frank C. Irwin of Toronto on behalf of Lord Bessborough, Chief Scout for Canada. Scoutmaster Robert Brown of 5th Belleville Troop presided. Following the presentation, which came as a complete surprise to Mr. Varley, brief congratulatory addresses were made. As a boy Mr. Varley was connected with Scouts in England, when he came to Belleville he associated himself as Assistant Scoutmaster with the Rev. C. E. Clarke, who was then Scoutmaster of the Christ Church Troop. All local Scout Troops have benefited from Mr. Varley's ever willing service and gladly acknowledge his leadership.

Mayor W. C. Mikel, K.C., who is completing his first year in office, has announced that he will seek re-election. Including the Mayor, there are now four candidates in the field for the office of mayo.. The others are Ald. W. R. McCreary, Ald. Harry W. Greenleaf and Mr. Wilfred Geo. A. Bennett. It looks like an exciting contest.

Mr. J. Owen Heritz is in Toronto today for the purpose of addressing the Board of Trade of that city.

The Hon. Dr. Manion of Fort William, is the guest of Dr. F. W. Hill, Queen St. while he is here to speak in the interest of W. E. Ross Porter, Conservative candidate in the by-election in West Hastings for the Federal House. He is being opposed by Mr. Charles Hanna, Liberal.

The city postmaster draws attention to the fact that a two-cent stamp is necessary to accompany a card to England. Many post cards have been mailed to the boys at Salisbury Plain with insufficient postage.

So far, 18 streets and he...n known how many happy walkers and shoppers have benefited from these newly decreed restrictions against wheels, motor noises and fumes. Tourists will particularly appreciate the ban on motor traffic during periods of the day and night in the picturesque narrow streets of Montmartre.

Should Apply Scottish Law

Ottawa Citizen

The recommendation by the criminal justice group of the Canadian Bar Association that the doctrine of "diminished responsibility" be applied in murder cases deserves sympathetic study by the Government. The group, meeting in Montreal recently, made its recommendation by a 16-10 majority. If the doctrine of "diminished responsibility" were to apply, a jury could in a case of borderline insanity, find a person guilty of manslaughter instead of capital murder, in which case his sentence would be life imprisonment.

Canada still follows the 19th century Macnaughton rule which is substance, says that a person is legally sane if he knows the difference between right and wrong. The medical concept of insanity of course goes far beyond that.

A person may know the difference between right and wrong, yet be subject to such inner compulsions that he must commit wrong. Part is a form of insanity and should be recognized as such in the legal sense.

The McNaughton Commission on Insanity in 1959 rejected the doctrine of "diminished responsibility," but the commission divided three to two on the issue. The doctrine, which derives from old Scottish law, is applied in the United Kingdom. Barring the abolition of capital punishment altogether — which should be the goal — the principle of "diminished responsibility" would be a step forward in applying modern scientific knowledge to the law, and should be given close study by the Department of Justice.

Well, Nixon Is for Nixon

Montreal Gazette

Richard Nixon is a politician who never gives up. It was no secret he wanted to run against President Johnson in the election just finished. He had hoped that Rockefeller and Goldwater would cancel each other out, and that he would get the Republican nomination. And now it is clear that Mr. Nixon is looking ahead to the 1968 nomination.

Mr. Nixon has also made a strong attack upon Governor Rockefeller, whom he calls "party divider" and a "spoils-vet" because he did not campaign for the national ticket last autumn. According to Mr. Nixon, Rockefeller is out of the running.

Some other prominent Republicans also turn out to have important drawbacks, in Mr. Nixon's view. As far as Governor Scranton is concerned, there is the disturbing letter he sent to Mr. Goldwater at the San Francisco convention. And Governor Romney, if appointed, would be shot by the Republican politicians as a whole.

This does that leave, who is not a Goldwaterite, who campaigned loyally for the party during the campaign, who has stressed party unity, and who is liked by the regular politicians? Now, but Richard Nixon? Whether Mr. Nixon has a chance remains to be seen. But he is not losing any time trying.

Has Trouble Picking Name

Washington Post

The new Greek minister for cultural affairs at the Washington Embassy—and his friends—have a problem: What is his name.

Since many years ago, when he was reporter, then foreign correspondent, for the London Observer, and finally Washington director of United Nations office, his nom de plume and nom de travail has been Philip Deane, and as such he has been generally known for many years in Washington.

But now that he's going to work ing for the government of his native land, it is fitting that he assume his Greek family name: Gigantes. But what to use for a baptismal name? The difficulty is that the entire Greek general staff, 21 strong, stood as god fathers at his christening, with the result that he bears all of their names plus three or four of his own patronymics. This is just as a starter, he carries the handles Cerasimos Theodorou Christodoulou Severonos.

Friends, taking a tip from Mrs. Gigantes, have reverted to an old nickname, Mike. It seems the simplest solution.

New Technique For Teaching Subject of Talk

Dr. John Paul, associate professor of psychology at the University of Western Ontario, was the speaker at a Canadian Industrial Management Association, Quinte Branch, dinner meeting held at the Tyne Motel Wednesday. Dr. Paul stated that a new technique called "Program Learning" for teaching the "factual" subjects, makes learning a pleasure, not a threat and leads students to learn faster, remember longer.

He explained that the student is given information in tiny, easy-to-digest bits — only a sentence or a short paragraph at a time. The information is arranged in logical order, each step or "frame," building on those that came before. The steps become more difficult so gradually that the student is hardly aware of it. This arrangement is called a "program."

Dr. Paul said it has been a surprise to discover that once a program has been perfected, it can be used for children whose age and IQ vary widely. So far, children with low IQ's get just about as many right answers as do children rated high in intelligence but they tend to go slower. This finding bolsters those psychologists who have long held that few children are really dull. The main trouble seems to be that misguided parents and teachers too often kill the child's natural inclination to learn. Programmed instruction also offers hope to workers threatened by a fast-changing industrial society.

Dr. Paul is the author of two books and nine scientific articles in the field of communications and programmed learning.

He is the Director for Central Canada of the Canadian Council for Programmed Learning, and president of Programmed Learning of London Ltd., the first Canadian company devoted exclusively to the production of industrial academic programs.

Contracts for Steel for High Level Bridge At Deseronto Are Awarded

The McNamara Construction Company has been awarded the contract for the sub-structure of the new high level bridge over the Bay of Quinte at Deseronto and also for 1.15 miles of approaches. It was announced yesterday by Clarke T. Rollins, MLA for Hastings East.

The amount of the contract won by McNamara was $1,120,000.

A second contract for the same bridge project went to the Dominion Bridge Company for the steelwork and its fabrication. The amount of the contract is $850,000.

The new high level bridge over the bay at Deseronto will connect the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward and will provide a direct route from Picton to Highway 401, north of Marysville.

Preliminary work on the project is expected to get under way this winter, it was stated.

Nehru's Sister Fighting For Political Survival In Nov. 24 Election

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—The sister of the late prime minister Nehru, the world-famous Mrs. Vijaya Laxmi Pandit, is currently fighting for her political survival.

A Nov. 24 by-election in the Phulpur federal parliamentary constituency in Uttar Pradesh state will decide whether India's most powerful woman leader is to play a leading role in shaping post-Nehru India or unable to find a sinecure mountain home in Dehra Dun.

Phulpur was Nehru's former constituency. The late prime minister represented it in the Indian Parliament from Independence in 1968 until his death last May.

The Congress party ticket was originally offered to Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Nehru's daughter, but she said she preferred to continue in the upper house of the Indian Parliament, Mrs. Gandhi now is information minister in the Shastri cabinet.

Observers are agreed that in deciding to stand for Phulpur Mrs. Pandit has shown considerable political courage.

Though the seat has been associated with the Nehru name for two decades and more, it by no means certain that the 500,000 people of Phulpur will vote for Congress Party candidates solidly as they did in past general elections.

The opposition parties are making an attempt to defeat Mrs. Pandit by exploiting the economic discontent among Phulpur's peasantry.

WAS STATE GOVERNOR

Mrs. Pandit, 54, who gave up the governorship of a state to contest the seat, is opposed by candidates of the United Socialist Party and the right-wing Hindu Jana Sangh.

A former ambassador in Washington and Moscow and the first woman to become president of the United Nations General Assembly, she is campaigning vigorously. She is on her feet from 5 a.m. to midnight, addressing peasant meetings and talking to the housewives of Phulpur.

She has asked the electorate to judge her on her merits and not be influenced by the fact that she is Nehru's sister and a member of the great Nehru family.

There is speculation that if she is victorious Mrs. Pandit may join the cabinet of her popular cabinet post in the Indian government.

Mrs. Pandit's daughter is already in the cabinet it may not be impossible for Shastri to take in another member of the Nehru family.

Or Lal Bahadur Shastri may offer Mrs. Pandit the post of India's roving ambassador with cabinet rank.

WEDDING

KNIGHT — YOUNG

Christ Church (Anglican) was the setting for a quiet double-ring ceremony when Sally Ann Cynthia Young was united in marriage to Claire Donald Knight.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry A. Young of Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Donald K.light, R.R. 3, Stirling, and the late Mr. Knight.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. P. Smith assisted by Rev. J. H. Smith. The altar was adorned with a simple arrangement of assorted mums and carnations.

Mr. J. C. Withers played the organ music and accompanied the six choir boys.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of pure silk faille, fashioned in a classic style with round bound neckline, bell shaped sleeves with a full princess-line skirt falling from an empire waist, and a full chapel train. Her cathedral length pill box complemented the classic gown, and she carried a spray of white pompon mums.

Miss Joyce Craig of Belleville was maid of honor and the flower girl was Miss Judy Y-ung, niece of the bride, also of Belleville.

The attendants were gowns similar to the bride's, floor-length frocks in white satin bodices with avocado green skirts falling from an empire waist, and green headbands. The maid of honor carried a sheaf of white commercial mums, and the flower girl a petite basket of baby mums, interspersed with golden wheat sheaves.

William White of Hastings, Ontario was groomsman.

A reception was held at Sun Valley Motel for the immediate family after which a surprise reception dance was held at Tobe's County Gardens for many relatives and friends were gathered.

For the wedding the bride's mother wore a two-piece costume of beige lace, embroidered in chocolate brown with a scoop neckline, accent of brown velvet bow at midriff and sheath skirt. Her accessories were chocolate brown, and she wore a mink stole and corsage of orchids.

For a motor trip Strickland Honeymoon [illegible] in the Pocono Mountains, Pe[illegible]rvania, the bride wore a black wool walking suit featuring a black fox wedding ring collar and matching accessories. Her pink velvet hat was highlighted by a red velvet brim.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight will reside at R.R. 3, Stirling.

Before her marriage Mrs. Knight was guest at a shower arranged by Mrs. Pat Atkins and Mrs. Peggy Kerr which was attended by many girl friends and home for holidays from various points.

A dinner and presentation was given by her co-workers of the Ontario Hydro at Tops Motel, and a presentation was made by the Ontario Hydro social club. A shower and dance was arranged by Mrs. Helen Hinz, Mrs. Nancy Gray, and Mrs. Hel[illegible] Collins at Gilead Hall in Thurlow Township.

A community shower was given on Thursday evening by friends and relatives in the bridegroom's community, which was held at Mount Pleasant Hall.

GROUP HOMES WANTED

The Children's Aid Society would be pleased to receive inquiries from married couples in the Belleville area interested in offering group home living to three or four teen-age girls now enrolled in local schools. These are young people who, because of their previous life experience, are unable to accept substitute parents but who can live relatively normal lives in a group setting.

The family or families selected should be between the approximate age of 35 to 45, in good health and free from more than their slight share of the pressures and stresses of modern living. Because of the needs of the girls involved, it is essential that the applicants do not have children of their own in the age group likely to be demanding of much of their energy and time. Of course, they must be genuinely fond of young people and able to demonstrate their fondness by acceptance, understanding and warmth of personality.

Since the family will be considered to be an integral part of the Society's child care program, professional counselling and direction will be regularly available. For their efforts they will receive adequate and mutually satisfying compensation.

Successful Living

Parents Desolate About Disappointing Children

DEAR DORIS — As parents, my husband and I are almost to the point of admitting failure. We pride ourselves on our Christian way of life and thought that our children would be a pleasure and a blessing to us.

However, we are beginning to think our endeavors are in vain. The oldest (who is 16) has lied to us, has smoked and tried out sex. All three teen-agers seem to try and find out what is not allowed and then go and do it. We fear their influence on the younger three.

These children, please understand, have not been dragged up. We have loved them and guided them, taken them camping and hiking and boating. We've read to them and talked to them, we studied together the Bible and the laws for living, covered sex education, venereal diseases and all the evils and pitfalls they might encounter along life's way.

DORIS CLARE

We are being hurt daily by their disregard of all our principles, and their lack of love and appreciation for us. Our daily prayers for guidance seem to be also going astray, and the beautiful faith we once had is growing dim. — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE — Were your expectations too rigid? When a young person sallies forth to try out life he may panic, but he won't run for cover unless the way is open. This is a two-way street.

Surely every child takes refuge in a lie, at one time or another. Surely it is human (though not advisable) to try out a fag. I'm sorry about the sex experiments — but perhaps neither you nor your teen-ager knew the approach which would stand up against today's temptations.

This is a time to give up your faith. Your young people need to know that you are interested in their ideas and in helping them over the rough spots. Keep believing!

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My son's wife walked out on him 12 years ago. He has two children and sends money for their keep every month. Any time he has tried to see his children she puts up an argument, so he just stays away.

Couldn't he make a case on grounds of desertion after all those years of separation? — C.F.

DEAR C.F. — No. A divorce for desertion is not legal in Canada. But a separated father has a right to regular contact with the children his money supports. He could have the law on her.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I wrote to you once before and you helped me, so I hope you can help me again.

I have been going with this boy for about two months and since Christmas is coming up soon, what should I get him for a present? Would a shirt or sweater be suitable?

2. When a boy tells you he loves you, what do you say or do, if you are not sure you love him?

3. If a girl is fat, should she have the idea that if people don't like her the way she is, they won't like her if she gets slimmer? — CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED —

1. A book or a record would be better for a two-month boy friend than anything personal like clothes.

2. If you are as young as I think you are, take any declaration of love with a grain of salt.

3. No. People don't like you for your looks alone, but a girl who tries to talk herself out of slimming down this way is only kidding herself.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — As I was preparing vegetables on yesterday's newspaper, I read the letter from the lady who said that in the old days when she was a girl deodorants had not been invented but nobody minded.

Nobody minded? Well, I lived in "them days," too, and it was considered that any trace of body odor put one absolutely outside the pale, so one guarded against this offence by a liberal and constant use of soap and water. We were, in fact, a great deal cleaner, because instead of masking odors with deodorants or perfume we prevented them forming in the first place. — GOOD OLD SOAP.

DEAR GOOD — Thanks for taking your stand on the soap box!

CALGARY (CP) — John (Jock) Palmer, 68, who attempted Canada's first nonstop inland airmail flight in 1922, died Thursday in hospital. Mr. Palmer, made the attempt in June, 1922, when he left Lethbridge with 150 pounds of mail to be flown to Ottawa. The flight was never completed because of an accident during an emergency landing and the mail was sent on by rail.

Susanna's Family Fare

HAND WRAPPED

Dear Susanna: I'm what you might call an old-time housekeeper, and the only fool-proof way I've ever found to keep the garbage container always dry, clean, uncluttered and odorless is to wrap everything in newspapers first. The trouble is, so many people don't know how to do it.

You can use as many sheets of paper as you wish, but you must use only one or two at a time. It's a good idea to slice the complete set of double pages right down the back with a knife first. Otherwise, if you try to use the whole section for the first rolling, it's so stiff and bulky that it's almost sure to spring right back open again. — Mrs. Milligan

Very educational too — one discovers all sorts of information that was missed when the paper was first read. — SUSANNA

MICROSCOPE MITES

Dear Susanna: We had quite a few children and not much money but perhaps it was a blessing, for our "pin a rare spending" was limited, and we spent many a fascinating evening or holiday trying out simple scientific experiments that anyone can do at home with the facilities at hand.

Here are some of the favorite ones I remember that stimulated observations and inspired conclusions:

(a) Iodine test for starches in potatoes, bread, etc.

(b) Tin-can telephone

(c) Freezing a capped jar of water

(d) A spectrum-spinning top. Our eldest boy retained his interest all through school, and is now studying medicine.

I am enclosing the instructions for the above experiments for those of your readers who are interested. — Mr. Houston.

If there are any readers with an aspiring scientist in the family, let me know, and I will send out Mr. Houston's instructions. — SUSANNA

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

. . . would enjoy a dependable recipe for whipped butter. — Mrs. R. F.

ANSWER:

THRIFTY WHIPPED BUTTER:

½ lb. butter, room temperature, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup cold 18% cream.

Beat butter and salt several minutes, then add the cold cream, about a tablespoon at a time, and beat at medium speed with electric beater until thoroughly blended. Increase speed to highest point toward end. This butter is excellent for all spreading purposes, but do not use in baking. Delicious on cooked vegetables. Will keep about 1 week in closely covered container in refrigerator. A few drops of yellow food coloring may be added.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Fillets on Rice with Cheese Sauce (see Wednesday); Mixed Buttered Green Beans and Fresh Frozen Limas; Lettuce and Cucumber Salad; Sour Cream Dressing; Hot Apricot Soufflé (see Thursday); Hot Foamy Sauce (see Thursday); Coffee.

QUESTION:

I would like to make a coffee cake, and by this I mean a sponge cake with a coffee flavor and with a filling also coffee flavored . . . Ruth B.

ANSWER:

While the following is not what Canadians call sponge cake, because you are Irish I believe it is what you are seeking.

COFFEE LAYER CAKE:

.coffee-flavored butter and filling — easy to make)

1¼ cups sifted cake flour, 1 tablespoon single-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons instant coffee powder, ¼ cup butter, ¼ cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 large eggs, ½ cup water.

Sift sifted flour with baking powder, salt and coffee powder. In mixing bowl cream butter and shortening together very well. Add sugar, creaming until pale and light. Add eggs, one at a time, beating until very light. Remove beater and fold in flour mixture alternately with water, 1-3 of each at a time. Have ready two 8½" layer cake tins, buttered. (If your pans do not have a swivel-bar attached by rivet at centre bottom to facilitate removal of baked cakes, line bottoms with one sheet buttered paper.) Bake at 375 deg. Fahr., 15 to 17 minutes, or until it tests done. Cool on racks in pans 5 minutes, then turn cakes out on racks to cool. Meanwhile make Creamy Coffee Filling: In heavy pan mix together 1-3 cup sugar, 2½ tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon instant coffee powder, shake of salt, 1 large egg, 1¼ cups hot milk. Mix well and stir over heat until thick. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla and cool. When filling and cakes are cool, put bottom layer of cake on large serving dish, spread evenly with filling, carefully place second layer over. Frosting: Two tablespoons butter, 2 cups icing sugar, 4 tablespoons 18% cream. Beat until creamy and of spreading consistency. Frost sides, then top. If desired sprinkle top and sides with broken walnuts.

A delicious cake which is new to Canadian cooks.

later was $1,933,670.

Another contract was signed with Canadian Car in April, 1959, for another vehicle and the cost this time was $1,868,-882.

In March, 1960, another contract was entered into with Canadian Car for 30 phototypes.

Hawker-Siddeley, which had taken over Canadian Car, advised that it had over-spent by $1,500,000 on the contract, which had a ceiling of $3,700,000, and that $1,400,000 more would be needed.

Faults which had shown up in the trials could not be corrected without a great deal of new design and development work, the defence and defence production department said in their statement.

An audit determined an overall over-expenditure on the last contract of $1,542,149.

PAID ABOUT HALF

Hawker - Siddeley asked for more than half of this amount and was paid $735,621 by the government to terminate the contract.

The two departments said the program was inadequately financed from the beginning and that the necessity for seeking new funds at various stages resulted in lengthy delays.

At the time of cancellation, fully operational carriers were available from the United States at much less cost than the projected price of the Bobcat and with much earlier delivery.

Consequently, the defence department bought the American M-113.

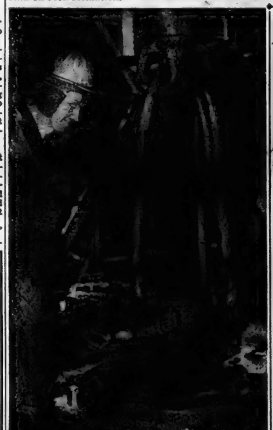
find something which was missed half a century ago.

But Melrose residents are just a bit excited over the sudden appearance of a big rotary drilling rig setting up in their community and a few of the older residents recall the original drilling operations.

DRILLED IN 1902

Tyendinaga Township records indicate the well on the Pascoe farm was drilled back in 1902 while others in the area were drilled about the same date.

The old well on the Pascoe farm goes down approximately 1800 feet and lined with a five and three quarter inch pipe. The original drilling operation was in search of oil.



The current drilling operation is being done by the James Drilling Company of Wallaceburg, Ont. They will go down inside the old pipe until they reach the bottom of the old 1800-foot hole.

The two big drilling rigs pulled into the area on Wednesday and are expected to go into operation today.

The four men operating the Melrose rig are all from Alberta, with oil well drilling experience in that area.

Consumers Gas Commences Cleaning Out Old Wells, Seeking Oil in This Area

Two big rotary oil well drilling rigs were expected to go into operation today at Trenton and Melrose, as Consumers Gas Company of Toronto, commences exploratory operations which will see a number of previously drilled wells in the area cleaned out.

One of the drilling rigs is set up on the Pascoe farm at Melrose, 12 miles east of the city and the other is in the town of Trenton.

The entire exploratory operation is expected to take about four weeks, according to Harold Townsend, field engineer for Consumers Gas.

Mr. Townsend said the previously drilled wells would be cleaned out to obtain geological data on rock formation beneath the surface. The cleaning out of the old wells is the first phase of operations in search of oil, gas or rock structure suitable for storage of natural gas.

The reason for taking a second look at the previously drilled wells in this area, according to Mr. Townsend, is that knowledge of rock formations likely to contain gas or oil is much more advanced than it was half a century ago.

He suggested that they might

Canada Should Recognize Red China Sen. Geo. White Tells Warden's Banquet

Senator George S. White, of Madoc, disagrees with the government policy of refusing to recognize Red China.

Speaking at the annual warden's banquet at Madoc last night, Senator White said that "we have to live with Red China" and recognition of her government would help to reduce prejudice and reduce the possibility of her developing into a dictatorial nation.

He said that China's development of the nuclear bomb had changed conditions and other countries must now take a different viewpoint in acceptance of the country's government.

Senator White's comments on Red China were made during an account of a trip to China and Japan, which he and Mrs. White made this year.

70-DAY TRIP

Their 70-day trip aboard a freighter out of Seattle had seen stops at ports both in China and Japan as well as other Far East countries.

He said that Japan was a country of no unemployment, with busy factories providing work for its many millions of people.

One of the most notable changes in Japan since a trip to the same country eight years ago was that members of the younger generation were two to three inches taller than their parents.

Approximately 20 ex-wardens, along with local members of parliament and area municipal officials attended the banquet in the Madoc armouries.

Warden Burnside reviewed the year's accomplishments at county council. Plans had been finalized for a joint city-county hospital, the county assessor system had been adopted and a safety inspector hired.

MUST BROADEN SERVICES

Also efforts were being made to have a technological institute built in the immediate county area.

Mr. Burnside referred to a recent talk about regional government and warned that counties would have to broaden their services to the people.

He expressed profound regret at the governent decision to close the Madoc Armouries.

He said that the decision to close our outlying armouries and do all training in Belleville would leave the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment on shaky foundations.

For local high school boys would go to Belleville to train and be in school the next day, he said.

County clerk treasurer, Carl Bateman, acted as master of ceremonies for the banquet program. Response to the warden's address of welcome was made by Reeve William Shannon, Fred Becket and G. Hughes, and by Madoc councillor Olive G. Ashe.

The toast to the ex-wardens was made by Deputy Reeve J. J. McAlpine with former warden Harleigh Hamilton responding. Thurlow Reeve Clayton Hall introduced Senator White with Sidney Reeve Gerald Irvine expressing appreciation.

The toast to the people was proposed by Bill Marsh, deputy Reeve of Hungerford. Responding were Mayor Jack Ellis of Belleville and district wardens, K. Hicks of Prince Edward; D. Brown, Lennox and Addington and E. McMaster, Northumberland and Durham.

Head table guests also included county judge J. C. Anderson, Elmer Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West; Clarke Rollins, Hastings East, and Rodd Webb, M.P. for Hastings Frontenac.

Members of the Madoc Catholic Women's League catered to the banquet with thanks to the ladies being expressed by Mrs. Barney Seasmith, deputy reeve of Bancroft.

HASTINGS COUNTY WARDEN Thomas Burnside and Mrs. Burnside were hosts last night to more than 300 guests at annual warden's banquet in Madoc. Warden and Mrs. Burnside greet Senator George White, speaker of the evening, and Mrs. White.

Million Dollar Plant Opens At Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A company which uses gamma rays from a cobalt 60 irradiation unit to sterilize surgical sutures went into production here Thursday.

The device was installed by Atomic Energy of Canada at Ethicon Sutures Limited's new $1,000,000 plant. Sutures, manufactured in Chicago, are packaged in aluminum foil and then sealed. The gamma rays go through the foil, sterilizing the sutures.

Ethicon, a subsidiary of Johnson and Johnson Limited of Montreal, will employ more than 100 people in the production of some 1,700 different kinds of sutures.

Stelco Union Orders Workers To Stay on Job

HAMILTON (CP) — Officials of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) Thursday attacked rumors of a possibility of "spontaneous walkouts" at the Steel Company of Canada as "attempts to sabotage continuing negotiations between Stelco and the steelworkers."

The negotiating committee of Local 1005 issued orders for its members to stay on the job.

Negotiations for a new work contract for the 10,000 Stelco Hamilton workers represented by the union are being continued by sub-committees of the company and the union, members were told in a leaflet.

Members of Local 1005 voted in favor of strike action in a ballot Monday and Tuesday should conciliation fail.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A conciliation board hearing into a contract dispute between the Algoma Steel Corporation and Local 2251 of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) resumed Thursday.

The board interrupted its session last week to enable its chairman, W. H. Dickie, to go to Hamilton where he presided over another conciliation board seeking to settle a contract dispute with the Steel Company of Canada.

"We have to find out where we stand," was the only comment Mr. Dickie would make prior to the resumption of talks Thursday. He also declined to comment on the Hamilton talks.

The local, which has about 7,000 members at the Algoma plant, voted several months ago to strike if necessary.

The union's contract with the company expired Aug. 1.

The union is asking for a 23.5-cent-an-hour pay increase, double time for overtime, and a 10-week extended vacation every five years for senior employees.

2 DIE IN MOUNTAINS

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona's legendary Superstition Mountains have taken two more lives. Searchers found the bodies Thursday of Richard Kremis, 31, of Mesa, Ariz., and his 17-year-old brother Edward of Fredonia, Pa. The two went deer hunting in the mountains Sunday shortly before a storm struck, filling the canyons with snow.

Dairy Industry Said Suffering From Claustrophobia, Self-Pity

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario dairy industry suffers from claustrophobia and self-pity, Everett Biggs, Ontario's deputy agriculture minister, said Thursday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Milk Distributors Association.

He said there have been controls in the fluid milk business for almost 30 years and added that the industry has developed in the "restricted atmosphere of paternalistic care."

Mr. Biggs said this crutch may be the reason why so many in the dairy business look to government for solutions, and then blame the government for most problems.

The industry on the surface has the progressive look of a Sunday suit, he said, but underneath there is fear, distrust and disunity.

Mr. Biggs said his department expects guidance from the Ontario milk industry committee set up in May, 1963. However, Mr. Biggs added, many briefs offered to the committee represented a "don't rock the boat" philosophy.

WANT RELAXATION

Most persons want to relax restrictions which require dairies to sell to their geographic areas, he said. Referring to talk of production controls, Mr. Biggs added it was unrealistic to try to prevent a dairy farmer from achieving his highest possible output.

M. R. McCrea, president of the National Dairy Council of Canada, said Canada may have a milk shortage within a year if production is not increased.

Total milk production this year was static for the fourth consecutive year yet production of many dairy products has risen. This year's consumption of outstripped production by several million pounds.

He said it is almost certain the price of milk for manufacturing ice cream and other products will be raised by the government. He urged the government to do this by income payments to farmers rather than by setting minimum prices.

In any case, consumer prices should not be raised, he said.

Supreme Court Establishes Precedent by Hearing Two Appeals on Same Case

By JOHN R. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada established a precedent when it heard a second appeal by Georges Marcotte, 23-year-old convicted killer of a St. Laurent, Que., policeman.

It was the first time the court had heard a second appeal against a capital murder conviction although it was not the first time it had reviewed a capital case a second time.

Marcotte was convicted of capital murder in the machine-gun slaying of Constable Claude Marineau in the so-called Santa Claus bank holdup in St. Laurent, near Montreal, in December, 1962. One of the bandits in the $143,000 robbery wore a Santa Claus suit.

Marcotte, scheduled to be hanged Friday, Dec. 4, had appeals against his March, 1963, conviction in the Quebec Appeal Court and in the Supreme Court of Canada.

Last September Justice Minister Favreau directed the Quebec Court of Appeal to consider new evidence that had come to the attention of Yves Mayrand, defence counsel for Marcotte. The Quebec court heard the evidence, and if it were a second appeal by Marcotte, and said it was not sufficient to alter its earlier decision dismissing an appeal against the murder conviction.

Later Judge Roger Ouimet of the Quebec Superior Court turned down a request by Mr. Mayrand for a stay of execution to permit Marcotte to appeal to the Supreme Court against the Sept. 17 decision of the Quebec Appeal Court.

Crown Prosecutor Jacques Ducros argued that the Quebec Court of Appeal decision was based on a review of new evidence not forward by Mr. Mayrand and was not an appeal. He contended that the decision could not be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

However, on Sept. 23 the federal cabinet postponed Marcotte's execution date from Sept. 23 to Dec. 4 to permit him to appeal in the Supreme Court against the Quebec Appeal Court's decision. That was Marcotte's third stay of execution.

This appeal was heard Wednesday by the Supreme Court here. It reserved decision. Judgment is expected within the next two weeks.

The first murder case reviewed for a second time by the Supreme Court of Canada was the famous one involving Wilbert Coffin.

Coffin, Gaspe prospector convicted of murdering an American hunter in 1953, lost an appeal in the Quebec Court of Appeal. He also applied to Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott of the Supreme Court of Canada for leave to appeal but his application was turned down.

In late 1955 the cabinet in an unprecedented move referred the Coffin case to the Supreme Court for an opinion. In that case the court's decision was not to be binding.

Seven members of the court including Mr. Justice Abbott heard Crown and defence arguments and said Jan. 24, 1956, in a 5-to-2 opinion they would have upheld the conviction. Coffin was hanged Feb. 10, 1956.

NO TINS WITH ANY OTHER NUMBERS ARE AFFECTED

Consumers in Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces who have purchased KLIK since September 14th and who are in possession of any tins bearing these codes are asked to immediately return them to their retailers for replacement or refund.

Tins embossed with EST 7A, EST 7B, or EST 7D are not involved as they were produced at other plants and are in no way affected.

The recall of these tins is a precautionary measure which has been taken because spice units, supplied to the Company and used in the production of KLIK Luncheon Meat at one plant, contained less than the normal quantities of one of the curing ingredients.

The effect of a smaller than normal quantity of this curing ingredient has not been clearly established by food scientists. KLIK is cooked during the canning process, however, curing ingredients are added in the spice mixture to assure its long-term keeping qualities.

The best scientific opinion indicates that the risk of impaired keeping qualities is small, but may exist. Therefore, there is a small chance that the product could deteriorate and might then cause serious illness if eaten.

All KLIK presently on retailers' shelves has been carefully checked by company employees to ensure that it is not from the lots in question.

RETAILERS—Your cooperation in accepting return of this product is requested. A Company representative will be contacting you.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By CEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Gary Schreiber, this city's gift to professional football, we hazard to guess, sits in his Ottawa law office and wonders if Grey Cup history will repeat itself.

Gary was a defensive halfback star of the Ottawa Rough Riders back in 1949 when "two second-best clubs," the Riders and the Edmonton Eskimos bulled their way to the Grey Cup final in Vancouver.

GARY SCHREIBER

The west coast spectacular went into the record books as one of Canadian professional football's unfinished symphonies.

The Rough Riders, rated as 6½ points underdogs to the western champions, sent the Eskimos back to their Edmonton igloos with a 16-6 defeat clutched to their parkas, after a battle that was climaxed by the most dramatic finale in gridiron history.

There were 41 second left in the game when it came to an abrupt halt. Hundreds of fans raided the playing field and during the mob scene a youngster snatched the ball, disappeared into the crowd and hasn't been seen since.

My old buddy, Ed Schreiber, Gary's dad, who with his football son could stand-in for one of those mother-and-daughter hand lotion commercials, told me it was one of most fantastic football scenes he had ever witnessed.

As is well known the current Rough Riders hold a 17-point bulge over the champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats in their struggle for eastern supremacy and a starring role in the Grey Cup drama. The teams tangle in Hamilton on Saturday in the second clash of the points-to count series.

And Gary, in moments of nostalgia, probably recalls the dramatic two-game total-point duels against the Toronto Argonauts before the Riders trekked to Vancouver and the Grey Cup four years ago.

The setting of Saturday's battle is similar to that of the Riders-Argonaut stage in 1950.

Down Ottawa way a jubilant crowd of Rider fans saw their favorites hand out capital punishment to the vanned Argos by a 32-21 score, giving them a twelve-points bulge on the series.

But in Toronto the fortunes of football war were fickle. The winds of fate blew crosswise and the Rough Riders blew with them until the latter stages of the third quarter.

The passing wizardry of the arm of Tobin Rote had the Rough Riders defence in a tizzy and with five minutes left to play in the third quarter, the Double-Blue had piled up a 26-9 score and a 41-33 margin on the round.

Then the fickleness of football fate entered the picture. As though some magic wand had been waved over them the Riders exploded into life. Their plays clicked with lightning-like suddenness. They scored two touchdowns in 77 seconds and grabbed a 47-41 lead in the series.

The wind of fortune twitched again and the Argonauts drove deeply into Ottawa territory. Toronto and Ottawa fans held their breaths.

Then it happened!

I don't know whether the Ottawa brass recalled the Rip Van Winkle sleeper play that cost them the Grey Cup, back in 1949 against the Calgary Stampeders. In any event they decided it was worth a try.

Over 30,000 fans sat in stunned amazement as the Riders' Simpson, in full view of all but the Argonaut players, lugged the sidelines.

The ball was on the Ottawa twelve-yard line. Quarterback Ken Lancaster winged a high pass directly across the field to the waiting Simpson who was on the Toronto "40" and he lugged the ball to the 18 yard stripe for a gain of 80 yards.

The Riders drove to the Argonauts' two-yard line, and the Eatown fans went wild two plays later when Joe Kelly went over for the big touchdown that gave the Riders a 51-20 victory, a 54-51 margin on the round, and a trek to Vancouver—and the Cup.

Cats, Riders Hole Up In Hideaways

HAMILTON (CP) — An offensive lineup spearheaded by drum majorettes, cheerleaders and bands still back both Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders deep into their own ends tonight on the eve of the second game of the Eastern Football Conference finals.

The Tiger-Cats will scrimmage cautiously with the clamorous crew in front of a downtown hotel before heading for the tall timber to hole up for the night. The Riders won't even venture beyond the suburbs until close to game time at 1 p.m. EST Saturday.

The event that is sending both teams scurrying for cover is a mammoth rally Hamilton fans intended to bolster the morale of the Tiger-Cats, who trail by 17 points in the two-game, total-points series, as a result of a 30-13 setback in Ottawa last Saturday.

Coach Ralph Sazio and his defending Grey Cup champions will show up to be introduced to their well-wishers when the rally starts at 7:30 p.m. Then, guarding against the possibility that the revels might infringe on their sleeping hours, they'll head for an out-of-town hideaway.

With the same thought in mind, general manager Red O'Quinn isn't disclosing where he plans to billet the Riders tonight.

Both clubs had good news from their medical wing. Flanker Whit Tucker, who missed the last two games because of a troublesome sciatic nerve in his back, now rates as a probable starter for Ottawa and offensive end Stan Crisson of the Ticats appears to have shaken a charleyhorse that hobbled him in Ottawa last Saturday.

Fullback Art Baker and halfback Willie Bethea, both hanged up in the first game of the final, remain on the uncertain list in the Hamilton offensive backfield with linebacker Bobby Kuntz and bench-warmer Bobby Gaiters slated to replace them if needed. And Joe Zuger, out for seven games with a bad shoulder, may replace injured defensive back Jackie Simpson.

Sam Scoccia, Ottawa's veteran guard who was also injured in the first game against Hamilton, will dress but has been relegated to a reserve role behind John Kemerson.

Both coaches have noted the possibility that the crowd at Saturday's game, which will be televised nationally by the CBC and CTV networks, may take up a cue from last week's telecast, in which the roars from the stands frequently drowned out quarterback Bernie Faloney' instructions to the visiting Tiger-Cats.

Sazio, denouncing such tactics as "bush," urged Hamilton fans not to retaliate. Rider coach Frank Clair simply told his players to disregard what happens in the stands and keep their minds on the game.

Defensive Record Tops

Broadway Blues Rockin,'Rollin'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the real surprises of the National Hockey League please stand up?

No, not Detroit Red Wings, unexpected early leaders of the NHL race, or Chicago Black Hawks, who have fallen far short of the sizzling pace they set in the first half last season.

New York was picked to finish dead last in the pre-season polls. The experts thought the many nondescript forwards, an undependable goalie and a rookie - studded defence that would collapse from inexperience.

It just hasn't happened. In fact, New York boasts one of the best defensive records in the league and that's primarily the reason the Rangers must be considered serious contenders.

The defensive corps, veteran Harry Howell, rookies Rod Seiling and Arnie Brown and ex-minor leaguers Don Johns and Jim Neilson, have raised eyebrows throughout the league with steady play. And the goal-tending supplied by Marcel Paille and Jacques Plante, has been of high quality.

CUT GOALS AGAINST

The combination has allowed just 33 goals in 18 games, a reduction of 17 over the same period last season. Only Montreal with 31 goals against in 15 games, and Detroit, 33 in 16 contests, have better records.

Production by New York's offence has been down seven goals from last year. But the lightening-up on defence has allowed the Rangers to accumulate 15 points — five more than they had last year after 15 games.

This improvement has come largely at the expense of the Black Hawks, who threatened to run away with the league at this stage last year when they had 20 points in 14 games. Today they are tied for fourth with 15.

Toronto has slipped two points while Montreal has gained one. Detroit, four points ahead of their pace last season and Boston is up one.

Among the individuals, Stan Mikita of Chicago and Montreal's Jean Beliveau have slipped considerably. Beliveau had six goals and 17 assists a year ago but owns a record of 3-7—10 today. Mikita had 24 points after 14 games last season, but has only 18 currently.

LEADS SCORING

Bobby Hull has the same number of points as he did a year ago with 18, but his goal production has risen sharply. He leads the league at present with 13, four more than he scored in his first 14 games last season.

No games were played in the NHL Thursday night, and none is scheduled for tonight. But five contests are slated for the weekend.

Detroit's hopes of keeping first place are high as they face Boston Saturday night and New York the following evening in two road games. Chicago has the toughest schedule, playing in Toronto Saturday and then meeting Montreal at home.

Toronto travels to Boston for the third Sunday night contest.

Petes, Juniors Tonight!

Belleville "B's", with a win and a loss to their credit to date, will be facing a stiff test here tonight against the invading Peterborough Don Bye squad.

The game is a scheduled OHA Eastern Junior League contest, slated for Memorial Arena, at 9.00 p.m.

Gary Darling's Peterborough boys are playing an inter-locking schedule with the Toronto Metro Ex League, along with Kingston Frontenacs.

The Belleville boys will thus get some idea of their true strength against good hustling "B" competition in tonight's game.

A hustling performance from all players overcome a lack of finish around the net in the "B's" win over Napanee here, last Friday. The locals came up with a good, fast-skating brand of hockey which should entice the fans back to the rink.

Holdovers from last year's Belleville entry will likely be putting a little extra int. the action tonight, recalling their playoff elimination at Peterborough's hands last spring.

It should make for a good night's hockey.

Stamps, Lions Eye Grey Cup Bonanza

Ready To Go

By JACK BRAUCKMANN

VANCOUVER (CP) — "We want that Grey Cup dough."

Tackle Don Luzzi of Calgary Stampeders was explaining Thursday why there was no celebration after the team's 14-10 victory over British Columbia Lions the night before.

He was talking of the $1,500 bonus each player on the winning Grey Cup team receives.

And he was indicating the mutual attitude of a club that has been exuding confidence.

The Stamps evened the best-of-three Western Football Conference final at one game apiece when they defeated the Lions—to the surprise of no one on the Calgary team. Lions had won the first game 34-10.

While the Lions continued to shake their heads over Wednesday night's mistakes, Stamps went through light workouts in preparation for Sunday afternoon's third and final game starting at 2 p.m. PST. (5 p.m. EST)

Players only had a short workout Thursday and had no other short one scheduled for Saturday. Friday there would be a slightly longer signal drill.

Dobbs says the practices are for loosening up only. He said the team is in fair condition. Ron Payne and second quarterback Jerry Keeling were shaken up Wednesday night but are on the mend.

Keeling completed three of four passes before limping off with a badly bruised knee, but he was running easily during the Thursday workout.

Lions' coach Dave Skrien bemoaned the "terrible offence" his club displayed.

"The expected fog didn't arrive (at the stadium) but some of our boys played like they were in one all night."

Game films showed no team breakdown, Skrien said, but "some players didn't do their job."

"The problem was one of individual mistakes," he said.

Nell Beaumont's injured knee was a cause for consternation for the B.C. coach during Wednesday's game. The Western Conference's top punter got away only two good boots in the game, and the knee got banged up even more.

Beaumont will be in action Sunday, but his effectiveness will be a doubtful factor in Lions' planning.

Skrien was dismayed with the lack of protection afforded Joe Kapp, even when the big quarterback was operating out of the shotgun formation.

"He was harassed by both the linebackers and the middle guards. We have run into trouble this year with blitzing linebackers but we haven't seen those middle men pouring through like they did Wednesday."

Air Canada, Greyhound and CPR officials report a flood of enquiries about Calgary-to-Vancouver connections, and the stampeder office has been flooded with ticket requests for the deciding game, which will be carried on CTV and CBC National Networks.

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Kidd met the world's top distance runners in North America, Britain and Europe the last two years on a pair of aching and sore feet that will put him on an operating table in a Toronto hospital in the next three weeks.

His track future is at stake.

The almost incredible story of the 21-year-old Toronto runner's gallant but futile bid to stay up with the world's best in the punishing long-distance track events was unfolded Thursday, five weeks after two crushing defeats in the Tokyo Olympic Games.

There, he had raced against the classic 10,000 and 5,000 metre fields the world has known with pulled tendons in both knees and a left foot all ment forced him unconsciously to run on the sides of his feet.

He had bottled up his fears well and was embarrassed and annoyed when The Canadian Press learned it Thursday Only his family and a few close friends had known of his ailments and his plans to enter hospital for surgery.

HAD NO ALIBIS

This intelligent young man, a fourth-year political science student at the University of Toronto, didn't want to offer say alibis for his two most humiliating years on the outdoor tracks of the world. His greatest downfall came at Tokyo.

There, he was a forlorn and pathetic 26th of 29 finishers in the 10,000 metres and a badly beaten ninth of 11 starters in a heat of the 5,000 metres that sent him to the sidelines and a four-day tour of Japan to pour his future in the sport.

His performances at Tokyo were crushing blow to a young man who had been tabbed three years ago as an athlete with the potential to develop into the greatest distance runner the world has ever seen. He had been lapped twice by six of the field in the longer distance.

BRUCE KIDD

"I am going to hospital to have my tonsils out," he said when told by CP that his secret was out. He finally admitted his injuries and said his left heel was "always sore and aching" and that he experienced "quite a sharp pain" when he ran.

It was disclosed that two operations may be necessary —the first to correct a condition of a small muscle in the sole of the foot hooked onto the heel bone. If further surgery is necessary for the tendons, this will be done, probably in late winter.

HAD MENTAL BLOCK

Kidd maintained that his ailment "had nothing to do with my performance in Japan."

"I could have run with a broken leg and it wouldn't have made any difference," he added. "I just couldn't get up mentally for my races. I couldn't relax."

Coach Fred Foot said he thought his protege's troubles started in 1961 after Kidd had won the U.S. intercollegiate cross-country championship in St. Louis.

His heel "acted up" again nearly three months ago and Kidd felt he could stand the pain until after the Oct. 10-24 Olympic Games.

"He took a gamble and lost," said Foot.

Kidd revealed that he had once you try Snow Cruising, you'll want winter to last forever

The OMC Snow Cruiser is the family snowmobile designed, built and guaranteed by Outboard Marine Corporation, makers of world famous Johnson and Evinrude outboard motors and boats.

When OMC decides to bring out a new product, you can be sure of one thing: it may be new on the market, but it's old hat to us. Three years of exhaustive testing under the most trying conditions have proved the OMC Snow Cruiser an outstanding performer in any condition of weather, snow or ice. When you're out in remote adventure country, it's nice to know your vehicle is dependable.

When you're ice fishing, you want to get to those far-off holes where the best fish bite. Snow Cruiser gets you there—and back again.

But there's more to Snow Cruiser than just reliability.

What do you do where the land is flat and you want to slalom ski? Well, just hitch up to the tow bar and do some fancy free-flight snow skiing behind your speeding Snow Cruiser.

Once upon a Snow Cruiser, you'll never want to get off. Snow Cruising is so much fun!

Those great "grab" cleats dig in and move you up and down hills and valleys, through virgin snow fields, across ice covered lakes and through snow shrouded forests.

Massive "go" power is delivered by Snow Cruiser's rugged 14 hp engine (360 cc). And an extra large rewind starter puts it all at your command with just one short, easy pull.

With that much go, OMC put in a large measure of stop. The brakes are disc type. Only airplanes, sports and racing cars have them. Now they're on Snow Cruiser.

OMC wanted Snow Cruiser to be infinitely strong and weather resistant. The chassis is steel, the cowling is fiber glass. Easy to trailer.

See your OMC Snow Cruiser dealer.

received medical attention since last December and a month later started taking pills to ease the pain.

Oddly enough, Kidd had a fine indoor season in 1963 after winning two medals in the 1963 British Empires Games in Australia. He won the gold at six miles and the third-place bronze in the three.

Among the victims indoors was Bob Schul of the United States, who won the 5,000-metre gold medal in Japan.

BEATEN OUTDOORS

Outdoors, he took beatings wherever he went outside Canada. He put these setbacks down to a "mental block" although he did admit last year that he had been hampered by a heel injury.

He was badly beaten in meets in Britain and Europe in 1963 and eventually retired to the sidelines. This summer he again absorbed crushing defeats in the United States and Britain but said he expected to be in the best physical condition of his sensational career in time for the Tokyo Games.

As Kidd heads for the operating table he can take comfort from the experience of his Olympic teammate, sprinter Harry Jerome who underwent surgery for a damaged thigh muscle after a disappointing showing in the 1962 British Empire Games, where he finished last in the 100-yard final.

Jerome returned this year to win a bronze medal in the 100 metres and finish fourth in the 200 metres at Tokyo.

KELSO RESTING

NEW YORK (AP) — Kelso, world's leading money - winning thoroughbred, will not run in the Gallant Fox Handicap at Aqueduct on Nov. 28, trainer Carl Hanford said Thursday, but the gelding will not be definitely retired now. Hanford said "the seven-year-old gelding, which already has won $1,883,963 in purses, might run in some weight-for-age events in 1965.

Quinte Hockey League

Rossmore hit the win column with a 4-1 victory over Horlock Electrics while SACO dumped the Ter-Hsar Dashers 7-3 in a pair of Quinte Hockey League games here last night. .

Goal scorers for Rossmore were Hutchinson, D. Reid, P. Osterhout and D. Kerruish. R. Smith, Osterhout and M. Thompson drew one assist apiece.

B. Seames scored the Horlock marker, assisted by J. Campbell and Bill Hill.

Rossmore built a 3-0 lead in the first period. Horlocks got their loner in the second and the winners wrapped it up with a final in the third.

Penalties included a misconduct to R. Burrows of Horlocks, in the first period, fighting majors to G. Webb and R. Atkins in the second and the same to Bud Hill and D. Reid in the third.

SACO took a 2-1 first period lead and made it 4-1 after two heats against Ter-Hsar.

K. Forsythe and G. Gener eaux triggered two goals apiece to spark the winners. D. Forsythe, D. Lucas and Johnson added two others. D. Ray had a pair of helpers, A. Delineand D. Knapton one apiece.

B. Smith and R. Urch were the Ter-Hsar scorers, with R. Pointer and D. Moore getting assists.

There were only two minor penalties in the game, both to SACO.

TO REPRESENT CANADA

MONTREAL (CP) — George Knudson and Al Balding, both of Toronto, have been selected to represent Canada in next year's World cup international golf competition. The selections were announced Thursday by the Canadian Professional Golfers Association. The Mexican tournament begins Nov. 26.

Gananoque Bows To Picton 7-5

PICTON (Staff) — A five-goal outburst in the second period spurred the Picton Merchants to a 7-5 victory over the Gananoque Islanders in an OHA Eastern Junior League game here last night.

The victory was the first for the Merchants and the setback was number one for the visitors in that department.

Bad weather hurt the attendance but a fair-sized turnout saw Gananoque move ahead 2-1 in the first period. Picton jumped ahead 4-2 early in the second but the Islanders came back with a pair to tie it.

Two goals late in the period showed the Merchants back in front 6-4. Gananoque made it tight again, 6-5, in the third before a final Merchant marker sewed up the victory.

Rookie Ernie Sharpe was the only two-goal man for Picton His second marker turned out to be the winner. Billy Hoskins, Ron Riley, Bulgajewski, Thompson and Bart Frederick triggered the other goals. Harold Haddock earned three assists, Doug Pettingill two, Jones, Frederick and Riley one apiece.

Wilson fired two Gananoque goals, Larry Rountree, Doug Higgins and Dickson each getting a goal and assist. Small drew one assist each.

All of the game's penalties were minors.

The league standing, including last night's game, has Trenton in first place with a 3-0 record, followed by Gananoque with 2-1, Belleville 1-1, Picton 1-2 and Napanee 0-3.

North Shore Hockey League

Melville Shorelinersx whipped Cherry Valley 8-1 with Demoestelle and Albury battling to a 3-3 deadlock in Prince Edward North Shore puck action at Wellington last night.

Melville led 3-1 and 4-1 by periods before putting it out of reach with four in the third.

Gary Pyke fired three goals and helped on two, while Scott had two goals and three assists and Simpson two of each for the winners. Ross added the other goal, Dave LaRue and Eldon Carson getting single assists.

Leavitt scored the lone Cherry Valley marker.

The Demorestville - Albury game was a tight one all the way. It was scoreless after one period and 1-1 going into the final frame.

Albury marksmen were Pete Mitchell and Les Moreau.

Scoring for Demorestville were Trumble and Wilson.

NAMED MVP

HALIFAX (CP) — Tom Delaney, veteran halfback with the St. Francis Xavier X-Men, football team named most valuable player in the Atlantic Football Conference. The Portland, Me., native received the nod after an eight - touchdown season.

Major Baseball

Big Names on Trading Block

BY MURRAY CHASS

NEW YORK (AP) Baseball's inter-league trading period opens at midnight tonight with Dick Stuart, part of a major deal two years ago, possibly on his way back to the National League.

Stuart's name is one of many that have been suggested as principals in transactions that may take place between National and American League clubs in the next 25 days, or until midnight Dec. 15.

Trading is expected to reach its peak—if there is a peak—during the major league meeting in Houston starting Nov. 30. Only four deals were completed between the two leagues last year compared with 16 in 1963.

Stuart, controversial slugger with Boston Red Sox, is said to be headed for Philadelphia where the frustrated Phillies need a long-ball hitter for another shot at the NL pennant. In return the Phillies would give up a pitcher either right-handed Art Mahaffey or southpaw Dennis Bennett.

OTHERS MENTIONED

Among other names being tossed around in trade talk are Jim Gentile, Vada Pinson, Bob Allison and Ed Mathews.

Gentile, after one season with Kansas City, is reported to be headed for Houston Colts in exchange for a pitcher, someone like Dick Farrell or Bob Bruce.

Baltimore Orioles are looking for an outfielder of Pinson's calibre.

The Pirates apparently have been eyeing Minnesota's Allison for some time, and the Twins just may deposit him in the National League if Pittsburgh can supply a starting pitcher.

Mathews expected to be traded last year and feels even more certain about his non-Milwaukee future now. A couple of sluggers, Norm Cash of Detroit Tigers and Frank Howard of Los Angeles Dodgers, also could wind up in different leagues for 1965 after a disappointing 1964.

Atlanta Fielder Top Batter

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Hilario Sandy Valdespin, Atlanta's diminutive outfielder was certified Thursday as the International League's batting leader for 1964.

The 25-year-old Cuban finished with .337, the final official averages showed. A five foot-seven, 155-pounder, Valdespino was well ahead of runner - up Mack Jones of Syracuse Chiefs.

Jones batted .317 and paced the circuit in home runs with 39, triples with 18, runs batted in with 102, runs with 109, and total bases with 338.

Ted Savage of Columbus Jets was the leader in stolen bases with 29 while Curt Blefary of Rochester collected the most bases on balls, 102, and Jack Damaska of Jacksonville led in doubles with 30.

Injuries Costly To Habs

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens Thursday toted up the cost in injuries of their race for top spot in the National Hockey League.

Ralph Backstrom came out of Wednesday night's loss to Toronto Maple Leafs with a wrenched back but was expected to play in the Canadiens' next game Sunday night against Chicago Black Hawks.

Jean Beliveau saw little action in the 3-1 loss to the Leafs because of a pulled groin.

Bobby Rousseau returned to Montreal from the Toronto game with what was first thought to be a shoulder separation.

But x-rays showed he has a pulled muscle in his right shoulder and news about his return to play will have to await the results of treatments.

Jacques Laperriere, who has missed the last three games because of an injured leg, is a possible starter Sunday.

Henri Richard, long on the disabled list, is having daily skating practices and a doctor's verdict on his condition was expected to come today.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie defenceman Arnie Brown will be sidelined with a rib fracture for from three to six weeks, New York Rangers reported Thursday. Brown suffered the injury in Tuesday night's National Hockey League game in Detroit.

Weighed 59 lbs. Each Hook 2 Giant Muskies

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto area fishermen have had more than their share of luck this season in catching the two largest muskellunge reported in Ontario this year within 1½ hours of each other from the same bay.

Fred Keeley of Clarkson and Bob Leiaff of Oakville were both using live lures—minnow plugs and 50-pound test line while trolling out of Honey Harbor in Georgian Bay last week.

Keeley's fish weighed 59½ pounds, was 56 inches long and had a girth of 26 inches. Leiaff's muskellunge weighed 59 pounds, was 56 inches long and had a girth of 27¼ inches.

Both were close to the Canadian record of 61 pounds, nine ounces, caught at Cliff Lake, Ont., in 1960. The world record muskellunge is 69 pounds, 13 ounces, caught near Alexandria Bay, N.Y. in the St. Lawrence River in 1957.

Muskellunge spend the summers in the deep waters of the bay and, in the fall, move into the shallows where food is concentrated. The season ends generally Monday, Nov. 30.

Leslie Caron Sleepwalks In Role of Lady Macbeth

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Viewers who tuned in Thursday night to CBS may have been shocked to find pretty Dancer Leslie Caron doing the sleepwalking scene of Macbeth.

Earlier, they may have happened upon Maurice Evans, the eminent Shakespearean actor, playing a warlock (a male witch) in ABC's comedy Bewitched.

That's the way things are in television. You can't depend on people to stick to their public images. It's been that way since Milton Berle stopped telling jokes to play dramatic characters.

Miss Caron was doing the Macbeth bit as a gag on An Hour with Robert Goulet, a curious variety special. It started with a stretch about a backstage conference on what kind of a show to build around the singer.

In real life, they never came to a decision. The show was a hodge-podge of formal production numbers, a couple of scribbled interviews with Goulet, some tapes made during night club appearances and on the Ed Sullivan Show, and some other songs.

Goulet, who is handsome and has a fine voice, was not at ease in the informal sessions, nor was he particularly interesting when giving his opinions on assorted subjects.

Miss Caron was most attractive. Terry-Thomas tried to be funny with some pretty bad material, and the real star of the show was dancer Peter Genaro.

Evans, a most distinguished performer, didn't have much to do Bewitched. Most of the acting on this show is done by the special effects department which makes people disappear, and inanimate objects fly around madly.

British Lass, Shirley Eaton, At End of Tether With Gold

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — British beauty Shirley Eaton was in town this week at the end of an American tour, and she wanted to go off the gold standard.

"I used to think of gold as a nice, warm metal," she remarked. "I have many gold accessories in my wardrobe, but I don't think I'll be able to wear them this winter."

There is a reason for her xanophobia (aversion to gold). She is the shapely lass who comes to an untimely end in the latest James Bond caper, Gold finger, by getting a villainous sheilaking of gold paint.

Photographs of her well shaped form, apparently covered with naught but gilt (and so, says she), have made the public prints. Her tour sponsor, at United Artists obligingly supplied a gold-colored wardrobe. At this point she can't bear to look at the things.

"I'VE HAD IT . . .

"I've had it with gold for a while," she says.

Shirley is also a bit weary of being considered a golden sex being constituted only as a sex symbol. "I am sensual, but not a sex symbol by any means, she corrected. "I don't have the big bosom, as some of the Hollywood types do. I'm actually rather small in type cast sec.

"It is my face that does it I seem to have a sensual face and that has been my trouble. I am usually cast in comedies when what I really want to do is dramatic roles."

If she is interested in serious acting, why did she agree to the gilding?

"Because I knew it would help me achieve a purpose," she explained. "I wanted to attract attention so I could get into American films, and this was the best way to do it.

NO ROOM FOR BEAUTY

"Why American films? Because there is no room for a beautiful young actress in British films. You have to be mid-dle-aged before they begin to take you seriously. Otherwise it helps to be ugly. We've had a great surge in England for those scruffy little girls in squalid tales about life in the Mid lands."

About the nudity in Goldfinger, she said it's not all that it seems.

"I wasn't entirely nude," she declared. "There is a limit to how far I will go. And I think there should be some kind of limit here in Hollywood, too. Your actresses are going too far with their nude posing."

NDP PLANS MEETING

KINGSTON (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, said Thursday night his party will hold a series of regional development conferences across Canada next year to determine problems in each area. Mr. MacDonald told the Queen's University of a study in each of 68 regions will be funnelled into a central party committee and used as a basis of NDP policy at the 1956 national party convention.

At the Belle

Richard Burton and Peter O'Toole shine in Hal Wallis' "Becket," a magnificent movie starring Richard Burton and Peter O'Toole, was presented at the Belle Theatre last evening and left the audience reeling with pleasure. A work of imaginative intelligence, the Hal Wallis production for Paramount is stunning in visual impact, story-line narrative, and acting accomplishment. It is a "must" for all movie fans.

In telling the story of Thomas Becket, the 12th century priest who became Archbishop of Canterbury, and his king, Henry II, the picture goes far beyond any mere costume drama. With wit and sensitivity, it delves into the personalities of the fascinating principals and surrounds with a well rounded portrait of two friends forced apart by affairs of state. All this is played against the lusty and violent background of life and habits in the 1300's. Casting Burton and O'Toole as Becket and the King respectively, was a definite coup for producer Wallis. They do not disappoint all expectations and set new definitions for screen acting. With the skill and mas culine gusto they bring to their roles, along with their superlative voices, they would be a surprise if they are not nominated for Academy awards.

Others in the cast are also excellent. Sir John Gielgud and Sir Donald Wolfit show their Shakespearean training in the majesty of their performances. Siân Phillips and Veronique Vendell contribute their respective beauty, and Paola Mori is also an unforgettable portrayal as Pope Alexander III. As queens, Martita Hunt and Pamela Brown perform with dignity and grace.

Peter Glenville, who had directed "Becket" on Broadway, is most effective in handling the movie version. His color is Panavision cameras use the beautiful sumptuous English landscape as a fitting background for the slam-bang action scenes.

For those interested in seeing great actors perform at their peak in a story of the highest intent and excitement it is highly recommended they go see "Becket."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Already Dis, one of Western Canada's finest handicap stars and a standout in the East in 1953, won his first race of the 1954 eastern campaign Thursday at Greenwood Racetrack when he took the seventh race by four lengths.

The five-year-old gelding, owned by Peter Rock of Calgary, surprised most of the 5,449 fans by easily whipping Top Toggery and Madrina Morain in the one mile flying dash.

Already Dis came home a $17.90, $8.10 and $4.50 winner. The daily-double of Roman Lane and Wisemandale returned $20.80 while the quinella of Free View and Moon Base paid $17.20 in the fifth race.

NAMED AFTER BOXER

Corbett Monica of TV's The Joey Bishop Show was named for Gentleman Jim Corbett, world heavyweight boxing champion in the 1890s.

Montreal Junior Canadiens must be sorry they traded Andre Lacroix to Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A hockey League.

Lacroix went to Petes last winter when Canadiens were shoulder-deep in talent. Today Peterborough is five points back of the first-place Toronto Marlboros and has two games in hand. Montreal is in a tie for 5-5 tie and Red Wings held on for the win.

Peter Loveless paced the Wings with two goals. Nick Libbett, Peter Mahovlich and Jimmy Peters scored one each. Ken Kellogg scored twice for St. Catharines with Stew Roberts, Wayne Maki and Brian Macdonald getting the others.

Catharines Black Hawks 6-5 in Hamilton for their third win of the season.

In addition to Lacroix, Don Herriman and Bill Plager scored twice for Petes with one each going to Mickey Redmond, Dan Sharpe and Dale Watson.

Brian O'Byrne, Lucien Grenier and Don Liesemer scored one each for Canadiens.

In Hamilton, Real Lemieux scored with less than seven minutes remaining to break a 5-5 tie and Red Wings held on for the win.

Peter Loveless paced the Wings with two goals. Nick Libbett, Peter Mahovlich and Jimmy Peters scored one each. Ken Kellogg scored twice for St. Catharines with Stew Roberts, Wayne Maki and Brian Macdonald getting the others.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE

"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

A common assumption of tenants who install fixtures or improvements at their own expense, is that these are their personal property and they are free to remove them and take them when they leave.

If the improvement becomes "attached" to the real estate, however, it usually becomes the property of the landlord.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have a nice apartment but our landlord won't make improvements. We plan to stay here a few years until we can afford to buy a home, but don't want to be without all modern conveniences. Getting rid of garbage is our biggest nuisance, and my husband offered to buy me a disposal and have the sink fixed to install it.

I didn't pay much attention at the time, but there is a building clause in our lease that says all improvements become the property of the landlord. There is no question in my mind that a disposal is an improvement — but does that mean I can't take it with me when we move? Please answer this and say I am. — E. M. V.

ANSWER: I am pleased to answer, but I'm afraid that you can't get it with you.

If any improvement is firmly attached to the real estate, the improvement usually becomes the property of the landlord. In my experience, disposal units and stoves are usually so classified.

I suggest that you ask your landlord in writing if he objects to you remove this improvement when you leave. I doubt that he will agree — but it's your best bet. Don't feel abused, however, this "sneaky" clause, if you prefer to it, is common to almost all apartment lease.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My neighbor got married last year and never got over the honeymoon stage. His "Better Half" as he constantly refers to her, spends all her time thinking up new ways to spend money. Now it's a house I'm sure he can't afford.

I have heard my brother made a $10,000 down payment on a $45,000 house. I don't think he makes more than $10,000 a year, and with payments on a $35,000 mortgage, and upkeep, I figure his housing costs are close to $6,000 per year.

My wife and I (less within our income) and I are getting worried. He won't listen to me, but since he reads your column (we have discussed it) he may listen to some housing facts of life from you. — J. C. E.

ANSWER: Since you were fortunate to your choice of a "Better Half" — don't envy your brother his better quarters.

You are either uninformed as to your brother's income — or the price of the house. Thirty percent of income spent on housing is about the maximum any family can afford — 60 percent just couldn't be true.

Further proof is that no lending institution would grant a $35,000 mortgage on the income reported by your brother.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We aren't certain, but we think there is something illegal going on next door. My wife and I think it might be a liquor still. For the past two weeks there are occasionally small trucks and large trucks are there at odd hours, and there is a lot of quiet activity — if you know what I mean.

We have talked about notifying the police, but we don't want trouble with our neighbor. If we do, and it turns out to be innocent, we will never be friends — but if something is wrong — and if they are criminals we would be more afraid. Do you think we should tell the police? — K. T.

ANSWER: There has been a notable trend to "be neighborly and get involved" that is disturbing, and, at best, foolish — and worst cruel, heartless and unchristian. It is bad enough when most people say "let George do it," but when the "George's of the world are not doing it, it is disastrous.

You should notify the authorities immediately. If it is a still, it is quite dangerous to you and your neighbors. A considerable activity such as this also has lower property values. If you are still reluctant to act directly, at least notify the police on an anonymous basis.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: This summer our condominium recently council voted for a swimming pool to be built next spring. We pay $3.40 per linear foot, and we would like to know how much extra it will add to the cost? — R. S. L.

ANSWER: A metal "chain link" type fence can be installed for approximately $4.25 per linear foot. A redwood basket-weave type fence will cost $3.40 per linear foot, and a cedar picket - type fence about $2.50 per linear foot.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Britain Preparing Massive Review of Defence Policy

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain is preparing a massive reappraisal of its defence policy and with it may come a readiness to consult most of the nuclear power to an integrated form of North Atlantic nuclear force for all time—if other allies also agree in its take a similar move.

This suggested decision may be a shock to Britain's Conservatives who long have maintained the country's nuclear strength is an independent deterrent to discourage any attack on Britain's own, even in such cases where the cloak of United States protection is withdrawn.

But Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson has argued that the independent deterrent is a myth; that the real balance of nuclear power rests between the U.S. and the Soviet Union and all the British force does is encourage others to build their own national forces and thus add to the threat of proliferation of nuclear weapons.

The Labor government's new defence policy is to be established during a weekend cabinet conference at the prime minister's country residence Chequers.

But Labor Lord Listowell, addressing NATO parliamentarians in Paris, appeared to tip Wilson's hand by saying Britain is ready to contribute V-bombers, TSR-2 strike forces. If other Western powers make a similar contribution.

At the same time reports spread in London that Britain's military men are opposed to the length the Labor administration appears ready to go to commit its nuclear forces.

Under the Nassau agreement, the U.S. agreed to provide Britain with five Polaris submarines by 1970 and linked to the North Atlantic Alliance with stipulation that Britain could withdraw the submarines in times of extreme national emergency.

It appears likely Wilson, in conferring with President Johnson in Washington early next month, will ask that the British orders for these expensive submarines be reduced, perhaps to three, with the stipulation that they would be assigned to NATO only with no qualitive withdrawal clause.

This would be in line with Wilson's reported determination to pare Britain's present defence bill of some $6,000,000,000 a year and use some of the savings to help the economy home and provide more Colombo plan aid to the improverished in Southeast Asia.

Such a policy also would be designed with the hope France the only other nuclear power in Europe, might be induced into an integrated force, provided it obtained a prominent position in directing the strategic operations of the combined pew weapony.

Dirk Stikker, former NATO civilian chief, disclosed in The Hague that French President de Gaulle threatened in a secret 1958 memorandum to follow an independent course if the U.S. and Britain would join in a triumvirate to direct Atlantic cooperation.

De Gaulle has suggested an independent European nuclear force, separate from the U.S. Wilson bluntly stated Monday he rejects categorically any

First Cousins Marrying Possible but Not Encouraged

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I went East on a trip several months ago and visited relatives I had not seen in 15 years. Something both wonderful and terrifying happened. I fell in love with my first cousin.

Geraldine (not her real name) is 21 and has one more year of college. I am 24 and have been working for two years. When I saw her I was speechless. I remembered her as a freckle-faced brat with braids, all legs and elbows. She is now a beautiful, intelligent young woman.

We have said nothing to the family but we plan to be married when she graduates. Please tell me what you know about marriages between first cousins. Is it true that their children are often half-witted? Are you for it or against it? — KISSIN' KIN.

DEAR KIN — I am neither for it nor against it.

It is not true that first cousins produce half-witted children. Inheritable physical defects are likely to show up in the offspring when first cousins marry. However, normally healthy people need have no fears.

Some states do not permit first cousins to marry. If you two want to marry, however, go to a state where you can be married and good luck to you both.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I have been separated for three months. After considerable soul-searching I've decided divorce is the only answer.

My husband's mother is one of the finest women who ever lived. I love her as much as I love my own mother. Her health is failing and I want to continue our warm relationship. My friends say this is wrong because my husband plans to remarry as soon as he is free. They feel I should cut all ties with his family in fairness to his new wife.

Have you ever heard of a situation like mine? What is your advice? — WANTING TO DO WHAT'S RIGHT.

DEAR WANTING — Yes, I have. When Faye Emerson divorced Elliott Roosevelt she is reported to have said, "The saddest thing about this divorce, so far as I am concerned, is not that I am shedding Elliott but that I am losing a wonderful mother-in-law." After the divorce Miss Emerson and Mrs. Roosevelt remained good friends. I suggest you do the same.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Congratulations. Rarely does one see in print the courageous stand that adoptive parents should be considered before the biological parents. Although the law clearly states that the welfare of the child is paramount, the natural parents usually gets the break.

If the mother who wrote to you thinks she will have an easy time getting her child away from his adoptive parents by complaining that she was "emotionally overwrought" when she signed the release papers, she has another think coming. She had an opportunity to withdraw her approval at a legal adoption hearing and apparently did not do so.

There are skilled and experienced lawyers who specialize in such cases to make certain adoptive parents retain their children. I hope the adoptive mother (who wrote to you) gets such a lawyer. — C.A.B.

DEAR C.A.B. — Thanks for your letter.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems, and them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sunday School Lesson

Faith Is Key to Life

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

If Hollywood wants a story filled with excitement and adventure, it could do no better than to film the life of Paul, the Apostle. Here was a man whose life had everything except, perhaps, romance. He experienced a vision that completely changed his life. He faced almost unbelievable hardships and persecutions. With brilliance and courage, he went out into a hostile world to share and interpret his faith. He lived through mob violence, shipwrecks, and faced martyrdom, yet his faith and purpose never wavered. To him more than to any other person Christianity today owes its existence and theology.

Now Paul was near the end of his life. The time of his "departure" had come. (II Timothy 4:6) He was about to be "sacrificed," which undoubtedly means he faced a Roman death sentence. What would be his last words to Timothy and those who must carry on the faith after he was gone? Among the many things that poured from his mind and heart was a reminder of those qualities others had seen in him, and must repeat in their own ministry if they were to succeed: his teachings, conduct, also in life, faith, patience and love, and, most of all, his steadfastness under persecution and suffering. (II Timothy 3:10-11)

Some would question whether Paul would write such a list concerning himself. Would it not be too egotistic to call attention to one's virtues? But if any person had a right to make such statement, surely it was Paul. No person ever fought the good fight of the Christian life more courageously than he. The list of his persecutions in II Corinthians 11:24-28 read like the tortures in a horror movie. How flesh and blood could stand so much without the spirit breaking is one of the marvels of the Bible. Yet he maintained his faith and witness until evidently martyrdom ended his amazing life.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for Nov. 22: "The Testimony of Paul's Life," II Timothy 3:10-13;4.

Paul had two reasons for reviewing the qualities of his ministry. There were some in the early church who would change the Christian message to make it agree with certain Greek ideas. Man's reason was substituted for God's revelation. Paul resisted such an idea with every ounce of his being. He insisted his message came from God rather than men. His steadfastness under persecution showed the sincerity of his faith. It also showed that he, rather than they, was to be trusted as the one who presented the true interpretation of the Christian faith. They wanted a faith that could be argued without surrendering to God's will. Paul insisted that God, rather than man, has stated the terms of salvation. One must seek to know and do His will, whatever the cost.

Paul also knew that others would suffer persecution for their faith. "All who desire to live a godly life in Christ Jesus" he wrote, "will be persecuted." (II Timothy 3:12 RSV) By pointing to his own life he could say, "Have courage. I have known many forms of persecution. I am a living example that from them all the Lord rescued me."

HEART OF CHRISTIAN FAITH

Paul would be the first to admit his imperfections. A perfect person could never have written the seventh chapter of Romans. Paul readily admits his imperfections in Philippians 3:12. In fact, in his great letter to the Romans, he points out that no one can be perfect. "You who boast in the law," he asks, "do you dishonor God by breaking the law?" The answer, of course is "Yes". Everyone breaks the law, because no one can keep it completely. Paul's purpose is not to discredit the law, but to point to man's sinfulness, and to show he must depend upon God's grace, that is, his unmerited love, for acceptance into divine favor. This, Paul would tell the people of the twentieth century, is the heart of Christian message. In spite of our weaknesses and sins, through Christ God has given His gift, His love for us, and His willingness to accept us if we will put our trust in Him.

WHEN WE REACH THE TAPE

Sooner or later, all persons must finish the race of life. The question will be, "How have they kept the faith?" There are many influences in the world today that seek to rob men of a vital faith in God. Communism promotes atheism on a world scale. In some countries people are still persecuted for their faith. In many places the rise of secularism crowds out faith in a spiritual Power. Men are able to do so much for themselves, they think they no longer need God. They think that science, not religion, will save the world. Science does much to help us run the race of life more easily. In many cases, it prolongs the race. But its influence stops at the grave. It cannot promise the "crown" for the life to come. Only faith in God can give that hope. And yet this is part of the incentive that kept Paul from giving up. But aside from this, Paul had the satisfaction of a work well done, and of a faith that sustained him to the end. He could say, "The Lord stood by me and gave me strength to proclaim the word fully." (II Timothy 4:17 RSV)

Vatican Council Session Closes, Plan One More

Three Historic Decrees Proclaimed Saturday

By GERALD I. MILLER

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul and the Vatican ecumenical council today proclaimed three historic decrees defining shared leadership at the summit of their church and new approaches to Christian unity.

At formal public ceremonies closing the 1964 session of the council, the assembled Roman Catholic prelates issued these decrees:

1. De Ecclesia (on the nature of the church), defining the concept of collegiality that the bishops collectively share power with the Pope over the church.

2. De Oecumenismo (on unity), outlining ways Roman Catholics might join other Christians on the path to Christian unity through common prayer and in other ways.

3. De Ecclesiis Orientalibus Catholicis (on the Catholic oriental churches), dealing with Eastern Rite Catholics and their relations with their non-Catholic Orthodox Christian neighbors.

FOLLOWS PROCESSION

The lavish ritual inside St. Peter's Basilica opened when Pope Paul was carried in on his portable throne at the end of a colorful procession of the 2,000 council fathers, patriarchs, archbishops and bishops. Voices of the Sistine Choir flowed through the church.

The Pope announced for the first time that the council session, expected in late 1965 or in 1966, would be the last. The prelates at that time will take up where they left off after completing work on the decrees promulgated today.

The decrees deal with the nature of the Roman Catholic church, the worldwide movement for Christian unity, and the Catholic oriental churches.

ARMORY COMPLETED

But the documents on religious liberty, the church in the modern world, pastoral duties of bishops and other topics are still to be completed.

In addition, the council has been asked to study the question of birth control, and Pope Paul has appointed a commission to do so.

Other decrees dealt with the training of priests, the renewal of religious life, the apostolate of the laity, the church's missionary activity, the sacrament of penance, the sacrament of matrimony, and the reform of the liturgy.

The council also issued decrees on the means of social communication, and on the pastoral office of bishops in the church.

—All other matters of law regarding the relationships of husband and wife, parent and children.

The decision to begin the study was made by a two-thirds vote by the commission at its first meeting, following the appointment of three members to complete their make-up of the five man body.

Mr. McRuer, the chairman, is a former chief justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, who also is acting as a one-man royal commission on civil liberties in Ontario.

The law reform commission was established at the last session of the Ontario legislature with broad terms of reference to consider all matters relating to the administration of justice and the reform of provincial statutes.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Steady or slowly falling temperatures, strong west winds and snow flurries, which may at times reach 40 miles an hour or more, along with scattered snow flurries, is the wintry prospect for southern part of Ontario today.

Near Lake Huron and Georgian Bay off and on snowsqualls may dump six to eight inches of fresh snow. The cold weather and snowflurries will continue into Sunday with gradual slackening of winds tonight and tomorrow.

All Whites Are Moved By Rebels

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — The Congolese Army moved closer to Stanleyville today while a Belgium paratroop unit was poised off Africa's west coast ready to liberate 1,000 whites held hostage in the rebel capital.

(Reuters news agency reported today that the rebel Stanleyville radio has announced that all whites in Stanleyville have been moved out of the city. Their destination was not announced.

(Redters also reported that Stanleyville radio today broadcast a message allegedly from the Belgian and U.S. consuls saying their nationals in the city would "remain alive" if America and Belgium immediately end military aid to the Congolese government.)

Premier Moise Tshombe's government, meanwhile, reproached the United States and Belgium for attempting to negotiate with the rebels without its consent.

It also warned Belgium that a unilateral decision to send troops into the troubled country would be aggression but expressed willingness to study a proposal for such an action.

Belgium announced Friday that a battalion of about 300 tough combat men were at British - held Ascension Island prepared to intervene if needed. A foreign ministry spokesman said U.S. Air Force transport planes flew the paratroopers to the South Atlantic island.

At United Nations headquarters in New York, UN Secretary-General U Thant called for possible UN Security Council action to head off a crisis.

Pearson Ignored Own Rule

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The cannest politicians try to protect their rear by making their actions conform as closely as possible to their past pronouncements.

Prime Minister Pearson may have got a new lesson in the need for this after the round of criticism which greeted the latest of his senatorial appointments.

Reporters and columnists, surveying the kind of appointments Mr. Pearson has made since becoming prime minister in 1963, unanimously came up with the conclusion that he had violated his own precepts.

Their favorite quotation is a Toronto address by Mr. Pearson last Jan. 5 in which the prime minister called for a new politics in Canada. In summary the aim of new politics was to put the party interest to the public interest.

From this point, the commentaries go on to document the nine appointments made by Mr. Pearson. They emphasize that one was a cabinet minister who had become a political liability, three were party fundraisers known best as such, one was a political organizer, another gave up his Commons seat so Maurice Lamontagne could get into the cabinet and three were provincial or national presidents of Liberal organizations.

COMMENTS AGREE

A sampling of comment:

Ron Collister, Toronto Telegram — "nearly all of Mr. Pearson's appointees have this in common. They all qualify for political rewards for helping Mr. Pearson to power."

Peter Newman, Toronto Star — "This is political payoff on a grandiose scale. It has left the disciples of Mike Pearson's 'new politics' disturbed and bewildered."

Columnist-MP Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) in the Commons: "I felt I had to draw attention of the House . . . to how inconsistent and how silly is the Liberals' claim to be reformers and to be radical."

Charles Lynch, Southam News Service: "A bagman's lot is not a happy one unless, as sometimes happens, he hits the jackpot in the form of an appointment to the Senate."

The critics usually point out that Mr. Pearson really wasn't departing from almost standard practice of the past, noting the occasional exception such as Louis St. Laurent's appointment of a Conservative and an independent and John Diefenbaker's appointment of the upper chamber's first Indian.

The prime minister can be unperturbed and unrepentant about this spotlighting of his appointees. He's $15,000-a-year, life-time jobs.

WILL IMPOSE LIMIT

Solicitor - General J. Watson MacNaught told the Commons in reply to Mr. Fisher that the government intends to go ahead as soon as possible with one measure of Senate reform proposed by Mr. Pearson — retirement of senators at age 75.

Some of the younger Liberals, attracted to Mr. Pearson's "new politics" outlook, are said to be upset at this indication their chief is prepared to play the same old style politics with senatorial appointments.

Socred Chief Gives Report On Failure of His Mission

OTTAWA (CP) — Social Credit Leader Thompson reported to the Commons Friday the apparent failure of his hostage-freeing mission to Africa on behalf of the government.

"I would be most happy if I could report . . . that we were able to gain the consent of the rebel authorities to meet the Red Cross and grant the evacuation of these hostages," he said. "They apparently do not intend to do so."

There are more than 30 Canadians among 1,000 foreign nationals held hostage by Congolese insurgents around Stanleyville.

Mr. Thompson, who worked for Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia for 15 years prior to 1958, said he would not hesitate to attempt such a mission again. "By offering our good services and taking the initiative in an effort to free these hostages were were doing something which perhaps no one else could have done."

The Social Credit leader, speaking during consideration of external affairs department spending estimates, said that as the military situation worsens "it is obvious that they (the insurgents) have more reason and more intent on keeping centres of these hostages than ever before."

Mr. Thompson, who was come under heavy opposition fire for allegedly accepting a Liberal junket, said he was working for the benefit of Canada and its external aid program, "not for the benefit of the Liberal party."

He had conferred with Haile Selassie and with Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya. "both of whom are held in great respect and both of whom have shown they understand the responsibility of democratic government and humanitarian deal-

Study Piping Water From Lake Huron

SARNIA (CP) — The Ontario Water Resources Commission is considering a Lake Huron pipeline with branches to serve communities stricken by a shortage of water.

Dr. J. A. Vance, commission chairman, warned however that a "pipeline water is not cheap unless a very substantial volume of water is required."

Six members of the commission met Friday at Lambton Shores development where landowners and other representatives of the county's municipalities.

Plug The Holes In Iron Curtain, Or Be Divided

Peking Throws Scare Into East, West Reds

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

China has delivered its ultimatum to the Soviet Union. plug up the holes in the Iron Curtain or the world communist movement will be irrevocably divided into two camps.

No other construction can be placed upon a 3,000-word statement from the theoretical journal, Red Flag, broadcast by Peking today. As matters stand now, it means the Soviet-Chi nese dispute not only will continue, but probably will grow more intense.

Peking, in breaking a sullen silence on its reception of the new regime in the Soviet Union, probably has thrown a scare into the Communists of both Eastern and Western Europe.

Almost openly, Red Flag was asking for a continuing and thorough-going purge in the U.S.S.R. to weed out all those Communists who supported Nikita Khrushchev's policies, and to return to Stalinism. This would be bad news for the Communist-ruled countries of Eastern Europe, and equally bad news for West European Reds for when Stalinism has proved a heavy liability.

TERMS ARE TOUGH

The Chinese statement was a reaction of Peking's terms for playing ball with Moscow within the unified world Communist movement, but the terms are just about as tough as they can be. Indeed, if the Chinese conditions were met, the present regime of party chief Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin in the U.S.S.R. could not last long.

Facing heavily assailed virtually all the domestic, Communist party and foreign policies of the Khrushchev era.

In almost so many words, Peking demanded that Moscow reassess and reinstate Stalinism. It demanded an end to co-op-

Steel, Auto Firms Near Showdowns

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — While strikes have been hitting the United States automobile economy, slower-moving developments in the Canadian auto industry are picking up tempo towards a labor - management showdown.

Contract negotiations in the big Ontario segment of Canada's basic steel business are hardening simultaneously.

Strikes have been authorized at Canada's other Ontario steel producers and at the automaking firms of General Motors and Chrysler. GM's 22,500 Canadian workers have a strike deadline of Dec. 2 and Ford of Canada workers on Sunday.

Studebaker is in negotiations and the strike threat has not come up yet. So is the big implement-making firm of Massey-Ferguson, with 8,000 workers, whose contracts expire Dec. 15.

The United Auto Workers (UAC) is putting the heat on the Canadian automakers as the union in the U.S. sets up Ford production there. The Ford dispute in that country has had the effect of locking out 4,500 Canadian assembly line workers for lack of parts.

STAGE WILDCAT STRIKE

General Motors of Canada had its first labor strike since contract negotiations began Sept. 9 when chassis workers, among the 4,500 night-shift employees at Oshawa plant Oshawa plant staged a wildcat strike Friday. GM said production was unable to continue without them so it sent the rest of the shift home.

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario law reform commission plans to undertake a comprehensive study of all laws in the province relating to the family.

J. C. McRuer, chairman of the commission, said Friday it will attempt to draw a new legal family charter which will give security in law to all phases of family life."

These are some of the aspects of family life that the law reform commission plans to delve into:

—Maintenance of children and the rights of children to be maintained and cared for;

One School System for All Is Recommended in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Recommendations that would blend Quebec's Roman Catholic and Protestant educational structures into a single and uniform system were turned over to Education Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie Friday.

"A system, not two systems, but a system," said Msgr. Alphonse-Marie Parent, the Laval University authority who has piloted the royal commission on education through three years of work.

First volume of its report resulted in establishment of a department of education. The third volume, dealing with financing and denominational questions, is due in about two weeks.

The 404-page second volume offers 192 recommendations that would transform the present system from nursery to graduate school.

Most sweeping changes would involve the pre-university level, now cluttered with everything from high school to classical colleges to trade school institutions. The report said these diverse structures, plus on "unalterable situation" at the university admission level, often lead students up a blind vocational alley.

It recommended a uniform 13 years of schooling in both Roman Catholic and Protestant, English- and French - language systems, with six years of elementary school instead of seven, four years of secondary school, and a final two years of school at a new "institute" level—grades 12 and 13.

About 25 to 30 institutes would be formed, the government setting up public corporations to operate them, each handling about 1,500 students. They would offer broad options—basic courses flanked by choices that would guide students into university or give them practical professional training for employment.

Americans Pay Tribute Sunday To Memory of President Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — In churches and synagogues and by the light of flickering candles that burns at his grave Americans will pay tribute Sunday to President John F. Kennedy on the first anniversary of his assassination.

In Boston, in Dallas across the sea in Rome, prayers and memorial ceremonies will recall the grief of the nation when Harvey Oswald gunned down the 46-year-old president as he rode through cheering crowds of Texans.

President Johnson will attend an inter-denominational memorial service at the University Methodist Church in Austin Tex., Sunday afternoon.

In Washington, a solemn mass will be said in St. Matthew's Cathedral, where world leaders gathered last Nov. 25 for Kennedy's funeral. Senator-elect Robert F. Kennedy, the late president's brother, will attend.

In Boston, Richard Cardinal Cushing, Kennedy's close friend who presided at both the wedding and funeral, will offer a commemorative mass in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, the nation's first Roman Catholic president.

In Rome, two religious ceremonies are scheduled—a mass in Santa Susannah Roman Catholic Church and a special remembrance service at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg will speak at two memorial services—one in the morning at Temple Sinai and in the afternoon at Beth. Sholom Congregation.

In Dallas, Mayor Eric Johnston has proclaimed a remembrance the late president in their sermons. But he said it would be inadvisable to have a public memorial ceremony because the anniversary falls on the Sabbath.

The city's largest Episcopal church, St. Matthews Cathedral, plans a memorial candlelight mass tonight at which many faiths will be represented.

For many, the place to pay tribute to Kennedy is Arlington National Cemetery where his body rests. Nearly 8,000,000 people have visited Kennedy's grave in the last year.

Sunday, about 25 wreath-placing ceremonies are scheduled there, at 15- and 30-minute intervals through the day. Embassy officials of West Germany, Australia, Ireland and many other countries will participate.

Chinese Relations Still Unknown Factor in US Foreign Policy

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Future United States relations with China continue to remain an unknown factor in President Johnson's foreign policy.

Pressures continue to mount for broader contact. The voices urging it—especially now China has a nuclear bomb—are more plentiful.

But they also continue to be isolated in a sea of apparent public apathy about decisions that inevitably will have to be made about China. This remains true, observers feel, even with the advent of China's own bomb.

There is no great public debate to help shape a new approach and this is one direct result of U.S. policy which for the revolution and particularly since the Korean War has been to pretend that China does not exist outside of Taiwan.

But hard facts stare the U.S. in the face at a time when Johnson has a landslide endorsation to strengthen his hand.

The question is raised as before: How much longer can the U.S. continue its effort to isolate China at a time when it is in danger of being isolated by its own allies.

About next January, the United Nations will vote again on admission of China to the world organization. Most of the major U.S. allies now recognize China.

There are also serious questions on how efforts can be made to curb the nuclear spread among nations unless China is at the conference table.

U.S. contact with China has been limited to periodic and sterile exchanges through Warsaw.

Perhaps most important for the U.S. at least immediately is the costly morass of South Viet Nam. No solution seems to be possible there without involving China.

Savings from the $6 military bases just closed—about $477,-000,000—will pay for American aid in South Viet Nam for about a year at the present rate.

One American who speaks of the need for broader contacts with China is Roger Hilsman, now a Columbia University professor after serving as an assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

He says communications should be set up on arms control and a reappraisal made of the bank on trade. The travel ban should be lifted and outer Mongolia recognized.

There might be no great impact on China itself, he says, but it would influence the rest of Asia and perhaps the younger generation, including the Communist Chinese leaders of the future.

GROUP HOMES WANTED

The Children's Aid Society would be pleased to receive inquiries from married couples in the Belleville area interested in offering group home living to three or four teen-age girls now enrolled in local schools. These are young people who, because of their previous life experience, are unable to accept substitute parents but who can live relatively normal lives in a group setting.

The family or families selected should be between the approximate ages of 35 to 45, in good health and free from more than their rightful share of the pressures and strains of modern living. Because of the needs of the girls involved, it is essential that the applicants do not have children of their own in the age group likely to be demanding of their energy and time. Of course, they must be genuinely fond of young people and able to demonstrate their fondness by acceptance, understanding and warmth of personality.

Since the family will be considered to be an integral part of the Society's child care program, professional counselling and direction will be regularly available. For their efforts they will receive adequate and mutually satisfying compensation.

ings between peoples."

He said "the weight of the influence of these men was added to the appeal made to the rebels, first of all, to allow the Red Cross to enter and succeed to perform the duties to arrange for the evacuation of the hostages."

He said one good effect of his trip was to speed up joint action among the countries with hostages and rebel strongholds of Stanleyville. Since his departure these countries had taken new steps to have Tshombe make further representations on behalf of the hostages.

One of the problems was that other African countries which he did not name, were supporting the insurgents' seizing of hostages.

EXPLAINS ATTITUDE

The attitude of the countries was: "If they (the alleged) can do some good in stopping the murder bombs from United States airplanes in advance of mercenary soldiers who, they are paid to kill Belgian funds, they will be performing some useful purpose, but if the pressures of the hostages fails to do this, set them all die together."

Mr. Pearson said his African trip had been contemplated by the government before the hostage crisis arose. It had been planned originally as "a survey of what was being done in Africa under Canada's aid program. . ."

This would have taken place in the next year or two of deputment but "since we did not have a recess, as we had expected at one time, and since it had become apparent that we were delayed until the crisis in The Congo due to Stanleyville arose. It had got to a point where there were justifiable fears for the well being of Canadians who were being held as hostages."

Mr. Thompson was the last speaker to take part in the two-day external affairs debate. Following this, the Commons approved the department's $164,000,000 spending estimates for 1964-65.

TRENTON — "Regardless of our plans for the future, edge war happens to us in the future, will be directly or indirectly influenced by what we have learned here at Trenton High School."

Speaking to the graduating class at the Trenton secondary school last night, Valedictorian Joseph Riccardi told them that the teaching staff at the school "for their patience and wisdom in developing a sense of responsibility in the students.

"In addition to the normal high academic standard at our school, our teachers created an atmosphere in the classroom which was both pleasant and conducive to learning," Mr. Riccardi said.

In reference to high school principal John Garrett, Mr. Riccardi said, "he showed constant interest in our work and progress. Whatever concerned us, concerned him. When we merited praise, he gave it, and criticized us when we needed it."

Mr. Riccardi commented specifically on the principal's "approachableness" and his examples from the students and ex-students when he referred to Mr. Garrett's high sense of humor.

"Our being here tonight to receive our diplomas is a glowing indication that we will develop a sense of responsibility, which, together with the will to work, ensured our success."

Mr. Riccardi praised his parents and all parents for their continued interest in their offspring's education, their encouragement and their material assistance . . . in some cases, amounting to sacrifice, to see that the graduate has gone on to higher learning.

He said that the five years spent at Trenton High School had been a maturity for the student to enter into social, cultural or athletic pursuits and to develop a love for drama or music. In years to come, he said, he and his classmates would look over copies of the high school year book, the Spot Light, with nostalgia.

"Commencement has a two-fold meaning," said the speaker, "it represents a phase of our lives which is ending and a phase which is to come. Our country must find the leaders of tomorrow among the young people of today. Regardless of whether you are going on to higher education or seeking out employment, continue your education . . . maintain a "curious" attitude to life . . . be ready to learn about all things, for life holds all our experiences and circumstances."

Chamber Seeks More Facts on Lake Pollution

BANCROFT — The Chamber of Commerce executive committee, on Wednesday of this week, discussed reports that two lakes near the village of Bancroft are heavily contaminated with radioactive waste as a result of uranium mining in the area. Most members felt there was some distortion in the newspaper and radio reports, and it was agreed that something definite should be done to obtain more information on the subject. It was unanimously agreed that such publicity could be very harmful to the tourist industry which is all the area has left now that the mines are closed.

John Churcher reported on a meeting of the Madawaska Valley Tourist Council he attended on Tuesday as a delegate of the Chamber. More than 200 persons attended the meeting, and voted to apply for assistance under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act in developing the Valley as a year-round tourist area.

Preliminary plans were laid for ski trails with T-bars and lifts, a bobsled run, a curling rink and golf course, tennis courts and skeet and trap-shooting stands.

The plans also include a recreation complex in centre on a chalet which birdwatchers, fishers, snowmobilers, sleigh-ders and hay-riders could use as a meeting place.

Fred Bidwell, Crown, provincial director of ARDA, told the group that his organization was interested in developing the operation of lodges, hotels, and campsites. ARDA would attempt in having the tourists in the area; it was up to the local people to encourage them to stay.

Bancroft is situated at the southernmost point of the Madawaska Valley and is the first place passed through by tourists travelling towards Barry's Bay, which is in the northern part of the valley.

Bernard Shapiro, Chamber president, announced that Fire-ther Henry J. Maloney, chairman, industrial committee, would be meeting with Hon. J. Pickersgill, Minister of Transport, on Tuesday, November 24th, concerning the CNR's decision to remove all railway track south of Bancroft, as well as the Bessemer spur. A brief is to be presented asking that the CNR leave the tracks at least on a temporary basis. "Although unprofitable now, these railway lines could be turned into a profitable venture for the CNR if it were possible to reopen the furnace at Bessemer. The possibility of this would be quite fea- if they rails were lifted at this time," said Mr. Shapiro.

It was agreed that the Chamber of Commerce would enter a float in the annual Christmas parade being sponsored by Bancroft Lions Club on Saturday, December 5th.

Daniel Griffin, 1964 chairman of the Rockbound Jem-Borers announced that next year's event would take place on August 11-15 inclusive at a site not yet agreed upon.

The Chamber of Commerce is making plans to publish some really a special holiday brochure in the form of a small newspaper to be edited this year by Mrs. Joan Beckley, assisted by Mr. Churcher, Mr. Griffin and Joseph Vance. Articles and stories have already been received and plans for the advertising to be carried will be made shortly.

sation between the Soviet Union and the United States and virtually demanded abrogation of the Moscow treaty partially banning nuclear tests.

It demanded that the Russians once again unconditionally Premier Tito of Yugoslavia and toss him out of the Communist family. It demanded that policy of the Soviet 22nd party congress dealing with consumer goods development and the theoretical course of Soviet Communism be scrapped as hopelessly "revisionist."

And it demanded a purge in the U.S.S.R. This was implicit in its warning that there must be no "Khrushchevism without Khrushchev."

AGREEMENT HARD

The Soviet Union, as matters stand now, can meet none of these terms. Meeting all of them is utterly out of the question. Even if there should be a successful new palace revolution by the Kremlin by an alliance of Stalinists and military men, it could hardly hope to go back all the way to Stalin after the past decade of Soviet social development.

At the same time, the Chinese assault will do nothing to help the new Soviet regime. Even if there were a Soviet anxiety to muffle the dispute with Peking, it could lead to perilous paths. The prospect could so alarm Europe—including even Communists in Europe—that the cure for the Peking-Moscow dispute could turn out to be worse than the disease.

Therefore, the dispute will continue. There will be no December meeting, in the event, to prepare the way for more talks, and the chances are that the Peking-Moscow talks are held in 1965, they will prove fruitless. China will turn her back on the U.S.S.R. and devote her attention to dominating revolutionary movements in Asia Africa and Latin America.

Religious Liberty

It is not surprising that the Vatican ecumenical council has put aside a proposed declaration on religious liberty, without a vote.

The declaration, as drafted, contained statements upholding the freedom of conscience of clergy in his spiritual beliefs and endorsing the separation of church and state in matters of religion.

These are concepts which are almost universally endorsed on this continent. They are, however, completely foreign to orthodox thinking in many other lands.

It is interesting to note how, in this case, the division of opinion is based more on history than on religion.

Paul-Emil Cardinal Leger of Montreal joined two U.S. cardinals in preparing a petition to Pope Paul protesting against the council's action in delaying a vote on the declaration. These cardinals, and others at the council who supported their protest, have lived in a society which has long accepted these concepts, no matter what may have been the official attitude of their church.

We should not judge too harshly the prelates who take the opposite view, for many of them have lived in a completely different atmosphere, with the role of the socialism of church and state taken for granted. To ask them to break with these traditions is to demand that they break with the past and accept completely changed conditions.

They argue that a conscience "in error" has no rights and this view is not so foreign to our own outlook on life as we might think. A great many Americans and Canadians take precisely the same attitude towards the rights of conscience in other fields except religion. For instance, our laws deny the rights of a conscience "in error" on many questions of morals. Every country has a law against treason, which is merely a case of denying the rights of a conscience "in error" concerning the state and its organization.

Our own acceptance of the rights of freedom of conscience and our opposition to a state church spring from the fact this continent was colonized, in large measure, by dissenters. But for circumstances, it is unlikely they would have proven more tolerant than the orthodox of their day—there is considerable historical evidence to the contrary. But it so happens there were several varieties of dissent and the pressure of the practical made it necessary, if they were to live in peace, to establish a code of tolerance.

This was a notable achievement, but it will be an achievement which will be outshone if the Catholic Church ever accepts this doctrine in those lands in which its supremacy has been established for centuries and its authority in spiritual matters is still almost universally accepted.

The wonder is not that some of the prelates have demurred when this declaration was placed before them; the wonder is that it should ever have been proposed. In itself, this is a remarkable step along the road to tolerance.

On the Wrong Track?

Canada's Bobcat armored troop carrier had a good body but not much else, Commons Defence Committee was told this week. Development of the machine was cancelled in December, 1963, after ten years of development which cost nearly $10 million.

It is a sad story, and one that has been told before. But at least the Arrow, Canada's most famous fiasco of this sort, had the saving grace that the firm which built the Arrow aircraft was the most experienced in the field in Canada. And the story still has it that the Arrow was a good plane. It may be significant that the one Canadian firm now selling tracked vehicles around the world, and the only semi-Canadian firms selling tracked vehicles in Canada, were given no part of the Bobcat program.

The contract was first given to a subsidiary of an English truck and bus manufacturer, which was later bought out by a Canadian railway car and bus manufacturer. Then another contract went to the Canadian railway car and bus manufacturer, just before the firm was taken over by an English firm famous for its aircraft and automobiles. The main troubles with the Bobcat are with the tracks, wheels, shock absorbers, sprockets and lubrication and suspension systems.

Anyway, Canada now has a $10 million orphan with a good body. Maybe it can be sold to Hollywood—they seem to be interested in good bodies down there.

Positive 'Pap' Smear Will Indicate Uterus Cancer

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How does a doctor tell whether a growing tumor of the ovaries and/or uterus is cancerous? Does he take a biopsy before surgery? — E.P.

If the tumor is growing, it probably should be removed anyway.

In such a case, examination can be made in the laboratory right at the time of the operation. The appearance of cells under the microscope will differentiate between benign or malignant growth.

The surgeon will dictate whether only the tumor should be removed or whether additional surrounding tissues or whole body should be removed as a safety measure.

It is possible to insert a tiplet of tube surgically through the abdominal wall, affording a direct look at the growth. Putting a biopsy can be obtained then. Further, it is possible to use whether malignant probings have spread to the inner lining of the abdomen or to the liver. A positive "Pap" smear will tell about cancer of the uterus.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a cure for constant noises in the ears? I have had this problem for some time now. It is not constant; it comes and goes. — Mrs. E. P.

Maybe there is something to do for it, and maybe not. It depends on the kind of noise you hear. You are not alone in this. It is very frequent. And because of that fact, I have written a booklet, called "Ear Noises, Their Causes and Cures." Note that I use the plural. In some cases you can do a great deal yourself to alleviate the annoyance. In other cases you must have medical assistance. In still others, there is nothing much to be done. (If you want the booklet, send a long, unstamped, self-addressed envelope and 15 cents in coin to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a diabetic also suffer from hypoglycemia (low blood sugar)? My husband is a diabetic and at times seems irrational and not in control of his thinking or actions. — Mrs. D. W.

It is possible although at first it may seem odd that a person can have diabetes (too much sugar in the blood) and also too little blood sugar.

It is not infrequent, in early diabetes cases, for sugar to be very low under fasting conditions (before breakfast, or after some considerable number of hours without food), yet have the sugar soar to abnormal levels after eating. These individuals, however, seldom show the characteristic symptoms of low blood sugar.

Another possibility is that if the patient takes insulin, the blood sugar can fall to a level that is too low, and can cause precisely the symptoms you mention. Adjustment of insulin, or diet, or both, control these insulin "reactions."

Some diabetes pills also can cause low blood sugar, but this is much less common than with insulin.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 43 and went to my doctor about birth control pills. He seemed to think after a woman is in her 40's she is very unlikely to become pregnant. I would like your opinion. — Mrs. I. B.

Pregnancy is much less likely, but certainly far from impossible. Quite a few babies are born to mothers in the 40's.

General James Murray was appointed governor-in-chief of Canada 201 years ago today—in 1763. He had least made governor of Quebec when the territory had been occupied during the Seven Years War but under the Peace of Paris treaty, Quebec was ceded to Canada and he occupied the greater office. Ottawa Offbeat Opposition Faces Competition 'Indians' Versus 'Cowboys'

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — So you think the Commons has been lively, noisy, sometimes uproar, frequently participatory?

If you've been here and listening and working from the Gallerie at any time this year you would know that was so.

And you would be aware that all the uproar was not coming from the Opposition side of the House — but the Conservatives, for all the frequent protestation of Leader Lolo Diefenbaker as a no-holds-barred fighter, could not alone be held accountable for the din of the day-to-day.

Now we're getting help.

Lots of it.

And if you had been around The Hill enough years giving you the perspective necessary to reach a reasoned, fact-founded judgment, you would understand that the Liberals, pressed to plain self-defence, have resorted to an old, popularly simple and encouragingly effective Parliamentary stratagem.

They have set up, in their Backbench ranks, what amounts to a kind of "Opposition to the Official Opposition."

THE INDIANS

It comprises what the Conservatives call the "Indians" on the Liberal side, and was recruited to fight a daily verbal skirmish with what the Liberals jeer at as "Cowboys" on the Conservative side of the Commons.

The shocking model for the LIberals' band of "Indians" was their "Little Chicago" of 19 years ago, organized for the same precise purpose of coping with the hard core of Conservative Opposition.

Back in 1945, Liberal Parliamentary "Gang Chief" Jean Richard, still MP for Ottawa East, formed his "Little Chicago" to lustily goad on the late Earl Homuth, then Conservative MP for South Waterloo, who, it was felt, was the man who was having tremendous fun and political games in routing the Liberal Frostbench.

Often, when he was in a playful mood, Mr. Homuth, who was built big and bulky like a wellway diesel — and could give a very convincing imitation of one blowing for a midnight level crossing — would start bouncing at Prime Minister Mackenzie King's Minister Howe and other Liberal Parliamentary greats, getting a comfortable crimp in Cabinet occupants.

Nobody, including tough old "Trader" Howe, ever harmfully said "Macking" himself and and Commons Speaker Gaspard Fauteux, meanwhile, had his hands full until "Mob Boss" Richard's "Little Chicago" started hooting back and yapping vigorous voices all dissenting in unison — and Earl Homuth never quite the same again.

Having made such a quick kill "Little Chicago" wanted Dean Iinies Day re-named "Canada Day."

Mr. King will only a sagacity of five is that Parliament — 125 Liberals, 120 combined Opposition in the 245-seat House of Commons — resisted until under "Little Chicago" threat of party civil war, allowed a "Free Vote" on which even the Cabinet was split.

"Canada Day" was born, under the protection of "Little Chicago" Gang Leader Richard, but was shot down later in the Senate.

"Too old now," he mourns, for that kind of thing.

But like some patriarch of gangland he beams approvingly on his heirs in the present day world of Parliamentary roughand-tumble, the "Indians" and trusts they will do as well against the Conservative "Cowboys" as did his "Little Chicago" against Earl Homuth and an earlier generation of tough Tories.

Listening to the verbal shootup in the Commons these days, you would think that the terms "mob" and "violence" are not discussion the retired political gang chief of "Little Chicago."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 21st, 1944

Despite the fact that Dominion agricultural officials have stated that the Canadian housewife will "do much more likely" to have a turkey for Christmas dinner this year than in 1943, this does not represent the situation in the Belleville area, according to district farmers.

Opinion is divided as to the number of turkeys which may or may not be available this Christmas with some farmers stating there will not be "any more" than last year, while others assert that the supply in this district is considerably below that of 1943. At any rate, Belleville district farmers have no turkeys for the general Christmas grade as most of the birds raised this year have been promised to customers. Why they even started ordering their Christmas turkeys shortly after last Christmas," one farmer stated.

Russia Third Best Buyer

Ottawa Journal

Every schoolboy knows, as Macaulay liked to remark, that Canada's three best customers are Britain, the United States and Japan.

But the schoolboy is wrong. The flowiet Union not Japan, is now in third place. The schoolboy who has been reared in the Cold War era may also find it passing strange — as many others do — that the nation which has been considered the chief threat to the Western World now contributes so substantially to the prosperity of this country.

The dollar value of Canadian exports to Russia reached a record level of $211,000,000 between January and August, a figure representing 8.9 percent of all Canadian exports during that period. Japan was pushed to fourth position with 4.4 percent.

For the first time Britain was displaced as Canada's leading wheat market. The combined Canadian trade to the six countries of the European Common Market represented only 6.8 per cent of our exports over the same period.

If Mr. Brushnev is right about a better Russian harvest this fall, next year's figures will probably be back closer to normal. Canada cannot build its long range prosperity upon anything so shifting as the demands of the Communist nations for wheat. In the long run, the most important figure of these months may be the 43.3 percent increase in Canadian shipments abroad of manufactured goods. It is on our ability to compete in that hard market that the increase in our standard of living ultimately depends.

But short as Russia's stay in No. 3 position may be, what a long way the world has come in a few years. The vagaries of nature and the caprices of Soviet agricultural policy have accomplished more in breaking down barriers than the statesmen of the world.

Lakes Season Is Success

Corner Brook Western Star

With a successful Great Lakes shipping season slipping into its last weeks, it would be difficult not to recall that one year ago things were not the placid slog the shipping lanes which separate parts of Canada and the United States.

Then, violent strife between rival seafarer unions was in full swing. At times the Great Lakes ports assembled battlefields, strung by the dockers remained idle for lack of cargo as their services refused to enter the Great Lakes.

The labor strife had produced frictions between the United States and Canada which threatened to degenerate into the coldest relations since the two countries commenced continuous governments, and the cities along the lakes system were suffering economically if it was a serious transportation curtailment.

It was Canada which changed the rotten situation of last year int the successful season now coming to a close. The government did it by demonstrating that as a group of men, is entitled to such destructive power as was held by H a l C. Banks and the Seafarers International Union of Canada, which he headed.

African Dog Lacks Bark

Watertown Times

The basenji, a barkless dog, is attracting increasing attention at dog shows and kennel club functions. The breed is said to have originated in the African jungles as a light-footed, silent hunting dog. They are hounds, but resemble terriers in conformation. The body is square, measuring about the same from chest to the tail root as in height. They are a compact, smooth-coated bread distinguished by curled tail carried tightly over the hind quarters. Weights run from 20 to 24 pounds, height at the shoulder about 17 inches.

Fashion models, in particular, prefer these dogs, because they clean themselves like a cat, require little attention or care, and are smart and alert. While the dog doesn't bark, it produces a sound that is between a chortle and a yodel.

Maybe basenjis would be just the thing for dog-lovers in cities and villages which have strict ordinances against dogs barking between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. But yodel! That's something else again — unless the neighborhood has a fondness for Swiss music.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Nuns Offer Message of Faith to a Samba Beat

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil's latest popular music sensation is a group of young Roman Catholic nuns who offer a message of faith to a samba beat.

These swinging sisters from the Brazilian order of Missionary Sisters of Jesus Crucified are sweeping the nation with lively songs composed by a member of their order and sung by a 14-voice chorus from the order's convent in Rio. The chorus is backed up by a six-piece combo.

The sisters were discovered a year ago by Rev. Joao Bedochi, well known in the Brazilian music world for his boys' choir, the Little Singers of Guanabara.

Father Bedochi heard the sisters singing while he was visiting their convent. Impressed, he investigated further and learned that the music was composed by Sister Irene Gomes of the Campinas Convent in Sao Paulo state.

The priest immediately saw the possibility the music would have in the outside world.

Putting across a message of Christian charity and love to the popular rhythms of the day would be perfectly in accord with the order's goal to work "with one foot in the world and the other in the convent."

Father Bedochi won special permission from church authorities for the nuns to sing secular music in public. Since then they have become one of the most popular guest groups on local television.

A few weeks ago their first record was launched — Missionaries on LP. Rio record shops reported it was one of the fastest moving discs.

St. Margaret's E. G. Hears Cancer Talk

St. Margaret's Evening Guild met on Monday evening in the Church hall.

President, Mrs. R. Rushton conducted the business portion of the meeting. Reports of the successful fall bazaar held recently, were read by the convenors, Mrs. C. W. Milner. The last meeting for this year will be a Christmas party and pot luck supper, to be held early in December.

Mrs. R. Bishop, Mrs. F. Woldrick and Mrs. A. Chapper, have agreed to act as a nominating committee for next years' slate of officers. After business Mrs. C. W. Miller introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. E. E. Folsom, who capably represented the Canadian Cancer Society. She showed an excellent film "Time and Two Women" which brought to everyone's attention the seriousness of cancer and the necessity of regular medical check-ups, also the early detection of cancer.

Mrs. Parks thanked Mrs. Stanton for an informative program.

Refreshments were served by the Grade 1 mothers.

A Lift for Living

Recognize the Good in Life And Call It by Name of 'God'

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

RECOGNIZE THE GOOD

When we were very young, one of the first things we learned to do with words was to speak the names of things. We were taught that a certain lady in the house who fed and dressed, bedded and bathed and put us to bed at night was "Mama," and we learned to call a boy by the name "Dad." The man who held us on his knee and lifted us above his head and clucked and tutted his chin and showed us ourselves in the mirror was "Daddy."

There were things in the house that had certain shapes and did certain things that we learned to recognize and call by a name — "bottle", "milk", "spoon," "chair", "kitty, "doggy. And past our house moved still other things that were called "boy" "girl", "bird", "car." Before long, we could identify all manner of things by name so that we could tell others what we had seen, heard, smelled and touched. Learning the names of things is one of the most important achievements of the mind. Names help us to recognize and identify what we observe and to communicate our experience to others.

The great and good Quaker philosopher, Rufus Jones, once told a true story of children, whose learning of names had been severely limited. Some years ago, he said a man who owned a summer cottage on the coast of Maine determined to start a Sunday School class for children who lived on a nearby off-shore island. He sailed to the island in his boat, gathered the children together and began to instruct them in matters of faith. Hardly knowing where to commence, he decided to start with something familiar to all the youngsters. The Atlantic Ocean surrounded their island. They saw it every day. He would begin with the Atlantic. He asked, "How many of you have ever seen the Atlantic Ocean?"

GOT NO RESPONSE.

There wasn't a single response. All the children stared at him blankly.

Thinking they had not understood him, he repeated the question: "How many of you have seen the Atlantic Ocean?" No one spoke a word or raised a hand.

The visitor discovered, to his astonishment, that although the children had spent all their lives with the sound of Atlantic surf beating in their ears and with the vast stretches of the Atlantic spread before their eyes, they did not have the names of the waters that surround them.

The disciples of Jesus were good at calling things by their right names, while some of their contemporaries were not. Christ's followers saw His every life alike, watched Him paint with His words and graceful life earth's clearest picture of God. His conduct was a portrait of God; perfect righteousness was drawn there, unwavering patience, incredible goodwill and supreme love. One of Christ's critics totaled up what he saw in Jesus' life and stated, "He hath a devil and is mad." Thomas summed up what he saw by worshipping as he said to Jesus, "My Lord and my God."

ONLY A FEW

Only a few friends of Jesus saw God working in the world through the Man of Galilee, but only a few would identify God and call Him by name.

How about us?

When you feel like scolding, criticizing and blaming, gossiping, hurting or cheating, and instead you are kind and considerate, cheerful and fair, be grateful for the restraint; be glad for the change. Call it "God."

When you find yourself stretching upward, aching, to be better than you were yesterday and to improve beyond what you are today, when you search to know more about yourself, and others, about the world, about God, and when you profoundly wish to live by the best that you already know, recognize the wish for what it is. Call it by its proper name. Call it "God."

When you feel an impulse to feed the hungry, give drink to the thirsty, clothe the naked, visit the sick and imprisoned, strengthen the weak, obey the impulse. Do not liquify it it "a whim" or "a notion." Call it "God."

When you see men of goodwill gladly giving their best years to teach men to live together in mercy and brotherhood, when you see statesmen conquer greed, restrain anger and swallow the harsh and bitter word for the sake of peace, be grateful for man's craving for harmony and concord and his longing for fraternity. Give that hunger a proper name. Call it "God."

USE RIGHT NAME

When someone very dear to you is deathly sick and recovers, be thankful for modern medicines, doctors and nurses who were used by some mighty Power to effect the recovery, but call the healing power by its right name. Call it "God."

When someone you know well and love deeply is called away on the brief journey from scenes of earth to our Father's House of lasting joy, recognize that event as being as good as birth and as natural. Do not name the messenger "death's dark angel" as some have done. The Love that sent us here, calls us Home. Call it "God."

When the blind and deaf Helen Keller was small and had learned how to receive messages of love by placing her fingertips on the lips of the His His Ensembles and friends, speaker, Bishop Phillips Brooks was asked to try to tell her of God and God's love. The handicapped child put her fingertips on the Bishop's lips while he talked to her about the God Jesus revealed to the world. The little girl's body stiffened with excitement and she suddenly cried out, "I know Him; I know Him! I didn't know His name, but I knew Him!!"

Life's greatest adventure is coming to know God and discovering His name.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

QUESTION: The daughter of a close friend is getting married and a home reception is planned. My friend asked for the loan of trays and glasses, which I'm happy to provide to help out. I assume I'm to be invited to the wedding; since she's also asked my advice on decorating the tables and rearranging the room to take care of a crowd. However, other friends have received formal invitations and, as yet, we have not received one. Should I mention this to my friend? I'm sure there's been a mail boo, still I don't want to just show up unless we have some sort of official sanction. What would you suggest I do about this? Naturally I feel very self-conscious about the whole thing.

Mrs. B. K., Baltimore, Md.

ANSWER: Your name probably was left off the invitation list by an oversight, or else it's simply lost in the mail, which many happens when a return address is not put on the envelope. Since the mother is a close friend, and has involved you in the wedding arrangements, it would be permissible to mention that you have not received an invitation and are not certain about whether or not, you're expected to attend.

Woman Claims to Have Been Assaulted and Battered

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please don't tell me you aren't a lawyer. I know you aren't, but you say you want to help people in trouble and I'm in plenty right now.

Last night my wife and I went to an open-air theatre last week and we sat right behind a couple of gabby women. My wife asked them twice if they would please be quiet so we could hear the show. They said they were there to enjoy themselves and if we didn't like it we could find other seats.

After 20 minutes of listening to those mashers my wife blew her temper and slammed the loudest one over the head with her pocketbook. The woman let out a scream which of course created a disturbance.

The manager rushed over, took our names and asked us to leave. Yesterday my wife received an order to appear in court. The charge is assault and battery. The woman was neither assaulted nor battered. Must we go to court on these trumped-up charges? — S.L.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR S.L. — Since you already know I am not a lawyer I don't have to tell you that I will tell you, however, that you'd better hire one. What you received was a summons and this means no foolin'.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please tell me what to do with a 16-year-old high school girl who wants to go with boys, wear lipstick and spends most of her allowance on Beatle records.

My mother didn't let me wear lipstick or go on a date with a boy until I was 18. I didn't resent my mother's strictness. I accepted it because I felt she knew better than I did. Our daughter does NOT accept what I say. She thinks she knows everything.

Her grades are excellent and I want them to stay that way. I'm afraid her school work will slip when she starts dating and she'll go crazy like her girl friends. Please say something that will help me keep this child from running wild. Thank you. — B.G.

DEAR B.G. — Sorry, I see no evidence that your daughter wants to "run wild."

A 16-year-old girl who makes excellent grades should be allowed to date on Friday and Saturday nights AND wear lipstick, if it is not against the rules of the school.

Children reared with too much discipline turn out as poorly as those who had too little. The wise parent finds the happy middle-ground and holds a firm rein with a loving hand.

* * *

Do you feel ill at ease . . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "The Teen Popularity Code" enclosing with your request 40c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Readers' Saturday Column

By MARY MOORE

Question:—I have read your column for some time and received advice from you in the past. I wonder if you could help me this time. We recently dined at the ... where they feature meals from other countries on their menu. When we were there they featured Swedish cooking. The entire meal was fine, but I am interested in the soup. It was a cabbage soup with dumplings and was simply delicious. I am sure you and your family would enjoy it. Would you have a recipe for suet dumplings that are used similar to Yorkshire pudding with roast beef and gravy? My husband's grandmother used to make it, so I would assume it to be an old English recipe.—Mrs. R. G.

Answer:—I have not made this Swedish Cabbage Soup. This summer Juliana Onsman, grandmother of my son-in-law told me the stock should be a rich clear beef stock made from shin beef.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Sauteed Chicken Livers and Sliced Back Bacon; Creamed Onions; Broccoli with Whipped Butter (see Friday); Crisp Celery Hearts and Carrot Sticks; Coffee Layer Cake (see Friday); Tea.

SWEDISH CABBAGE SOUP WITH MEAT DUMPLINGS

1 medium cabbage, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon golden or corn syrup, 12 cups good beef stock, 8 peppercorns, salt to taste.

Remove outer leaves from cabbage and trim off thickest ribs from remaining outer leaves. Chop cabbage coarsely. In large pan saute shopped cabbage in butter until light brown. Add syrup and continue stirring until syrup soaks into cabbage and cabbage is golden brown. Do not allow it to darken too much. Add stock, salt, and peppercorns and simmer 2½ hours. Remove peppercorns and serve with MEAT DUMPLINGS: (Note: These are almost always served with the above Cabbage Soup.) One-quarter lb. finely ground beef (not hamburg), 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon fine bread crumbs, ¼ cup milk, 1 teaspoon potato flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Mix together all ingredients to a smooth paste. Shape into tiny ¼" or ½" balls and drop into boiling salted water and cook for 10 minutes. Skim out and serve in the cabbage soup.

ENGLISH SUET DUMPLINGS (to be served with beef).

(These may be served with roast beef but the English usually serve them with boiled corned brisket beef.)

To a bowl measure 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. Cut into it ½ lb. very finely chopped suet. (The butcher will weigh this for you.) Add only enough water to make a stiffish dough. Dip your clean spoon into boiling beef stock (if served with boiled brisket) or into boiling salted water, then drop spoon full of dough in, dipping your spoon in boiling liquid each time to help dough slip from when readily. Cover and boil gently about ½ hour. Skim out with slotted spoon and drain and serve with beef.

Words Cannot Always Relay Deeply Felt Emotions

By DR. STUART E. ROSENBERG

You discuss a problem with your friend and he nods and says, "I see what you mean."

Or you encourage another to reach out for some worthy achievement by telling him to "rise to the occasion."

And when doubt gnaws at your inwards, you try to overcome it by exhorting yourself to "stand up to life."

In none of these situations has anyone actually "seen" or "risen" or "stood up."

POWERFUL INSIGHT

We are always having problems with language. Words cannot easily communicate deeply felt emotions. That is because we never can see, hear, touch, taste, or smell a powerful insight or a strong sentiment. Still we must use language to convey certainty and conviction about our deepest feelings. But it has its risks.

That is why there is so much misunderstanding abroad about what others mean in our lives. Man can only feebly describe to others his deepest feelings.

The language of faith is rich in the language of words. It is expressed in moods, in attitudes, in moments of transcendent doubt and despair. It is the feeling of gratitude for the life of each day.

COMPRESSED FAITH

When we straitjacket faith in words, we are apt to be more concerned with what we should like, and forget what it feels like. Or when we compress faith into images, we are apt to concentrate upon what it looks like.

We tend to think of religion as something that goes on only inside churches and synagogues, instead of knowing for ourselves the power we have within us.

Still others look upon faith as unreal until proven in the test tubes of scientific experiment. Faith, like a purple cow, cannot be real, they say. Have you ever seen it?

The man of faith does not need to argue. He knows that for him, seeing is not believing. Believing is seeing.

The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. S. Ackerman. Mrs. Ackerman gave a report of the executive meeting for District 6, which was held in Peterborough last month. Some points in the organization of the RNAO at District and Provincial level were explained to the members.

WORKSHOP MEETINGS

Mrs. A. Hart, chairman of the program and public relations committee, reported on events of interest which are being planned for the year. These will include several workshop type meetings at which the members will study and discuss such things as the new organizational structure of the RNAO, collective bargaining, shift differentials and legal aspects of nursing.

Mrs. M. McQueen, chairman of the finance committee, informed the members that the bursary fund is improving. This committee has several ideas for raising funds including a bus trip to Toronto.

Mrs. C. Mason, chairman of the nominating committee, stated that she has organized a telephone group to help remind the members about the meeting.

IMPROVED NURSING

Mrs. H. Mcdonahan, chairman of committee on service and education, explained that her group will be discussing the kinds of things that need to be changed to improve nursing care given to patients. The suggestions of this group will then be brought to the general membership for discussion.

It was decided to hold the December meeting at Trenton Memorial Hospital on Wednesday, December 9th. This will take the form of a workshop with a discussion of some of the factors to be considered concerning the referendum on shift differential.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Mrs. H. McLachlan, B.N. Sc., Reg. N., was introduced by Mrs. J. Fletcher. Mrs. McLachlan has taught nursing at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, the Kingston General Hospital and the University of New Brunswick. In the summer of 1963 she was asked to set up the Co-operative Course for Registered Nursing Assistants at Quinte Secondary School.

REGISTERED NURSING . . .

This is a two year course leading to a Grade XII Diploma in 3 options, Nursing and Home Economics. As well as a Secondary School diploma the graduate receives a Certificate in Registered Nursing Assistant. The course is part of the four year Co-operative Course for Nursing and Technology, recently set up by Premier Robarts.

NURSING ASSISTANTS

The prerequisites for entrance to the Nursing Assistant program is Grade X education, plus good physical and emotional health as well as a suitable level of maturity. This course is now offered in a Secondary School in London, Weston, Chatham, Listowel and Pembroke. The course is a co-operative effort between vocational schools and hospitals. The students at Quinte Secondary School spend half their time in the theory and practice at nursing at the school and at the Belleville General Hospital. The other half of their time is spent in the academic subjects: English, History, Physics, Mathematics, Home Economics, Chemistry and Physical Education. The students do not receive any remuneration during this course and there are no fees for students who are resident within the Bay of Quinte High School District. Some of the students come from Trenton, Stirling and Napanee and for these the School Board of their own home district, may pay the fees. Uniforms and laundry are provided.

The College of Nurses of Ontario is responsible for the nursing section of the course and the Department of Education controls the academic part. After demonstration and practice of the different nursing procedures in the classroom at the school, the Grade XI students have their practical learning experience in medical-surgical nursing at the hospital. The Grade XII experience is also carried out at the hospital in advanced medical-surgical nursing, as well as Obstetrics and Paediatrics. Part of their time is also spent at the Child Health Centre.

UNDER SUPERVISION

As a Registered Nursing Assistant, the graduate from this course will always be working under the supervision of a Registered Nurse. She will be a valuable member of the health team in giving care to the geriatric and convalescent patient as well as assisting and caring for those who are less seriously ill. This course has filled a need for many girls within this area who have encouraged them to finish their education at high school.

Mrs. E. Abbott thanked Mrs. McLachlan for her informative talk. The door prize, a beautiful set of costume jewellery, donated by Ronald Keel Jeweller Ltd., was won by Mrs. Stan Else.

ALBERT COLLEGE

(The Story of a Church School)

"To a certain degree this story of a particular school is a facet of Canadian history. Always its fortunes were related to the social environment and much that has been characteristic of Canadian life and attitudes is reflected here." — W. E. L. Smith.

* * *

In White Fish, Montana, where we had spent a few days, several years ago, we entered a gift shop to buy a small memento.

A gentle, gray-haired lady in charge asked us where we were from. When we answered, "Belleville, Ontario," she exclaimed: "Why that's where I attended school — at Albert College!"

"I'll never forget one night," she reminisced, that was the night of the Massey Hall (one of the buildings) fire. It happened one April night in 1911. It's the little things I recall so vividly:

"The boys' wild efforts to save Miss Jessie Tuite's (our beloved elocution teacher) books which were frantically tossed out of her window — to be lost in a sea of mud below. The way they thrust Miss Madeleine Young's (another loved teacher) wardrobe a suitcase short with a cup of honey and lemon cough syrup which ruined her evening gown. It was one of the loveliest I'd ever seen. How the cook sat on the steps bemoaning the fact, 'I've lost my new hat, sir!'

SLEPT AT HOTEL

"Nor have I forgotten that most of us slept at the Quinte Hotel for the rest of the exciting night. But we didn't miss a class. School as usual in improvised class rooms the next day. That was the beginning of the end of the old school, I guess; and the start of the new one."

"The fire was an impetus that added to the planning for the future," admits Waldo E. L. Smith, M. C., M.A., Ph.D., a former teacher at Albert College, now Professor of Church History at Queen's Theological College and Associate Professor of History of Queen's University. 1897-1957 is highly informative. His book, "Albert College, Its, entertaining and interesting.

Minor Hockey Mothers Auxiliary Is Organized

Belleville mothers gave their official backing to the city's minor hockey program last night by forming a Ladies' Auxiliary to the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

Approximately 100 were the keynote with about 35 persons attending the meeting and the later social part of the evening, at the Belleville Skating Club.

Ed Adamson, BMHA president, was chairman of the meeting, later turning it over to Mrs. Grant Stickle upon her appointment as first president of the BMHA Ladies' Auxiliary.

Rather than elect a full executive at the first meeting, the following ladies were named to a general committee: Mrs. Ed Adamson, Mrs. Jack Buchanan, Mrs. R. Lyall, Mrs. Walter MacCormack, Mrs. F. Chatterley and Mrs. (Dr.) House.

They will receive executive positions, under Mrs. Stickle, at a committee meeting to elect officers, in the near future.

It was also suggested that forms be sent to every mother with a boy playing minor hockey, inviting them to join the auxiliary, or to attend the meetings.

BMHA president Adamson explained the $3 registration fee in effect this season for the first time and offered suggestions to the ladies for ways in which they can "help the minor hockey cause."

The plan of the new body is to serve luncheons during tournaments and playoffs here and to help out in any way possible, through fund-raising projects, etc.

Mr. Len Martin opened the auxiliary's financial campaign with a $10 contribution.

The auxiliary plans to hold monthly meetings.

Organized Women Do Much To Promote 'Safety'

DEAR DORIS — You have many readers who would be interested in hearing about the Carol Lane Safety Awards. Winners of the top award in each province become eligible for the national award.

DORIS CLARK

In 1916 The National Council of Women took up the cudgel with us in promoting the use of seat belts. With some 700,000 members behind us, seat belts, which had been almost unknown, became a status symbol. Now every new car has them as standard equipment.

Road accidents play havoc with homes whether there is death or not. Could your column encourage women to work, to prevent accidents? To instil safety habits in children from their first steps? — PAUL GORMLEY, Canadian Highway Safety Council, 30 Driveway, Ottawa, Canada.

* * *

DEAR MR. GORMLEY — Indeed it can. As I understand from your notes, the awards are directed to women's groups. They include safety efforts in all fields, being jointly sponsored by the Canadian Highway Safety Council and the National Safety League of Canada.

Organized women can do a great deal to save lives and prevent crippling accidents in the home, at work and on our streets. I'm quite sure some of our readers will be writing to you for more details.

(P.S. to readers: Neither of the organizations mentioned is to be confused with the National Safety Council, which is in the United States.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Do you think that the ignoring of gifts is a breach of good manners, especially by people who are not illiterate or too poor to pay postage? Do these people think others have to send gifts to a bride and groom because they were asked to attend a wedding? — PUZZLED.

* * *

DEAR PUZZLED — It is definitely a breach of good manners to fail to write a personal note of thanks for a wedding gift. A gift is not taken for granted, as if it were an admission ticket to the reception!

It would be a great pity if your father's endless sermonizing drove you further away from the church he loves.

Rainless, City of Contrasts, Lima Is Rich in Ancient Art

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

LIMA, Peru — If there is a place in the world where the poor see more overwhelming impression that of contrasts, it would have to be Lima.

Even the weather fits the picture: the city usually shines in sunniness, but for six to nine living months of winter, it never even does. And it never, ever, rains.

The ride in from the airport is enough to make the faint of heart want to turn back. The route is lined with grim factory sections that not even a government press release writer would describe as "industrial parks."

The "residential sections" along the way — called barriadas — must be the most dismal slums in the world. Roofless and shoddy wood brick cubbahs, they are the result of the persistent Indian migration from the hinterlands across that once swelled Lima's population nearly fourfold in a decade.

To make things worse, the public market burned down not long ago, and the flea-market type commerce that is the mainstay of the poor seem to live has taken to downtown streets, pushing pedestrians and poor people has given rise to a system of collective taxis that are in keeping with Lima's generally broken-down aspects that they hardly seem unusual. By ingenuities like this Lima's proud North Americans who trade their cars every year, autos that are 20 and even 40 years old are Lima's streets. Some have no lights or windows, some no fenders or bonnets, some nothing but four wheels and an engine.

There would, of course, be no contrasts if this were all there were to Lima. But drive up a sandy brown hill on the edge of town and you emerge in a new development complete with green lawns, swimming pools, chauffeured Cadillacs and $100,000 houses. Or wander through the dignified old residential section of San Isidro, where stands 400-year-old olive groves planted by conquistadors. Alongside them are the homes of the old rich with their wrought-iron grilled windows and Spanish courtyards.

Or drive through the barrista called Chorrillos and emerge, somehow, in the residential area known as Miraflores, which might well have been lifted whole from New York's Westchester County.

Then off the main street of Miraflores and descend a cobbled, road, and suddenly you find yourself staring at a Pacific Ocean you didn't even realize was there. Above a black sand beach, away and down from the bluffs rise to the haughty heights of Miraflores.

Along the miles of beaches, with names like Sweet Water and Horseshoe, stand pastel summer homes beyond, that vation terraces and lounges of the Regatta Club. On a plot of Horseshoe, fishermen haul in catches of silvery corvina under the watchful eyes of policemen and sandpipers. On the bluffs, great splashes of brilliant bougainvillea blossoms.

UNREAL FEELING

There is often an unreal feeling about Lima caused by all this juxtaposition of contrasts. The lush presidential palace (with its French-style redcoated presidential guards outside and tough regulars with automatic weapons inside) is to a French for the harem-inspired Moorish window boxes of cedar that line the balconies of neighboring buildings.

The restored colonial home of the Marques de Torre Tagle, with its Cuzco-school paintings of anachronistic Madonnas in gold and lace, doesn't blend with the falling-down mud brick shanties of the barrialtas. The combo in the Sheraton Hotel Gran a Bolivar Hotel and the steaks in the Key Club don't harmonize with the plaintive Andean flutes of street beggars and the aroma of sidewalk anticuchos (shishkebab like barbecue) stands.

But whatever else the capital of Peru may or may not be, it is the place to savor the rich and little-explored history of the Incas and other ancient Indian nations who left the world a heritage of art and culture that in some respects compares with the Greeks, yet is scarcely known.

REVEALING MUSEUMS

Lima is full of museums. Probably the most revealing is the Rafael Larco Herrera, which contains what is said to be the largest collection of antiques ceramics in the world — 45,000 of them. Most span the civilization of the Mochicas, who for 1,000 years or more before the Incas dominated the coastal area of Peru and left us one of the world's most fantastic legacies.

Virtually all Mochica art was in the form of small ceramic water jugs, most of them human likenesses of startling realism. In addition to ordinary citizens, there are unmistakable heads of Negroes, white men and red Norte Americano Indians all of which have puzzled anthropologists and archaeologists. Also there are erotic, religious, and symbolic anthropomorphic figures, bound and mutilated prisoners and a woman scalping her hair, fruits, vegetables, pets, and whole family groups.

Perhaps most revealing of all is a collection (in a private room opened on request) of erotic art. Once and for all it clinches the argument that there is absolutely nothing new under the sun.

Also in the collection are paracas, the colorful woven cloths of Peru — still made by Indians — some of which are believed to be 9,000 years old. One sample is 26 inches square with linear inch, a record unsurpassed today. The clothy and most of the rugs were found buried in coastal sands, accounting for their incredible state of preservation.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

"Come hunting with the girls. Back in two weeks. There's food in the frig—but knowing your cooking, you had better eat out."

In the not too dim and distant future that is a sample of a note the tired business man—and others—will find on the dining room table on or about the opening of the venison-seeking season.

That is if the story written by a female champion of her sex convinces the distaff side that women should have a share in the great enjoyment and relaxation that men enjoy hunting in the great outdoors.

Why not? The "one man only" attitude towards sports has declined almost to zero in our time. The gals are in softball, baseball, hockey, tennis, golfing, curling, cocktailing—you name it—they're in it.

But it must be admitted that admirers of female gender are as rare as the whooping crane.

There is nothing new in women flexing their muscles in the realm of sport.

Mary Queen of Scots was the first woman golfer. Queen Elizabeth 1st, who was not averse to spending parts of the royal poker table with Frankie Drake, the Earl of Essex, and other court playboys, would arise early next morning, mount her palfrey and gallop into the royal forest where she would knock off a stag or so.

In the evening she would dip into the serf's taxbox, and plunge the odd bob or sixpence on her favorite "coursers," now known as greyhounds.

Years later Queen Anne would arrange a croquet tournament for her ladies-in-waiting, then slip away with a few of the court hangers-on to do a spot of boar-hunting or to the local brothel where she would place a few shillings on her favorite chargers.

Some of the more males of the species will tell you that a woman toting a high-powered rifle in the woods in quest of venison, moose, or the next-door neighbor, is as out-of-place as a fur salesman at a nudist convention.

Don't buy that. Some of the women hunters I know can give their "expert" spouses aces and spades as far as bringing home the bucks' bacon is concerned.

I wouldn't say that Mrs. Audrey Davies of this city comes under that category. This fine huntress has been seeking the deer for quite a number of years—and seldom comes home empty-handed.

Down Otawa way Mrs. Lloyd Hicks is rated as one of the finest female moose-hunters in Eastern Canada. Both Mrs. Hicks and Lloyd are well known here and in Picton. They take annual treks to the moose country north of Hearst.

Two years ago Mrs. Hicks watched Lloyd take three shots at a big bull moose on the shoreline of a river—and, that's right—he missed. An hour later she spotted a huge moose in a clearing and brought him down with a single shot. It weighed 1,500 pounds.

I contacted a half dozen male hunters and an equal number of the fair sex on the question of women taking up hunting in the great outdoors.

Five of the males held their hands in disgust. "No place for them at all. Our wives are against hunting in general."

The sixth said: "You don't know my wife. If she takes it into her head to become a hunter—she'll become a hunter. Besides some night when I'm late she could mistake me for a wandering buck."

The idea did not appeal to the majority of the gals. Three were against it. One would like to try it and the other two gave me the thumbs down gesture.

"That is their time to howl and to get away with the boys. They don't want any women hanging around, even if some of them want to hunt. Let them have their fun—as long as they bring home the bucks on the hoof."

I do not believe the male hunters have any cause for alarm over the gals invading their hunting sanctum sanctorum in any great numbers.

After all it's a far cry from a golf links or curling ice with their clubhouse facilities to a lonely log cabin with a smoky stove, bunks and other "roughing" gimmicks.

There are no push-button facilities and the powder room are modelled after the Chic Sales originals. Five a.m., on a lonely deer runway with snow in the air and underfoot, the possibility of bear, wolves and whatnot taking one by surprise, will never replace the warm cozy atmosphere of the country club, the curling club and the yacht club.

Rest easy, men.

Lions 6-Points Favorites Over Stamps

By JACK BRAUCKMANN

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions have been made six-point favorites to defeat Calgary Stampeders Sunday in the deciding game of the best-of-three Western Football Conference final.

The Stampeders and their fans couldn't disagree more.

"We came out of the Wednesday game in great shape and we're delighted," said Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs.

"Things couldn't be better." Dave Skrien, who seeks to take his Lions to the Grey Cup for the second consecutive year, made equally optimistic remarks but had to admit that things are not quite so rosy.

Centre Jesse Williams and Gary Schwertfeger have sore knees and defensive back Neil Beaumont — whose poor blocking was so costly to the Lions Wednesday — was still an uncertain quantity with a bad knee.

"But we've always won the one we had to, and we expect Sunday will be no exception," he said.

Echoed quarterback Joe Kapp: "We know they're a tough club to beat, but we also know we have the stuff to beat them with."

The weather office forecast cloudy weather with temperatures in the 40-degree range for the 2 p.m. PST (5 p.m EST) game time at Empire Stadium for the nationally televised (CTV and CBC) third and final game.

Calgary plans to keep in the air as it did Wednesday which it defeated Lions 14-10 to even the final at one game each. Lions plan to use the ball-control type of game that gave them a 24-10 victory in the first game at Calgary last Saturday.

The series has been a competition between coaching theories.

Dobbs explains it this way.

"I like breakaway speed in every department, including fullback. I have it in Lowell Coleman, a fullback who is light compared to Bob Swift (of B.C.) and also in Ted Woods and Jim Dillard, the halfbacks. Any of these can go the distance at any time."

He says Lions have only one breakaway threat, halfback Willie Fleming.

Calgary fans are brimming with confidence.

Some 1,000 are expected to be in the stands Sunday, some coming by special train on the day of the game and some earlier. Almost 400 have accepted an offer by two hotels for free rooms if Calgary wins and regular rates if Stamps lose.

In Calgary the club's offices are being besieged for tickets to the Grey Cup game.

Meanwhile the two coaches gave different versions of Swift's fumble late in Wednesday's game which halted a Lion drive into Calgary territory.

Dobbs said Calgary's Jim Furlong — whom he calls one of the club's unsung heroes — "stuck his hat in Swift" and forced the fumble.

"I just watched the films. He really hit Swift on that play. Furlong had quite a ball game."

Skrein has said that he worries whenever Swift carries the ball but added Friday that he has not singled him out for criticism.

"This boy has been sensational this year — he's done everything we have asked of him. He's young, and he'll make mistakes like not covering that ball with both arms when he hits, but you can't fault him for that."

Juniors Wallop Petes 10-6

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Enjoying the generosity of goalie Brian Caley, Belleville "B's" crushed Peterborough Don Bye 10-6 in OHA Eastern Junior puck action here last night.

The "B's" broke open a 3-2 game with five goals within the space of eight minutes in the second period for their most impressive win over another junior "B" club in over two years.

Peterborough's Caley had a bad night. The "B's" rattled pucks in off his body, from centre ice and from all angles. Caley fanned completely on several other shots.

Belleville led 2-0 after one period and 8-3 after forty minutes. They upped the lead to 10-3 before slacking off in the game's dying minutes.

Bill Lang reaped the largest share of Belleville's 25-point harvest. He scored two goals and assisted on two others. Steve White and Jim Rutherford collected two goals and one assist apiece and Jim Woodcock also rapped home two goals. Larry Stewart and Pete Fleming had a goal and assist each. Carl Boomhower and Harold Townsend had three assists apiece, Grant Hagerman adding two and Bob Boyle one.

Alex Campbell scored three Peterborough goals with Terry Stewart notching two and Collin Ingham one. Paul LaPlante, Rich Scammell and Bill Stabler, with two, Jim Bell and Joe Johnston got assists.

The game was fairly clean until 12:46 of the third period when Johnston slashed at Belleville goalie Bob Moon and almost ignited a riot. Moon had caught a shot and Johnston combed him viciously across the hands.

Roy Maracle leaped at Johnston and the battle was on. Referee "Whitey" Walton dished out seven penalties when it was over, including majors to Johnston and Maracle. Lang and Pete McCarthy also earned majors for a last-minute fight and earlier in the game, Stabler had been tagged with a misconduct. There were 25 penalties in all, 13 to the losers, and 16 of the total came in the third period.

Moon outshone his counterpart by a wide margin, especially in the early going. Belleville outshot the visitors overall but in the first heat Peterborough had an 8-6 margin.

White rapped home a passout at 8.11 and Stewart made Caley look bad for the 2-0 score at 17.42, after a rush of penalties to Don Bye. Belleville was short a man when Lang rattled the puck in off Caley's arm for a 3-0 count early in the second.

Then came a pair of quick-fire Belleville jabs. The first back was short-lived with Woodcock and Rutherford potting power-play goals. The first on a bouncer from near centre ice, Fleming, Lang and White continued the onslaught.

Rutherford bagged another on the first shot of the third period and Woodcock combined with Hagerman on a pretty two-man passing breakaway for his club's final tally.

Belleville played without defenceman Bob Ehlier who suffered a crushed hand at work this week and will be lost to the club for an indefinite period. Coach Bell also said that defencemen Doug Potts has decided to play Junior "B" hockey in his hometown of Stirling.

Monday's scheduled game, Belleville at Kingston, has been postponed until Tuesday, December 1. Also, Kingston at Belleville on December 18 has been switched to February 19 and Belleville at Kingston on February 1 has been changed to February 8.

PETERBOROUGH: Caley, Hunt, Scammell, Johnston, Campbell, Ingham, Foster, McCarthy, Stewart, Davis, Bell, LaPlante, Stabler, Perris, Salter.

BELLEVILLE: Moon, Boyle, Maracle, Woodcock, Rutherford, Fleming, Stewart, Stewart, Woodcock, Pringle, Lang, Boomhower, Townsend, White.
Referee — "Whitey" Walton, of Kingston.
Linesmen — Reno Ashton and Bill Hurst, of Belleville.

Asks Probe Of NHL Minor Contracts

Campbell Denies Charge

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Favreau said Friday he is asking the anti-combines branch of his department to investigate contracts tying up 16-year - old hockey players for their playing careers.

Replying to questions by David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North), Mr. Favreau said it is uncertain whether anti - combines legislation would cover the hockey contracts but he is asking the branch to look into it.

Mr. Orlikow said that 16-year-olds in Winnipeg wanting to play hockey must sign contracts which tie up their subsequent professional careers. He called this a monopoly combine domination of youngsters.

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National League said Friday night professional teams do not claim young hockey players before their 18th birthday.

He made the statement in an interview, replying to David Orlikow, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Winnipeg North, who charged that 16-year-olds wishing to play hockey must sign contracts which tie up subsequent professional careers.

Mr. Campbell said the charge arises "from a case which has nothing to do with professional hockey" and offered to "co-operate fully" in any investigation of NHL practices which Mr. Orlikow asked Justice Minister Favreau to conduct.

Mr. Orlikow was quoted in a Toronto newspaper (The Telegram) as saying an NHL team had signed two Winnipeg boys, aged 16 and 17, while they were playing midget hockey and refused to allow them to play at Flin Flon, Man.

Mr. Campbell said the boys, aged 17 and not 16, were restricted under a scheme approved by the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association.

He said the plan operating in the Winnipeg area allows junior teams to select juvenile age players to balance the Winnipeg junior league. When the boys decided to play in Flin Flon, where they could help pay their way to university, the Winnipeg team to which they had been assigned objected.

Mr. Campbell said the system has worked satisfactorily for "six or seven years."

Browns, Packers Top Clash

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland Browns and Green Bay Packers both will be at near full strength Sunday for the game that will go a long way toward deciding the eastern division race in the National Football League.

The Browns, seeded two victories to clinch the eastern title, will be in their best shape since early in the season for the Intersectional battle at Milwaukee.

The Packers have patched up a lot of wounds and will have their aces ready. These include quarterback Bart Starr, who suffered a mild concussion; fullback Jim Taylor, bruised ribs, and defensive back Jesse Whittenton, leg muscle pulls.

The Packers are slight favorites.

A loss for the Browns and a victory for St. Louis Cardinals over the Eagles at Philadelphia would tighten and prolong the eastern race.

CLEVELAND LEADS

Cleveland leads with an 8-1-1 mark, followed by St. Louis, 8-2-1, and Philadelphia 5-5.

Baltimore Colts can clinch the western division crown by beating the Rams at Los Angeles.

In other NFL games, Detroit Lions, still with an outside chance for the western title, are host to Minnesota, Dallas plays at Washington, San Francisco is at Chicago and Pittsburgh is at New York.

The American League offers lean fare of two games Sunday Kansas City Chiefs, still with a mathematical chance to overtake San Diego in the western race, play at Houston and New York Jets invade Oakland.

Boston Patriots whipped the stubborn Denver Broncos 12-7 in Boston Friday night.

Unsung Football Coach

Rough, Tough Les Lear Used Mailed Fist

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Every year, gossip gets around about certain personnel changes in the coaching ranks of Canadian Football League teams. And each time the same names crop up as would-be successors.

Frank (Pop) Ivy, who gained some fame as coach of Edmonton Eskimos when they beat Montreal Alouettes three straight years in the Grey Cup final starting in 1954, is usually the No. 1 nominee. He left Eskimos in 1957, coached St. Louis Cardinals in the National Football League and now is a scout for New York Giants of the NFL.

Another is Frank Clair, head coach of Ottawa Rough Riders who piloted Toronto Argonauts to Grey Cup titles in 1950, 1952 and the Riders in 1961.

Other names have cropped up but no one has ever mentioned one of the toughest, roughest guys in the business—Les Lear. He coached and played for Calgary Stampeders in 1948 when they upset the highly favored Ottawa Rough Riders 12-7 and opened the gates for the cup extravaganza as we know it today.

HANDY WITH FISTS

He was the type of coach who got 110 per cent from every player. His 1948 club for instance, was made up of a few old pros and a bunch of kids. The experts said Stampe didn't belong on the same field with the Eastern champions, but they didn't figure on the per ten

Slumping Red Wings Face Bruins, Blues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings run into the two hottest clubs in the National Hockey League this weekend as they try to maintain their first-place lead on the road.

The Wings, slowed by a string of injuries, face the Bruins in Boston tonight and then travel to New York for a Sunday night contest against the accelerating Rangers.

The Bruins, although a distant last, have been sparked recently by Ed Johnston's outstanding netminding and surrendered only one loss in their last six games. New York has won three of its last four, including a 2-1 triumph in Detroit earlier this week.

Chicago Black Hawks visit Toronto Maple Leafs in the only other NHL game tonight. Sunday contests send Montreal Canadiens into Chicago and Toronto to Boston while the Wings are clashing with New York.

The Wings have managed only one victory in their last six games after reeling off an unbeaten string of nine games to take over first place. Their lead has been reduced to one point over Montreal, two over Toronto and three more than Chicago and New York.

Boston, with three wins and two ties in six games, is slowly climbing up the cellar stairs with nine points.

The Leafs apparently have straightened out their injury problems with Frank Mahovlich the only regular out of action, but the Canadiens have dipped into the minors again to strengthen their weakened line up.

Montreal placed centre Andre Boudrais of Omaha in the Central League on standby notice and said another Omaha centre, Gary Peters, would remain with the club. All Canadiens' regular centres are hurt.

Henri Richard is definitely out with his prolonged groin injury while Jean Beliveau and Ralph Backstrom will play, but not at full potential. Bobby Rousseau may also see action.

Rousseau returned to Montreal after suffering a shoulder injury in Montreal's 3-1 loss at Toronto Wednesday. He says he can play, but general manager Sam Pollock wants to see him skate before letting him join the team in Chicago.

Bondrias will play if Rousseau fails Pollock's medical.

Injured defenceman Jacques Laperriere, the key to Montreal's rearguard corps, also may return after missing three games. But club physiotherapist Bill Head will examine Laperriere before allowing him to

Badminton Banter

The Social Day booked for Napanee Saturday, 31st, has been cancelled due to the Defence Department closing the Napanee Armories. This was done very quickly with no warning, so rather than see this function dropped the Belleville club have changed their facilities and the Napanee club will run it on their courts on Nov. 28 This will cost $1.00, including play and dinner and the Belleville members should come out in force and support it.

Doug Grant who won the vet erans' doubles in the Ontario Open in Picton last year has been sent a smart crest for his efforts. These are few and far between and all are proud of the honour.

Don't forget Social Day slated for Belleville armouries, Nov. 28th, 1.00 p.m. This is to be combined with the opening New Members-Get Acquainted-Party at the officers' mess.

Toronto Srs. Win Over RCAF 5-3

TRENTON (Special)— Trenton hockey fans got their first look at a Toronto senior club here last night and some 500 of them liked what they saw.

The York Steel squad tripped the RCAF Globetrotters 5-3 in a razzle-dazzle type game enlivened by its share of rough stuff.

Toronto led 1-0 after one period and 3-0 going into the third. They appeared headed for a shutout by making it 3-0 with just five minutes left in the contest.

Then the 'Trotters came to life. Austin Scott bagged the first goal on a play with Petersen and Dixon. Ralph Plane made it 3-2, assisted by McDonald and Steiner and Stu Mailhead completed the scoring on a three-way play with St. Pierre and Drake.

Kosawon was the big gun for York steel. He scored three goals and set up another. Hunter and Crulkshank completed the Toronto scoring.

Penalties were numerous, especially in the second period when fights kept the crowd roaring. Included in the action one was a game misconduct to Beaan of the visitors.

The two clubs will play here again on Friday, December 4. Meanwhile the highly-rated Syracuse Stars will provide the action for next Friday night's exhibition here.

Large crowds are anticipated for both upcoming attractions.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Fast action by a 17-year-old exercise rider, Jerry Hamm, was credited Friday with averting a potentially disastrous fire in a thoroughbred barn at Pimlico race track. One horse was burned badly and may have to be destroyed, but 60 others were led to safety. Hamm spotted the fire in a stall, grabbed a fire extinguisher and put it out, after leading the horse outside

Cat Fans Staged Hot Pep Rally

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton football fans, undeterred by win try weather and an equally chilly prospect for their Tiger-Cats, crowded downtown Friday night for a dollars pep rally before the Eastern Football Conference finals today against Ottawa Rough Riders.

The fans and the Ticats had enthusiasm and history on their side. But the score, the injury lists and the weather all favored the Rough Riders, who moved quietly into a suburban motel on arrival here after an afternoon workout in Ottawa.

Tiger-Cats, on the prowl for their fourth successive eastern championship and their seventh ticket to the East-West Grey Cup final in eight years, were 17 points behind Ottawa going into the second half of the two game, total-points eastern final. Riders built up a 30-13 lead in Ottawa last Saturday.

The optimistic Hamilton crowd, led by three bands and 250 majorettes in cheering the team at the pep rally, recalled that the 1951 Ticats spotted the opposition three touchdowns before winning the eastern title that year. Toronto Argonauts won the first game 35-7, Hamilton tied it 27-27 in the second game and went on to win 35-27 in overtime.

Central Pro Hockey

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minneapolis Bruins breezed past St. Louis 6-2 in a Central Hockey League game Friday night.

The second-place Bruins went into a 4-2 lead in the second period, during which St. Louis goalkeeper Roy Edwards made 20 saves. He had 46 for the night.

Doctor Flattens Image

Calls Clay 'Normal Youngster'

'BOSTON (AP) — A pipe-smoking Boston surgeon and the father-in-law of a heroin operation gave Cassius Clay's image a worse beating Friday than did his Sonny Liston's fearsome fists.

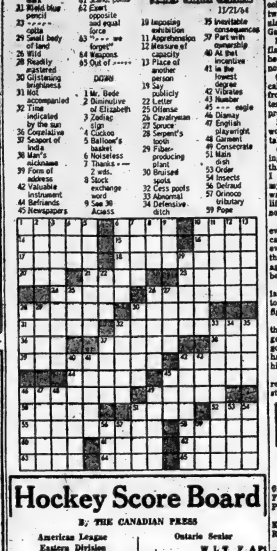
It was a subdued hea-vyweight boxing champion who held his first news conference since surviving a grueling emergency surgery last Friday night.

The operation by Dr. James McDermott Jr. forced cancellation of the title bout between Clay and Liston scheduled for last Monday at Boston Garden.

It was Dr. McDermott who flattened the Clay image when he referred to him as "a very normal, 22-year-old youngster.

Of all the things Clay has been called since he won the title from Liston in Miami last winter, "normal" or anything approaching it has not been one.

McDermott also said Clay would probably leave the hospital next Friday.



Clay said: "Just the fight being cancelled hurt me more than the pain of the operation. I was in best condition of my life. . . and Sonny Liston was in the best condition of his life . . . normal would be best no physical excuses this time.'

Clay said he felt sorry for everybody he had to meet because of the postponement and even for Liston because of "all that hard work for a man his age." He expects the fight to be held within six months.

McDermott referred to speculation that Clay did not have to have the operation before the fight and said:

"I want to emphasize that this was an acute surgical emergency . . . if this had been legs six or eight hours he would have been in serious danger of his life."

The doctor said Clay would require three months without strenuous exercise.
